(5) Amount in trust not part of estate — Notwithstanding any provision of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, in the event of any liquidation, assignment, receivership or bankruptcy of or by a person, an amount equal to any amount

(a) deemed by subsection (4) to be held in trust for Her Majesty, or

(b) deducted or withheld under an Act of a province with which the Minister of Finance has entered into an agreement for the collection of taxes payable to the province under that Act that is deemed under that Act to be held in trust for Her Majesty in right of the province shall be deemed to be separate from and form no part of the estate in liquidation, assignment, receivership or bankruptcy, whether or not that amount has in fact been kept separate and apart from the person's own moneys or from the assets of the estate.

That portion of subsec. 227(5) preceding para. (a) amended to substitute "Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act" for "Bankruptcy Act", by 1992, c. 27, para. 90(1)(q), deemed to have come into force November 30, 1992.

Selected Cases [subsec. 227(5)]: Roll v. R., [2001] 1 C.T.C. 143 (FCA) (Bare trustee has no independent authority; not liable for failure to remit source deductions).

(5.1) Definition of "specified person" — In subsection (5), a "specified person" in relation to a particular person means a person who is, in relation to the particular person or the disbursements, property, business or estate of the particular person,

(a) a trustee;

(b) a liquidator;

(c) a receiver;

(d) an interim receiver;

(e) a receiver-manager;

(f) a trustee in bankruptcy or other person appointed under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act;

(g) an assignee;

(h) a secured creditor (as defined in subsection 224(1.3));

(i) an executor, a liquidator of a succession or an administrator;

(j) any person acting in a capacity similar to that of a person referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (i);

(k) a person appointed (otherwise than as an employee of the creditor) at the request of, or on the advice of, a secured creditor in relation to the particular person to monitor, or provide advice in respect of, the disbursements, property, business or estate of the particular person under circumstances such that it is reasonable to conclude that the person is appointed to protect or advance the interests of the creditor; or

(l) an agent of a specified person referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (k).

History: Para. 227(5.1)(i) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 229, in force June 14, 2001. The para. formerly read:

(i) an executor or administrator;

Subsec. 227(5.1) added by 1996, c. 21, s. 57, applicable June 20, 1996.

(5.2) "Person" includes partnership — For the purposes of this section, references in subsections (5) and (5.1) to persons include partnerships.

Related Provisions: 227(15) — "Person" includes partnerships for certain purposes throughout s. 227.

History: Subsec. 227(5.2) added by 1996, c. 21, s. 57, applicable June 20, 1996.

Possible Future Addition — 227(5.2)-(5.4) — Bank interference with remittance cheques

The Dec. 12, 1995 Notice of Ways and Means Motion proposed to add 227(5.2)-(5.4) (and would have numbered what is now 227(5.2) as 227(5.5)), to come into force on Royal Assent. These provisions would generally have made a secured creditor with influence over what cheques or payments can clear (such as a bank) liable for refusing to clear (or otherwise interfering with) remittances of withholdings, unless all payments were being stopped. (Similar proposals for GST remittances were in proposed Excise Tax Act s. 323.1.) However, the banks and other financial institutions promised to comply voluntarily, and the proposals were put on hold to allow the CRA to monitor this compliance. They have now been "suspended indefinitely", and a "re-announcement would be necessary" if they were to be reintroduced (Finance email to David Sherman, Aug. 6, 2009). (6) Excess withheld, returned or applied — Where a person on whose behalf an amount has been paid under Part XII.5 or XIII to the Receiver General was not liable to pay tax under that Part or where the amount so paid is in excess of the amount that the person was liable to pay, the Minister shall, on written application made no later than 2 years after the end of the calendar year in which the amount was paid, pay to the person the amount so paid or such part of it as the person was not liable to pay, unless the person is or is about to become liable to make a payment to Her Majesty in right of Canada, in which case the Minister may apply the amount otherwise payable under this subsection to that liability and notify the person of that action.

History: Subsec. 227(6) amended by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 67(2), applicable April 25, 1997. Subsec. (6) formerly read:

(6) Where a person on whose behalf an amount has been paid under Part XIII to the Receiver General was not liable to pay tax under that Part or where the amount so paid is in excess of the amount that the person was liable to pay, the Minister shall, on written application made no later than 2 years after the end of the calendar year in which the amount was paid, pay to the person the amount so paid or such part of it as the person was not liable to pay, unless the person is or is about to become liable to make a payment to Her Majesty in right of Canada, in which case the Minister may apply the amount otherwise payable under this subsection to that liability and notify the person of that action.

Subsec. 227(6) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 104(1), applicable June 15, 1994. That subsec. formerly read:

(6) Withheld money returned or applied otherwise — Where a person on whose behalf an amount has been paid to the Receiver General after having been deducted or withheld under Part XIII was not liable to pay any tax under that Part or where the amount so paid to the Receiver General on the person's behalf is in excess of the tax that the person was liable to pay, the Minister shall, on application in writing made within two years from the end of the calendar year in which the amount was paid, pay to the person the amount so paid or such part thereof as the person was not liable to pay, unless the person is otherwise liable or about to become liable to make a payment under this Act, in which case the Minister may apply the amount otherwise payable under this subsection to that payment and notify the person of that fact.

Forms: NR7-R: Application for refund of non-resident Part XIII tax withheld; NR302: Declaration of benefits under a tax treaty for a partnership with non-resident partners; NR303: Declaration of benefits under a tax treaty for a hybrid entity.

(6.1) Repayment of non-resident shareholder loan — Where, in respect of a loan from or indebtedness to a corporation or partnership, a person on whose behalf an amount was paid to the Receiver General under Part XIII because of subsection 15(2) and paragraph 214(3)(a) repays the loan or indebtedness or a portion of it and it is established by subsequent events or otherwise that the repayment was not made as part of a series of loans or other transactions and repayments, the Minister shall, on written application made no later than 2 years after the end of the calendar year in which the repayment is made, pay to the person an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the amount so paid to the Receiver General in respect of the loan or indebtedness or portion of it, as the case may be, and

(b) the amount that would be payable to the Receiver General under Part XIII if a dividend described in paragraph 212(2)(a) equal in amount to the amount of the loan or indebtedness repaid were paid by the corporation or partnership to the person at the time of the repayment, unless the person is or is about to become liable to make a payment to Her Majesty in right of Canada, in which case the Minister may apply the amount otherwise payable under this subsection to that liability and notify the person of that action.

Related Provisions: 227(7.1) — Determination of amount under subsec. (6.1); 248(10) — Series of transactions.

History: Subsec. 227(6.1) added by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 104(1), applicable to repayments made after December 21, 1992.

(7) Application for assessment — Where, on application under subsection (6) by or on behalf of a person to the Minister in respect of an amount paid under Part XII.5 or XIII to the Receiver General, the Minister is not satisfied

(a) that the person was not liable to pay any tax under that Part, or

(b) that the amount paid was in excess of the tax that the person was liable to pay, the Minister shall assess any amount payable under that Part by the person and send a notice of assessment to the person, and sections 150 to 163, subsections 164(1) and (1.4) to (7), sections 164.1 to 167 and Division J of Part I apply with any modifications that the circumstances require.

History: Subsec. 227(7) amended by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 67(3), applicable April 25, 1997. Subsec. (7) formerly read:

(7) Where, on application under subsection (6) by or on behalf of a person to the Minister in respect of an amount paid under Part XIII to the Receiver General, the Minister is not satisfied

(a) that the person was not liable to pay any tax under that Part, or

(b) that the amount paid was in excess of the tax that the person was liable to pay, the Minister shall assess the person for any amount payable under Part XIII by the person and send a notice of assessment to the person, and sections 150 to 163, subsections 164(1) and (1.4) to (7), sections 164.1 to 167 and Division J of Part I apply with such modifications as the circumstances require.

Subsec. 227(7) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 104(1), applicable June 15, 1994. That subsec. formerly read:

(7) Idem — Where, on application by or on behalf of a person to the Minister pursuant to subsection (6) in respect of an amount paid to the Receiver General that was deducted or withheld under Part XIII, the Minister is not satisfied

(a) that the person was not liable to pay any tax under that Part, or

(b) that the amount paid to the Receiver General was in excess of the tax that the person was liable to pay, the Minister shall assess the person for any amount payable by the person under Part XIII and send a notice of assessment to the person, whereupon sections 150 to 163, subsections 164(1) and (1.4) to (7), sections 164.1 to 167 and Division J of Part I are applicable with such modifications as the circumstances require.

Canada (A.-G.)*, [2008] 3 C.T.C. 425 (Ont CA) (Only non-resident may apply for refund of Part XIII tax).

(7.1) Application for determination — Where, on application under subsection (6.1) by or on behalf of a person to the Minister in respect of an amount paid under Part XIII to the Receiver General, the Minister is not satisfied that the person is entitled to the amount claimed, the Minister shall, at the person's request, determine, with all due dispatch, the amount, if any, payable under subsection (6.1) to the person and shall send a notice of determination to the person, and sections 150 to 163, subsections 164(1) and (1.4) to (7), sections 164.1 to 167 and Division J of Part I apply with such modifications as the circumstances require.

History: Subsec. 227(7.1) added by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 104(1), applicable to repayments made after December 21, 1992.

(8) Penalty — Subject to subsection (8.5), every person who in a calendar year has failed to deduct or withhold any amount as required by subsection 153(1) or section 215 is liable to a penalty of

Proposed Amendment — 227(8) opening words

(8) Penalty — Subject to subsection (9.5), every person who in a calendar year has failed to deduct or withhold any amount as required by subsection 153(1) or section 215 is liable to a penalty of Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, s. 53, will amend the opening words of subsec. 227(8) to read as above, in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: Subsection 227(8) imposes a two-tier penalty for failure to deduct or withhold an amount as required by subsection 153(1) and section 215.

Subsection 227(8) is amended to replace the reference to subsection 227(8.5), which has been repealed, with a reference to subsection 227(9.5). Subsection 227(9.5) provides that in applying paragraph 227(8)(b), in respect of an amount required by paragraph 153(1)(a) to be deducted or withheld, each establishment of a person is deemed to be a separate person.

(a) 10% of the amount that should have been deducted or withheld; or

(b) where at the time of the failure a penalty under this subsection was payable by the person in respect of an amount that should have been deducted or withheld during the year and the failure was made knowingly or under circumstances amounting to gross negligence, 20% of that amount.

Related Provisions: 147.1(3) — Deemed registration; 161(11) — Interest on penalties; 227(8.3) — Interest on amounts not deducted or withheld; 227(8.4) — Non-resident employees and patronage dividends; 227(9) — Penalty; 227(9.5) — Each establishment considered a separate person; 227(10) — Assessment; 227(10.2) — Joint and several liability re contributions to RCA; 252.1 — Where union is employer.

History: Para. 227(8)(b) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 132(1), applicable after 1992, except with respect to amounts required to be remitted before 1993. Para. (b) formerly read:

(b) where the person had at the time of the failure been assessed a penalty under this subsection in respect of an amount that should have been deducted or withheld during the year, 20% of the amount that should have been deducted or withheld.

Selected Cases [subsec. 227(8)]: Mollenhauer Ltd. v. Canada, [1992] 2 C.T.C. 121 (FCTD) (Contractor which undertook to pay subcontractor's employees' "salary or wages or other remuneration" liable for failing to make and remit source deductions despite not being "employer"); *Comanche Drilling Ltd. Related Provisions: 227(10) — Assessment.

(8.2) Retirement compensation arrangement deductions — Where a person has failed to deduct or withhold any amount as required under subsection 153(1) in respect of a contribution under a retirement compensation arrangement, that person is liable to pay to Her Majesty an amount equal to the amount of the contribution, and each payment on account of that amount is deemed to be, in the year in which the payment is made,

(a) for the purposes of paragraph 20(1)(r), a contribution by the person to the arrangement; and

(b) an amount on account of tax payable by the custodian under Part XI.3.

Related Provisions: 147.1(3) — Deemed registration; 153(1)(p) — Withholding required; 227(10) — Assessment; 227(10.2) — Joint and several liability re contributions to RCA; 252.1 — Where union is employer.

(8.3) Interest on amounts not deducted or withheld — A person who fails to deduct or withhold any amount as required by subsection 135(3), 135.1(7), 153(1) or 211.8(2) or section 215 shall pay to the Receiver General interest on the amount at the prescribed rate, computed

(a) in the case of an amount required by subsection 153(1) to be deducted or withheld from a payment to another person, from the fifteenth day of the month immediately following the month in which the amount was required to be deducted or withheld, or from such earlier day as may be prescribed for the purposes of subsection 153(1), to,

(i) where that other person is not resident in Canada, the day of payment of the amount to the Receiver General, and

(ii) where that other person is resident in Canada, the earlier of the day of payment of the amount to the Receiver General and April 30 of the year immediately following the year in which the amount was required to be deducted or withheld;

(b) in the case of an amount required by subsection 135(3) or 135.1(7) or section 215 to be deducted or withheld, from the day on which the amount was required to be deducted or withheld to the day of payment of the amount to the Receiver General; and

(c) in the case of an amount required by subsection 211.8(2) to be withheld, from the day on or before which the amount was required to be remitted to the Receiver General to the day of the payment of the amount to the Receiver General.

Related Provisions: 221.1 — Application of interest where legislation retroactive; 227(8.1) — Joint and several liability; 227(10) — Assessment; 227(10.2) — Joint and several liability re contributions to RCA; 248(11) — Compound interest; 252.1 — Where union is employer.

(10) Assessment — The Minister may at any time assess any amount payable under

(a) subsection (8), (8.1), (8.2), (8.3) or (8.4) or 224(4) or (4.1) or section 227.1 or 235 by a person,

(b) subsection 237.1(7.4) or (7.5) by a person or partnership,

Proposed Amendment — 227(10)(b)

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 3 — other amendments), s. 114, will amend para. 227(10)(b) to substitute "237.1(7.4) or 237.3(8)" for "237.1(7.4)", applicable in respect of avoidance transactions that are entered into after 2010 or that are part of a series of transactions that began before 2011 and is completed after 2010.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Subsection 227(10) empowers the Minister of National Revenue to assess a person for various amounts, including penalties and other amounts payable by the person in respect of the failure to comply with the various provisions of the Act. Subsection 227(10) is amended to apply to a person or partnership that is required to pay a penalty under new subsection 237.3(8) for failure to comply with the reporting requirements in respect of a reportable transaction (within the meaning assigned under new subsection 237.3(1)).

(c) subsection (10.2) by a person as a consequence of a failure of a non-resident person to deduct or withhold any amount, or

(d) Part XIII by a person resident in Canada, and, where the Minister sends a notice of assessment to that person or partnership, Divisions I and J of Part I apply with any modifications that the circumstances require.

Related Provisions: 164(1.5)(c)(i) — Late refund of amount overpaid due to 227(10) assessment under Reg. 105; 222(5)(c) — Restart of 10-year collection limitation period.

History: Para. 227(10)(b) amended to substitute "237.1(7.4) or (7.5)" for "237.1(7.4)" by 2012, c. 19, s. 14, in force June 29, 2012.

Subsec. 227(10) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 226(3), applicable after December 1, 1994. Subsec. 227(10) formerly read:

(10) The Minister may assess

(a) any person for any amount payable by that person under subsection (8), (8.1), (8.2), (8.3) or (8.4) or 224(4) or (4.1) or section 227.1 or 235,

(a.1) any person for any amount payable under subsection (10.2) by the person as a consequence of a failure by a non-resident person to deduct or withhold any amount, and

(b) any person resident in Canada for any amount payable by that person under Part XIII, and, where the Minister sends a notice of assessment to that person, Divisions I and J of Part I are applicable with such modifications as the circumstances require.

Para. 227(10)(a.1) added by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 104(3), applicable June 15, 1994.

Para. 227(10)(a) amended to add reference to s. 235 by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 186(4).

(10.01) Part XII.5 [assessment] — The Minister may at any time assess any amount payable under Part XII.5 by a person resident in Canada and, where the Minister sends a notice of assessment to that person, Divisions I and J of Part I apply with any modifications that the circumstances require.

History: Subsec. 227(10.01) added by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 67(6), applicable April 25, 1997.

(10.1) Idem — The Minister may at any time assess

(a) any amount payable under section 116 or subsection (9), (9.2), (9.3) or (9.4) by any person,

(b) any amount payable under subsection (10.2) by any person as a consequence of a failure by a non-resident person to remit any amount, and

(c) any amount payable under Part XII.5 or XIII by any non-resident person, and, where the Minister sends a notice of assessment to the person, sections 150 to 163, subsections 164(1) and (1.4) to (7), sections 164.1 to 167 and Division J of Part I apply with such modifications as the circumstances require.

Related Provisions: 164(1.5)(c)(ii) — Late refund of amount overpaid due to 227(10.1) assessment under 116(5) or (5.3); 224(1.2) — Garnishment of payments redirected to secured creditors.

History: Paras. 227(10.1)(a) to (c) substituted for paras. (a) to (b) by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 67(7), applicable April 25, 1997. Paras. (a) to (b) formerly read:

(a) any person for any amount payable under section 116 or subsection (9), (9.2), (9.3) or (9.4) by the person,

(a.1) any person for any amount payable under subsection (10.2) by the person as a consequence of a failure by a non-resident person to remit any amount, and

(b) any non-resident person for any amount payable under Part XIII by the person,

Subsec. 227(10.1) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 104(4), applicable to amounts that become payable after 1990 except that, in applying subsec. 227(10.1) to amounts that became payable before June 15, 1994, it shall be read without reference to para. (a.1) thereof. That subsec. formerly read:

(10.1) Idem — The Minister may assess

(a) any person for any amount payable by that person under subsection (9), (9.2), (9.3) or (9.4), and

(b) any non-resident person for any amount payable by that person under Part XIII, and, where the Minister sends a notice of assessment to that person, sections 150 to 163, subsections 164(1) and (1.4) to (7), sections 164.1 to 167 and Division J of Part I are applicable with such modifications as the circumstances require.

(10.2) Joint and several liability re contributions to RCA — Where a non-resident person fails to deduct, withhold or remit an amount as required by subsection 153(1) in respect of a contribution under a retirement compensation arrangement that is paid on behalf of the employees or former employees of an employer with whom the non-resident person does not deal at arm's length, the employer is jointly and severally liable with the non-resident person to pay any amount payable under subsection (8), (8.2), (8.3), (9), (9.2) or (9.4) by the non-resident person in respect of the contribution.

(10.2) Joint and several, or solidary, liability re contributions to RCA — If a non-resident person fails to deduct, withhold or remit an amount as required by subsection 153(1) in respect of a contribution under a retirement compensation arrangement that is paid on behalf of the employees or former employees of an employer with whom the non-resident person does not deal at arm's length, the employer is jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with the non-resident person to pay any amount payable under subsection (8), (8.2), (8.3), (9), (9.2) or (9.4) by the non-resident person in respect of the contribution.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — bijuralism), subsec. 252(3), will amend subsec. 227(10.2) to read as above, to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): See under 12(4).

Related Provisions: 227(10)(c) — Assessment for failure to deduct or withhold; 227(10.1)(c) — Assessment for failure to remit tax.

History: Subsec. 227(10.2) added by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 104(5), applicable June 15, 1994.

Former (10.2), (10.3)–(10.9) [Repealed]

History: Former subsec. 227(10.2), and subsec. (10.3) to (10.9), repealed by 1993, c. 24, s. 153. (Subsec. (10.9), which was added in the R.S.C. 1985 (5th Supp.) consolidation, taking the place of the application rule in 1986, c. 6, subsec. 118(4), provided that subsecs. (10.2) to (10.8) would come into force on a day to be proclaimed. That proclamation never occurred.)

(11) Withholding tax — Provisions of this Act requiring a person to deduct or withhold an amount in respect of taxes from amounts payable to a taxpayer are applicable to Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province.

(12) Agreement not to deduct void — Where this Act requires an amount to be deducted or withheld, an agreement by the person on whom that obligation is imposed not to deduct or withhold is void.

(13) Minister's receipt discharges debtor — The receipt of the Minister for an amount deducted or withheld by any person as required by or under this Act is a good and sufficient discharge of the liability of any debtor to the debtor's creditor with respect thereto to the extent of the amount referred to in the receipt.

(14) Application of other Parts — Parts IV, IV.1, VI and VI.1 do not apply to any corporation for any period throughout which it is exempt from tax because of section 149.

Related Provisions: 181.1(3)(c) — Exemption from Part I.3 tax; 186.1 — Part IV tax — exempt corporations; 219(2) — Part XIV tax — exempt corporations; 227(16) — Part IV tax — municipal or provincial corporation.

History: Subsec. 227(14) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 186(5), applicable to any period or part of a period referred to in the subsec. that is after 1989. Subsec. (14) formerly read:

(14) Where Parts III, IV, IV.1, VI and VI.1 are not applicable — Parts III, IV, IV.1, VI and VI.1 are not applicable to any corporation for any period throughout which it is exempt from tax under section 149.

Information Circulars: 78-10R5: Books and records retention/destruction; 05-1R1: Electronic record keeping.

(5) Exception — Where, in respect of any taxation year, a person referred to in subsection (1) has not filed a return with the Minister as and when required by section 150, that person shall retain every record and book of account that is required by this section to be kept and that relates to that taxation year, together with every account and voucher necessary to verify the information contained therein, until the expiration of six years from the day the return for that taxation year is filed.

Related Provisions: 238(1) — Punishment for failing to comply.

(6) Exception where objection or appeal — Where a person required by this section to keep records and books of account serves a notice of objection or where that person is a party to an appeal to the Tax Court of Canada under this Act, that person shall retain every record, book of account, account and voucher necessary for dealing with the objection or appeal until, in the case of the serving of a notice of objection, the time provided by section 169 to appeal has elapsed or, in the case of an appeal, until the appeal is disposed of and any further appeal in respect thereof is disposed of or the time for filing any such further appeal has expired.

Information Circulars: 78-10R5: Books and records retention/destruction.

(7) Exception where demand by Minister — Where the Minister is of the opinion that it is necessary for the administration of this Act, the Minister may, by registered letter or by a demand served personally, require any person required by this section to keep records and books of account to retain those records and books of account, together with every account and voucher necessary to verify the information contained therein, for such period as is specified in the letter or demand.

Application: Former Bill C-20 (2007; requires re-introduction), s. 126, will amend subsec. 230.1(1) to read as above, in force six months after Royal Assent.

Related Provisions: 127(3)–(4.2) — Credit for political contributions; 238(1) — Punishment for failing to comply.

History: Subsec. 230.1(1) amended by 2003, c. 19, s. 74, in force January 1, 2004, except that

(a) on and after June 19, 2003 but before January 1, 2004, s. 230.1 is to be read as amended except that para. 230.1(1)(a) is to be read without reference to the expression "or of registered associations";

(b) if the day on which the amendment comes into force occurs during an election period, within the meaning assigned by the Canada Elections Act, para. 230.1(1)(a) is to be read, in respect of that election, as described in (a) above.

This transitional rule in para. (a) above is technically meaningless because it does not refer to the words "a provincial division of a registered party", which were added at the Commons committee stage before the 2003 election financing bill received Third Reading in the House of Commons.

Subsec. 230.1(1) formerly read:

230.1 (1) Records and books re political contributions — Every registered agent of a registered party and the official agent of each candidate at an election of a member or members to serve in the House of Commons of Canada shall keep records and books of account sufficient to enable the amounts contributed that are received by the agent and expenditures that are made by the agent to be verified (including duplicates of all receipts for amounts contributed, containing prescribed information and signed by the agent) at

(a) in the case of a registered agent, the agent's address recorded in the registry maintained by the Chief Electoral Officer pursuant to subsection 33(1) of the Canada Elections Act; and

(b) in the case of an official agent, an address in Canada recorded with or designated by the Minister.

That portion of subsec. 230.1(1) preceding para. (a) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 133(1), applicable to 1992 et seq. That portion formerly read:

(1) Books and records relating to political contributions — Every registered agent of a registered party and the official agent of each candidate at an election of a member or members to serve in the House of Commons of Canada shall keep records and books of account sufficient to enable the amounts contributed received by the agent and expenditures made by the agent to be verified (including duplicates of all receipts for amounts contributed, signed by the registered agent or official agent, as the case may be, other than any such duplicate receipts filed by the agent under subsection (2)) at

(2) Information return — Each agent to whom subsection (1) applies shall file with the Minister an information return in prescribed form and containing prescribed information. The return is to be filed within the period for the filing of a financial transactions return or an electoral campaign return, as the case may be, under the Canada Elections Act.

(2) Information return — Each agent to whom subsection (1) applies shall file with the Minister an information return in prescribed form and containing prescribed information. The return is to be filed within the period for the filing of a financial transactions return or an electoral campaign return, as the case may be, under the Canada Elections Act or the Senate Appointment Consultations Act.

Application: Former Bill C-20 (2007; requires re-introduction), s. 126, will amend subsec. 230.1(2) to read as above, in force six months after Royal Assent.

Related Provisions: 230.1(4) — Reports to chief electoral officer; 238(1) — Punishment for failing to comply.

History: Subsec. 230.1(2) amended by 2003, c. 19, s. 74, in force January 1, 2004. Subsec. 230.1(2) formerly read:

(2) Return of information — Each person to whom subsection (1) applies shall,

(a) in the case of a registered agent, at such times, not more frequently than annually, as are prescribed by the Minister, and file with the Minister a return of information in prescribed form and containing prescribed information.

That portion of subsec. 230.1(2) after para. (a) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 133(2), applicable to 1992 et seq. That portion formerly read:

(b) in the case of an official agent, within the time within which a return is required to be submitted by the agent to a returning officer pursuant to section 228 of the Canada Elections Act,

file with the Minister a return of information, in prescribed form and containing prescribed information, together with the duplicates of all receipts referred to in that subsection signed by that person since the later of the day any previous such information return was filed by that person and August 1, 1974.

(4) [Repealed]

History: Subsec. 230.1(4) repealed by 1994, c. 21, s. 106, applicable June 15, 1994. That subsec. formerly read:

(4) Notwithstanding section 241, the Minister shall, as soon as is reasonably possible after each election and at such other time as is appropriate having regard to the time of receipt by the Minister of returns of information under subsection (2), forward to the Chief Electoral Officer a report that is based on all such returns of information as have been received by the Minister since the most recent such report and that sets out the total of amounts contributed to each registered party and the total of amounts contributed to each candidate at an election of a member or members to serve in the House of Commons of Canada since the most recent such report, and, on receipt thereof by the Chief Electoral Officer, the report is a public record and may be inspected by any person on request during normal business hours.

Subsec. 230.1(4) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 133(3), applicable to 1992 et seq. Subsec. (4) formerly read:

(4) Reports to Chief Electoral Officer — The Minister shall, notwithstanding section 241, as soon as is reasonably possible after each election and at such other time as is appropriate having regard to the time of receipt by the Minister of returns of information under subsection (2), forward to the Chief Electoral Officer a report based on all such returns of information and duplicate receipts as have been received by the Minister since the most recent such report, setting out the total of amounts contributed to each registered party and the total of amounts contributed to each candidate at an election of a member or members to serve in the House of Commons of Canada since the most recent such report, and, on receipt thereof by the Chief Electoral Officer, the report is a public record and may be inspected by any person on request during normal business hours.

Proposed Amendment — 231.2(1) opening words

231.2 (1) Requirement to provide documents or information — Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Minister may, subject to subsection (2), for any purpose related to the administration or enforcement of this Act (including the collection of any amount payable under this Act by any person), of a listed international agreement or, for greater certainty, of a tax treaty with another country, by notice served personally or by registered or certified mail, require that any person provide, within such reasonable time as is stipulated in the notice,

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), s. 144, will amend the opening words of subsec. 231.2(1) to read as above, in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 231.2(1) provides that, notwithstanding any other provision of the Act, the Minister of National Revenue may by notice require that any person provide information or any document for any purpose relating to the administration or enforcement of the Act. An exception is made where the information or document relates to an unnamed person or persons, in which case the procedure set out in subsections 231.1(2) to (6) must be followed.

Subsection 231.2(1) is amended to provide that the Minister may by notice require any person to provide information or any document relating to the administration or enforcement of the Act, of a listed international agreement or, for greater certainty, of a tax treaty with another country.

A "listed international agreement" is newly defined in subsection 248(1) to mean the Convention on Mutual Administrative Assistance in Tax Matters, concluded at Strasbourg on January 25, 1988, as amended from time to time by a protocol or other international instrument as ratified by Canada and a comprehensive tax information exchange agreement that Canada has entered into, and that has effect, in respect of another country or jurisdiction. A "tax treaty" with a country is defined in subsection 248(1) to mean a comprehensive agreement or convention for the elimination of double taxation on income, between the Government of Canada and the government of the country, which has the force of law in Canada at that time.

(a) any information or additional information, including a return of income or a supplementary return; or

(b) any document.

Related Provisions: 150(2) — Demand to file income tax return; 168(1)(e) — Revocation of charity's registration for failure to comply; 188.2(2)(a) — Suspension of charity's receipting privileges for failing to comply; 231.1(1)(b) — Examination of inventory; 231.5(1) — Copy of taxpayer's document may be used in court proceedings; 231.5(2) — Obligation to comply with auditor; 231.7 — Court order for compliance with requirement; 232(2) — Solicitor-client privilege defence; 232(3.1) — Examination of documents where privilege claimed; 237.1(8) — Application to tax shelter disclosure; 237.3(13) — Audit of reportable avoidance transaction before return filed; 238(1) — Punishment for failure to comply; 244(5), (6) — Proof of service by mail or personal service; 244(9) — Copy of taxpayer's document may be used in court proceedings; 248(7)(a) — Mail deemed received on day mailed.

History: The opening words of subsec. 231.2(1) amended by 2007, c. 35, s. 63, in force on December 14, 2007. The opening words formerly read:

(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Minister may, subject to subsection (2), for any purpose related to the administration or enforcement of this Act, including the collection of any amount payable under this Act by any person, by notice served personally or by registered or certified mail, require that any person provide, within such reasonable time as is stipulated in the notice,

(3) Evidence — A judge may issue the warrant referred to in subsection (1) where the judge is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds to believe that

(a) an offence under this Act was committed;

(b) a document or thing that may afford evidence of the commission of the offence is likely to be found; and

(c) the building, receptacle or place specified in the application is likely to contain such a document or thing.

Related Provisions: See at end of 231.3.

History: Subsec. 231.3(3) substituted by 1994, c. 21, s. 108, applicable June 15, 1994. That subsec. formerly read:

(3) A judge shall issue the warrant referred to in subsection (1) where the judge is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds to believe that

(a) an offence under this Act has been committed;

(b) a document or thing that may afford evidence of the commission of the offence is likely to be found; and

(c) the building, receptacle or place specified in the application is likely to contain such a document or thing.

231.4 (1) Inquiry — The Minister may, for any purpose related to the administration or enforcement of this Act, authorize any person, whether or not the person is an officer of the Canada Revenue Agency, to make such inquiry as the person may deem necessary with reference to anything relating to the administration or enforcement of this Act.

Related Provisions: 231.5(2) — Compliance. See also Related Provisions and Definitions at end of 231.4.

History: Subsec. 231.4(1) amended to substitute "Canada Revenue Agency" for "Canada Customs and Revenue Agency" by 2005, c. 38, subpara. 138(m)(iii), proclaimed in force December 12, 2005.

Subsec. 231.4(1) amended to substitute "Canada Customs and Revenue Agency" for "Department of National Revenue" by 1999, c. 17, para. 168(c), proclaimed in force November 1, 1999.

(2) Appointment of hearing officer — Where the Minister, pursuant to subsection (1), authorizes a person to make an inquiry, the Minister shall forthwith apply to the Tax Court of Canada for an order appointing a hearing officer before whom the inquiry will be held.

(3) Powers of hearing officer — For the purposes of an inquiry authorized under subsection (1), a hearing officer appointed under subsection (2) in relation thereto has all the powers conferred on a commissioner by sections 4 and 5 of the Inquiries Act and that may be conferred on a commissioner under section 11 thereof.

Inquiries Act: Ss. 4, 5 of the Inquiries Act, R.S., c. I-13, provide:

> 4. The commissioners have the power of summoning before them any witnesses, and of requiring them to
> (a) give evidence, orally or in writing, and on oath or, if they are persons entitled to affirm in civil matters on solemn affirmation; and
> (b) produce such documents and things as the commissioners deem requisite to the full investigation of the matters into which they are appointed to examine.
> 5. The commissioners have the same power to enforce the attendance of witnesses and to compel them to give evidence as is vested in any court of record in civil cases.

CRA Audit Manual: 15.5.0 and Appendix 15.13.1: Foreign-based information and documentation.

(3) Notice — The notice referred to in subsection (2) shall set out

(a) a reasonable period of time of not less than 90 days for the production of the information or document;

(b) a description of the information or document being sought; and

(c) the consequences under subsection (8) to the person of the failure to provide the information or documents being sought within the period of time set out in the notice.

Related Provisions: Interpretation Act s. 27 — Computation of time.

CRA Audit Manual: 15.5.0: Foreign-based information and documentation.

(4) Review of foreign information requirement — The person on whom a notice of a requirement is served under subsection (2) may, within 90 days after the service of the notice, apply to a judge for a review of the requirement.

Selected Cases [subsec. 231.6(4)]: European Marine Contractors Ltd. v. Canada (CCRA), [2004] 2 C.T.C. 226 (FC) (Filing income tax return made audit a virtual certainty and foreign information required to be provided).

(5) Powers on review — On hearing an application under subsection (4) in respect of a requirement, a judge may

(a) confirm the requirement;

(b) vary the requirement as the judge considers appropriate in the circumstances; or

(c) set aside the requirement if the judge is satisfied that the requirement is unreasonable.

CRA Audit Manual: 15.5.0: Foreign-based information and documentation.

(6) Idem — For the purposes of paragraph (5)(c), the requirement to provide the information or document shall not be considered to be unreasonable because the information or document is under the control of or available to a non-resident person that is not controlled by the person served with the notice of the requirement under subsection (2) if that person is related to the non-resident person.

Related Provisions: 256(6), (6.1) — Meaning of "controlled".

CRA Audit Manual: 15.5.0: Foreign-based information and documentation.

(7) Time during consideration not to count — The period of time between the day on which an application for review of a requirement is made pursuant to subsection (4) and the day on which the review is decided shall not be counted in the computation of

(a) the period of time set out in the notice of the requirement; and

(b) the period of time within which an assessment may be made pursuant to subsection 152(4).

CRA Audit Manual: 15.5.0: Foreign-based information and documentation.

(8) Consequence of failure — If a person fails to comply substantially with a notice served under subsection (2) and if the notice is not set aside by a judge pursuant to subsection (5), any court having jurisdiction in a civil proceeding relating to the administration or enforcement of this Act shall, on motion of the Minister, prohibit the introduction by that person of any foreign-based information or document covered by that notice.

231.7 (1) Compliance order — On summary application by the Minister, a judge may, notwithstanding subsection 238(2), order a person to provide any access, assistance, information or document sought by the Minister under section 231.1 or 231.2 if the judge is satisfied that

(a) the person was required under section 231.1 or 231.2 to provide the access, assistance, information or document and did not do so; and

(b) in the case of information or a document, the information or document is not protected from disclosure by solicitor-client privilege (within the meaning of subsection 232(1)).

Related Provisions: 231.5(2) — Compliance with audit or demand required; 231.7(2) — Five clear days' notice required; 231.7(3) — Conditions can be imposed; 231.7(4) — Contempt of court for failure to comply; 231.7(5) — Appeal of order.

Information Circulars: 78-10R5: Books and records retention/destruction.

(2) Notice required — An application under subsection (1) must not be heard before the end of five clear days from the day the notice of application is served on the person against whom the order is sought.

(3) Judge may impose conditions — A judge making an order under subsection (1) may impose any conditions in respect of the order that the judge considers appropriate.

(4) Contempt of court — If a person fails or refuses to comply with an order, a judge may find the person in contempt of court and the person is subject to the processes and the punishments of the court to which the judge is appointed.

(5) Appeal — An order by a judge under subsection (1) may be appealed to a court having appellate jurisdiction over decisions of the court to which the judge is appointed. An appeal does not suspend the execution of the order unless it is so ordered by a judge of the court to which the appeal is made.

Can.*, [1978] C.T.C. 728 (SCC) (Judge's order under provision made in capacity of judge, and not subject to review under s. 28 of Federal Court Act).

"lawyer" means, in the province of Quebec, an advocate or notary and, in any other province, a barrister or solicitor;

Related Provisions: 248(1)"lawyer" — Definition applies to entire Act.

"officer" means a person acting under the authority conferred by or under sections 231.1 to 231.5;

"solicitor-client privilege" means the right, if any, that a person has in a superior court in the province where the matter arises to refuse to disclose an oral or documentary communication on the ground that the communication is one passing between the person and the person's lawyer in professional confidence, except that for the purposes of this section an accounting record of a lawyer, including any supporting voucher or cheque, shall be deemed not to be such a communication.

Selected Cases [subsec. 232(1)"solicitor-client privilege"]: MNR v. Reddy, [2006] 3 C.T.C. 17 (FC) (Distinction between communication and certain actions involving solicitors; privilege applies to former only); Belgravia Investments Ltd. v. R., [2002] 3 C.T.C. 482 (FCTD) (Mere possession of document by lawyer does not make it privileged and not all communications are privileged); Heath v. Canada, [1990] 2 C.T.C. 28 (BC SC) (Solicitor's trust account ledger was "accounting record of a lawyer" and excluded from solicitor-client privilege); MNR v. Lawrence, [1989] 1 C.T.C. 289 (FCTD) (Solicitor-client privilege is lost where prima facie case of fraud established); Visser and MNR, [1989] 1 C.T.C. 192 (PEI SC) (Voluntary disclosure by taxpayer of material part of communication implicitly waives privilege); Playfair Developments Ltd. v. Dep. MNR, [1985] 1 C.T.C. 302 (Ont SC) (Provision does not give judge jurisdiction to determine whether or not communications sought are relevant to Minister's inquiry; "accounting record" interpreted); Brunner and Lay (Canada) Ltd. v. Dep. A.G. Can., [1984] C.T.C. 534 (FCTD) (Interoffice memoranda between solicitors privileged); Kent Steel Products Ltd. v. R., 76 D.T.C. 6253 (Ont SC) (Documents related to tax minimization, but not tax fraud, are privileged); Re Goodman & Carr et al., [1968] C.T.C. 484 (Ont SC) (Documents privileged unless definite charge of fraud made; communications between solicitor and accountant of taxpayer not privileged); Re Missiaen, [1967] C.T.C. 579 (Alta SC) (Communications between solicitor and accountant not privileged).

(2) Solicitor-client privilege defence — Where a lawyer is prosecuted for failure to comply with a requirement under section 231.2 with respect to information or a document, the lawyer shall be acquitted if the lawyer establishes to the satisfaction of the court

(a) that the lawyer, on reasonable grounds, believed that a client of the lawyer had a solicitor-client privilege in respect of the information or document; and

(b) that the lawyer communicated to the Minister, or some person duly authorized to act for the Minister, the lawyer's refusal to comply with the requirement together with a claim that a named client of the lawyer had a solicitor-client privilege in respect of the information or document.

Selected Cases [subsec. 232(2)]: Cineplex Odeon Corp. v. Canada, [1994] 2 C.T.C. 293 (Ont Gen Div) (Inadvertent disclosure without consent of client does not operate to waive privilege); Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. v. Dep. A.G. Can., [1982] C.T.C. 121 (BC SC) (Communications between taxpayer and its president/counsel were privileged to extent made in latter's capacity as counsel).

CRA Audit Manual: 10.6.8: Obtaining information from lawyers and notaries; 10.7.0: Solicitor-client privilege.

(3) Seizure of certain documents where privilege claimed — Where, pursuant to section 231.3, an officer is about to seize a document in the possession of a lawyer and the lawyer claims that a named client of the lawyer has a solicitor-client privilege in respect of that document, the officer shall, without inspecting, examining or making copies of the document,

(a) seize the document and place it, together with any other document in respect of which the lawyer at the same time makes the same claim on behalf of the same client, in a package and suitably seal and identify the package; and

(b) place the package in the custody of the sheriff of the district or county in which the seizure was made or, if the officer and the lawyer agree in writing on a person to act as custodian, in the custody of that person.

Selected Cases [subsec. 232(3)]: 143471 Canada Inc., Quebec v., [1995] 1 C.T.C. 27 (SCC) (Impounded documents to be kept until constitutionality of impunged sections of legislation determined. Protection of individuals preferred to convenience of Minister); Re Bowlen et al., [1971] C.T.C. 682 (BC SC) (No privilege where prima facie case of fraud established).

(3.1) Examination of certain documents where privilege claimed — Where, pursuant to section 231.1, an officer is about to inspect or examine a document in the possession of a lawyer or where, pursuant to section 231.2, the Minister has required provision of a document by a lawyer, and the lawyer claims that a named client or former client of the lawyer has a solicitor-client privilege in respect of the document, no officer shall inspect or examine the document and the lawyer shall

(a) place the document, together with any other document in respect of which the lawyer at the same time makes the same claim on behalf of the same client, in a package and suitably seal and identify the package or, if the officer and the lawyer agree, allow the pages of the document to be initialed and numbered or otherwise suitably identified; and

(b) retain it and ensure that it is preserved until it is produced to a judge as required under this section and an order is issued under this section in respect of the document.

History: The opening words of subsec. 232(3.1) amended by 1998, c. 19, s. 230, in force June 18, 1998. The opening words formerly read:

(3.1) Where, pursuant to sections 231.1 and 231.2, an officer is about to inspect or examine a document in the possession of a lawyer and the lawyer claims that a named client of the lawyer has a solicitor-client privilege in respect of that document, the officer shall not inspect or examine the document and the lawyer shall

(4) Application to judge — Where a document has been seized and placed in custody under subsection (3) or is being retained under subsection (3.1), the client, or the lawyer on behalf of the client, may

(a) within 14 days after the day the document was so placed in custody or commenced to be so retained apply, on three clear days notice of motion to the Deputy Attorney General of Canada, to a judge for an order

(i) fixing a day, not later than 21 days after the date of the order, and place for the determination of the question whether the client has a solicitor-client privilege in respect of the document, and

(ii) requiring the production of the document to the judge at that time and place;

(b) serve a copy of the order on the Deputy Attorney General of Canada and, where applicable, on the custodian within 6 days of the day on which it was made and, within the same time, pay to the custodian the estimated expenses of transporting the document to and from the place of hearing and of safeguarding it; and

(c) if the client or lawyer has proceeded as authorized by paragraph (b), apply at the appointed time and place for an order determining the question.

Related Provisions: Interpretation Act 27(1), (2) — Calculation of days.

Can.*, [1976] C.T.C. 290 (FCA) (Application to set aside order for delivery of seized documents to officials of Revenue Canada dismissed where neither client nor solicitor applied, under provision, for order determining privilege).

(5) Disposition of application — An application under paragraph (4)(c) shall be heard in camera, and on the application

(a) the judge may, if the judge considers it necessary to determine the question, inspect the document and, if the judge does so, the judge shall ensure that it is repackaged and resealed; and

(b) the judge shall decide the matter summarily and,

(i) if the judge is of the opinion that the client has a solicitor-client privilege in respect of the document, shall order the release of the document to the lawyer, and

(ii) if the judge is of the opinion that the client does not have a solicitor-client privilege in respect of the document, shall order

(A) that the custodian deliver the document to the officer or some other person designated by the Commissioner of Revenue, in the case of a document that was seized and placed in custody under subsection (3), or

(B) that the lawyer make the document available for inspection or examination by the officer or other person designated by the Commissioner of Revenue, in the case of a document that was retained under subsection (3.1), and the judge shall, at the same time, deliver concise reasons in which the judge shall identify the document without divulging the details thereof.

History: Subsec. 232(5) amended to substitute "Commissioner of Revenue" for "Commissioner of Customs and Revenue" by 2005, c. 38, subpara. 140(e)(iv), proclaimed in force December 12, 2005.

(6) Order to deliver or make available — Where a document has been seized and placed in custody under subsection (3) or where a document is being retained under subsection (3.1) and a judge, on the application of the Attorney General of Canada, is satisfied that neither the client nor the lawyer has made an application under paragraph (4)(a) or, having made that application, neither the client nor the lawyer has made an application under paragraph (4)(c), the judge shall order

(a) that the custodian deliver the document to the officer or some other person designated by the Commissioner of Revenue, in the case of a document that was seized and placed in custody under subsection (3); or

(b) that the lawyer make the document available for inspection or examination by the officer or other person designated by the Commissioner of Revenue, in the case of a document that was retained under subsection (3.1).

History: Subsec. 232(6) amended to substitute "Commissioner of Revenue" for "Commissioner of Customs and Revenue" by 2005, c. 38, subpara. 140(e)(iv), proclaimed in force December 12, 2005.

Subsec. 232(6) amended to substitute "Commissioner of Customs and Revenue" for "Deputy Minister of National Revenue" by 1999, c. 17, para. 167(c), proclaimed in force November 1, 1999.

"Deputy Minister of National Revenue" substituted for "Deputy Minister of National Revenue for Taxation" in subsec. 232(6), by 1994, c. 13, subsec. 7(1), applicable May 12, 1994.

(7) Delivery by custodian — The custodian shall

(a) deliver the document to the lawyer

(i) in accordance with a consent executed by the officer or by or on behalf of the Deputy Attorney General of Canada or the Commissioner of Revenue, or

(ii) in accordance with an order of a judge under this section; or

(b) deliver the document to the officer or some other person designated by the Commissioner of Revenue

(i) in accordance with a consent executed by the lawyer or the client, or

(ii) in accordance with an order of a judge under this section.

History: Subsec. 232(7) amended to substitute "Commissioner of Revenue" for "Commissioner of Customs and Revenue" by 2005, c. 38, subpara. 140(e)(iv), proclaimed in force December 12, 2005.

"Deputy Minister of National Revenue" substituted for "Deputy Minister of National Revenue for Taxation" in subsec. 232(7), by 1994, c. 13, subsec. 7(1), applicable May 12, 1994.

(8) Continuation by another judge — Where the judge to whom an application has been made under paragraph (4)(a) cannot for any reason act or continue to act in the application under paragraph (4)(c), the application under paragraph (4)(c) may be made to another judge.

(9) Costs — No costs may be awarded on the disposition of any application under this section.

(10) Directions — Where any question arises as to the course to be followed in connection with anything done or being done under this section, other than subsection (2), (3) or (3.1), and there is no direction in this section with respect thereto, a judge may give such direction with regard thereto as, in the judge's opinion, is most likely to carry out the object of this section of allowing solicitor-client privilege for proper purposes.

(11) Prohibition — The custodian shall not deliver a document to any person except in accordance with an order of a judge or a consent under this section or except to any officer or servant of the custodian for the purposes of safeguarding the document.

(12) Idem — No officer shall inspect, examine or seize a document in the possession of a lawyer without giving the lawyer a reasonable opportunity of making a claim under this section.

(13) Authority to make copies — At any time while a document is in the custody of a custodian under this section, a judge may, on an ex parte application of the lawyer, authorize the lawyer to examine or make a copy of the document in the presence of the custodian or the judge by an order that shall contain such provisions as may be necessary to ensure that the document is repackaged and that the package is resealed without alteration or damage.

(14) Waiver of claim of privilege — Where a lawyer has, for the purpose of subsection (2), (3) or (3.1), made a claim that a named client of the lawyer has a solicitor-client privilege in respect of information or a document, the lawyer shall at the same time communicate to the Minister or some person duly authorized to act for the Minister the address of the client last known to the lawyer so that the Minister may endeavour to advise the client of the claim of privilege that has been made on the client's behalf and may thereby afford the client an opportunity, if it is practicable within the time limited by this section, of waiving the claim of privilege before the matter is to be decided by a judge or other tribunal.

(15) Compliance — No person shall hinder, molest or interfere with any person doing anything that that person is authorized to do by or pursuant to this section or prevent or attempt to prevent any person doing any such thing and, notwithstanding any other Act or law, every person shall, unless the person is unable to do so, do everything the person is required to do by or pursuant to this section.

233.2 [Reporting transfers or loans to foreign trusts] — (1) Definitions — The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"exempt trust" means

(a) a trust that is governed by a foreign retirement arrangement;

(b) a trust that

(i) is resident in a country under the laws of which an income tax is imposed,

(ii) is exempt under the laws referred to in subparagraph (i) from the payment of income tax to the government of that country,

(iii) is established principally in connection with, or the principal purpose of which is to administer or provide benefits under, one or more superannuation, pension or retirement funds or plans or any funds or plans established to provide employee benefits, and

(iv) is either

(A) maintained primarily for the benefit of non-resident individuals, or

(B) governed by an employees profit sharing plan; or

(c) a trust

(i) where the interest of each beneficiary under the trust is described by reference to units, and

(ii) that complies with prescribed conditions.

Related Provisions: 233.6(2)(a) — No reporting required on distribution from certain exempt trusts.

Regulations: Reg. 4801.1 (prescribed conditions for subpara. (c)(ii)).

"specified beneficiary" at any time under a trust means

(a) any person beneficially interested in the trust who is not at that time

(i) a mutual fund corporation,

(ii) a non-resident-owned investment corporation,

(iii) a person (other than a trust) all of whose taxable income for the person's taxation year that includes that time is exempt from tax under Part I,

(iv) a trust all of the taxable income of which for its taxation year that includes that time is exempt from tax under Part I,

(v) a mutual fund trust,

(vi) a trust described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1),

(vii) a registered investment,

(viii) a trust in which all persons beneficially interested are persons described in subparagraphs (i) to (vii),

(ix) a particular person who is beneficially interested in the trust solely because the particular person is beneficially interested in an exempt trust or a trust described in this subparagraph or any of subparagraphs (iv) to (vi), nor

(x) a particular person who is beneficially interested in the trust only because of a right that is subject to a contingency, where at that time the identity of the particular person as a person beneficially interested in the trust is impossible to determine; or

(b) any person described at that time in any of subparagraphs (a)(i) to (x) who is beneficially interested in the trust, where it is reasonable to consider that the person became beneficially interested in the trust as part of a transaction or event or series of transactions or events one of the purposes of which is to limit the reporting in respect of the trust that would, but for this paragraph, be required under subsection (4).

Proposed Repeal — 233.2(1)"specified beneficiary"

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs), subsec. 20(1), will repeal the definition "specified beneficiary" in subsec. 233.2(1), applicable to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006, and to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if subsec. 94(3), as amended, applies to the trust for that earlier taxation year.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Existing section 233.2 requires certain persons who have made transfers or loans to a "specified foreign trust", or to a non-resident corporation that is a controlled foreign affiliate of such a trust, to file annual information returns with respect to the trust. A "specified foreign trust", as defined in subsection 233.2, includes a trust with a "specified beneficiary" resident in Canada. As defined in subsection 233.2(1), a "specified beneficiary" is generally any beneficiary under the trust with the exception of persons listed in subparagraphs (a)(i) to (x) of the definition. For a return to be required to be filed as a consequence of a transfer or loan, it is necessary to have a "non-arm's length indicator", as set out in subsection 233.2(2), apply in respect of the transfer or loan. One of the cases where a "non-arm's length indicator" applies in respect of a transfer to a trust is where the transferor is a "specified beneficiary" under the trust. Subsection 233.2(3) provides a look-through rule so that, where a partnership transfers property, it is considered to have been transferred by members of the partnership.

New section 94 sets out new rules governing the taxation of non-resident trusts. In order to be consistent with the new rules:

- the definitions "specified beneficiary" and "specified foreign trust" in section 233.2 are repealed,
- there is no longer a requirement for a "non-arm's length indicator", so the existing rule in subsection 233.2(2) is repealed,
- except as described below, the definitions and rules of application in subsections 94(1), (2) and (10) to (13) apply because of amended subsection 233.2(2), and
- there is no longer a requirement for an explicit look-through rule for partnerships in section 233.2, given that the rule in paragraph 94(2)(o) applies because of amended subsection 233.2(2). Consequently, subsection 233.2(3) is repealed.

Related Provisions: 248(10) — Series of transactions; 248(25) — Extended meaning of "beneficially interested".

"specified foreign trust" at any time means a trust (other than an exempt trust) that is non-resident at that time where either

(a) there is a specified beneficiary under the trust who at that time

(i) is resident in Canada,

(ii) is a corporation or trust with which a person resident in Canada does not deal at arm's length, or

(iii) is a controlled foreign affiliate of a person resident in Canada; or

(b) at that time the terms or conditions of the trust or any arrangement in respect of the trust

(i) permit persons (other than persons described in any of subparagraphs (a)(i) to (viii) of the definition "specified beneficiary") who are not beneficially interested in the trust at that time to become, because of the exercise of any discretion by any person or partnership, beneficially interested in the trust after that time, or

(ii) allow property to be distributed, directly or indirectly, to another trust that immediately after the receipt of the distribution can reasonably be expected to be a specified foreign trust.

Proposed Repeal — 233.2(1)"specified foreign trust"

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs), subsec. 20(1), will repeal the definition "specified beneficiary" in subsec. 233.2(1), applicable to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006, and to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if subsec. 94(3), as amended, applies to the trust for that earlier taxation year.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): See under 233.2(1)"specified beneficiary".

Related Provisions: 248(25) — Extended meaning of "beneficially interested".

(2) Non-arm's length indicators — For the purpose of this section,

(a) a non-arm's length indicator applies to a trust at a particular time with respect to a transfer of property made at an earlier time to the trust or a corporation where

(i) immediately after the earlier time the transferor was

(A) a specified beneficiary under the trust,

(B) a person related to a specified beneficiary under the trust,

(C) an uncle, aunt, nephew or niece of a specified beneficiary under the trust, or

(D) a trust or corporation that had, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, previously acquired the transferred property from a person described in clause (A), (B) or (C),

(ii) the fair market value at the earlier time of the transferred property was greater than the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total fair market value at the earlier time of the consideration, if any, given to the transferor for the transfer of property at the earlier time

exceeds

(B) the portion of the total described in clause (A) that is attributable to the fair market value of an interest as a beneficiary in the trust or a share or debt issued by the corporation,

(iii) the consideration received by the transferor in respect of the transfer included indebtedness on which

(A) interest was not charged in respect of a period that began before the particular time,

(B) interest was charged in respect of a period that began before the particular time at a rate that was less than the lesser of

(I) the prescribed rate that was in effect at the earlier time, and

(II) the rate that would, having regard to all the circumstances, have been agreed on at the earlier time between parties dealing with each other at arm's length,

(C) any interest that was payable at the end of any calendar year that ended at or before the particular time was unpaid on the day that is 180 days after the end of that calendar year, or

(D) the amount of interest that was payable at the end of any calendar year that ended at or before the particular time was paid on or before the day that is 180 days after the end of that calendar year and it is established, by subsequent events or otherwise, that the payment was made as part of a series of loans or other transactions and repayments,

(iv) the property transferred was a share of the capital stock of a corporation or an interest in another trust and a specified beneficiary under the trust is related to the corporation or the other trust or would be so related if paragraph 80(2)(j) applied for the purposes of this subparagraph, or

(v) the transfer was made as part of a series of transactions or events one of the purposes of which was to avoid the application of this paragraph; and

(b) a non-arm's length indicator applies to a trust at a particular time with respect to a loan made at an earlier time where

(i) interest was not charged on the loan in respect of a period that began before the particular time,

(ii) interest was charged on the loan in respect of a period that began before the particular time at a rate that was less than the lesser of

(A) the prescribed rate that was in effect at the earlier time, and

(B) the rate that would, having regard to all the circumstances, have been agreed on at the earlier time between parties dealing with each other at arm's length,

(iii) any interest on the loan that was payable at the end of any calendar year that ended at or before the particular time was unpaid on the day that is 180 days after the end of that calendar year,

(iv) the amount of interest on the loan that was payable at the end of any calendar year that ended at or before the particular time was paid on or before the day that is 180 days after the end of that calendar year and it is established, by subsequent events or otherwise, that the payment was made as part of a series of loans or other transactions and repayments, or

(v) the loan was made as part of a series of transactions or events one of the purposes of which was to avoid the application of this paragraph.

(2) Rule of application — In this section and paragraph 233.5(c.1), subsections 94(1), (2) and (10) to (13) apply, except that the references to the expression "(other than restricted property)" in the definition "arm's length transfer" in subsection 94(1) are to be read as references to the expression "(other than property to which paragraph 94(2)(g) applies but not including a unit of a mutual fund trust or of a trust that would be a mutual fund trust if section 4801 of the Income Tax Regulations were read without reference to paragraph 4801(b), a share of the capital stock of a mutual fund corporation, or a particular share of the capital stock of a corporation (other than a closely-held corporation) which particular share is identical to a share that is, at the transfer time, of a class that is listed on a designated stock exchange)".

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs), subsec. 20(2), will amend subsec. 233.2(2) to read as above, applicable to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006, and to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if subsec. 94(3), as amended, applies to the trust for that earlier taxation year. However, the reference to "designated stock exchange" in subsec. 233.2(2) is in its application to a time that is before December 14, 2007 to be read as a reference to "prescribed stock exchange".

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): See under 233.2(1)"specified beneficiary".

Related Provisions: 248(12) — Identical properties.

Related Provisions: 233.2(3) — Property transferred or lent by partnership; 248(10) — Series of transactions or events; 252(2) — Extended meaning of "uncle", "aunt", "nephew" and "niece".

Regulations: Reg. 4301(c) (prescribed rate of interest for 233.2(2)(a)(iii)(B)(I) and 233.2(2)(b)(ii)(A).

(3) Partnerships — For the purpose of this section, where property is transferred or lent at any time by a partnership, the property is deemed to have been transferred or lent at that time by each of the members of the partnership.

Proposed Repeal — 233.2(3)

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs), subsec. 20(2), will repeal subsec. 233.2(3), applicable to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006, and to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if subsec. 94(3), as amended, applies to the trust for that earlier taxation year.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): See under 233.2(1)"specified beneficiary".

(4) Filing information on specified foreign trusts — Where

(a) at any time (in this subsection referred to as the "transfer time") before the end of a trust's taxation year (in this subsection referred to as the "trust's year"), property was transferred or lent, either directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by any person (in this subsection referred to as the "transferor") to

(i) the trust, or

(ii) a corporation that, at the transfer time, would have been a controlled foreign affiliate of the trust if the trust had been resident in Canada,

(b) the trust was a specified foreign trust at any time in the trust's year, and

(c) a non-arm's length indicator applied to the trust at the end of the trust's year in respect of the transfer or loan,

the following rules apply:

(d) where the transferor is resident in Canada at the end of the trust's year, the transferor shall make an information return in respect of the trust's year in prescribed form and file it with the Minister on or before the transferor's filing-due date for the transferor's taxation year that includes the end of the trust's year, and

(e) where

(i) the transferor was, at the transfer time, a corporation that would have been a controlled foreign affiliate of a particular person if the particular person had been resident in Canada, and

(ii) the particular person is resident in Canada at the end of the trust's year, the particular person shall make an information return in respect of the trust's year in prescribed form and file it with the Minister on or before the filing-due date for the particular person's taxation year that includes the end of the trust's year.

Proposed Amendment — 233.2(4)

(4) Filing information on foreign trusts — A person shall file an information return in prescribed form, in respect of a taxation year of a particular trust (other than an exempt trust or a trust described in any of paragraphs (c) to (h) of the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1)) with the Minister on or before the person's filing-due date for the person's taxation year in which the particular trust's taxation year ends if

(a) the particular trust is non-resident at a specified time in that taxation year of the particular trust;

(b) the person is a contributor, a connected contributor or a resident contributor to the particular trust; and

(c) the person

(i) is resident in Canada at that specified time, and

(ii) is not, at that specified time,

(A) a mutual fund corporation,

(B) an exempt person,

(C) a mutual fund trust,

(D) a trust described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1),

(E) a registered investment,

(F) a trust in which all persons beneficially interested are persons described in clauses (A) to (E), or

(G) a contributor to the particular trust by reason only of being a contributor to another trust that is resident in Canada and is described in any of clauses (B) to (F).

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs), subsec. 20(3), will amend subsec. 233.2(4) to read as above, applicable to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006, and to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if subsec. 94(3), as amended, applies to the trust for that earlier taxation year.

A return required to be filed by a person because of subsec. 233.2(4) is deemed to have been filed with the Minister of National Revenue on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the person's filing-due date for the person's taxation year that includes the day on which this draft legislation is assented to.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Under amended subsection 233.2(4), reporting will generally be required for a taxation year of a person if the person is a "contributor", "connected contributor" or "resident contributor" to a trust that is non-resident at a "specified time" in the taxation year, of the trust, that ends in that taxation year of the taxpayer. Because of amended subsection 233.2(2), the expressions "contributor", "contribution", "connected contributor", "resident contributor" and "specified time" generally carry the same meaning as in new section 94 (including by reference to deeming rules such as, for example, 94(12) and (13)), with most of the same exceptions for "arm's length transfers" contained in the definition of that expression in subsection 94(1). However, the exception in that definition against transfers of "restricted property" (as defined in subsection 94(1)) is extended to apply to most transfers described in paragraph 94(2)(g) (unless the transfer involves, generally, an issuance of a unit or share from a mutual fund trust, a mutual fund corporation or a corporation other than a closely-held corporation, as the case may be). This more constrained meaning of "arm's length transfer" for these purposes ensures that a broader category of transfers and loans are treated as contributions in determining whether a person is a contributor for the purposes of subsections 233.2(4) and (4.1). It should be noted that amended subsection 233.2(2) also applies for the purpose of new paragraph 233.5(c.1).

New subparagraph 233.2(4)(c)(ii) sets out a list of persons for whom reporting obligations are not imposed. This list is consistent with the list of beneficiaries who are not treated as "specified beneficiaries" under the existing rules in section 233.2. The exclusion in clause 233.2(4)(c)(ii)(G) for a particular person resident in Canada who has made a contribution to a trust described in any of clauses (B) to (F) ensures that the particular person does not have a reporting obligation solely by reason of the particular person's contribution to a trust described in any of clauses (B) to (F). However, the particular person would have a reporting obligation if, in addition to a contribution to a trust described in any of clauses (B) to (F), the particular person made another contribution to the trust.

Amended subsection 233.2(4) also exempts contributors from filing information returns under section 233.2 with regard to trusts described in any of paragraphs (c) to (h) of the new definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection 94(1). For more information in this regard, see the commentary on that definition.

These amendments generally apply to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006. They also apply to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if new subsection 94(3) applies (because of a valid election by the trust under the coming-into-force provision for new section 94) to that earlier taxation year. A return required to be filed by a person because of amended subsection 233.2(4) is deemed to have been filed with the Minister on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister on or before the person's filing-due date for the person's taxation year that includes the day on which the new rules are assented to.

Related Provisions: 94(7)(b) [proposed] — Limitation on person's liability for trust's tax when return filed; 162(10), (10.1) — Penalty for failure to file; 163(2.4)(b) — Minimum $24,000 penalty for false statement or omission; 220(2.1) — Waiver of filing requirement; 220(3) — Extension of time to file return; 233.2(2) — Application of non-resident trust rules; 233.2(4.1) — Similar arrangements; 233.2(5) — Election to use other person's information return; 233.3(3) — Requirement to file return re foreign property; 233.5 — Due diligence exception; 233.6(2)(b) — No return required on distribution from trusts where return required under 233.2; 233.7 — No requirement to file in first year of immigration; 248(25.1) — Transfer to non-resident bare trust.

(4.1) Similar arrangements — In this section and sections 162, 163 and 233.5, a person's obligations under subsection (4) (except to the extent that they are waived in writing by the Minister) are to be determined as if a contributor described in paragraph (4)(b) were any person who had transferred or loaned property, an arrangement or entity were a non-resident trust throughout the calendar year that includes the time referred to in paragraph (a) and that calendar year were a taxation year of the arrangement or entity, if

(a) the person at any time, directly or indirectly, transferred or loaned the property to be held

(i) under the arrangement and the arrangement is governed by the laws of a country or a political subdivision of a country other than Canada or exists, was formed or organized, or was last continued under the laws of a country or a political subdivision of a country other than Canada, or

(ii) by the entity and the entity is a non-resident entity (as defined by subsection 94.1(2));

(b) the transfer or loan is not an arm's length transfer;

(c) the transfer or loan is not solely in exchange for property that would be described in paragraphs (a) to (i) of the definition "specified foreign property" in subsection 233.3(1) if that definition were read without reference to paragraphs (j) to (q);

(d) the arrangement or entity is not a trust in respect of which the person would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, be required to file an information return for a taxation year that includes that time; and

(e) the arrangement or entity is, for a taxation year or fiscal period of the arrangement or entity that includes that time, not

(i) an exempt foreign trust (as defined in subsection 94(1)),

(ii) a foreign affiliate in respect of which the person is a reporting entity (within the meaning assigned by subsection 233.4(1)), or

(iii) an exempt trust.

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs), subsec. 20(3), will add subsec. 233.2(4.1), applicable to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006, and to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if subsec. 94(3), as amended, applies to the trust for that earlier taxation year.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New section 94 sets out new rules governing the taxation of non-resident trusts. However, the deeming provisions in subsection 94(3) apply only to arrangements that are considered to be trusts for Canadian income tax purposes. In some cases, there may be doubt as to whether a given arrangement is a trust for Canadian income tax purposes.

New subsection 233.2(4.1), in combination with subsection 233.2(4), extends the filing obligation under subsection 233.2(4) in respect of trusts so that it also applies in respect of certain entities or arrangements for which reporting is not otherwise required. One of the key objectives of subsection 233.2(4.1) is to ensure that claims that section 94 does not apply can be reviewed by the CRA

More specifically, new subsection 233.2(4.1) applies where property has, directly or indirectly, been transferred or loaned by a person to be held

- under an arrangement governed by laws that are not laws of Canada or a province, or
- by a non-resident entity (as defined in subsection 94.1(2)).

The person must, where certain additional conditions are satisfied, file the information return referred to in amended subsection 233.2(4).

New subsection 233.2(4.1) provides that, except as the Minister of National Revenue otherwise permits in writing, the person has obligations under amended subsection 233.2(4) if all of the following conditions are satisfied:

- the transfer or loan is not an arm's length transfer (within the meaning assigned by the definition "arm's length transfer" in subsection 94(1) as amended by subsection 233.2(2));
- the transfer or loan is not solely in exchange for property that would be described in paragraphs (a) to (i) of the definition "specified foreign property" in subsection 233.3(1) if that definition were read without reference to paragraphs (j) to (q) of that definition;
- the entity or arrangement is not a trust in respect of which the person would, without reference to subsection 233.2(4.1) and the explicit exemptions for filing returns contained in subsection 233.2(4), be required to file an information return for a taxation year that includes that time; and
- the entity or arrangement is, for a taxation year or fiscal period that includes that time, not
  - (i) an exempt foreign trust (as defined in subsection 94(1)),
  - (ii) a foreign affiliate in respect of which the person is a reporting entity (as defined in subsection 233.4(1)), or
  - (iii) an exempt trust (as defined in subsection 233.2(1)).

Where the above conditions are satisfied, the person's obligations under subsection 233.2(4) and related provisions are determined as if:

- the transfer were a contribution to which paragraph 233.2(4)(a) applied;
- the entity or arrangement were a trust not resident in Canada throughout the calendar year that includes the time of the transfer or loan; and
- the taxation year of the entity or arrangement were that calendar year.

These amendments generally apply to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006. They also apply to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if new subsection 94(3) applies (because of a valid election by the trust under the coming-into-force provision for new section 94) to that earlier taxation year. A return required to be filed by a person because of amended subsection 233.2(4) is deemed to have been filed with the Minister on a timely basis if it is filed with the Minister on or before the person's filing-due date for the person's taxation year that includes the day on which the new rules are assented to.

(5) Joint filing — Where information returns in respect of a trust's taxation year would, but for this subsection, be required to be filed under subsection (4) by a particular person and another person, and the particular person identifies the other person in an election filed in writing with the Minister, for the purposes of applying this Act to the particular person

(a) the information return filed by the other person shall be treated as if it had been filed by the particular person;

(b) the information required to be provided with the return by the particular person shall be deemed to be the information required to be provided by the other person with the return;

(c) the day on or before which the return is required to be filed by the particular person is deemed to be the later of the day on or before which

(i) the return would, but for this subsection, have been required to have been filed by the particular person, and

(ii) the return is required to have been filed by the other person; and

(d) each act and omission of the other person in respect of the return is deemed to be an act or omission of the particular person.

233.3 [Reporting foreign property] — (1) Definitions — The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"reporting entity" for a taxation year or fiscal period means a specified Canadian entity for the year or period where, at any time (other than a time when the entity is non-resident) in the year or period, the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount to the entity of a specified foreign property of the entity exceeds $100,000.

Related Provisions: 233.6(2)(c) — No return required on distribution from certain trusts to reporting entity.

"specified Canadian entity" for a taxation year or fiscal period means

(a) a taxpayer resident in Canada in the year that is not

(i) a mutual fund corporation,

(ii) a non-resident-owned investment corporation,

(iii) a person (other than a trust) all of whose taxable income for the year is exempt from tax under Part I,

(iv) a trust all of the taxable income of which for the year is exempt from tax under Part I,

(v) a mutual fund trust,

(vi) a trust described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1),

(vii) a registered investment, nor

(viii) a trust in which all persons beneficially interested are persons described in subparagraphs (i) to (vii); and

(b) a partnership (other than a partnership all the members of which are taxpayers referred to in any of subparagraphs (a)(i) to (viii)) where the total of all amounts, each of which is a share of the partnership's income or loss for the period of a non-resident member, is less than 90% of the income or loss of the partnership for the period, and, where the income and loss of the partnership are nil for the period, the income of the partnership for the period is deemed to be $1,000,000 for the purpose of determining a member's share of the partnership's income for the purpose of this paragraph.

Related Provisions: 94(1)(c)(i) [to be repealed], 94(3)(a)(vi) [proposed] — Certain trusts deemed resident in Canada; 248(25) — Meaning of "beneficially interested".

"specified foreign property" of a person or partnership means any property of the person or the partnership that is

(a) funds or intangible property which are situated, deposited or held outside Canada,

(b) tangible property situated outside Canada,

Proposed Amendment — 233.3(1)"specified foreign property"(a), (b)

(a) funds or intangible property, or for civil law incorporeal property, situated, deposited or held outside Canada,

(b) tangible property, or for civil law corporeal property, situated outside Canada,

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — bijuralism), subsec. 253(1), will amend paras. (a) and (b) of the definition "specified foreign property" in subsec. 233.3(1) to read as above, to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): See under 12(4).

(c) a share of the capital stock of a non-resident corporation,

(d) an interest in a non-resident trust or a trust that, but for section 94, would be a non-resident trust for the purpose of this section,

Proposed Amendment — 233.3(1)"specified foreign property"(d)

(d) an interest in a non-resident trust,

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs), subsec. 21(2), will amend para. (d) of "specified foreign property" in subsec. 233.3(1), applicable to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006, and to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if subsec. 94(3), as amended, applies to the trust for that earlier taxation year.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Section 233.3 provides reporting requirements in respect of foreign property. In general terms, it provides that certain taxpayers resident in Canada and certain partnerships must file an information return with respect to their "specified foreign property" if the total cost amount of such property exceeds $100,000. For this purpose, "specified foreign property" (as defined in subsection 233.3(1)) includes an interest in a non-resident trust or a trust that would be non-resident were it not for section 94. It does not include an interest in a non-resident trust that was not acquired for consideration by the person or partnership or a related person or partnership.

Paragraph (d) of the definition "specified foreign property" is amended by eliminating the reference to section 94. Under new subparagraph 94(3)(a)(vi), a trust is deemed to be resident in Canada for the purpose of determining its obligation to file a return under section 233.3, but is not deemed resident in Canada for purposes of determining the obligation of a person or partnership with an interest in the trust to file a return under that section. As a result, such a deemed resident trust will be treated as resident in Canada in determining whether it is a specified Canadian entity and a reporting entity for purposes of section 233.3. As well, in respect of the obligations of a person or partnership that has an interest in the trust, an interest in the trust will be considered a specified foreign property unless otherwise expressly excluded.

This amendment generally applies to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006. It also applies to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if new subsection 94(3) applies (because of a valid election by the trust under the coming-into-force provision for new section 94) to that earlier taxation year.

(e) an interest in a partnership that owns or holds specified foreign property,

(f) an interest in, or right with respect to, an entity that is non-resident,

(g) indebtedness owed by a non-resident person,

(h) an interest in or right, under a contract, in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to any property (other than any property owned by a corporation or trust that is not the person) that is specified foreign property, and

Proposed Amendment — 233.3(1)"specified foreign property"(h)

(h) an interest in, or for civil law a right in, or a right — under a contract in equity or otherwise either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently — to, any property (other than any property owned by a corporation or trust that is not the person) that is specified foreign property, and

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — bijuralism), subsec. 253(2), will amend para. (h) of the definition "specified foreign property" in subsec. 233.3(1) to read as above, to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): See under 12(4).

(i) property that, under the terms or conditions thereof or any agreement relating thereto, is convertible into, is exchangeable for or confers a right to acquire, property that is specified foreign property,

but does not include

(j) property that is used or held exclusively in the course of carrying on an active business of the person or partnership (determined as if the person or partnership were a corporation resident in Canada),

(k) a share of the capital stock or indebtedness of a non-resident corporation that is a foreign affiliate of the person or partnership for the purpose of section 233.4,

(l) an interest in, or indebtedness of, a non-resident trust that is a foreign affiliate of the person or partnership for the purpose of section 233.4,

(m) an interest in a non-resident trust that was not acquired for consideration by either the person or partnership or a person related to the person or partnership,

(n) an interest in a trust described in paragraph (a) or (b) of the definition "exempt trust" in subsection 233.2(1),

(o) an interest in a partnership that is a specified Canadian entity,

(o.1) a right with respect to, or indebtedness of, an authorized foreign bank that is issued by, and payable or otherwise enforceable at, a branch in Canada of the bank,

(p) personal-use property of the person or partnership, and

(q) an interest in or right to acquire a property that is described in any of paragraphs (j) to (p).

Proposed Amendment — 233.3(1)"specified foreign property"(q)

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — bijuralism), subsec. 253(3), will amend para. (q) of the definition "specified foreign property" in subsec.

233.3(1) by substituting "an interest in, or for civil law a right in, or a right to acquire," for "an interest in or right to acquire", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): See under 12(4).

Proposed Amendment — 233.3(1)"specified foreign property" — Offshore investment funds and certain non-resident trusts

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, March 4, 2010: It is also proposed that the existing reporting requirements with respect to "specified foreign property" be expanded so that more detailed information is available for audit use. These additional measures are needed to ensure that the Canada Revenue Agency has the information and time required to identify and reassess those taxpayers who have not properly reported their income from transactions involving offshore investment fund properties and non-resident trusts. [Now see the August 27, 2010 Proposed Amendment to s. 94 — ed.]

(2) Application to members of partnerships — For the purpose of this section, a person who is a member of a partnership that is a member of another partnership

(a) is deemed to be a member of the other partnership; and

(b) the person's share of the income or loss of the other partnership is deemed to be equal to the amount of that income or loss to which the person is directly or indirectly entitled.

(3) Returns respecting foreign property — A reporting entity for a taxation year or fiscal period shall file with the Minister for the year or period a return in prescribed form on or before the day that is

(a) where the entity is a partnership, the day on or before which a return is required by section 229 of the Income Tax Regulations to be filed in respect of the fiscal period of the partnership or would be required to be so filed if that section applied to the partnership; and

(b) where the entity is not a partnership, the entity's filing-due date for the year.

Related Provisions: 94(1)(c)(i) [to be repealed], 94(3)(a)(vi) [proposed] — Application to trust deemed resident in Canada; 162(7), (10), (10.1) — Penalty for failure to file; 163(2.4)(c) — Minimum $24,000 penalty for false statement or omission; 220(2.1) — Waiver of filing requirement; 220(3) — Extension of time to file return; 233(2) — Demand for return by partnership; 233.2(4) — Requirement to file return re transfers to foreign trusts; 233.7 — No requirement to file in first year of immigration.

233.4 [Reporting foreign affiliates] — (1) Reporting entity — For the purpose of this section, "reporting entity" for a taxation year or fiscal period means

(a) a taxpayer resident in Canada (other than a taxpayer all of whose taxable income for the year is exempt from tax under Part I) of which a non-resident corporation is a foreign affiliate at any time in the year;

(b) a taxpayer resident in Canada (other than a taxpayer all of whose taxable income for the year is exempt from tax under Part I) of which a non-resident trust is a foreign affiliate at any time in the year; and

(c) a partnership

(i) where the total of all amounts, each of which is a share of the partnership's income or loss for the period of a non-resident member, is less than 90% of the income or loss of the partnership for the period, and, where the income and loss of the partnership are nil for the period, the income of the partnership for the period is deemed to be $1,000,000 for the purpose of determining a member's share of the partnership's income for the purpose of this subparagraph, and

(ii) of which a non-resident corporation or trust is a foreign affiliate of which[57] at any time in the fiscal period.

Proposed Amendment — 233.4(1)(c)(ii)

(ii) of which a non-resident corporation or trust is a foreign affiliate at any time in the fiscal period.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), s. 145, will amend subpara. 233.4(1)(c)(ii) to read as above, applicable to taxation years and fiscal periods that begin after 2006.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subparagraph 233.4(1)(c)(ii) is amended to correct a grammatical error in the existing text.

Related Provisions: 94(1)(c)(i) [to be repealed], 94(3)(a)(vi) [proposed] — Certain trusts deemed resident in Canada.

(2) Rules of application — For the purpose of this section, in determining whether a non-resident corporation or trust is a foreign affiliate or a controlled foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada or of a partnership

(a) paragraph (b) of the definition "equity percentage" in subsection 95(4) shall be read as if the reference to "any corporation" were a reference to "any corporation other than a corporation resident in Canada";

(b) the definitions "direct equity percentage" and "equity percentage" in subsection 95(4) shall be read as if a partnership were a person; and

(c) the definitions "controlled foreign affiliate" and "foreign affiliate" in subsection 95(1) shall be read as if a partnership were a taxpayer resident in Canada.

Related Provisions: 94(1)(d) [to be repealed] — Trust deemed to be controlled foreign affiliate.

(3) Application to members of partnerships — For the purpose of this section, a person who is a member of a partnership that is a member of another partnership

(a) is deemed to be a member of the other partnership; and

(b) the person's share of the income or loss of the other partnership is deemed to be equal to the amount of that income or loss to which the person is directly or indirectly entitled.

Related Provisions: 162(7), (10), (10.1) — Penalty for failure to file.

(4) Returns respecting foreign affiliates — A reporting entity for a taxation year or fiscal period shall file with the Minister for the year or period a return in prescribed form in respect of each foreign affiliate of the entity in the year or period within 15 months after the end of the year or period.

Related Provisions: 162(10), (10.1) — Penalty for failure to file; 163(2.4)(d) — Minimum $24,000 penalty for false statement or omission; 220(2.1) — Waiver of fil-

233.5 Due diligence exception — The information required in a return filed under section 233.2 or 233.4 does not include information that is not available, on the day on which the return is filed, to the person or partnership required to file the return where

(a) there is a reasonable disclosure in the return of the unavailability of the information;

(b) before that day, the person or partnership exercised due diligence in attempting to obtain the information;

(c) if

(i) the return is required to be filed under section 233.2, or

(ii) the return is required to be filed under section 233.4 by a person or partnership in respect of a corporation that is a controlled foreign affiliate, for the purpose of that section, of the person or partnership, it was reasonable to expect, at the time of each transaction, if any, entered into by the person or partnership after March 5, 1996 that gives rise to the requirement to file the return or that affects the information to be reported in the return, that sufficient information would be available to the person or partnership to comply with that section; and

Proposed Amendment — 233.5(c), (c.1), (c.2)

(c) if the return is required to be filed under section 233.2 in respect of a trust, at the time of each transaction, if any, entered into by the person or partnership after March 5, 1996 and before June 23, 2000 that gave rise to the requirement to file a return for a taxation year of the trust that ended before 2007 or that affects the information to be reported in the return, it was reasonable to expect that sufficient information would be available to the person or partnership to comply with section 233.2 in respect of each taxation year of the trust that ended before 2007;

(c.1) if the return is required to be filed under section 233.2, at the time of each contribution (determined with reference to subsection 233.2(2)) made by the person or partnership after June 22, 2000 that gives rise to the requirement to file the return or that affects the information to be reported in the return, it was reasonable to expect that sufficient information would be available to the person or partnership to comply with section 233.2;

(c.2) if the return is required to be filed under section 233.4 by a person or partnership in respect of a corporation that is a controlled foreign affiliate for the purpose of that section of the person or partnership, at the time of each transaction, if any, entered into by the person or partnership after March 5, 1996 that gives rise to the requirement to file the return or that affects the information to be reported in the return, it was reasonable to expect that sufficient information would be available to the person or partnership to comply with section 233.4; and

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), s. 22, will amend para. 233.5(c) to read as above, and add paras. (c.1) and (c.2), applicable to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006, and to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if subsec. 94(3), as amended, applies to that earlier taxation year of the trust.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Section 233.5 provides that, where specified conditions set out in paragraphs 233.5(a) to (d) are met, information required in a return filed under section 233.2 or 233.4 does not include information that is not available to the person or partnership required to file the return. In the case of a return required to be filed by a person or partnership under section 233.2, paragraph 233.5(c) provides that it must be reasonable for the person or partnership to expect, at the time of each transaction entered into by the person or partnership after March 5, 1996 that either gives rise to the requirement to file the return or that affects the information to be reported in the return, that sufficient information would be available to the person or partnership to comply with section 233.2.

Paragraph 233.5(c) is amended so that it applies only in connection with transactions entered into before June 23, 2000 that gave rise to the requirement to file a return for a taxation year of the trust that ended before 2007. In connection with trust returns required to be filed for trust taxation years that ended before 2007, it must be reasonable for the person or partnership to expect that sufficient information would have been available to the person or partnership to comply with section 233.2 if the proposed amendments to section 94 were not taken into account.

Paragraph 223.5(c) is also amended so that it does not apply to returns required to be filed under section 233.4. It is replaced in this respect by new paragraph 233.5(c.2), without any change in the specified conditions for such returns.

Paragraph 233.5(c.1) is introduced in connection with returns required to be filed under section 233.2 by a person or partnership for a taxation year of the trust where the trust is subject to new section 94. Where "contributions" (determined with reference to subsection 233.2(2), referred to in the commentary above) are made after June 22, 2000, relief under section 233.5 is available only if it was reasonable for the person or partnership to expect, at the time of each such contribution that either gives rise to the requirement to file the return or that affects the information to be reported in the return, that sufficient information would be available to the person or partnership to comply with section 233.2.

These amendments generally apply to returns in respect of trust taxation years that end after 2006. They also apply to returns in respect of an earlier taxation year of a trust if new subsection 94(3) applies (because of a valid election by the trust under the coming-into-force provision for new section 94) to that earlier taxation year.

(d) if the information subsequently becomes available to the person or partnership, it is filed with the Minister not more than 90 days after it becomes so available.

History [s. 233.5]: S. 233.5 added by 1997, c. 25, s. 69, applicable to returns required to be filed on or before a day that is after April 29, 1998.

Definitions [s. 233.5]: "corporation" — 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "controlled foreign affiliate" — 95(1), 248(1); "Minister", "person" — 248(1).

233.6 (1) Returns respecting distributions from non-resident trusts — Where a specified Canadian entity (as defined by subsection 233.3(1)) for a taxation year or fiscal period receives a distribution of property from, or is indebted to, a non-resident trust (other than a trust that was an excluded trust in respect of the year or period of the entity or an estate that arose on and as a consequence of the death of an individual) in the year or period and the entity is beneficially interested in the trust at any time in the year or period, the entity shall file with the Minister for the year or period a return in prescribed form on or before the day that is

(a) where the entity is a partnership, the day on or before which a return is required by section 229 of the Income Tax Regulations to be filed in respect of the fiscal period of the partnership or would be required to be so filed if that section applied to the partnership; and

(b) where the entity is not a partnership, the entity's filing-due date for the year.

Related Provisions: 162(7) — Penalty for failure to file; 163(2.4)(e) — Minimum $2,500 penalty for false statement or omission; 220(2.1) — Waiver of filing requirement; 220(3) — Extension of time to file return; 233.6(2) — Meaning of "excluded trust"; 233.7 — No requirement to file in first year of immigration; 248(8) — Meaning of "consequence" of death; 248(25) — Extended meaning of "beneficially interested".

(2) Excluded trust defined — For the purpose of subsection (1), an excluded trust in respect of the taxation year or fiscal period of an entity means

(a) a trust described in paragraph (a) or (b) of the definition "exempt trust" in subsection 233.2(1) throughout the portion of the year or period during which the trust was extant;

(b) a trust in respect of which the entity is required by section 233.2 to file a return in respect of each taxation year of the trust that ends in the entity's year;

(c) a trust an interest in which is at any time in the year or period specified foreign property (as defined by subsection 233.3(1)) of the entity, where the entity is a reporting entity (as defined by subsection 233.3(1)) for the year or period; and

(d) a trust in respect of which the entity is required by section 233.4 to file a return for the year or period.

Related Provisions [subsec. 233.6(2)]: 233(1) — Demand for return by partnership.

History [s. 233.6]: S. 233.6 added by 1997, c. 25, s. 69, applicable (as amended by 1999, c. 22, s. 91, deemed to have come into force on April 25, 1997) to returns for taxation years and fiscal periods that begin after 1995, except that

(a) such a return for a taxation year or fiscal period that ended in 1996, 1997 or 1998 is required to be filed on or before the later of

(i) April 30, 1998, and

(ii) the day on or before which the return is otherwise required to be filed;

(b) for taxation years and fiscal periods that began before 1998, subsec. 233.6(2) shall be read without reference to para. 233.6(2)(c); and

(c) for returns for taxation years and fiscal periods that began after 1995 and before 1998, the reference to "specified Canadian entity" in subsec. 233.6(1) shall have the meaning that would be assigned to that expression by subsec. 233.3(1) if it applied for those returns.

Definitions [s. 233.6]: "beneficially interested" — 248(25); "consequence of the death" — 248(8); "excluded trust" — 233.6(2).

233.7 Exception for first-year residents — Notwithstanding sections 233.2, 233.3, 233.4 and 233.6, a person who, but for this section, would be required under any of those sections to file an information return for a taxation year, is not required to file the return if the person is an individual (other than a trust) who first became resident in Canada in the year.

History [s. 233.7]: S. 233.7 added by 1997, c. 25, s. 69, applicable to returns required to be filed on or before a day that is after April 29, 1998.

Definitions [s. 233.7]: "individual", "person" — 248(1); "resident in Canada" — 250; "taxation year" — 249; "trust" — 104(1), 248(1), (3).

234. (1) Ownership certificates — Before a bearer coupon or warrant representing either interest or dividends payable by any debtor or cheque representing dividends or interest payable by a non-resident debtor is negotiated by or on behalf of a resident of Canada, there shall be completed by or on behalf of the resident an ownership certificate in prescribed form.

Related Provisions: 162(4) — Failure to complete ownership certificate.

237.1 (1) Definitions — In this section,

"gifting arrangement" means any arrangement under which it may reasonably be considered, having regard to statements or representations made or proposed to be made in connection with the arrangement, that if a person were to enter into the arrangement, the person would

(a) make a gift to a qualified donee, or a contribution referred to in subsection 127(4.1), of property acquired by the person under the arrangement; or

(b) incur a limited-recourse amount that can reasonably be considered to relate to a gift to a qualified donee or a contribution referred to in subsection 127(4.1).

Proposed Amendment — 237.1(1)"gifting arrangement"(b)

(b) incur a limited-recourse debt, determined under subsection 143.2(6.1), that can reasonably be considered to relate to a gift to a qualified donee or a monetary contribution referred to in subsection 127(4.1);

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), s. 146, will amend para. (b) of the definition "gifting arrangement" in subsec. 237.1(1) to read as above, applicable in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made after 6:00 p.m. (EST) on December 5, 2003.

[58] Sic. Should be "the individual's".

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 237.1(1) provides definitions of terms that apply for the purpose of tax shelter identification and the definition of "tax shelter investment" in subsection 143.2(1). The definition "gifting arrangement" includes an arrangement in respect of which it may reasonably be expected, having regard to representations made, that if a taxpayer makes a gift or political contribution under the arrangement, a person (whether or not it is the taxpayer) will incur an indebtedness in respect of which recourse is limited. This definition is amended in respect of gifts and contributions made after 6:00 p.m. (EST), December 5, 2003, to also refer to a limited-recourse debt determined under new subsection 143.2(6.1). For additional details regarding limited-recourse debt in respect of a gift, see the commentary to subsection 143.2(6.1).

Dept. of Finance news release 2003-061, Dec. 5, 2003: These measures implement proposals introduced in Budget 2003 that address charitable donation arrangements that were promoted in recent years involving the use of limited-recourse debt. "tax shelter" means

(a) a gifting arrangement described by paragraph (b) of the definition "gifting arrangement"; and

(b) a gifting arrangement described by paragraph (a) of the definition "gifting arrangement", or a property (including any right to income) other than a flow-through share or a prescribed property, in respect of which it can reasonably be considered, having regard to statements or representations made or proposed to be made in connection with the gifting arrangement or the property, that, if a person were to enter into the gifting arrangement or acquire an interest in the property, at the end of a particular taxation year that ends within four years after the day on which the gifting arrangement is entered into or the interest is acquired,

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is

(A) an amount, or a loss in the case of a partnership interest, represented to be deductible in computing the person's income for the particular year or any preceding taxation year in respect of the gifting arrangement or the interest in the property (including, if the property is a right to income, an amount or loss in respect of that right that is stated or represented to be so deductible), or

(B) any other amount stated or represented to be deemed under this Act to be paid on account of the person's tax payable, or to be deductible in computing the person's income, taxable income or tax payable under this Act, for the particular year or any preceding taxation year in respect of the gifting arrangement or the interest in the property, other than an amount so stated or represented that is included in computing a loss described in clause (A),

would equal or exceed

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the cost to the person of the property acquired under the gifting arrangement, or of the interest in the property at the end of the particular year, determined without reference to section 143.2,

would exceed

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any prescribed benefit that is expected to be received or enjoyed, directly or indirectly, in respect of the property acquired under the gifting arrangement, or of the interest in the property, by the person or another person with whom the person does not deal at arm's length.

History: The definition "tax shelter" in subsec. 237.1(1) amended by 2003, c. 15, subsec. 87(1), the opening words applicable after February 18, 2003, para. (a) applicable in respect of property acquired, and gifts, contributions, statements and representations made, after February 18, 2003, and para. (b) applicable in respect of property acquired, and statements and representations made, after February 18, 2003. The definition formerly read:

"tax shelter" means any property (including, for greater certainty, any right to income) in respect of which it can reasonably be considered, having regard to statements or representations made or proposed to be made in connection with the property, that, if a person were to acquire an interest in the property, at the end of a particular taxation year that ends within 4 years after the day on which the interest is acquired,

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) an amount, or a loss in the case of a partnership interest, represented to be deductible in computing income in respect of the interest in the property (including, where the property is a right to income, an amount or loss in respect of that right that is represented to be deductible) and expected to be incurred by or allocated to the person for the particular year or any preceding taxation year, or

(ii) any other amount represented to be deductible in computing income or taxable income in respect of the interest in the property and expected to be incurred by or allocated to the person for the particular year or any preceding taxation year, other than any amount included in computing a loss described in subparagraph (i),

would equal or exceed

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the cost to the person of the interest in the property at the end of the particular year, determined without reference to section 143.2,

would exceed

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any prescribed benefit that is expected to be received or enjoyed, directly or indirectly, in respect of the interest in the property by the person or another person with whom the person does not deal at arm's length,

but does not include property that is a flow-through share or a prescribed property.

The definition "tax shelter" in subsec. 237.1(1) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 234(1), applicable after November 1994. The definition formerly read:

"tax shelter" means any property in respect of which it may reasonably be considered having regard to statements or representations made or proposed to be made in connection with the property that, if a person were to acquire an interest in the property, at the end of any particular taxation year ending within 4 years after the day on which the interest is acquired,

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) a loss represented to be deductible in computing income in respect of the interest in the property and expected to be incurred by or allocated to the person for the particular year or any preceding taxation year, or

(ii) any other amount represented to be deductible in computing income or taxable income in respect of the interest in the property and expected to be incurred by or allocated to the person for the particular year or any preceding taxation year, other than any amount included in computing a loss described in subparagraph (i),

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the cost to the person of the interest in the property at the end of the particular year,

would exceed

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any prescribed benefit that is expected to be received or enjoyed directly or indirectly in respect of the interest in the property, by the person or another person with whom the person does not deal at arm's length

but does not include property that is a flow-through share or a prescribed property.

Subpara. (a)(ii) of the definition "tax shelter" in subsec. 237.1(1) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 188(1), to substitute "the particular year or any preceding taxation year" for "the particular year", applicable to interests acquired after August 1989.

(6.1) Deductions and claims disallowed — No amount may be deducted or claimed by any person for any taxation year in respect of a tax shelter of the person where any person is liable to a penalty under subsection (7.4) or 162(9) in respect of the tax shelter or interest on the penalty and

(a) the penalty or interest has not been paid; or

(b) the penalty and interest have been paid, but an amount on account of the penalty or interest has been repaid under subsection 164(1.1) or applied under subsection 164(2).

Related Provisions: 237.1(6.2) — No time limit on assessment; 237.1(7.4) — Penalty for false information or selling shelter without number.

History: Subsec. 237.1(6.1) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 234(4), applicable after December 1, 1994.

(6.2) Assessments — Notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), such assessments, determinations and redeterminations may be made as are necessary to give effect to subsection (6.1).

Related Provisions: 143.2(15) — Late assessment to implement tax shelter deduction rules.

History: Subsec. 237.1(6.2) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 234(4), applicable after December 1, 1994.

(7) Information return — Every promoter in respect of a tax shelter who accepts consideration in respect of the tax shelter or who acts as a principal or agent in respect of the tax shelter in a calendar year shall, in prescribed form and manner, file an information return for the year containing

(a) the name, address and either the Social Insurance Number or business number of each person who so acquires or otherwise invests in the tax shelter in the year,

(b) the amount paid by each of those persons in respect of the tax shelter, and

(c) such other information as is required by the prescribed form unless an information return in respect of the tax shelter has previously been filed.

Related Provisions: 237.1(7.1)–(7.3) — Administrative requirements for returns; 237.1(7.5) — Penalty for failure to file information return after demand made; 237.3(14)(a), (16) — No information return required for reportable avoidance transaction if return filed under 237.1(7).

History: Subsec. 237.1(7) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 234(4), applicable after December 1, 1994 except that the reference in para. (a) to "business number" is applicable after June 17, 1998.

(7) Every promoter in respect of a tax shelter from whom an interest in the tax shelter was acquired, who accepted a contribution in respect of an acquisition of an interest in the tax shelter or who acted as an agent in respect of an acquisition of an interest in the tax shelter in a calendar year shall, in the prescribed form and manner, make an information return for that year containing

(a) the name, address and Social Insurance Number of each person who so acquired an interest in the tax shelter in the year,

(b) the amount paid by each such person for the interest, and

(c) such other information as may be required by the prescribed form, unless an information return in respect of the acquisition has previously been made.

Regulations: 231(2)–(4) (prescribed manner).

(7.1) Time for filing return — An information return required under subsection (7) to be filed in respect of the acquisition of an interest in a tax shelter in a calendar year shall be filed with the Minister on or before the last day of February of the following calendar year.

Related Provisions: 237.1(7.2) — Return required within 30 days of discontinuing business or activity.

History: Subsec. 237.1(7.1) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 234(4), applicable after December 1, 1994.

(7.2) Time for filing — special case — Notwithstanding subsection (7.1), where a person is required under subsection (7) to file an information return in respect of a business or activity and the person discontinues that business or activity, the return shall be filed on or before the earlier of

(a) the day referred to in subsection (7.1); and

(b) the day that is 30 days after the day of the discontinuance.

History: Subsec. 237.1(7.2) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 234(4), applicable after December 1, 1994.

(7.3) Copies to be provided — Every person required to file a return under subsection (7) shall, on or before the day on or before which the return is required to be filed with the Minister, forward to each person to whom the return relates 2 copies of the portion of the return relating to that person.

History: Subsec. 237.1(7.3) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 234(4), applicable after December 1, 1994.

(7.4) Penalty — Every person who files false or misleading information with the Minister in respect of an application under subsection (2) or, whether as a principal or as an agent, sells, issues or accepts consideration in respect of a tax shelter before the Minister has issued an identification number for the tax shelter is liable to a penalty equal to the greater of

(a) $500, and

(b) 25% of the greater of

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is the consideration received or receivable from a person in respect of the tax shelter before the correct information is filed with the Minister or the identification number is issued, as the case may be, and

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount stated or represented to be the value of property that a particular person who acquires or otherwise invests in the tax shelter could donate to a qualified donee, if the tax shelter is a gifting arrangement and consideration has been received or is receivable from the particular person in respect of the tax shelter before the correct information is filed with the Minister or the identification number is issued, as the case may be.

Related Provisions: 161(11)(b.1) — Interest on penalty; 163(2.9) — Where partnership is liable to penalty; 227(10)(b) — Assessment of penalty at any time; 237.1(6.1) — No deduction allowed while tax shelter penalty unpaid.

History: Para. 237.1(7.4)(b) amended by 2012, c. 19, subsec. 15(3), applicable in respect of any application for an identification number made, any sale or issuance of a tax shelter made and any consideration in respect of a tax shelter accepted, after June 28, 2012. It formerly read:

(b) 25% of the total of all amounts each of which is the consideration received or receivable from a person in respect of the tax shelter before the correct information is filed with the Minister or the identification number is issued, as the case may be.

Subsec. 237.1(7.4) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 234(4), applicable after December 1, 1994.

CRA Audit Manual: 28.2.3: Penalties — failure to file in respect of tax shelters.

(7.5) Penalty — Every person who is required under subsection (7) to file an information return and who fails to comply with a demand under section 233 to file the return, or to report in the return information required under paragraph (7)(a) or (b), is liable to a penalty equal to 25% of the greater of

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is the consideration received or receivable by the person in respect of the tax shelter from a particular person in respect of whom information required under paragraph (7)(a) or (b) had not been reported at or before the time that the demand was issued or the return was filed, as the case may be, and

(b) if the tax shelter is a gifting arrangement, the total of all amounts each of which is an amount stated or represented to be the value of property that the particular person could donate to a qualified donee.

Related Provisions: 163(2.9) — Where partnership is liable to penalty; 227(10)(b) — Assessment of penalty at any time.

History: Subsec. 237.1(7.5) added by 2012, c. 19, subsec. 15(4), applicable in respect of any demand made, and any information return filed, after June 28, 2012.

(8) Application of sections 231 to 231.3 — Without restricting the generality of sections 231 to 231.3, where an application under subsection (2) with respect to a tax shelter has been made, notwithstanding that a return of income has not been filed by any taxpayer under section 150 for the taxation year of the taxpayer in which an amount is claimed as a deduction in respect of the tax shelter, sections 231 to 231.3 apply, with such modifications as the circumstances require, for the purpose of permitting the Minister to verify or ascertain any information in respect of the tax shelter.

Proposed Addition — 237.3 — Reportable transactions

"advisor" in respect of a transaction or series of transactions means each person who provides, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, any contractual protection in respect of the transaction or series, or any assistance or advice with respect to creating, developing, planning, organizing or implementing the transaction or series, to any person (including any person who enters into the transaction for the benefit of another person).

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New subsection 237.3(1) contains definitions that are relevant in determining, among other things, if an avoidance transaction or a transaction in a series of transactions is a "reportable transaction", a person is required to file an information return in respect of the "reportable transaction", and the amount of any penalty that may be payable by the persons required to file the prescribed information return where the return, does not provide full and accurate disclosure, is filed late, or is not filed at all.

The definition "advisor" is relevant in determining whether a person is required to file an information return in respect of an avoidance transaction or a transaction in a series of transactions that includes an avoidance transaction, and the amount of the penalty to which that person may be liable under new subsection 237.3(8).

An "advisor" means any person who, in respect of a transaction or a series of transactions, provides directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, any "contractual protection" in respect of the transaction or series, or any assistance or advice in creating, developing, planning, organizing or implementing the transaction or series, to any person. A person can be an "advisor" to a particular person who enters into a transaction and for whom a tax benefit could result from the transaction or series, or to a person who enters into a transaction for the benefit of another person. It is not intended that a person can be an advisor to himself or herself.

A person can also be an advisor in respect of a transaction or series if that person provides contractual protection, assistance or advice to any promoter or any other advisor in respect of the transaction of series of transactions, even though the person does not provide contractual protection, assistance or advice directly to the person who entered into the transaction or series. Thus, although an advisor would generally be a person whose business is to provide professional services or contractual protection to a person entering into a transaction or series, other persons can also be considered to be an "advisor" in respect of a transaction or series. More than one person may be an advisor in respect of a transaction or series of transactions.

A person or partnership that provides advice or representation to a person only in respect of an audit or tax dispute in relation to a particular transaction or series of transactions, and that, in respect of that transaction or series, was neither involved in the creation, development, planning, organizing or implementation of the transaction or series, nor in the providing of contractual protection, would not be an advisor in respect of that transaction or series.

Related Provisions: 237.3(2)(c) — Advisor must file information return for reportable transaction: 237.3(8), (15) — Penalty for advisor not filing information return.

"avoidance transaction" has the meaning assigned by subsection 245(3).

Related Provisions: 237.3(1)"reportable transaction" — Avoidance transaction that meets certain conditions.

"confidential protection" in respect of a transaction or series of transactions means anything that prohibits the disclosure to any person or to the Minister of the details or structure of the transaction or series under which a tax benefit results, or would result but for section 245, but for greater certainty, the disclaiming or restricting of an advisor's liability shall not be considered confidential protection if it does not prohibit the disclosure of the details or structure of the transaction of series.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): "Confidential protection" in respect of a transaction or series of transactions means anything that prohibits the disclosure to any person or to the Minister of the details or structure of the transaction or series under which a tax benefit results or would result but for section 245. Under the definition "reportable transaction", "confidential protection" would be relevant as a "hallmark" in respect of an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes an avoidance transaction only if an advisor or promoter has such protection in respect of the avoidance transaction or series. Accordingly, for example, rights of confidentiality of a person who enters into a transaction will not be a "hallmark" under paragraph (b) of the definition "reportable transaction" where those rights protect the confidentiality entitlement of a person against the person's advisors (such as the rights of a client vis-à-vis his or her legal advisor).

For greater certainty, the disclaiming or restricting of an advisor's liability (such as a disclaimer against liability to third parties or to typical tax opinion) shall not be considered intellectual transaction if there is no prohibition in the disclaimer of the details or structure of the transaction or series. For more details, see explanatory notes accompanying the definition "reportable transaction".

"contractual protection" in respect of a transaction or series of transactions means

(a) any form of insurance (other than standard professional liability insurance) or other protection, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, an indemnity, compensation or a guarantee that, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently,

(i) protects a person against a failure of the transaction or series to achieve any tax benefit from the transaction or series, or

(ii) pays for or reimburses any expense, fee, tax, interest, penalty or similar amount that may be incurred by a person in the course of a dispute in respect of a tax benefit from the transaction or series, and

(b) any form of undertaking provided by a promoter, or by any person who does not deal at arm's length with a promoter, that provides, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, assistance, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, to a person in the course of a dispute in respect of a tax benefit from the transaction or series.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): "Contractual protection" means in respect of a transaction or series of transactions

- any form of insurance (other than standard professional liability insurance) or other protection, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, an indemnity, compensation or a guarantee that, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently,

  (i) protects a person against a failure of the transaction or series to achieve any tax benefit from the transaction or series, or

  (ii) pays for or reimburses any expense, fee, tax, interest, penalty or similar amount that may be incurred by a person in the course of a dispute in respect of a tax benefit from the transaction or series, and

- any form of undertaking provided by a promoter, or by any person who does not deal at arm's length with a promoter, that provides, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, assistance, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, to a person in the course of a dispute in respect of a tax benefit from the transaction or series (see the explanatory notes accompanying paragraph (a) of the definition "reportable transaction" regarding disputes in respect of a tax benefit).

Related Provisions: 18(1) — Costs of obtaining assistance are deductible to whatever party incurs them; 237.3(1)(c)(iv) — Advisor or promoter entitled to fee unless no contractual protection arose under transaction.

"fee" in respect of a transaction or series of transactions means any consideration that is, or could be, received or receivable, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by an advisor or a promoter, or any person who does not deal at arm's length with an advisor or promoter, for

(a) providing advice or an opinion with respect to the transaction or series,

(b) creating, developing, planning, organizing or implementing the transaction or series,

(c) promoting or selling an arrangement, plan or scheme that includes, or relates to, the transaction or series,

(d) preparing the documents supporting the transaction or series, including tax returns or any information returns to be filed under the Act, or

(e) providing contractual protection.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): A "fee" means any consideration that is or could be, received or receivable, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, in respect of a transaction or series of transactions by an advisor or a promoter, or any person who does not deal at arm's length with an advisor or a promoter, for undertaking any of the activities described in this definition. Consideration is considered to a "fee" for the purpose of new section 237.3 if that consideration is for providing advice or an opinion with respect to the transaction or series, for creating, developing, planning, organizing or implementing the transaction or series, for promoting or selling an arrangement, plan or scheme that includes, or relates to, the transaction or series, for preparing documents supporting the transaction or series, including tax returns or any information returns to be filed under the Act, or for providing "contractual protection" (within the meaning assigned by subsection 237.3(1)), in respect of the transaction or series.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): See under "reportable transaction" below.

"promoter" in respect of a transaction or series of transactions means each person who

(a) promotes or sells (whether as principal or agent and whether directly or indirectly) an arrangement, plan or scheme (referred to in this definition as an "arrangement"), if it may reasonably be considered that the arrangement includes or relates to the transaction or series,

(b) makes a statement or representation (whether as principal or agent and whether directly or indirectly) that a tax benefit could result from an arrangement, if it may reasonably be considered that

(i) the statement or representation was made in furtherance of the promoting or selling of an arrangement, and

(ii) the arrangement includes or relates to the transaction or series, or

(c) accepts (whether as principal or agent and whether directly or indirectly) consideration in respect of an arrangement referred to in paragraph (a) or (b).

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): "Promoter" means any person who is report of a transaction or series of transaction, promotes or sells an arrangement (as defined for the purposes of the definition), where it can reasonably be considered that the arrangement includes or relates to the transaction or series. A person is also a promoter if the person makes a statement or representation that a tax benefit could result from the arrangement, or accepts consideration in respect of the promotion or sale of the arrangement, or for the making of a statement or representation that a tax benefit could result from the arrangement. More than one person may be a promoter in respect of a transaction or series of transactions.

The definition "promoter" encompasses any person engaging in these activities or receiving such consideration whether as principal or agent and whether directly or indirectly.

Related Provisions: 237.3(2)(c) — Promoter must file information return for reportable transaction; 237.3(6), (15) — Penalty for promoter not filing information return.

"reportable transaction" at any time means [subject to exception for solicitor-client privilege in Jan. 11, 2011 letter from Minister of Finance below — ed.] an avoidance transaction that is entered into by or for the benefit of a person, and each transaction that is part of a series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction, where at the time any two of the following paragraphs apply in respect of the avoidance transaction or series:

(a) an advisor or a promoter, or any person who does not deal at arm's length with the advisor or promoter, has or had an entitlement, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to a fee that to any extent

(i) is based on the amount of a tax benefit that results, or would result but for section 245, from the avoidance transaction or series,

(ii) is contingent upon the obtaining of a tax benefit that results, or would result but for section 245, from the avoidance transaction or series, or may be refunded, recovered or reduced, in any manner whatever based upon the failure of the person to obtain a tax benefit from the avoidance transaction or series, or

(iii) is attributable to the number of persons

(A) who participate in the avoidance transaction or series, or in a similar avoidance transaction or series, or

(B) who have been provided access to advice or an opinion given by the advisor or promoter regarding the tax consequences from the avoidance transaction or series, or in a similar avoidance transaction or series,

(b) an advisor or promoter in respect of the avoidance transaction or series, or any person who does not deal at arm's length with the advisor or promoter, has or had confidential protection in respect of the avoidance transaction or series, or

(c) either

(i) the person (in this subparagraph referred to as the "particular person"), another person who entered into the avoidance transaction for the benefit of the particular person or any other person who does not deal at arm's length with the particular person or with a person who entered into the avoidance transaction for the benefit of the particular person, has or had contractual protection in respect of the avoidance transaction or series, otherwise than as a result of a fee described in paragraph (a), or

(ii) the advisor or promoter, or any person who does not deal at arm's length with the advisor or promoter, has or had contractual protection in respect of the avoidance transaction or series, otherwise than as a result of a fee described in paragraph (a).

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): The definition "reportable transaction" is the principal definition. The other definitions in new subsection 237.3(1) must be read in the context of that definition.

A "reportable transaction" means an avoidance transaction, within the meaning assigned by subsection 245(3), entered into by or for the benefit of a person, and each transaction entered into by or for the benefit of a person that is part of a series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction, where at any time, any two of paragraphs (a) to (c) of that definition are applicable in respect of the avoidance transaction or series. Each transaction that is part of a series of transactions that includes an avoidance transaction is a separate reportable transaction, and this is also the case where a series of transactions includes more than one avoidance transaction. Whether a person would be considered to have entered into an avoidance transaction for the benefit of another person is to be based on the facts and circumstances of each case. The notes accompanying new subsection 237.3(2) provide further details in this regard.

Paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" describe three sets of circumstances the existence of any two of which in respect of an avoidance transaction, or a series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction, will cause that avoidance transaction, or each transaction that is part of that series, to be a "reportable transaction". As well, it is intended that paragraphs (a) to (c) apply in respect of a series of transactions if that series includes more than one avoidance transaction and if any two of the paragraphs are applicable in respect of one or more of those avoidance transactions. In other words, if a series of transactions includes more than one avoidance transaction, and any of paragraphs (a) to (c) are applicable in respect of one of those transactions while any of the paragraphs are applicable to another of those transactions, then each transaction in the series will be a reportable transaction.

Paragraph (a) — A "fee" in relation to the avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction

Paragraph (a) of the definition "reportable transaction" under new subsection 237.3(1) refers to circumstances in which an "advisor" or "promoter" (within the meanings assigned by that new subsection), or any person who is not dealing at arm's length with an advisor or promoter, is entitled to any of three types of "fees". This paragraph applies from the perspective of the advisor or promoter who has or had an entitlement to a fee in respect of an avoidance transaction or series of transactions, and not from the perspective of the persons from whom the advisor or the promoter is or was entitled to receive the fee. In this explanatory note, a reference to an "advisor" or a "promoter" includes any person who is not dealing at arm's length with the advisor or promoter.

For the purpose of new section 237.3, a "fee" means any consideration that is, or could be, received or receivable, directly or indirectly and in any manner whatever, by an advisor or promoter in respect of an avoidance transaction, or a series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction, for

- providing advice or an opinion with respect to the transaction or series,
- creating, developing, planning, organizing or implementing the transaction or series,
- promoting or selling an arrangement, plan or scheme that includes, or relates to, the transaction or series,
- preparing the documents supporting the transaction or series, including tax returns or any information returns to be filed under the Act, or
- providing "contractual protection" (within the meaning assigned by new subsection 237.3(1)). See the explanation for paragraph (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" for more details on what constitutes "contractual protection".

The circumstances described in paragraph (a) would exist in respect of an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction if an amount meets the definition of "fee" under new subsection 237.3(1) (see the discussion in respect of that definition for more details) and that fee meets the characteristics of any of the three types of fees described in this paragraph.

The first type of fee, described in subparagraph (a)(i), is a fee of an advisor or promoter in respect of a transaction the computation of which is to any extent based on the amount of a tax benefit that could result from an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that include the avoidance transaction. Whether a fee is based on the amount of a tax benefit will depend on all the facts and circumstances relating to the consideration received. Examples of circumstances in which the amount of a fee of an advisor or promoter would be determined according to the amount of the tax benefit from the transaction include situations where the advisor or promoter sets a fee the amount of which is based, in whole or in part, on a percentage of the amount of the tax benefit from a transaction or series of transaction.

The second type of fee, described in subparagraph (a)(ii), refers to a fee of an advisor or promoter in respect of a transaction for which the advisor or promoter has or had an entitlement that is contingent upon the obtaining of, or the failure to obtain, a tax benefit from an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction. In contrast to subparagraph (a)(i) which is focused on fees the amount of which, or computation of the quantum of which, is dependent on the tax benefit sought under the avoidance transaction or series, the kinds of fees referred to in subparagraph (a)(ii) include the following:

- A fee could be considered to be contingent upon the obtaining of a tax benefit from a transaction or series of transactions if the entitlement of the advisor or promoter to the fee under the relevant legal agreement arises upon the filing of an income tax return of a person that reflects the tax benefit, when the tax benefit is confirmed by the Minister after audit, if any court confirms the tax benefit in whole or in part, or upon the expiration of the applicable assessment periods that apply to the taxation year. A fee could also be considered to be contingent upon the obtaining of a tax benefit if it arises after the expiration of a given period of time agreed to by the advisor or promoter and the person for whom a tax benefit could result from the avoidance transaction or series, which period could be shorter than the applicable assessment periods that apply to the taxation year in which the tax benefit arises.

- A fee to which an advisor or promoter is entitled in respect of an avoidance transaction or series of transactions may be considered to be contingent if it may be refunded, recovered or reduced, in any manner whatever, based upon the failure of a person to obtain a tax benefit from the avoidance transaction or series. This could be the case when the fee may be refunded to the payer, recovered by the payer, or reduced for the payer should the tax benefit that was expected to result from the avoidance transaction or series be denied to a person because of the application of any provision of the Income Tax Act, including the general anti-avoidance rule in section 245.

The third type of fee, described in subparagraph (a)(iii) is a fee that is attributable to the number of persons who enter into an avoidance transaction or series (or a similar avoidance transaction or series), or who have been provided access to advice or an opinion given by the advisor or promoter regarding the tax consequences from the avoidance transaction or series (or a similar avoidance transaction or series). Similar transactions or series include transactions or series having the same or similar structure and entered into by different taxpayers, when the objective of those transactions or series is to result in similar tax benefits for each of those taxpayers, even if those transactions or series may involve different properties or obligations. For example, a broadly marketed scheme in which different taxpayers acquire and finance property separately, but where the property that each taxpayer acquires is similar in nature and where the financing structure that each taxpayer enters into is similar, may be considered as "similar avoidance transactions".

Paragraph (b) — "Confidential protection" to the benefit of an advisor or promoter in respect of the details or structure of an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction

Paragraph (b) of the definition "reportable transaction" refers to circumstances in which an "advisor" or "promoter" obtains "confidential protection" in respect of an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction. In this explanatory note, a reference to an "advisor" or a "promoter" includes any person who does not deal at arm's length with the advisor or promoter.

Based on the definition "confidential protection", the circumstance described in paragraph (b) of the definition "reportable transaction" would exist in respect of an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction if an advisor or promoter in respect of the transaction or series has or had anything that would prohibit the disclosure to any person or to the Minister of details or the structure of the avoidance transaction or series that includes the avoidance transaction under which a tax benefit could result.

For greater certainty, the disclaiming or restricting of an advisor's liability shall not be considered confidential protection if there is no prohibition of the disclosure of details or the structure of the avoidance transaction of series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction. An example would be a standard provision found in many tax opinions limiting an adviser's liability solely to his or her client and disclaiming liability to any third parties. See also the discussion in respect of the definition "confidential protection" in new subsection 237.3(1).

Paragraph (c) — "Contractual protection" obtained for a person for whom a tax benefit could result from an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction

Paragraph (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" refers to the circumstances in which "contractual protection" is obtained in respect of an avoidance transaction or series of transactions. The explanatory note accompanying the definition "contractual protection" in new subsection 237.3(1) provides further details in this regard. The circumstances provided in paragraph (c) would exist in respect of an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction if one of the following circumstances applies in respect of the avoidance transaction or series:

- a person for whom a tax benefit could result from the avoidance transaction or series (the "particular person") has or had any form of protection the effect of which is described in paragraph (a); or
- another person who entered into the avoidance transaction for the benefit of the particular person has or had any form of protection the effect of which is described in paragraph (a); or
- any other person who does not deal at arm's length with the particular person, or with a person who entered into the avoidance transaction for the benefit of the particular person, has or had any form of protection the effect of which is described in paragraph (a).

"Contractual protection" in respect of a transaction or series of transactions means:

- any form of insurance (other than standard professional liability insurance) or other protection (including an indemnity, compensation or a promise) for, or the assumption of or the future and either absolutely or contingently, either
  - — payment of, or reimbursement for, the amount, penalty or similar amount that may be incurred by a person in the course of a dispute in respect of a tax benefit from the avoidance transaction or series of transactions, or
  - — any loss or undertaking provided by a promoter, or by any person who does not deal at arm's length with the promoter, that provides, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, assistance, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, in a person in the course of a dispute in respect of a tax benefit from the transaction or series.

The first type of contractual protection described above refers to an insurance protection under which the taxpayer is compensated or indemnified should the tax benefit from the avoidance transaction or series for the taxpayer not be achieved under the law, in any form whatever. The second example, an advance income tax ruling obtained from the Canada Revenue Agency by a person for whom a tax benefit could result from an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes an avoidance transaction is not to be considered contractual protection in respect of the avoidance transaction or series.

In addition, the first type of contractual protection could include insurance where a taxpayer would be entitled to be compensated for any fees or tax incurred during the course of an audit, an objection to an assessment, reassessment, additional assessment or determination pursuant to subsection 152(1.11) (hereafter referred to in this note as an "assessment"), an appeal of an assessment to the Tax Court of Canada or any other subsequent appeal to a court of higher jurisdiction, in respect of a tax benefit which could result from an avoidance transaction or series of transactions.

The second type of contractual protection described above refers to assistance given, in respect of a transaction or series of transactions, a promoter or a person who does not deal at arm's length with the promoter provides an undertaking to assist a person in the course of a dispute in respect of a tax benefit from the transaction or series, even if does not do so immediately. The words include situations where the promoter offers to provide to a person relevant documentation and assistance to dispute an assessment or file an appeal of the court's decision in respect of the transaction or series.

"Contractual protection" would also exist in respect of an avoidance transaction or a series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction if an advisor or promoter, or any person who does not deal at arm's length with the advisor or promoter, has or had contractual protection in respect of the avoidance transaction or series.

Fees that are contingent upon the obtaining of a tax benefit by a person are excluded from the application of paragraph (c) to preclude a double interpretation of such fees. In the absence of this specific exclusion, an advisor's or a promoter's fee might be considered as both a type of "contractual protection" in paragraph (c) as well as the type of fee referred to in paragraph (a).

An advisor or promoter (for example, a promoter or an investment dealer) who provides contractual protection in respect of an avoidance transaction, or a series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction, may have a reporting obligation in respect of the avoidance transaction or series arising with the person who could benefit from the avoidance transaction or series if an additional paragraph (hallmark) provided in the definition "reportable transaction" applies in respect of the avoidance transaction or series. For example, if in respect of an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction, a person obtains "contractual protection" from the advisor or promoter that the person will be compensated for all or a portion of a denied tax benefit or litigation costs (including a refund of any portion of a fee charged by the advisor or promoter) if a challenge by the CRA is successful, the advisor or promoter's fees may contingent on the tax benefit in fact being denied.

A person, including an advisor or promoter, who fails to file an information return as and when required may be liable to a penalty. The amount of certain fees of an advisor or promoter will be included in the amount of the penalty provided under new subsection 237.3(8). See the explanatory note accompanying new subsection 237.3(8) for further details in this regard.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Jan. 11, 2011 Mr. Rod Hunt, President, Canadian Bar Association, Ottawa, ON

Ms. Diane Manizaki, Chair, National Taxation Law section, Canadian Bar Association, Ottawa, ON

Dear Mr. Scott and Ms. Manizaki:

I am writing in response to our meeting of November 3, 2010 and your correspondence of September 27, 2010 and November 15, 2010 in respect of the proposed reporting regime for certain tax avoidance transactions announced in the 2010 Budget. We appreciate the contribution of the Canadian Bar Association to the public consultation process and your acknowledgement of the necessity to protect the integrity of the income tax system.

You have expressed concerns with the positive aspect of the proposed reporting regime where a solicitor-client relationship exists. As I expressed in our meeting, I would like to assure you that the proposed regime is not intended to require the disclosure of information for which a client of a lawyer (and a notary in the province of Quebec) has solicitor-client privilege.

To that effect, I am prepared to consider whether the provision could be further clarified in this regard. Specifically, I am prepared to consider a change to the proposed rules providing explicitly that a lawyer (and a notary in the province of Quebec) will not be required to report any specific item of information that the lawyer believes, on reasonable grounds, is subject to solicitor-client privilege. I understand that my officials have been in discussions with you in this regard.

Thank you for communicating your concerns.

Yours, M. Flaherty

c. The Honourable Rob Nicholson, P.C., Q.C., Minister of Justice and Attorney General of Canada

Related Provisions: 237.3(2) — Information return required. 237.3(14) — Reportable transaction does not include one where sole tax benefit is flow-through share.

"tax benefit" has the meaning assigned by subsection 245(1).

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): "Tax benefit" has the meaning assigned by subsection 245(1) of the Act.

Related Provisions: 237.3(2)(a) — Information return required for reportable transaction where tax benefit results.

"transaction" has the meaning assigned by subsection 245(1).

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): "Transaction" has the meaning assigned by subsection 245(1) of the Act.

(2) Application — An information return in prescribed form and containing prescribed information in respect of a reportable transaction must be filed with the Minister by

(a) every person for whom a tax benefit results, or would result but for section 245, from the reportable transaction;

(b) every person who has entered into, for the benefit of a person referred to in paragraph (a), an avoidance transaction that is a reportable transaction; and

(c) every advisor or promoter (and any person who is not dealing at arm's length with the advisor or promoter) who is or was entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to a fee that is

(i) described in paragraph (a) of the definition "reportable transaction" in subsection (1), or

(ii) in respect of contractual protection provided in circumstances described in paragraph (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" in subsection (1).

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New subsections 237.3(2) to (4) relate to the reporting obligations imposed by section 237.3. In general terms:

- An information return must be filed in respect of every reportable transaction by persons described in new subsection 237.3(2).
- In the context of a series of transactions, a person for whom a tax benefit could result from a series of transactions that includes a reportable transaction has a reporting obligation in respect of each transaction that is part of the series. Other persons (in particular, advisors and promoters) subject to a reporting obligation may have an obligation to report all or part of the transactions in the series, depending on their particular circumstances.
- The filing of an information return by any person that provides a full and complete disclosure of all the transactions in a series of transactions would be considered to have been made by every person who has a reporting obligation in respect of any transaction of the series. The filing of an information return that contains full and accurate disclosure of a reportable transaction may be considered to have been filed by any other person that has a reporting obligation in respect of that transaction.

- Unless information returns in respect of a reportable transaction, or of all the reportable transactions in the series of transactions, are filed with the Minister of National Revenue, the Minister can deny any tax benefit that could result from the reportable transaction, and impose a joint and several (or solidarity) penalty on every person who failed to report any reportable transaction. The person for whom a tax benefit could result from the reportable transaction or the series is liable to a late-filing penalty the amount of which would be equal to the total of all the fees that are described in paragraph (a) or (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1) that an advisor or promoter is entitled to receive in the context of the transaction or series of transactions. An advisor or a promoter's liability is limited to the fee that that advisor or promoter is entitled to receive in respect of an undisclosed reportable transaction or in respect of the series that includes the transaction. As well, the due diligence defence (provided for in new subsection 237.3(11)) may apply in respect of the penalty. See the explanatory notes accompanying subsections 237.3(8) to (11) for further details about the penalty and the due diligence defence.

New subsection 237.3(2) imposes an obligation on certain persons to file an information return in respect of reportable transactions. This will be the case if, in general terms, any two of paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition "reportable transaction" are applicable in respect of an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction. See the explanatory note accompanying the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1) for more details in this regard.

A person for whom a tax benefit could result from an avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction would be required to file an information return in respect of the avoidance transaction and, as the case may be, each transaction that is part of the series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction.

A person who enters into an avoidance transaction for the benefit of another person for whom a tax benefit could result from the avoidance transaction or series would also be required to file an information return in respect of the avoidance transaction. Whether a person would be considered to have entered into an avoidance transaction for the benefit of another person would be based on the facts and circumstances of each case. A person could be considered as having entered into an avoidance transaction for the benefit of another person where it would be reasonable to consider that the person has undertaken the transaction or has arranged the transaction in order for the transaction to result in a tax benefit for the other person. The particular person for whom the tax benefit could result from the avoidance transaction may be unknown when the person enters into an avoidance transaction. For example, a corporation that undertakes a transaction or series of transactions to increase the paid-up capital of a class of shares of its capital stock might be considered to have undertaken the transaction or series for the benefit of its current or future shareholders, depending on the circumstances.

A person who is an "advisor" or "promoter", and any person with whom an advisor or promoter does not deal at arm's length, also may be subject to a reporting requirement if such a person is entitled to a fee (within the meaning assigned by new subsection 237.3(11)) in respect of the avoidance transaction or series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction, in the circumstances described in paragraphs (a) or (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" under new subsection 237.3(1). In that case, the advisor or promoter (or relevant non-arm's length persons) would have a reporting obligation in respect of that avoidance transaction if it is a reportable transaction, or in respect of every transaction in the series that is a reportable transaction, depending on their circumstances. In addition to the person claiming the tax benefit, this would be the case for each of the persons mentioned above in the following circumstances:

- The person is entitled to a fee that is to any extent based on the amount of a tax benefit from an avoidance transaction or a series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction. See the explanatory notes accompanying the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1) for further details in this regard.

- The person is entitled to a fee that is to any extent contingent upon the obtaining of a tax benefit from an avoidance transaction or a series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction, or the person is entitled to a fee that can be refunded, recovered or reduced upon the failure of a tax benefit to result from the avoidance transaction or series. See the explanatory notes accompanying the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1) for further details in this regard.

- The person is entitled to a fee that is to any extent attributable to the number of persons who enter into in an avoidance transaction or series, or a similar avoidance transaction or series, or who have been provided access to advice or an opinion given by the advisor or promoter regarding the tax consequences from the avoidance transaction or series, or a similar avoidance transaction or series. See the explanatory notes accompanying the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1) for further details in this regard.

- The person is entitled to a fee in respect of "contractual protection" obtained by or for the benefit of a person for whom a tax benefit could result from the avoidance transaction or series of transactions in the circumstances described in paragraph (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1). See the explanatory notes accompanying the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1) for further details in this regard.

The reporting requirements apply on a transaction-by-transaction basis. In other words, reporting is required in respect of each reportable transaction that is part of a series of transactions. More than one person may have a reporting requirement in respect of the same transaction. As well, every person mentioned above is required to file an information return for each reportable transaction in respect of each person for whom a tax benefit could result from the reportable transaction, or from the series of transactions that includes a reportable transaction. However, as described in the explanatory notes for the limitations provided in new subsections 237.3(3) and (4), the filing of a full and accurate information return by a person in respect of a particular transaction that is part of a series, which return accurately described each transaction that is part of the series, will satisfy the person's obligation in respect of each transaction that is part of the series. As well, the filing of a full and accurate information return in respect of the particular reportable transaction or each transaction that is part of the series, as the case may be, may also satisfy the reporting obligations of other persons in respect of the transaction or series, depending on each person's circumstances.

Related Provisions: 237.1(6), (7) — Information return required for tax shelter; 237.3(3) — Filing of return in respect of each transaction in series; 237.3(4) — Filing by one person constitutes filing by all; 237.3(5) — Filing deadline; 237.3(6) — Tax benefits disallowed if return not filed and penalty unpaid; 237.3(8), (15) — Penalty for not filing; 237.3(12) — Filing does not constitute admission that transaction is abusive; 237.3(14)(a) — No return required if tax shelter return filed under 237.1(7); 237.3(14)(b) — No return required for flow-through shares; 248(10) — Series of transactions.

(3) Clarification of reporting transactions in series — For greater certainty, and subject to subsection (11), if subsection (2) applies to a person in respect of each reportable transaction that is part of a series of transactions that includes an avoidance transaction, the filing of a prescribed form by the person that reports each transaction in the series is deemed to satisfy the obligation of the person under subsection (2) in respect of each transaction so reported.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): A person may have an obligation to report each transaction that is part of a series of transactions that includes an avoidance transaction. In such cases, new subsection 237.3(3) provides that that person will be deemed to have satisfied that person's reporting obligation in respect of each of those transactions if the person files an information return that fully and accurately discloses all of those transactions. This means that the person has to file only one information return in respect of the series of transactions to satisfy that person's reporting obligation, and not a separate information return for each transaction in the series. If a person, exercising due diligence, files an information return that is full and accurate in respect of all the transactions that the person should reasonably have been aware of, and those transactions are part of a larger series of transactions of which that person was unaware, the reporting obligation of that person would be considered to have been satisfied.

(4) Application — For the purpose of subsection (2), if any person is required to file an information return in respect of a reportable transaction under that subsection, the filing by any such person of an information return with full and accurate disclosure in prescribed form in respect of the transaction is deemed to have been made by each person to whom subsection (2) applies in respect of the transaction.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New subsection 237.3(4) provides the circumstances in which the filing by a person of an information return in respect of a reportable transaction could satisfy the reporting obligations of any other person who is also subject to a reporting obligation for the same transaction.

This new subsection provides that if any person is required to file an information return in respect of a reportable transaction, the filing of an information return with full and accurate disclosure in respect of the transaction is deemed to have been made by each person required to file an information return under new subsection 237.3(2) in respect of the transaction. In such case, each of those persons will be considered as having satisfied their respective reporting obligation in respect of the reportable transaction to the extent of that full and accurate disclosure.

However, the filing of the limited information return by that person would not satisfy the reporting obligation of any other person who has a broader or different reporting obligation in respect of the series. In such a case, every person who has a broader or different reporting obligation in respect of any undisclosed transactions in the series would still have an obligation to file information returns in respect of those transactions. See the explanatory note accompanying new subsection 237.3(11) for further details about the due diligence test.

Every person who fails to satisfy a reporting obligation in respect of any reportable transaction of the series is jointly and severally liable to pay a late-filing penalty under new subsection 237.3(8). If a person fails to satisfy his or her reporting obligation in respect of one or more reportable transactions, any fee described in paragraph (a) or (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1) to which every advisor or promoter is entitled in the context of the transaction or series of transactions can be included in the amount of the penalty to which that person is liable in respect of an undisclosed reportable transaction, including the fee of any advisor or promoter who has satisfied his or her own reporting obligations in respect of parts only of the series of transactions). The penalty provided under new subsection 237.3(8) is subject to an exception for advisors and promoters and the possibility that, the due diligence defence may apply. See the explanatory note accompanying new subsections 237.3(6) and 237.3(8) to (11) for further details about the application of the penalty and the due diligence defence.

(5) Time for filing return — An information return required by subsection (2) to be filed by a person for a reportable transaction is to be filed with the Minister on or before June 30th of the calendar year following the calendar year in which the transaction first became a reportable transaction in respect of the person.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Under new subsection 237.3(5), a person who is required to file an information return under new subsection 237.3(2) in respect of a reportable transaction must file the return with the Minister of National Revenue on or before June 30 of the calendar year following the calendar year in which the transaction first became a reportable transaction in respect of the person.

A transaction first becomes a reportable transaction to a person when the transaction is an avoidance transaction or is part of a series of transactions that includes an avoidance transaction and at least two of paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" are applicable in respect of the avoidance transaction or series. The circumstances described in the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1) may arise in respect of the avoidance transaction or series before or after the avoidance transaction has been entered into or the end of the series of transactions. Accordingly, the time for filing an information return by an advisor or a promoter may arise after the avoidance transaction or the end of a series of transactions.

For example, if a series of transactions is implemented over two calendar years, but a particular advisor provided assistance or advice only in the second year and only in respect of transactions that occur in the second year, the transactions will have first become reportable transactions in respect of that advisor only in the second year.

(6) Tax benefits disallowed — Notwithstanding subsection 245(4), subsection 245(2) is deemed to apply at any time to any reportable transaction if, at that time,

(a) the obligation under subsection (2) of a person described in paragraph (2)(a) in respect of the reportable transaction has not been satisfied;

(b) a person is liable to a penalty under subsection (8); and

(c) the penalty under subsection (8) or interest on the penalty has not been paid, or has been paid but an amount on account of the penalty or interest has been repaid under subsection 164(1.1) or applied under subsection 164(2).

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New subsection 237.3(6) applies when an information return in respect of a reportable transaction is not filed in accordance with new subsection 237.3(2) and when any resulting penalty under new subsection 237.3(8) and any interest on that penalty are unpaid.

For a person to have the possibility to obtain a tax benefit from a reportable transaction, or a series of transactions that includes a reportable transaction, a full and accurate information return in respect of the reportable transaction and of each reportable transaction that is part of such a series that includes the transaction must be filed with the Minister of National Revenue on time. In accordance with new subsections 237.3(1) and (6), a person could obtain a tax benefit from the reportable transaction if that person's reporting obligation has been satisfied because another person has filed an information return that fully discloses the reportable transaction, or each reportable transaction that is part of a series of transactions, from which the tax benefit could result.

New subsection 237.3(6) provides that, if it applies to a transaction or series of transactions, then notwithstanding subsection 245(4), the tax consequences to a person in respect of the transaction or series can be determined to be reasonable in the circumstances under subsection 245(2) in order to deny a tax benefit that, but for section 245, would result, directly or indirectly, from the reportable transaction or series that includes that transaction. Subsections 245(5) to 245(8) would apply when subsection 245(2) is deemed to apply under new subsection 237.3.

The determination of the tax consequences based upon the deemed application of subsection 245(2) would have to be made in accordance with subsection 245(7). The tax consequences sought to be determined through a notice of assessment, reassessment, additional assessment or determination under subsection 152(1.11) involving the application of section 245.

If an information return that otherwise satisfies the requirements of new subsection 237.3(2) is filed after the period provided for under new subsection 237.3(5), and any late-filing penalty under new subsection 237.3(8) and interest thereon is fully paid to the Minister of National Revenue, the Minister may allow any tax benefit from the reportable transaction that is denied under this new subsection 237.3(6). However, in determining whether a person may obtain the tax benefit that was denied, the Minister of National Revenue may consider whether section 245 otherwise applies to the reportable transaction, including subsection 245(4). This is consistent with new subsection 237.3(12), which provides that the filing of an information return in respect of a reportable transaction under new section 237.3 is for administrative purposes only and cannot be considered as an admission by a person that section 245 applies to a transaction or transactions that are reported or required.

(7) Assessments — Notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to 152(5), such assessments, determinations and redeterminations may be made as are necessary to give effect to subsection (8).

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New subsection 237.3(7) provides to the Minister of National Revenue the authority to make such assessments, determinations and redeterminations as are necessary to give effect to new subsection 237.3(8), which provides a penalty for late filing in respect of the reporting obligation imposed under new subsection 237.3(2).

(8) Penalty — Every person who fails to file an information return in respect of a reportable transaction as required under subsection (2) on or before the day required under subsection (5) is liable to a penalty equal to the total of each amount that is a fee to which an advisor or a promoter (or any person who does not deal at arm's length with the advisor or the promoter) in respect of the reportable transaction is or was entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to receive in respect of the reportable transaction, any transaction that is part of the series of transactions that includes the reportable transaction or the series of transactions that includes the reportable transaction, if the fee is

(b) in respect of contractual protection provided in circumstances described in paragraph (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" in subsection (1).

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): When an information return in respect of a reportable transaction or, in the case of a series of transactions, each reportable transaction that is part of the series, is not filed in accordance with new subsection 237.3(2) and new subsection 237.3(5), every person who has failed to file an information return in respect of the reportable transaction or of each reportable transaction that is part of the series would be liable to pay a penalty.

The amount of the penalty is equal to the total of each amount that is a fee to which an advisor or a promoter in respect of the reportable transaction, or any person who does not deal at arm's length with such advisor or promoter, is entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to receive in respect of the reportable transaction, of any transaction that is part of the series of transactions that includes the reportable transaction and of the series of transactions that includes the reportable transaction, if the fee is

- described in paragraph (a) of the definition "reportable transaction" in subsection 237.3(1); or
- in respect of "contractual protection" provided in circumstances described in paragraph (c) of that definition.

The explanatory notes accompanying the definition "reportable transaction" provide further details in this regard.

Under new subsection 237.3(9), every person who is subject to a penalty under subsection 237.3(8) is jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable to pay the penalty, subject to the limitation provided under new subsection 237.3(10) for advisors and promoters.

Under new subsection 237.3(10), an advisor or a promoter in respect of a reportable transaction that was not reported as and when required under new section 237.3 would be jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable to pay the penalty under new subsection 237.3(8) only to the extent of the fees that the particular advisor or promoter is entitled to receive in respect of the undisclosed reportable transaction or the series that includes that transaction, and that is included in the amount of the penalty.

Even if an advisor or promoter has fulfilled his or her reporting obligation in respect of a reportable transaction and is not liable to the penalty, the fees which that advisor or promoter is entitled to receive can be included in the amount of the penalty to which any other person may be liable should that other person fail to satisfy his or her reporting obligation in respect of other reportable transactions that are part of the same series of transactions. However, the liability of an advisor or a promoter for a late-filing penalty in respect of a failure to fulfill his reporting obligation is limited to the fees that the particular advisor or promoter is entitled to receive in respect of the reportable transaction or series.

Example

Assume that a taxpayer attempts to obtain tax benefits from a series of transactions that includes two avoidance transactions. The first avoidance transaction is part of the first five transactions in the series (the "first subset"), and the second avoidance transaction is part of the last five transactions in the series (the "second subset"). Also, assume that an advisor provides contractual protection to the taxpayer in respect of the first avoidance transaction and is entitled to receive a fee of $100. As well, a promoter is entitled to receive contingent fees of $50 in respect of the first avoidance transaction, another $50 in respect of the second avoidance transaction, and $25 in respect of the tax benefits to be derived from the series. The series of transactions began and ended in the same calendar year, and the contractual protection and the contingent fees also arose in that year.

Each transaction that is part of the series of transactions is a reportable transaction. That is because the advisor is entitled to a fee described in paragraph (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1) in respect of the first avoidance transaction, and the promoter is entitled to a fee described in paragraph (a) of that definition in respect of the first and second avoidance transactions in addition to a fee in respect of the whole series. When two of the paragraphs under that definition apply in respect of one or more avoidance transactions that are part of a series of transactions or in respect of the series as a whole, each transaction that is part of the series is a reportable transaction. Also, in this example, it could be said that two paragraphs are applicable in respect of the series because one paragraph applies in respect of the first avoidance transaction of the series and another paragraph applies in respect of the second avoidance transaction.

Under new subsection 237.3(2), the taxpayer, the advisor and the promoter would each have a reporting obligation. Each would be required to file an information return in respect of each reportable transaction for which they have a reporting requirement no later than June 30 of the following calendar year, in accordance with new subsection 237.3(5).

The reporting obligation of the taxpayer, advisor and promoter would extend to each transaction that is part of the series of transactions.

The advisor, acting reasonably, decides to file on a timely basis an information return in respect of the first subset of transactions. Although the filing of an information return by the advisor in respect of the first subset would not be considered to have satisfied the reporting obligation of that advisor, the advisor would not be subject to any penalties under new section 237.3 because the advisor, acting reasonably, had no knowledge about the second subset and, therefore, the advisor's liability is limited under new subsection 237.3(11).

Although the reporting by the advisor of the first subset could be considered to have satisfied the reporting obligation of the taxpayer and the promoter in respect of the first subset, this does not relieve the taxpayer and the promoter in respect of transactions that are part of the second subset. Accordingly, the taxpayer and the promoter would be considered to have satisfied their respective reporting obligations only when their respective reporting obligations are satisfied in respect of the transactions that make up the entire series, including those that are part of the second subset. However, they did not file an information return in respect of the second subset.

Under new subsection 237.3(8), the promoter and the taxpayer are liable to a penalty because they did not satisfy their own respective reporting obligations in respect of all the reportable transactions of the series. The amount of the penalty to which a person is liable in respect of undisclosed reportable transactions includes not only the fees that are connected to those transactions, but also any fee in respect of any transaction that is part of the same series of transactions or in respect of the series as a whole. Therefore, the amount of the penalty to which the taxpayer and the promoter would potentially be liable is equal to $225 (which is the amount that is the total of all the fees that the advisor and the promoter are entitled to receive in respect of the first and second subset, and in respect of the series as a whole), and the taxpayer and the promoter would be jointly and severally (or solidarily) liable to pay the penalty under new subsection 237.3(9). However, under new subsection 237.3(10), the promoter's liability is limited to the fee that the promoter is entitled to receive in respect of the series which in this example is $125.

Related Provisions: 18(1)(t), 67.6 — Penalty is not deductible; 161(11)(b.1) — Interest on penalty; 163(2.9) — Where partnership is liable to penalty, 227(10)(b) — Assessment of penalty; 237.3(6) — Tax benefits disallowed if return not filed and penalty unpaid; 237.3(7) — No time limit for assessment of penalty; 237.3(9) — Joint and several liability for penalty; 237.3(10) — Limitation on liability of advisor or promoter; 237.3(11) — Due diligence defence to penalty; 237.3(15) — Limitation on penalty.

(9) Joint and several liability — If more than one person is liable to a penalty under subsection (8) in respect of a reportable transaction, each of those persons are jointly and severally liable to pay the penalty.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): See under 237.3(8) above.

Related Provisions: 237.3(10) — Limitation on liability of advisor or promoter.

(10) Joint and several liability — special cases — Notwithstanding subsections (8) and (9), the liability of an advisor or a promoter to a penalty under those subsections in respect of a reportable transaction shall not exceed the total of each amount that is a fee to which that advisor or promoter, or a person with whom the advisor or promoter does not deal at arm's length, is or was entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to receive in respect of the reportable transaction.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): See under 237.3(8) above.

(11) Due diligence — A person required to file an information return in respect of a reportable transaction is not liable for a penalty under subsection (8) if the person has exercised the degree of care, diligence and skill to prevent the failure to file that a reasonably prudent person would have exercised in comparable circumstances.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): A person who is required to file an information return under new subsection 237.3(2) is liable for a penalty under new subsection 237.3(8) if the person does not file an information return in respect of every reportable transaction that the person is required to report, or does not do so on a timely basis. However, under new subsection 237.3(11), a person will not be liable to a penalty if it is determined that the person has exercised the degree of care, diligence and skill to prevent the failure that a reasonably prudent person would have exercised in comparable circumstances. This limitation is commonly referred to as a "due diligence defence".

The due diligence defence applies in the context of the reporting obligations imposed upon the persons referred to in new subsection 237.3(2). Whether a person has exercised the degree of care, diligence and skill required will be based on the facts and circumstances of each case. It is intended that the application of the due diligence defence for the purpose of new section 237.3 will be based on the jurisprudence that applies in respect of similar defences for the purposes of other provisions of the Act.

A person for whom a tax benefit could result from a reportable transaction, or from a series of transactions that includes a reportable transaction, is required to file an information return in respect of the avoidance transaction, or of each transaction that is part of a series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction, as the case may be. Such person is required to make reasonable and good faith efforts to determine whether a transaction is an avoidance transaction, or is part of a series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction, and whether any two of paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" are applicable to the avoidance transaction or series of transactions. If such a person is subject to a reporting requirement under new subsection 237.3(2) in respect of an avoidance transaction, then the person is also required to make reasonable and good faith efforts in identifying and disclosing full and accurate information in respect of each transaction that is part of a series of transactions that includes the avoidance transaction.

A person who enters into an avoidance transaction that is a reportable transaction for the benefit of another person is required to file an information return in respect of the avoidance transaction. Such person is required to exercise the same degree of care, diligence and skill as they would if they had entered into the reportable transaction on their own behalf.

A person who is an advisor or a promoter in respect of an avoidance transaction, or a series of transactions that includes an avoidance transaction, and any person who does not deal at arm's length with such advisor or promoter, would also be required to exercise adequate care, diligence an skill to determine whether a tax benefit could result from the avoidance transaction or series for a person, and whether any two of paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" are applicable to the avoidance transaction or series.

Persons, other than those for whom a tax benefit could result for a transaction or series, will not be subject to a penalty under new subsection 237.3(8) if they file on a timely basis (or if they reasonably believe that another person has filed on a timely basis) an information return in respect of each transaction for which they reasonably believe, after making reasonable efforts, that they are subject to a reporting requirement. For example, if an advisor, acting reasonably, determines that a reportable transaction in respect of which the advisor provided advice, and is entitled to a fee described in paragraph (a) or (c) of the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1), is part of a series of three transactions, the advisor will have satisfied his or her reporting obligation if he or she files (or, pursuant to new subsection 237.3(4), if another person files) a full and accurate report in respect of the three transactions that made up that part of the series even if, unknown to the advisor, the three transactions were actually part of a larger series of transactions.

(12) Reporting not an admission — The filing of an information return under this section by a person in respect of a reportable transaction is not an admission by the person that

(a) section 245 applies in respect of any transaction; or

(b) any transaction is part of a series of transactions.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New subsection 237.3(12) provides that the filing of an information return under new section 237.3(2) by a person in respect of a reportable transaction is not an admission by the person that section 245 applies in respect of any transaction, or that any transaction is part of a series of transactions.

If a required information return in respect of a reportable transaction is filed with the Minister of National Revenue and, in the case of a return that is late-filed, the applicable penalty and interest on the penalty is paid, the Minister may consider whether section 245 applies to the reportable transaction. If so, the Minister may determine any tax consequences to any person through a notice of assessment, reassessment, additional assessment or determination pursuant to subsection 152(1.11) with respect to the reportable transaction.

(13) Application of ss. 231 to 231.3 — Without restricting the generality of sections 231 to 231.5, notwithstanding that a return of income has not been filed by a taxpayer under section 150 for the taxation year of the taxpayer in which a tax benefit results, or would result but for section 245, from the reportable transaction, sections 231 to 231.3 apply, with such modifications as the circumstances require, for the purpose of permitting the Minister to verify or ascertain any information in respect of that transaction.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New subsection 237.3(13) ensures that the provisions of section 231 to 231.3 dealing with audits, inspections and powers of enforcement apply to any person who is required to file an information return in respect of a reportable transaction under new subsection 237.3(2) notwithstanding that, at the time of such audit or inspection, a return of income may not have been filed for the taxation year in which a tax benefit results, or would result for the section 245 from the reportable transaction or series of transactions that includes the reportable transaction.

(14) Tax shelters and flow-through shares — For the purpose of this section, a reportable transaction does not include a transaction that is, or is part of a series of transactions that includes

(a) the acquisition of a tax shelter for which an information return has been filed with the Minister under subsection 237.1(7); or

(b) the issuance of a flow-through share for which an information return has been filed with the Minister under subsection 66(12.68).

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New subsection 237.3(14) provides that no information return is required to be filed under new subsection 237.3(2) in respect of a transaction if the transaction is (or the series of transactions is a "reportable transaction" (within the meaning assigned by new subsection 237.3(1)) that is, or is part of a series that includes, the acquisition of a tax shelter or the issuance of a flow-through share in respect of which the appropriate information return under the tax shelter or flow-through share regime has been filed with the Minister of National Revenue.

Related Provisions: 237.3(16) — No application if shelter or flow-through share acquired to avoid 237.3.

(15) Tax shelters and flow-through shares — penalty — Notwithstanding subsection (8), the amount of the penalty, if any, that applies on a person under that subsection in respect of a reportable transaction shall not exceed the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount of the penalty imposed on the person under subsection (8), determined without reference to this subsection, and

B is

(a) if the reportable transaction is the acquisition of a tax shelter, the amount of the penalty, if any, that applies on the person under subsection 237.1(7.4) in respect of the tax shelter,

(b) if the reportable transaction is the issuance of a flow-through share, the amount of the penalty, if any, that applies on the person under subsection 66(12.74) in respect of the issuance of the flow-through share, and

(c) in any other case, nil

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New subsection 237.3(15) provides a computation rule in respect of the amount of any penalty to which a person may be liable under new section 237.3 and under the flow-through share or tax shelter rules. This subsection applies if a person fails to satisfy that person's reporting obligation in respect of a reportable transaction that is the acquisition of a tax shelter or the issuance of a flow-through share under all the relevant rules. In such case, the amount of the penalty, if any, for which that person may be liable under the flow-through share or tax shelter rules will reduce the amount of the penalty, if any, to which that person is liable or under new section 237.3. Other persons may have a reporting obligation under new subsection 237.3(2) in respect of the acquisition of the tax shelter or the issuance of the flow-through share. In such a case, every other person who fails to file an information return as and when required under new section 237.3 remains subject to the penalty under new subsection 237.3(8), the amount of which is determined without taking into account any reduction that applies to a person under new subsection 237.3(15).

Related Provisions: 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

(16) Anti-avoidance — Subsection (14) does not apply to a reportable transaction if it is reasonable, having regard to all of the circumstances, to conclude that one of the main reasons for the acquisition of a tax shelter, or the issuance of a flow-through share, is to avoid the application of this section.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New subsection 237.3(16) provides an anti-avoidance rule intended to prevent persons from inserting the acquisition of a tax shelter or the issuance of a flow-through share into a series of transactions for the purpose of avoiding the reporting requirements under new subsection 237.3(2).

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislative (Part 5 — other amendments), s. 115, will make s. 237.3 applicable in respect of avoidance transactions that are entered into after 2010 or that are part of a series of transactions that began before 2011 and is completed after 2010. If the filing of an information return under s. 237.3 would be required before July 1, 2011, the information return is deemed to be filed before that day if it is filed before 2012.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Background

Budget 2010 announced a public consultation process for a proposed reporting regime in respect of certain aggressive tax avoidance transactions. On May 3, 2010, a backgrounder and further details about the proposed reporting regime were released for a 60-day public consultation period, which ended on July 5, 2010.

As stated in Budget 2010, the main objective of the proposed reporting regime is to identify to the Canada Revenue Agency certain types of potentially abusive tax avoidance transactions that are not currently subject to any specific information reporting requirements under the Income Tax Act. To preserve the fairness and the integrity of Canada's self-assessment system, the Canada Revenue Agency must be able to properly review tax benefits claimed by taxpayers in their income tax returns, including tax benefits claimed in respect of aggressive tax planning arrangements. On the other hand, a balance must be struck between the need to protect the integrity of the Canadian income tax system and a taxpayer's entitlement to plan their affairs in a manner that legally minimizes their tax liability.

The submissions received in respect of the public consultation raised various issues on specific aspects of the proposals, many of which sought clarification regarding particular aspects of the criteria upon which the reporting requirements are based. In addition, it was suggested in several submissions that the proposals be further clarified in the Explanatory Notes.

The draft legislation addresses the issues raised, particularly where the proposed regime is considered as a whole. Notably, the definitions of "advisor" and "promoter" have been drafted to reflect comments received, to limit the application of the penalty to which an advisor or promoter may be subject. As well, the "due diligence defence" in new subsection 237.3(11) is intended to address some of these issues.

Under the proposals, a transaction would be a reportable transaction if it is an avoidance transaction (as defined for the purpose of the general anti-avoidance rule in the Income Tax Act), or if it is a transaction that is part of a series of transactions that includes an avoidance transaction, if at any time any two of the hallmarks provided in the definition "reportable transaction" apply with reference to the avoidance transaction or series. Therefore, a transaction that is not an avoidance transaction, and a transaction in a series of transactions that does not include an avoidance transaction, would not be a reportable transaction, regardless of whether any of the hallmarks exist in respect of the transaction or series. Accordingly, it should be the case that routine commercial transactions that do not pose an increased risk of abuse would not have to be reported under this new reporting regime.

As noted, the proposed reporting regime also provides a due diligence defence for persons who could be subject to the proposed reporting requirements. To avail themselves of this defence, a person would be required to make reasonable efforts to determine whether a transaction is a reportable transaction and whether they are subject to an information reporting requirement in respect of the reportable transaction. If a transaction is a reportable transaction and the person is subject to an information reporting requirement, then the person must determine whether the reporting requirement to which they are subject has been satisfied in all respects by another person. If not, then the person must identify all the information to be provided in respect of the reportable transaction. If after making reasonable efforts to this effect, a particular person determines that no reporting requirement exists, or that another person has satisfied the reporting requirement to which the particular person is subject, the Minister of National Revenue may consider the particular person to have met the due diligence defence test. Whether a person has made such efforts would have to be determined according to the facts and circumstances of each case.

These explanatory notes provide further technical details about the proposed information reporting regime and also address and clarify specific issues raised during the consultations.

Overview

New section 237.3 contains rules in respect of a new information reporting regime meant to require the disclosure to the Minister of National Revenue (the "Minister") in a timely manner of certain aggressive tax avoidance transactions.

In general terms, this new section imposes a reporting obligation on certain persons in respect of avoidance transactions or series of transactions that includes an avoidance transaction if two of three hallmarks provided in the definition "reportable transaction" in new subsection 237.3(1) are applicable in respect of the avoidance transactions or the series. The particular hallmarks reflect certain circumstances that commonly exist in the context of tax avoidance transactions. The presence of these hallmarks often indicates a greater likelihood that the underlying transactions are ones that could be challenged under the existing provisions of the tax law.

A reporting obligation is imposed on the particular person for whom a tax benefit could result from an avoidance transaction or series, any person who enters into an avoidance transaction for the benefit of the particular person as well as any "advisor" or "promoter" (within the meaning assigned under new subsection 237.3(1)) who is entitled to a fee in circumstances described in the definition "reportable transaction". A full and accurate information return must be filed in respect of each transaction that is a reportable transaction. The filing of an information return is for administrative purpose only, and cannot be construed as an admission by a person that section 245 applies to the transaction or that a transaction is part of a series of transactions.

If a full and accurate disclosure in respect of a reportable transaction is not made in accordance with this new section, the Minister may impose a late-filing penalty on the persons who have failed to satisfy their reporting obligations and redetermine the tax consequences of any person for whom a tax benefit could result from the undisclosed reportable transaction or series that includes that transaction. The redetermination could be made as if section 245 was deemed to apply, notwithstanding subsection 245(4).

Persons who have failed to fully satisfy their reporting obligations may be jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable to the penalty, subject to a limitation for advisors and promoters and the due diligence defence provided in new subsection 237.3(11). If the reporting obligation is satisfied in accordance with this new section only after the filing date, and any late-filing penalty and interest is paid, the Minister may allow a tax benefit from a reportable transaction disclosed late if the tax benefit satisfies all of the requirements of the otherwise applicable income tax law, including the general anti-avoidance rule.

New section 237.3 applies in respect of avoidance transactions that are entered into after 2010, as well as to avoidance transactions that are part of a series of transactions that commenced before 2011 and is completed after 2010. If the filing of an information return under proposed subsection 237.3 would be required before July 1, 2011, the information return is deemed to be filed before that day if it is filed before 2012.

Dept. of Finance news release 2010-043, May 7, 2010: Government of Canada Seeks Public Input on Proposals to Require Information Reporting of Tax Avoidance Transactions

The Honourable Jim Flaherty, Minister of Finance, today released for public consultation proposals concerning an information reporting regime for certain tax avoidance transactions, as proposed in Budget 2010.

"These proposals seek to ensure that our income tax system is fair to all Canadians," said Minister Flaherty. "They will help the Canada Revenue Agency to identify instances of aggressive tax planning, which can undermine the integrity of our income tax system."

Budget 2010 put forth for consultation a proposal under which a tax avoidance transaction that bears at least two of three hallmarks of aggressive tax planning would be required to be reported to the Canada Revenue Agency. The proposals released today for consultation provide details about:

- the persons who would be subject to the reporting rules;
- the transactions that would be required to be disclosed;
- the proposed form, content and timing of disclosure; and
- the proposed consequences for failure to disclose a reportable transaction.

A backgrounder and a description of the proposals accompany this release.

The Government will review comments received in the course of these public consultations. As announced in Budget 2010, it is proposed that these measures, as modified to take into account the consultations, would apply to avoidance transactions entered into after 2010, as well as avoidance transactions that are part of a series of transactions that commenced before 2011 and will have been completed after 2010. Interested parties are invited to provide comments on these proposals by July 7, 2010.

Comments may be submitted to the Tax Legislation Division at the Department of Finance at consultations245@fin.gc.ca. Once received by the Department of Finance, all submissions will be subject to the Access to Information Act and may be disclosed in accordance with its provisions. Should you express an intention that your submission be considered confidential, the Department will make all efforts to protect this information within the requirements of the law.

For further information, media may contact: Annette Robertson, Press Secretary, Office of the Minister of Finance, 613-996-7861; Jack Aubry, Media Relations, Department of Finance, 613-996-8080.

Backgrounder

In Budget 2010, the Government announced that it would consult on a proposal under which certain tax avoidance transactions would be required to be reported to the Canada Revenue Agency. Today's release provides details of the proposals for public consultation, and is seeking views of stakeholders.

These proposals seek to address concerns about the impact of aggressive tax avoidance transactions on the fairness of the income tax system. Canada is not the only jurisdiction that has acted to address the impact of aggressive tax planning. Notably, the United Kingdom, the United States and the province of Québec have introduced reporting regimes that identify aggressive tax planning by reference to "hallmarks" of such tax planning, to assist their respective tax administrations in identifying potentially abusive transactions and their participants. In general terms, the particular hallmarks reflect certain circumstances that commonly exist in the context of tax avoidance transactions. The presence of these hallmarks often indicates a greater likelihood that the underlying transactions are ones that could be challenged under the existing provisions of the tax law.

Budget 2010 therefore proposed consultations on a reporting regime for Canada. These proposals, as modified to take into account the public consultations, would apply to avoidance transactions entered into after 2010, as well as avoidance transactions that are part of a series of transactions commenced before 2011 and completed after 2010.

Description of the proposals

Terms used in this description are defined below. Generally, under these proposals:

- A transaction entered into by a taxpayer that is an avoidance transaction — as currently defined under the Income Tax Act — and which bears at least two of three hallmarks (described below) would be a "reportable transaction" in respect of which the taxpayer would be required to report prescribed information to the Canada Revenue Agency. Tax advisors and promoters may also be subject to the reporting requirements.
- Persons subject to the reporting requirements may be liable to a penalty for failure to disclose a reportable transaction.
- Upon discovery of a reportable transaction that has not been reported when required, the Canada Revenue Agency would be empowered to deny the tax benefit resulting from the transaction. If the taxpayer still wants to claim the tax benefit, the taxpayer would be required to file with the Canada Revenue Agency the information that should have been reported as well as to pay a late-filing penalty.

Reportable transaction

Under these proposals, a reportable transaction would be a transaction entered into by or for the benefit of a taxpayer that is classified within the existing definition of an "avoidance transaction" and that bears at least two of the following three hallmarks:

1. A promoter or tax advisor in respect of the transaction is entitled to fees that are to any extent
   - attributable to the amount of the tax benefit from the transaction;
   - contingent upon the obtaining of a tax benefit from the transaction; or
   - attributable to the number of taxpayers who participate in the transaction or who have been provided access to advice given by the promoter or advisor regarding the tax consequences from the transaction.
2. A promoter or tax advisor in respect of the transaction requires "confidential protection" with respect to the transaction.
3. The taxpayer or the person who entered into the transaction for the benefit of the taxpayer obtains "contractual protection" in respect of the transaction (otherwise than as a result of a fee described in the first hallmark).

A reportable transaction would include all the transactions in a series of transactions if at least one of the transactions in that series is an avoidance transaction. Reporting would be required for the taxation year in which a tax benefit arises.

If a reportable transaction is also a tax shelter or a flow-through share arrangement, only the reporting requirement for tax shelters or flow-through shares would apply.

Persons subject to the reporting requirements

Under these proposals, an information return would be required to be filed with the Canada Revenue Agency by a person who seeks to obtain a tax benefit from a reportable transaction. This reporting requirement would also apply to any person who enters into such a transaction for the benefit of a taxpayer, such as where the result of a series of transactions undertaken by a corporation is that a tax benefit will accrue to a current or future shareholder of the corporation.

If one or more promoters or tax advisors are entitled to fees as described in the hallmarks with respect to that transaction, each such promoter or tax advisor would also have to file an information return with the Canada Revenue Agency.

If more than one person is required to file an information return in respect of a reportable transaction, the filing of a complete disclosure by one of the parties will satisfy the obligation of each party.

Form and content of information return

The information return with respect to a reportable transaction would be required to be filed in prescribed form on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxation year in which the tax benefit arose. Where the taxpayer who sought to obtain the tax benefit does not have a filing-due date, the prescribed form would be required to be filed before June 30 of the calendar year following the calendar year in which the tax benefit arose.

The Canada Revenue Agency will publish guidance in respect of the manner in which a transaction is to be reported and the information that will be required to be reported.

Disclosure of a reportable transaction would have no bearing on whether the benefit is allowed under the law; rather it would simply assist the Canada Revenue Agency in identifying the taxpayer and the taxpayer who seeks to obtain a tax benefit from the transaction. In this regard, disclosure of a reportable transaction would not be considered in any way as an admission that the General Anti-Avoidance Rule (GAAR) applies to the transaction, or that the transaction is an avoidance transaction for the purpose of the GAAR. Furthermore, the fact that reporting of a particular transaction may not be required under these proposed rules should not be taken to suggest that the GAAR does not apply to the transaction.

Consequences for failure to report

Suspension of the tax benefit

Any tax benefit sought to be obtained by a taxpayer from a reportable transaction would not be available until the transaction is reported and, if applicable, the penalty for failure to disclose the transaction is paid.

Penalty for failure to report

If an information return in respect of a reportable transaction is not filed in and when required, each person who is required to file would be liable to pay a penalty, notwithstanding any agreement between the parties as to who is to file the return. In such circumstances, the penalty payable by any taxpayer who sought to obtain a tax benefit from the reportable transaction would be the total of all amounts each of which is a fee in respect of the transaction, described in a bullet below, to which a promoter or tax adviser is or would be entitled to receive. All other persons who entered into the transaction for the benefit of the taxpayer would be jointly and severally liable with the taxpayer to pay that penalty. Each promoter or tax adviser in respect of the reportable transaction would be jointly and severally liable with the taxpayer, and with all the other persons that entered into the transaction for the benefit of the taxpayer, to pay the portion of the penalty that would be equal to all the fees to which that promoter or tax adviser is or would be entitled to receive and that are included in computing that penalty.

Due diligence

Any person required to file an information return in respect of a reportable transaction would not be liable for a penalty for a failure to file that return as and when required if the person has exercised the degree of care, diligence and skill to prevent the failure that a reasonably prudent person would have exercised in comparable circumstances.

Definitions

The following are general descriptions of definitions that would apply for the purpose of these proposals.

Avoidance Transaction

The existing definition of an "avoidance transaction" for the purposes of the General Anti-Avoidance Rule (GAAR) in the Income Tax Act would apply. Therefore, an avoidance transaction would mean any transaction

- that, but for the GAAR, would result, directly or indirectly, in a tax benefit, unless the transaction may reasonably be considered to have been undertaken or arranged primarily for bona fide purposes other than to obtain the tax benefit; or
- that is part of a series of transactions that, but for the GAAR, would result, directly or indirectly, in a tax benefit, unless the transaction may reasonably be considered to have been undertaken or arranged primarily for bona fide purposes other than to obtain the tax benefit.

Confidential protection

A "confidential protection" with respect to a transaction would mean any limitation on disclosure to any other person, including the Canada Revenue Agency, that is placed by a promoter or tax adviser or the taxpayer or on a person who entered into the transaction for the benefit of the taxpayer, in respect of the details or structure of the avoidance transaction that give rise to any tax benefit. This would not extend to a requirement that the adviser's professional liability arises only towards the taxpayer in the capacity of client and according to which a third party may not, for its own purposes, rely on the opinion given by the adviser to the client.

Contractual protection

A "contractual protection" with respect to a transaction would mean any form of insurance (other than standard professional liability insurance), indemnity or compensation that

- protects against a failure of the transaction to result in any portion of the tax benefit being sought from the transaction;
- pays for or reimburses any expenses to be incurred in respect of a tax benefit arising from a transaction; or
- is intended to guarantee a return of, or in respect of, the cost of any property acquired by the taxpayer in the course of the transaction.

Fee

A "fee" would mean any consideration that is, or would be, received or receivable by a promoter or tax adviser in respect of a transaction for

- services with respect to that transaction;
- implementing the transaction;
- preparing the documents supporting the transaction, including any returns or any information returns to be filed under the Income Tax Act; or
- a contractual protection.

Fee attributable to a tax benefit

A fee would be attributable to a tax benefit if the fee is based, in whole or in part, on the amount of a tax benefit sought to be obtained from a transaction by a taxpayer.

Fee that is to any extent contingent upon the obtaining of a tax benefit

A fee or a promoter or tax advisor that is to any extent contingent upon the obtaining of a tax benefit would include a fee that is refundable in any case upon the obtaining of the tax benefit, in whole or in part, or any greater extent.

Person

A "person" would include a partnership.

Promoter

A "promoter" would be a person who

- engages in an activity that is the promoting or selling (whether as principal or agent and whether directly or indirectly) of an arrangement, plan or scheme (an "arrangement") where it can reasonably be considered that the arrangement involves or relates to an avoidance transaction; or
- accepts (whether as principal or agent and whether directly or indirectly) consideration in respect of the promotion or sale of an arrangement where it can reasonably be considered that the arrangement includes or relates to an avoidance transaction.

More than one person may be a promoter in respect of the same avoidance transaction.

Tax Adviser

A "tax adviser" would mean a person who, directly or indirectly, provides

- any tax, estate or advice with respect to organizing or implementing an avoidance transaction entered into by or for the benefit of a taxpayer; or
- any contractual protection in respect of an avoidance transaction.

A person who provides such tax, estate or advice to another tax adviser or promoter in respect of an avoidance transaction would also be considered a tax adviser in respect of the transaction.

More than one person may be a tax adviser in respect of the same avoidance transaction.

Tax benefit

The existing definition of "tax benefit" for the purpose of the General Anti-Avoidance Rule in the Income Tax Act would apply for the purpose of these proposals.

Application date

These proposals, as modified to take into account the public consultations, would apply to avoidance transactions entered into after 2010, as well as avoidance transactions that are part of a series of transactions that commenced before 2011 and was completed after 2010.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, March 4, 2010 Information Reporting of Tax Avoidance Transactions — Public Consultation

Budget 2010 announces a public consultation on proposals to require the reporting of certain tax avoidance transactions. The Government will undertake consultations with stakeholders on these proposals, with a view to improving the fairness of the Canadian tax system. Details of these proposals will be released at the earliest opportunity and the consultation process will be announced at this time.

The fairness of the Canadian income tax system is essential to ensure the integrity of Canada's self-assessment system. Ensuring this fairness requires a balancing between a taxpayer's entitlement to plan their affairs in a manner that legally minimizes their tax liability and the need to ensure that the tax law is not abused. Aggressive tax planning arrangements entered into by some taxpayers can undermine the tax base and the fairness and integrity of the tax system, to the detriment of all Canadians.

The Income Tax Act already contains a number of substantive rules intended to counter aggressive tax planning. In some cases, these rules help identify certain transactions and their participants. In other cases, the rules deny the tax benefits sought to be obtained (including, but not limited to, the General Anti-Avoidance Rule).

However, in order to be able to effectively apply these substantive rules, the Canada Revenue Agency must be able to identify aggressive tax planning in a timely manner. In this regard, there are already information reporting requirements for tax shelters, as defined in the Income Tax Act. The reporting regime for tax shelters assists the Canada Revenue Agency to ensure that the benefits provided by a tax shelter are not unintended, inappropriate or contrary to a provision of the tax law. However, a significant nificant number of aggressive tax planning arrangements do not meet the definition in the law of a tax shelter. Currently, there is no specific information reporting regime that identifies for the Canada Revenue Agency other types of potentially abusive tax avoidance transactions.

Budget 2010 therefore proposes a regime under which a tax "avoidance transaction" that features at least two of three "hallmarks" would be a "reportable transaction" that must be reported to the Canada Revenue Agency. The proposed hallmarks would reflect certain circumstances that commonly exist when taxpayers enter into tax avoidance transactions. Although the hallmarks are not themselves evidence of abuse, their presence often indicates that underlying transactions are present that carry a higher risk of abuse of the income tax system. In this regard, the proposed regime is similar to, but less strict than, the reporting regimes of other jurisdictions that use hallmarks as a means of identifying aggressive tax planning, such as those of the United States, the United Kingdom and most recently, the Province of Québec. This would minimize the possibility that normal tax planning would be subject to these proposals.

For this purpose, a reportable transaction would be an avoidance transaction, as currently defined in the Income Tax Act, that is entered into by or for the benefit of a taxpayer that bears at least two of the following three hallmarks:

1. A promoter or tax advisor in respect of the transaction is entitled to fees that are to any extent
   - attributable to the amount of the tax benefit from transaction,
   - contingent upon the obtaining of a tax benefit from the transaction, or
   - attributable to the number of taxpayers who participate in the transaction or who have been provided access to advice given by the promoter or advisor regarding the tax consequences from the transaction.
2. A promoter or tax advisor in respect of the transaction requires "confidential protection" about the transaction.
3. The taxpayer or the person who entered into the transaction for the benefit of the taxpayer obtains "contractual protection" in respect of the transaction (otherwise than as a result of a fee described in the first hallmark).

A transaction that is a tax shelter or a flow-through share arrangement will not be impacted by these proposals, but will be subject to the existing requirements for tax shelters and flow-through shares.

Upon discovery of a reportable transaction that has not been reported when required, the Canada Revenue Agency could deny the tax benefit resulting from the transaction. If the taxpayer still wanted to claim the tax benefit, it would be required to file with the Canada Revenue Agency any required information and to pay a penalty. The disclosure of a reportable transaction would have no bearing on whether the benefit is allowed under the law; rather it would simply assist the Canada Revenue Agency in identifying the transaction. In this regard, the disclosure of a reportable transaction would not be considered in any way as an admission that the General Anti-Avoidance Rule applies to the transaction.

These proposals, as modified to take into account the consultations, would apply to avoidance transactions entered into after 2010, as well as those that are part of a series of transactions completed after 2010.

(3) Penalty on conviction — Where a person is convicted under this section, the person is not liable to pay a penalty imposed under section 162, 163 or 163.2 for the same contravention unless the penalty is assessed before the information or complaint giving rise to the conviction was laid or made.

History: Subsec. 239(3) amended by 2000, c. 19, s. 66, in force June 29, 2000. Subsec. 239(3) formerly read:

(3) Where a person is convicted under this section, the person is not liable to pay a penalty imposed under section 162 or 163 for the same contravention unless the penalty was assessed before the information or complaint giving rise to the conviction was laid or made.

Subsec. 239(3) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 235(4), in force June 18, 1998. Subsec. 239(3) formerly read:

(3) Where a person has been convicted under this section of wilfully, in any manner, evading or attempting to evade payment of taxes imposed by Part I, the person is not liable to pay a penalty imposed under section 162 or 163 for the same evasion or attempt unless the person was assessed for that penalty before the information or complaint giving rise to the conviction was laid or made.

Selected Cases [subsec. 239(3)]: Besner v. R., [2010] 1 C.T.C. 209 (FCA) ("Information or complaint" refers to instituting criminal charges, not commencement of investigation).

(4) Stay of appeal — Where, in any appeal under this Act, substantially the same facts are at issue as those that are at issue in a prosecution under this section, the Minister may file a stay of proceedings with the Tax Court of Canada and thereupon the proceedings before that Court are stayed pending final determination of the outcome of the prosecution.

Selected Cases [subsec. 239(4)]: Deutsch v. R., [1983] C.T.C. 369 (FCA) (Proceeding commenced by statement of claim held to be appeal for purposes of the provision and stayed accordingly); Popovich Equipment Co. v. R., [1979] C.T.C. 65 (FCA) (For appeal to be stayed prosecution must be in relation to same taxpayer).

(5) Offence and punishment without reference to subsec. 120(2.2) [aboriginals] — In determining whether an offence under this Act, for which a person may on summary conviction or indictment be liable for a fine or imprisonment, has been committed, and in determining the punishment for such an offence, this Act is to be read without reference to subsection 120(2.2).

History: Subsec. 239(5) added by 2005, c. 19, s. 50, in force on May 13, 2005 (Royal Assent).

Selected Cases [s. 239]: R. v. Madraga, [2000] 2 C.T.C. 230 (Sask Prov Ct) (Failure to pay fines may lead to imprisonment); Lavers v. British Columbia (Minister of Finance), [1990] 1 C.T.C. 265 (BC CA) (Penalties imposed as consequence of assessment neither criminal nor quasi-criminal in nature and were beyond scope of "offence" under Charter).

Definitions [s. 239]: "business number" — 248(1); "contravene" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "individual", "Minister" — 248(1); "official" — 239(2.22), 241(10); "person", "record", "regulation", "taxpayer" — 248(1); "tax shelter" — 237.1(1), 248(1); "taxpayer information" — 239(2.22), 241(10).

240. (1) Definition of "taxable obligation" and "non-taxable obligation" — In this section, "taxable obligation" means any bond, debenture or similar obligation the interest on which would, if paid by the issuer to a non-resident person, be subject to the payment of tax under Part XIII by that non-resident person at the rate provided in subsection 212(1) (otherwise than by virtue of subsection 212(6)), and "non-taxable obligation" means any bond, debenture or similar obligation the interest on which would not, if paid by the issuer to a non-resident person, be subject to the payment of tax under Part XIII by that non-resident person.

(2) Interest coupon to be identified in prescribed manner — offence and punishment — Every person who, at any time after July 14, 1966, issues

(a) any taxable obligation, or

(b) any non-taxable obligation

the right to interest on which is evidenced by a coupon or other writing that does not form part of, or is capable of being detached from, the evidence of indebtedness under the obligation is, unless the coupon or other writing is marked or identified in prescribed manner by the letters "AX" in the case of a taxable obligation, and by the letter "F" in the case of a non-taxable obligation, on the face thereof, guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $500.

Regulations [subsec. 240(2)]: 807 (prescribed manner of identifying obligation).

Definitions [s. 240]: "non-resident", "person" — 248(1); "writing" — Interpretation Act 35(1).

241. (1) Provision of information — Except as authorized by this section, no official or other representative of a government entity shall

(a) knowingly provide, or knowingly allow to be provided, to any person any taxpayer information;

(b) knowingly allow any person to have access to any taxpayer information; or

(c) knowingly use any taxpayer information otherwise than in the course of the administration or enforcement of this Act, the Canada Pension Plan, the Unemployment Insurance Act or the Employment Insurance Act or for the purpose for which it was provided under this section.

Related Provisions: 122.64(2) — Communication of Child Tax Benefit information to provinces; 122.64(3) — Communication of name and address for enforcement of family support orders; 149.1(15) — Charities — information can be communicated; 230.1(4) — Reports to chief electoral officer; 237(2)(b) — Communication of Social Insurance Number; 239(2.2) — Offence; 241(3) — Communication of information; 241(3.2) — Charities — additional information that may be communicated; 241(4) — Exceptions; 241(11) — Meaning of "this Act".

Proposed Addition — 241(3.3)

(3.3) Information may be communicated — The Minister of Canadian Heritage may communicate or otherwise make available to the public, in any manner that that Minister considers appropriate, the following taxpayer information in respect of a Canadian film or video production certificate (as defined under subsection 125.4(1)) that has been issued or revoked:

(a) the title of the production for which the Canadian film or video production certificate was issued;

(b) the name of the taxpayer to whom the Canadian film or video production certificate was issued;

(c) the names of the producers of the production;

(d) the names of the individuals in respect of whom and places in respect of which that Minister has allotted points in respect of the production in accordance with regulations made for the purpose of section 125.4;

(e) the total number of points so allotted; and

(f) any revocation of the Canadian film or video production certificate.

Application: Former Bill C-10 (2007; requires reintroduction) (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 186(2), will add subsec. 241(3.3), in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: New subsection 241(3.3), which applies on Royal Assent, is added to provide authority to the Minister of Canadian Heritage to publish certain information relevant to the Canadian film or video production tax credit program. The information includes the title of a film or video production in respect of which a certificate has been issued or revoked by that Minister, as well as the names of producers and artists in respect of which that Minister has allotted "points" in determining whether the production is a "Canadian film or video production" under proposed section 1106 of the Regulations.

[This amendment was not included in the July 16, 2010 draft legislation, as the film credit changes will be reintroduced later — ed.]

(4) Where taxpayer information may be disclosed — An official may

(a) provide to any person taxpayer information that can reasonably be regarded as necessary for the purposes of the administration or enforcement of this Act, the Canada Pension Plan, the Unemployment Insurance Act or the Employment Insurance Act, solely for that purpose;

(b) provide to any person taxpayer information that can reasonably be regarded as necessary for the purposes of determining any tax, interest, penalty or other amount that is or may become payable by the person, or any refund or tax credit to which the person is or may become entitled, under this Act or any other amount that is relevant for the purposes of that determination;

(c) provide to the person who seeks a certification referred to in paragraph 147.1(10)(a) the certification or a refusal to make the certification, solely for the purposes of administering a registered pension plan;

(d) provide taxpayer information

(i) to an official of the Department of Finance solely for the purposes of the formulation or evaluation of fiscal policy,

(ii) to an official solely for the purposes of the initial implementation of a fiscal policy or for the purposes of the administration or enforcement of an Act of Parliament that provides for the imposition and collection of a tax or duty,

(iii) to an official solely for the purposes of the administration or enforcement of a law of a province that provides for the imposition or collection of a tax or duty,

(iv) to an official of the government of a province solely for the purposes of the formulation or evaluation of fiscal policy,

(v) to an official of the Department of Natural Resources or of the government of a province solely for the purposes of the administration or enforcement of a program of the Government of Canada or of the province relating to the exploration for or exploitation of Canadian petroleum and gas resources,

(vi) to an official of the government of a province that has received or is entitled to receive a payment referred to in this subparagraph, or to an official of the Department of Natural Resources, solely for the purposes of the provisions relating to payments to a province in respect of the taxable income of corporations earned in the offshore area with respect to the province under the Canada–Nova Scotia Offshore Petroleum Resources Accord Implementation Act, chapter 28 of the Statutes of Canada, 1988, the Canada-Newfoundland Atlantic Accord Implementation Act, chapter 3 of the Statutes of Canada, 1987, or similar Acts relating to the exploration for or exploitation of offshore Canadian petroleum and gas resources,

(vi.1) to an official of the Department of Natural Resources solely for the purpose of determining whether property is prescribed energy conservation property or whether an outlay or expense is a Canadian renewable and conservation expense,

(vii) to an official solely for the purposes of the administration or enforcement of the Pension Benefits Standards Act, 1985 or a similar law of a province,

Proposed Amendment — 241(4)(d)(vii)

(vii) to an official solely for the purposes of the administration or enforcement of the Pension Benefits Standards Act, 1985, the Pooled Registered Pension Plans Act or a similar law of a province,

Application: The December 14, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 19(1), will amend subpara. 241(4)(d)(vii) to read as above, in force or deemed in force on the day of the coming into force of S.C. 2012, c. 16 (Bill C-25, Royal Assent June 18, 2012), Pooled Registered Pension Plans Act.

Technical Notes: Section 241 prohibits officials and other persons from using or communicating taxpayer information obtained under the Act unless they are specifically authorized to do so by one of the exceptions found in that section. Subparagraph 241(4)(d)(vii) authorizes the communication of taxpayer information to federal officials responsible for administering the Pension Benefits Standards Act, 1985 and to provincial officials responsible for administering similar provincial legislation. The subparagraph is amended, consequential on the introduction of new section 147.5 pertaining to pooled registered pension plans (PRPPs), to authorize the communication of taxpayer information to federal officials and provincial officials responsible for administering the Pooled Registered Pension Plans Act or similar provincial legislation.

(vii.1) to an official solely for the purpose of the administration or enforcement of the Canada Education Savings Act or a designated provincial program as defined in subsection 146.1(1),

(vii.2) to an official solely for the purposes of the administration and enforcement of Part 1 of the Energy Costs Assistance Measures Act,

(vii.3) to an official solely for the purposes of the administration and enforcement of the Children's Special Allowances Act or the evaluation or formation of policy for that Act,

(vii.4) to an official solely for the purposes of the administration and enforcement of the Universal Child Care Benefit Act or the evaluation or formation of policy for that Act,

(vii.5) to an official solely for the purposes of the administration or enforcement of the Canada Disability Savings Act or a designated provincial program as defined in subsection 146.1(1),

(viii) to an official of the Department of Veterans Affairs solely for the purposes of the administration of the War Veterans Allowance Act, the Canadian Forces Members and Veterans Re-establishment and Compensation Act or Part XI of the Civilian War-related Benefits Act,

(ix) to an official of a department or agency of the Government of Canada or of a province as to the name, address, occupation, size or type of business of a taxpayer, solely for the purposes of enabling that department or agency to obtain statistical data for research and analysis,

(x) to an official of the Canada Employment Insurance Commission, the Department of Human Resources and Skills Development or the Department of Social Development, solely for the purpose of the administration or enforcement of the Employment Insurance Act, an employment program of the Government of Canada or the evaluation or formation of policy for that Act or program,

Enacted Amendment — 241(4)(d)(x)

(x) to an official of the Canada Employment Insurance Commission or the Department of Human Resources and Skills Development, solely for the purpose of the administration or enforcement of the Employment Insurance Act, an employment program of the Government of Canada or the evaluation or formation of policy for that Act or program,

Application: S.C. 2012, c. 19 (Bill C-38, Royal Assent June 29, 2012), s. 692, will amend para. 241(4)(d)(x) to read as above, in force on a day to be fixed by order of the Governor in Council.

(xi) to an official of the Department of Agriculture and Agri-Food or of the government of a province solely for the purposes of the administration or enforcement of a program of the Government of Canada or of the province established under an agreement entered into under the Farm Income Protection Act,

(xii) to an official of the Department of Canadian Heritage or a member of the Canadian Cultural Property Export Review Board solely for the purposes of administering sections 32 to 33.2 of the Cultural Property Export and Import Act,

(xiii) to an official solely for the purposes of setting off against any sum of money that may be due or payable by Her Majesty in right of Canada a debt due to

(A) Her Majesty in right of Canada, or

(B) Her Majesty in right of a province, or

(xiv) to an official solely for the purposes of section 7.1 of the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act;

Proposed Addition — 241(4)(d)(xv), (xvi)

(xv) to a person employed or engaged in the service of an office or agency, of the Government of Canada or of a province, whose mandate includes the provision of assistance (as defined in subsection 125.4(1) or 125.5(1)) in respect of film or video productions or film or video production services, solely for the purpose of the administration or enforcement of the program under which the assistance is offered, or

(xvi) to an official of the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission, solely for the purpose of the administration or enforcement of a regulatory function of that Commission;

Application: Former Bill C-10 (2007; requires reintroduction) (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 186(3), will add subparas. 241(4)(d)(xv) and (xvi), in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: Subsection 241(4) authorizes the limited communication of information to government officials outside of the Canada Revenue Agency.

New subparagraph 241(4)(d)(xv) allows information in respect of film or video productions to be communicated to officials of an office or agency of the government of Canada or of a province that provides a program of assistance for such productions. The information may be communicated only for the purpose of administration or enforcement under the program. New subparagraph 241(4)(d)(xvi) extends this authority to communicate information to an official of the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission, solely for the purpose of the administration or enforcement of a regulatory function of that Commission.

[This amendment was not included in the July 16, 2010 draft legislation, as the film credit changes will be reintroduced later — ed.]

(e) provide taxpayer information, or allow the inspection of or access to taxpayer information, as the case may be, under, and solely for the purposes of,

(i) subsection 36(2) or section 46 of the Access to Information Act,

(ii) section 13 of the Auditor General Act,

(iii) section 92 of the Canada Pension Plan,

Enacted Amendment — 241(4)(e)(viii)

Application: S.C. 2012, c. 19 (Bill C-38, Royal Assent June 29, 2012), s. 302, will amend subpara. 241(4)(e)(viii) to substitute "33.1(a)" for "33.11(a)", in force on a day to be fixed by order of the Governor in Council.

(ix) subsection 34(2) or section 45 of the Privacy Act,

(x) section 24 of the Statistics Act,

(xi) section 9 of the Tax Rebate Discounting Act, or

(xii) a provision contained in a tax treaty with another country or in a comprehensive tax information exchange agreement between Canada and another country or jurisdiction that is in force and has effect;

Proposed Amendment — 241(4)(e)(xii)

(xii) a provision contained in a tax treaty with another country or in a listed international agreement;

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 147(2), will amend subpara. 241(4)(e)(xii) to read as above, in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subparagraph 241(4)(e)(xii) is amended to provide that an official may provide taxpayer information, or allow the inspection of or access to taxpayer information under and solely for the purposes of a provision contained in a tax treaty with another country or in a listed international agreement.

A "listed international agreement" is newly defined in subsection 248(1) to mean the Convention on Mutual Administrative Assistance in Tax Matters, concluded at Strasbourg on January 25, 1988, as amended from time to time by a protocol or other international instrument as ratified by Canada and a comprehensive tax information exchange agreement that Canada has entered into, and that has effect, in respect of another country or jurisdiction. A "tax treaty" with a country is defined in subsection 248(1) to mean a comprehensive agreement or convention for the elimination of double taxation on income, between the Government of Canada and the government of the country, which has the force of law in Canada at that time.

(f) provide taxpayer information solely for the purposes of sections 23 to 25 of the Financial Administration Act;

(f.1) provide taxpayer information to an official for the purposes of the administration and enforcement of the Charities Registration (Security Information) Act, and where an official has so received taxpayer information, the official may provide that information to another official as permitted by subsection (9.1);

(g) use taxpayer information to compile information in a form that does not directly or indirectly reveal the identity of the taxpayer to whom the information relates;

(h) use, or provide to any person, taxpayer information solely for a purpose relating to the supervision, evaluation or discipline of an authorized person by Her Majesty in right of Canada in respect of a period during which the authorized person was employed by or engaged by or on behalf of Her Majesty in right of Canada to assist in the administration or enforcement of this Act, the Canada Pension Plan, the Unemployment Insurance Act or the Employment Insurance Act, to the extent that the information is relevant for the purpose;

(i) provide access to records of taxpayer information to the Librarian and Archivist of Canada or a person acting on behalf of or under the direction of the Librarian and Archivist, solely for the purposes of section 12 of the Library and Archives of Canada Act, and transfer such records to the care and control of such persons solely for the purposes of section 13 of that Act;

(j) use taxpayer information relating to a taxpayer to provide information to the taxpayer;

(j.1) provide taxpayer information to an official or a designated person solely for the purpose of permitting the making of an adjustment to

(i) a social assistance payment made on the basis of a means, needs or income test, or

(ii) a payment pursuant to a prescribed law of a province in respect of a child within the meaning of the prescribed law, where the purpose of the adjustment is to take into account the amount determined for C in subsection 122.61(1) in respect of a person for a taxation year;

(k) provide, or allow inspection of or access to, taxpayer information to or by any person otherwise legally entitled to it under an Act of Parliament solely for the purposes for which that person is entitled to the information;

(l) subject to subsection (9.2), provide to a representative of a government entity the business number of, the name of (including any trade name or other name used by), and any contact information, corporate information and registration information in respect of, the holder of a business number (other than an excluded individual), if the information is provided solely for the purposes of the administration or enforcement of

(i) an Act of Parliament or of a legislature of a province, or

(ii) a by-law of a municipality in Canada or a law of an aboriginal government;

(m) provide taxpayer information to an official of the government of a province solely for use in the management or administration by that government of a program relating to payments under subsection 164(1.8);

(n) provide taxpayer information to any person, solely for the purposes of the administration or enforcement of a law of a province that provides for workers' compensation benefits;

(o) provide taxpayer information to any person solely for the purpose of enabling the Chief Statistician, within the meaning assigned by section 2 of the Statistics Act, to provide to a statistical agency of a province data concerning business activities carried on in the province, where the information is used by the agency solely for research and analysis and the agency is authorized under the law of the province to collect the same or similar information on its own behalf in respect of such activities;

(p) provide taxpayer information to a police officer (within the meaning assigned by subsection 462.48(17) of the Criminal Code) solely for the purpose of investigating whether an offence has been committed under the Criminal Code, or the laying of an information or the preferring of an indictment, where

(i) such information can reasonably be regarded as being necessary for the purpose of ascertaining the circumstances in which an offence under the Criminal Code may have been committed, or the identity of the person or persons who may have committed an offence, with respect to an official, or with respect to any person related to that official,

(ii) the official was or is engaged in the administration or enforcement of this Act, and

(iii) the offence can reasonably be considered to be related to that administration or enforcement; or

(q) provide taxpayer information to an official of the government of a province solely for the use in the management or administration by that government of a program relating to earning supplementation or income support.

Proposed Amendment — 241(4) — Social Insurance Number disclosure

Letter from Dept. of Finance, March 17, 1999:

Dear [xxx]

This is in reply to your letter of March 12, 1999 to Simon Thompson with respect to the transfer of Social Insurance Numbers and business numbers from [xxx] to a nominee.

We understand that [xxx] plans to put in place an arrangement under which legal ownership of shares will, in many cases, be with a nominee of the shareholders. The nominee will receive dividend payments on the shares for which it is the registered owner, and will then distribute each dividend to the beneficial owners of the shares. As a consequence, the nominee will have an independent tax-reporting obligation under subsection 201(2) of the Income Tax Regulations. Under the existing law and the proposed amendments to it that were released on December 15, 1998, we agree that it may not be technically possible for [xxx] to provide Social Insurance Numbers and business numbers of beneficial owners to the nominee.

Given the reasons for the creation of the nominee in these circumstances, and in the interests of ensuring timely and complete reporting with regard to Social Insurance Numbers and business numbers, we are prepared to recommend an amendment to the Income Tax Act. The amendment would, in the circumstance set out in your letter, allow the transfer of this information to the nominee for the purpose of allowing the nominee to comply with tax reporting requirements.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(f.1) communicate or allow to be communicated information obtained under this Act or the Petroleum and Gas Revenue Tax Act to an official of the Department of Veterans Affairs solely for the purposes of administering the War Veterans Allowance Act or Part XI of the Merchant Navy Veteran and Civilian War-related Benefits Act;

(g) communicate or allow to be communicated information obtained under this Act or the Petroleum and Gas Revenue Tax Act as to the name, address, occupation or size or type of business of a taxpayer to an official of a department or agency of the Government of Canada or of a province, solely for the purpose of enabling that department or agency to obtain statistical data for research and analysis;

(h) communicate or allow to be communicated information obtained under this Act or the Petroleum and Gas Revenue Tax Act to an official of the Canada Employment Immigration Commission or the Department of Employment and Immigration solely for the purposes of administering, evaluating or enforcing the Unemployment Insurance Act or a prescribed employment program;

(h.1) communicate or allow to be communicated to a taxpayer information obtained under this Act, regarding expenses in respect of which a deduction is denied under subsection 18(2) or (3.1) to any other taxpayer, that is necessary for the purpose of determining the cost or adjusted cost base, as the case may be, to the taxpayer of any property;

(h.2) communicate or allow to be communicated to a taxpayer information obtained under this Act from a corporation that previously owned or had an interest in property of the taxpayer that relates to the control of the corporation or the question whether the corporation was exempt from tax under Part I on its taxable income if it is necessary for the purposes of determining under this Act whether a gain from a disposition of the property accrued while the property was a property of a corporation controlled directly or indirectly in any manner whatever by one or more non-resident persons or of a corporation exempt from tax under Part I on its taxable income;

(i) communicate or allow to be communicated, pursuant to an order made under subsection 462.48(3) of the Criminal Code, information obtained under this Act;

(j) communicate or allow to be communicated to an official, solely for the purposes of administering or enforcing the Pension Benefits Standards Act, 1985 or a similar law of a province,

(i) information obtained under this Act

(A) as to the identity of a pension plan in respect of which application for registration for the purposes of this Act has, at any time, been made,

(B) as to the names and addresses of the persons who are, have been or will be responsible for the administration of a pension plan referred to in clause (A),

(C) as to the names and addresses of the employers who participate, have participated or will participate in a pension plan referred to in clause (A),

(D) as to the terms of a pension plan referred to in clause (A), a trust deed, insurance contract or other document relating to the funding of benefits under such a plan or an amendment or proposed amendment to such a plan or document, or

(E) as to the date of termination or partial termination of a pension plan referred to in clause (A),

(ii) information as to whether a pension plan is or was a registered pension plan,

(iii) the date of registration of a pension plan that is or was a registered pension plan, or

(iv) in the case of a pension plan the registration of which under this Act has been refused or revoked, the date of the refusal or revocation and the reason therefor;

(k) communicate or allow to be communicated information obtained under this Act to an official of the Department of Agriculture or to an official of the government of a province solely for the purposes of administering or enforcing a program of the Government of Canada or of the province established under an agreement entered into pursuant to the Farm Income Protection Act;

(l) communicate or allow to be communicated information obtained under this Act to an official of the Department of Communications or a member of the Canadian Cultural Property Export Review Board, solely for the purpose of administering the provisions of sections 32 and 33 of the Cultural Property Export and Import Act; or

(m) communicate or allow to be communicated information obtained under this Act to an official or authorized person for the purpose of setting off against any sum of money that is due or payable by Her Majesty in right of Canada a debt due to

(i) Her Majesty in right of Canada, or

(ii) Her Majesty in right of a province on account of taxes payable to the province where an agreement exists between Canada and the province under which Canada is authorized to collect the taxes on behalf of the province.

Para. 241(4)(f.1) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. IV (1992, c. 24), s. 16, to substitute "Merchant Navy Veteran and Civilian War-related Benefits Act" for "Civilian War Pensions and Allowances Act", deemed to have come into force July 1, 1992.

(4) Application of subsec. (2) — Subsection (2) applies to a transaction only if it may reasonably be considered that the transaction

(a) would, if this Act were read without reference to this section, result directly or indirectly in a misuse of the provisions of any one or more of

(i) this Act,

(ii) the Income Tax Regulations,

(iii) the Income Tax Application Rules,

(iv) a tax treaty, or

(v) any other enactment that is relevant in computing tax or any other amount payable by or refundable to a person under this Act or in determining any amount that is relevant for the purposes of that computation; or

(b) would result directly or indirectly in an abuse having regard to those provisions, other than this section, read as a whole.

Related Provisions: 237.3(6) — No misuse or abuse required if reportable transaction not reported; ITCIA 4.1 — Application of GAAR to tax treaty interpretation.

History: Subsec. 245(4) amended by 2005, c. 19, subsec. 52(2), applicable with respect to transactions entered into after September 12, 1988. The subsec. formerly read:

(4) Where subsec. (2) does not apply — For greater certainty, subsection (2) does not apply to a transaction where it may reasonably be considered that the transaction would not result directly or indirectly in a misuse of the provisions of this Act or an abuse having regard to the provisions of this Act, other than this section, read as a whole.

Selected Cases [subsec. 245(4)]: Copthorne Holdings Ltd. v. R., [2009] 5 C.T.C. 1 (FCA); aff'd [2012] 2 C.T.C. 29 (SCC) (Transactions linked by "motivating factor" and abuse found in relation to provincial statute defining paid-up capital); *Landrus v. (5) Determination of tax consequences — Without restricting the generality of subsection (2), and notwithstanding any other enactment,

(a) any deduction, exemption or exclusion in computing income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or tax payable or any part thereof may be allowed or disallowed in whole or in part,

(b) any such deduction, exemption or exclusion, any income, loss or other amount or part thereof may be allocated to any person,

(c) the nature of any payment or other amount may be recharacterized, and

(d) the tax effects that would otherwise result from the application of other provisions of this Act may be ignored, in determining the tax consequences to a person as is reasonable in the circumstances in order to deny a tax benefit that would, but for this section, result, directly or indirectly, from an avoidance transaction.

History: The portion of subsec. 245(5) before (c) amended by 2005, c. 19, subsec. 52(3), applicable with respect to transactions entered into after September 12, 1988. The portion formerly read:

(5) Without restricting the generality of subsection (2),

(a) any deduction in computing income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or tax payable or any part thereof may be allowed or disallowed in whole or in part,

(b) any such deduction, any income, loss or other amount or part thereof may be allocated to any person,

(6) Request for adjustments — Where with respect to a transaction

(a) a notice of assessment, reassessment or additional assessment involving the application of subsection (2) with respect to the transaction has been sent to a person, or

(b) a notice of determination pursuant to subsection 152(1.11) has been sent to a person with respect to the transaction, any person (other than a person referred to in paragraph (a) or (b)) shall be entitled, within 180 days after the day of sending of the notice, to request in writing that the Minister make an assessment, reassessment or additional assessment applying subsection (2) or make a determination applying subsection 152(1.11) with respect to that transaction.

Related Provisions: 166.1 — Extension of time by Minister; 244(10) — Proof that no notice of objection filed; 244(14), (14.1) — Date when notice sent.

History: Closing words of subsec. 245(6) amended by 2010, c. 25, s. 68, to substitute "sending" for "mailing", in force on December 15, 2010.

GAAR can be used as alternative assessing mechanism. GAAR cannot be used by taxpayers for self-assessment; only Minister can do so, by way of assessment).

CRA Audit Manual: 11.5.10: Loss determination.

(7) Exception — Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the tax consequences to any person, following the application of this section, shall only be determined through a notice of assessment, reassessment, additional assessment or determination pursuant to subsection 152(1.11) involving the application of this section.

Selected Cases [subsec. 245(7)]: S.T.B. Holdings Ltd. v. R., [2003] 1 C.T.C. 36 (FCA); aff'g [2002] 1 C.T.C. 2814 (TCC) (Reliance on GAAR need not appear on face of assessment. GAAR can be used as alternative assessing mechanism. GAAR cannot be used by taxpayers for self-assessment; only Minister can do so, by way of assessment).

(8) Duties of Minister — On receipt of a request by a person under subsection (6), the Minister shall, with all due dispatch, consider the request and, notwithstanding subsection 152(4), assess, reassess or make an additional assessment or determination pursuant to subsection 152(1.11) with respect to that person, except that an assessment, reassessment, additional assessment or determination may be made under this subsection only to the extent that it may reasonably be regarded as relating to the transaction referred to in subsection (6).

Related Provisions: 165(1.1) — Limitation of right to object to assessments or redetermination; 169(2)(a) — Limitation of right to appeal.

246. (1) Benefit conferred on a person — Where at any time a person confers a benefit, either directly or indirectly, by any means whatever, on a taxpayer, the amount of the benefit shall, to the extent that it is not otherwise included in the taxpayer's income or taxable income earned in Canada under Part I and would be included in the taxpayer's income if the amount of the benefit were a payment made directly by the person to the taxpayer and if the taxpayer were resident in Canada, be

(a) included in computing the taxpayer's income or taxable income earned in Canada under Part I for the taxation year that includes that time; or

(b) where the taxpayer is a non-resident person, deemed for the purposes of Part XIII to be a payment made at that time to the taxpayer in respect of property, services or otherwise, depending on the nature of the benefit.

Related Provisions: 56(2) — Inclusion in income of indirect payments; 142.7(4) — Deemed value of property on rollover from foreign bank subsidiary to branch; 247(16) — No application to transfer pricing amount deemed to be dividend for non-resident withholding tax.

(2) Transfer pricing adjustment — Where a taxpayer or a partnership and a non-resident person with whom the taxpayer or the partnership, or a member of the partnership, does not deal at arm's length (or a partnership of which the non-resident person is a member) are participants in a transaction or a series of transactions and

(a) the terms or conditions made or imposed, in respect of the transaction or series, between any of the participants in the transaction or series differ from those that would have been made between persons dealing at arm's length, or

(b) the transaction or series

(i) would not have been entered into between persons dealing at arm's length, and

(ii) can reasonably be considered not to have been entered into primarily for bona fide purposes other than to obtain a tax benefit,

any amounts that, but for this section and section 245, would be determined for the purposes of this Act in respect of the taxpayer or the partnership for a taxation year or fiscal period shall be adjusted (in this section referred to as an "adjustment") to the quantum or nature of the amounts that would have been determined if,

(c) where only paragraph (a) applies, the terms and conditions made or imposed, in respect of the transaction or series, between the participants in the transaction or series had been those that would have been made between persons dealing at arm's length, or

(d) where paragraph (b) applies, the transaction or series entered into between the participants had been the transaction or series that would have been entered into between persons dealing at arm's length, under terms and conditions that would have been made between persons dealing at arm's length.

(7) Exclusion for loans to certain controlled foreign affiliates — Where, in a taxation year of a corporation resident in Canada, a non-resident person owes an amount to the corporation, the non-resident person is a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation for the purpose of section 17 throughout the period in the year during which the amount is owing and it is established that the amount owing is an amount owing described in paragraph 17(8)(a) or (b), subsection (2) does not apply to adjust the amount of interest paid, payable or accruing in the year on the amount owing.

History: Subsec. 247(7) amended by 1999, c. 22, s. 79, applicable to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998. The subsec. formerly read:

(7) Exclusion for loans to subsidiary — Subsection (2) does not apply to a transaction that is a loan referred to in subsection 17(3).

Subsec. 247(7) added by 1998, c. 19, s. 238, applicable to taxation years and fiscal periods that begin after 1997.

Proposed Addition — 247(7.1) [subject to further amendment per January 2005 letter below]

(7.1) Exclusion for guarantees in respect of certain controlled foreign affiliates — Subsection (2) will not apply to adjust the amount of consideration paid, payable or accruing to a corporation resident in Canada (referred to in this subsection as the "parent") in a particular taxation year of the parent for the providing of a guarantee of the repayment, in whole or in part, of an amount owing by a non-resident person to a person or partnership (referred to in this subsection as the "lender"), if

(a) the parent provided the guarantee pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into with the lender or with a person or partnership related to the lender,

(b) the non-resident person is a controlled foreign affiliate of the parent for the purpose of section 17 throughout the period in the particular year during which the amount owing is owing, and

(c) it is established that the amount owing would, if the amount owing were an amount owing to the parent, be an amount owing described in paragraph 17(8)(a) or (b).

Application: The draft legislation accompanying a March 11, 2003 comfort letter will add subsec. 247(7.1), applicable to taxation years of a taxpayer that begin after "Announcement Date", except that, if the taxpayer so elects in writing and files the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day on which the amending legislation is assented to,

(a) subsec. 247(7.1) applies to taxation years of the taxpayer that begin after 1997,

(b) in applying subsec. 247(7.1) to taxation years that begin before February 24, 1998, s. 17 shall be read as it read on "Announcement Date", and

(c) in applying subsec. 247(7.1), any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under that Act for any of those taxation years of the taxpayer that begin before ["Announcement Date" + 1] shall, notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5), be made that is necessary to take the election into account.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, March 11, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letter dated December 19, 2002 in which you requested that an amendment be made to the transfer pricing rules in section 247 of the Income Tax Act to exclude explicitly from the ambit of those rules, certain loan guarantees provided by Canadian resident corporations in respect of their controlled foreign affiliates.

In your letter, you noted that subsection 247(7) of the Act provides an exception, from the ambit of the transfer pricing rules, for certain loans made by a Canadian resident parent corporation to its controlled foreign affiliates. Specifically, that subsection provides that where a non-resident person owes an amount to a corporation resident in Canada, the non-resident person is a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation for the purposes of section 17 of the Act and the amount owing is described in either paragraph 17(8)(a) or (b), subsection 247(2) will not apply to adjust the amount of interest paid, payable or accruing in the year on the amount owing. In general terms, an amount owing is described in paragraph 17(8)(a) or (b) if it arose as a loan, or advance of money, that was used by the affiliate to earn active business income or if it arose in the course of an active business carried on by the affiliate.

We agree that it would be appropriate in tax policy terms to provide for a parallel exception to the transfer pricing rules for guarantees provided by Canadian resident corporations in respect of controlled foreign affiliates. Accordingly, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to provide that subsection 247(2) of the Act will not apply to adjust the amount of consideration paid, payable or accruing to a corporation resident in Canada (the "parent") in a particular taxation year of the parent for the providing of a guarantee of the repayment, in whole or in part, of an amount owing by a non-resident person to a person or partnership (the "lender"), if

- the parent provided the guarantee pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into with the lender or with a person related to the lender,
- the non-resident person is a controlled foreign affiliate of the parent for the purpose of section 17 of the Act throughout the period in the particular year during which the amount owing is owing, and
- it is established that the amount owing would, if the amount owing were an amount owing to the parent, be an amount owing described in paragraph 17(8)(a) or (b).

If these recommendations are acted upon, I would anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

We will recommend that the amendment apply prospectively, with taxpayers having an option to also apply it to taxation years that begin after 1997. For taxation years that begin before February 24, 1998, the above-noted definition (of "controlled foreign affiliate") and descriptions from section 17, as it currently reads, would be applied.

I wish to thank you for raising this matter with us.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber, General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Jan. 24, 2005:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letter dated October 27 and 28, 2004 in connection with section 247 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

In a comfort letter dated March 11, 2003 issued on behalf of the Tax Legislation Division, we indicated that we were prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance an amendment to the Act in connection with section 247. The March 11, 2003 letter was drafted to address particular sets of circumstances.

In your correspondence, you ask that our recommended amendments to the Minister be modified to address a broader range of circumstances under which a corporation resident in Canada may guarantee an amount owing by a non-resident but not provide that guarantee in writing. To support your request, you cite examples of where a corporation resident in Canada could provide a guarantee of a non-resident's debt without written agreements between the corporation resident in Canada and the lender.

We concur with your view. Accordingly, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended so that subsection 247(2) of the Act will not apply to adjust the amount of consideration paid, payable or accruing to a corporation resident in Canada (the "parent") in a particular taxation year of the parent for the provision of a guarantee of the repayment, in whole or in part, of an amount owing by a non-resident person, if

- the non-resident person is a controlled foreign affiliate of the parent for the purpose of section 17 of the Act throughout the period in the particular year during which the amount owing is owing, and
- it is established that the amount owing would, if the amount owing were an amount owing to the parent, be an amount owing described in paragraph 17(8)(a) or (b).

If these recommendations are acted upon, I would anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

We will recommend that the amendment apply prospectively, with taxpayers having an option to also apply it to taxation years that begin after 1997. For taxation years that begin before February 24, 1998, the above-noted definition (of "controlled foreign affiliate") and descriptions from section 17, as it currently reads, would be applied.

In your correspondence, you also suggested that the Act be amended to provide that subsection 247(2) of the Act not apply to adjust the amount of consideration paid, payable or accruing to a corporation resident in Canada for the giving of a guarantee of the amounts owing by a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada as lessee under a lease of property. Although there may be some similarities as between a guarantee relating to a debt obligation and a guarantee relating to a lease obligation, I am not prepared, at this time, to recommend such an amendment without comprehensive review of the facts and information concerning the lease arrangements referred to in your letter. Should you provide the required facts and information, we will study your suggestion as part of our ongoing review of the provisions of the Act.

Thank you for your correspondence.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(8) Provisions not applicable — Where subsection (2) would, if this Act were read without reference to sections 67 and 68 and subsections 69(1) and (1.2), apply to adjust an amount under this Act, sections 67 and 68 and subsections 69(1) and (1.2) shall not apply to determine the amount if subsection (2) is applied to adjust the amount.

History: Subsec. 247(8) added by 1998, c. 19, s. 238, applicable to taxation years and fiscal periods that begin after 1997.

(9) Anti-avoidance — For the purposes of determining a taxpayer's gross revenue under subparagraph (3)(b)(i) and subsection (5), a transaction or series of transactions is deemed not to have occurred, if one of the purposes of the transaction or series was to increase the taxpayer's gross revenue for the purpose of subsection (3).

Related Provisions: 248(10) — Series of transactions.

History: Subsec. 247(9) added by 1998, c. 19, s. 238, applicable with respect to adjustments made under subsec. 247(2) for taxation years and fiscal periods that begin after 1998, except that subsec. 247(9) does not apply to transactions completed before September 11, 1997.

(10) No adjustment unless appropriate — An adjustment (other than an adjustment that results in or increases a transfer pricing capital adjustment or a transfer pricing income adjustment of a taxpayer for a taxation year) shall not be made under subsection (2) unless, in the opinion of the Minister, the circumstances are such that it would be appropriate that the adjustment be made.

Proposed Addition — 247(12)-(16)

(12) Deemed dividends to non-residents — For the purposes of Part XIII, if a particular corporation would have a transfer pricing capital adjustment or a transfer pricing income adjustment, for a taxation year, if the particular corporation, or a partnership of which the particular corporation is a member, had undertaken no transactions or series of transactions other than those in which a particular non-resident person that does not deal at arm's length with the particular corporation (other than a corporation that was a controlled foreign affiliate, as defined in subsection 17(15), of the particular corporation throughout the period during which the transaction or series of transactions occurred) was a participant,

(a) a dividend is deemed to have been paid by the particular corporation and received by the particular non-resident person at the end of that taxation year; and

(b) the amount of the dividend is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would be the portion of the total of the particular corporation's transfer pricing capital adjustment, and transfer pricing income adjustment, for the taxation year that could reasonably be considered to relate to the particular non-resident person if

(A) the only transactions or series of transactions undertaken by the particular corporation were those in which the particular non-resident person was a participant, and

(B) the definition "transfer pricing capital adjustment" in subsection (1) were read without reference to the references therein to "1/2 of" and "3/4 of"

exceeds

(ii) the amount that would be the portion of the total of the particular corporation's transfer pricing capital setoff adjustment, and transfer pricing income setoff adjustment, for the taxation year that could reasonably be considered to relate to the particular non-resident person if

(A) the only transactions or series of transactions undertaken by the particular corporation were those in which the particular non-resident person was a participant, and

(B) the definition "transfer pricing capital adjustment" in subsection (1) were read without reference to the references therein to "1/2 of" and "3/4 of".

Related Provisions: 247(13) — Deemed dividend reduced where funds repatriated; 247(16) — No application of 15, 56(2) or 246 where 247(12)(a) applies.

(13) Repatriation — Where a dividend is deemed by paragraph (12)(a) to have been paid by a corporation and received by a non-resident person, and an amount has been paid, with the concurrence of the Minister, by the non-resident person to the corporation, the amount of the dividend may be reduced to the amount that the Minister considers appropriate, having regard to all the circumstances, including the amount of the dividend and the amount of the payment.

Related Provisions: 247(14) — Interest on withholding tax where deemed dividend repatriated.

(14) Repatriation — interest — Where the amount of a dividend has been reduced because of the application of subsection (13), interest on the amount of the dividend (calculated without reference to subsection (13)) payable in respect of insufficient payments of tax under Part XIII on the amount of the dividend so calculated shall remain payable for the period that begins at the time the dividend was deemed by subsection (12) to have been paid and that ends at the time at which the payer of the dividend received the amount referred to in subsection (13) from a non-resident person in respect of the dividend.

Related Provisions: 247(15) — Reduction of interest at CRA's discretion.

(15) Repatriation — interest — Where the amount of a dividend has been reduced because of the application of subsection (13), the amount of interest payable by a taxpayer because of subsection (14) may be reduced to the amount that the Minister considers appropriate, having regard to all the circumstances, including whether the country in which the non-resident person described in subsection (13) is resident provides reciprocal treatment.

(16) Non-application of ss. 15, 56(2) and 246 — Section 15, subsection 56(2) and section 246 do not apply in respect of an amount in respect of which a dividend is deemed by paragraph (12)(a) to have been paid by a corporation and received by a non-resident person.

Application: The March 29, 2012 Notice of Ways and Means Motion (Federal Budget), cl. (28), will add subsecs. 247(12) to (16), applicable to transactions that occur after March 28, 2012.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, March 29, 2012: Transfer Pricing Secondary Adjustments

The expression "transfer prices" has become known internationally as the tax term that refers to the prices at which goods, services and intangibles are traded across international borders between persons who do not deal with each other at arm's length. Section 247 of the Income Tax Act contains transfer pricing rules, which apply in respect of transactions or series of transactions between parties who do not deal at arm's length. Where the terms or conditions of a transaction or series of transactions do not reflect arm's length terms and conditions, the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) may adjust for tax purposes amounts related to the transaction or series to reflect arm's length terms and conditions [247(3) — ed.]. This is commonly referred to as a "primary adjustment".

Once a primary adjustment has been made, a "secondary adjustment" is generally required to account for the benefit conferred on non-residents participating in the transaction or series of transactions. For example, if a Canadian corporation buys goods from its non-resident parent corporation for $100 but parties dealing at arm's length would have charged $80, the primary adjustment would reduce by $20 the cost of the goods to the Canadian taxpayer. A secondary adjustment should also arise to reflect the $20 benefit that was conferred on the non-resident parent (i.e., the amount by which the non-resident parent was overpaid for the goods).

A number of provisions in the Income Tax Act, such as section 15 and paragraph 214(3)(a), can apply to treat a benefit conferred on a non-resident as a dividend subject to withholding tax under Part XIII of the Act and it is the policy of the CRA to assess these secondary adjustments. There is, however, no specific provision in the transfer pricing rules regarding secondary adjustments. The Transfer Pricing Subcommittee of the Advisory Panel on Canada's System of International Taxation [www.apcsit-gcrcfi.ca; see Possible Future Amendments box under s. 90 — ed.] recommended that legislative changes be made to clarify the treatment of secondary adjustments as constructive dividends. [This was a Subcommittee recommendation that was not adopted by the Advisory Panel as a whole! The only recommendation made by the Advisory Panel on transfer pricing was 7.2, "to improve administration of the transfer pricing rules in resolving disputes, centralizing knowledge for better consistency, and resolving technical issues." — ed.]

Budget 2012 proposes to amend section 247 of the Income Tax Act [adding 247(12) — ed.] to confirm that secondary adjustments will be treated as dividends for Part XIII tax purposes. A Canadian corporation subject to a primary adjustment will also be deemed to have paid a dividend to each non-arm's length non-resident participant in the transaction or series of transactions in proportion to the amount of the primary adjustment that relates to the non-resident, regardless of whether the non-resident is a shareholder of the Canadian corporation.

Budget 2012 also proposes, consistent with CRA administrative practice [IC 87-2R para. 212 and Transfer Pricing Memorandum TPM-02 — ed.], to clarify that a non-resident is allowed to repatriate to a Canadian corporation that has been subject to a primary adjustment an amount equal to the portion of the primary adjustment that relates to the non-resident. If the repatriation is made by the non-resident with the concurrence of the Minister of National Revenue no deemed dividend will arise in respect of that non-resident [247(13) — ed.]. In addition, no deemed dividend will arise if the non-resident is a controlled foreign affiliate (as defined in subsection 17(15) of the Income Tax Act) of the Canadian corporation [247(12) opening words — ed.]. In this instance, the benefit conferred on the non-resident is more akin to a capital contribution than a dividend.

This measure will apply to transactions (including transactions that are part of a series of transactions) that occur on or after March 29, 2012.

(ii) the fair market value of the share or shares paid as a stock dividend at the time of payment,

(b) in any case where section 191.1 applies to a stock dividend, the "amount" of the stock dividend for the purposes of Part VI.1 is the greater of

(i) the amount by which the paid-up capital of the corporation that paid the dividend is increased by reason of the payment of the dividend, and

(ii) the fair market value of the share or shares paid as a stock dividend at the time of payment, and for any other purpose the amount referred to in subparagraph (i), and

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"amount"(b.1)

(b.1) in the case of a stock dividend paid by a corporation that is, when the dividend is paid, a non-resident corporation, the "amount" of any stock dividend is, except where subsection 95(7) applies to the dividend, the greater of

(i) the amount by which the paid-up capital of the corporation that paid the dividend is increased by reason of the payment of the dividend, and

(ii) the fair market value of the share or shares paid as a stock dividend at the time of payment, and

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs), s. 23, will add para. (b.1) to the definition "amount" in subsec. 248(1), applicable to dividends declared after July 17, 2005.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): The expression "amount" is defined in subsection 248(1) to mean money, rights or things expressed in terms of the amount of money or the value in terms of money of the right or thing. A number of special definitions of "amount", which apply in limited circumstances, are set out in paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition.

The definition "amount" is amended to add new paragraph (b.1). New paragraph (b.1) of that definition provides that in the case of a stock dividend paid by a non-resident corporation, the amount of any stock dividend is, except where subsection 95(7) applies to the dividend, the greater of two amounts. The first is the amount by which the paid-up capital of the corporation that paid the dividend is increased by reason of the payment of the dividend. The second is the fair market value of the share or shares paid as a stock dividend at the time of payment.

(c) in any other case, the "amount" of any stock dividend is the amount by which the paid-up capital of the corporation that paid the dividend is increased by reason of the payment of the dividend;

Related Provisions: 95(7) — "Amount" of stock dividend paid by foreign affiliate.

Para. (e) of the definition "automobile" amended by the said c. 15, subsec. 88(4), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2002. The para. formerly read:

(e) a motor vehicle of a type commonly called a van or pick-up truck or a similar vehicle

(i) that has a seating capacity for not more than the driver and 2 passengers and that, in the taxation year in which it is acquired, is used primarily for the transportation of goods or equipment in the course of gaining or producing income, or

(ii) the use of which, in the taxation year in which it is acquired, is all or substantially all for the transportation of goods, equipment or passengers in the course of gaining or producing income;

"Automobile" substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(1), applicable to taxation years and fiscal periods beginning after June 17, 1987 that end after 1987. That definition formerly read:

"automobile" means

(a) a motor vehicle that is designed or adapted primarily to carry individuals and their personal luggage and that has a seating capacity for not more than the driver and 8 passengers, and

(b) a motor vehicle that is

(i) of a type commonly called a station wagon or van or a similar vehicle if it is equipped in a reasonably permanent way to carry more than the driver and 2 passengers but not more than the driver and 8 passengers, or

(ii) of a type commonly called a van or pick-up truck or a similar vehicle unless it is designed or adapted to carry not more than the driver and 2 passengers and is used primarily for the transportation of goods or equipment in the course of a business or for the purpose of earning income,

but does not include

(c) an ambulance,

(d) a motor vehicle acquired primarily for use as a taxi or in connection with funerals, or

(e) except for the purposes of section 6, a motor vehicle acquired to be sold, rented or leased in the course of carrying on a business of selling, renting or leasing motor vehicles;

"bank" means a bank within the meaning assigned by section 2 of the Bank Act or an authorized foreign bank;

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"bank"

Application: S.C. 2010, c. 12 (2010 Budget first bill, Royal Assent July 12, 2010), subsec. 2109(1), will amend the definition "bank" in subsec. 248(1) to substitute "Bank Act (other than a federal credit union)" for "Bank Act", to come into force on a day to be fixed by the Governor in Council.

Technical Notes: The definition "bank" is amended to exclude federal credit unions, which will satisfy the definition "bank" in section 2 of the Bank Act. This amendment is consequential to the amendments to the Bank Act that will create a legislative framework for federal credit unions and, like the Bank Act amendments, will apply on the day or days to be fixed by order of the Governor in Council. For more information about federal credit unions, see the commentary to the new definition "federal credit union" in subsection 248(1).

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"Canadian real, immovable or resource property"(d)

(d) a share of the capital stock of a corporation, an income or a capital interest in a trust or an interest in a partnership (other than a taxable Canadian corporation, a SIFT trust (determined without reference to subsection 122.1(2)), a SIFT partnership (determined without reference to subsection 197(8)) or a real estate investment trust (as defined in subsection 122.1(1))), if more than 50% of the fair market value of the share or interest is derived directly or indirectly from one or any combination of properties described in paragraphs (a) to (c), or

Application: The December 16, 2010 draft legislation (REITs), s. 2, will amend para. (d) of the definition "Canadian real, immovable or resource property" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable to 2011 et seq., and earlier if an election is made for all these amendments to apply earlier (see Application note to 122.1(1)"eligible resale property").

Technical Notes: The definition "Canadian real, immovable or resource property" applies in the context of the taxation of "SIFT trusts" and "SIFT partnerships". It is defined to mean four types of properties and any right to or interest in them.

The fourth type of property specified as being "Canadian real, immovable or resource property" is a share of the capital stock of a corporation, an income or capital interest in a trust or an interest in a partnership, excluding certain taxable entities, if more than 50% of the fair market value of the share or interest is derived directly or indirectly from one or any combination of properties that are real or immovable property situated in Canada. The description of this type of property is amended to further exclude interests in REITs, and interests in SIFT trusts and partnerships without reference to subsections 197(8) and 122.1(2) respectively (i.e., trusts and partnerships that would be SIFTs except for the transitional relief provided by those subsection for taxation years that end before 2011).

This amendment applies to the 2011 and later taxation years, and also, on an elective basis, for earlier taxation years (i.e., the 2007, 2008, 2009 and 2010 taxation years).

"common-law partner", with respect to a taxpayer at any time, means a person who cohabits at that time in a conjugal relationship with the taxpayer and

(a) has so cohabited with the taxpayer for a continuous period of at least one year, or

(b) would be the parent of a child of whom the taxpayer is a parent, if this Act were read without reference to paragraphs 252(1)(c) and (e) and subparagraph 252(2)(a)(iii), and, for the purposes of this definition, where at any time the taxpayer and the person cohabit in a conjugal relationship, they are, at any particular time after that time, deemed to be cohabiting in a conjugal relationship unless they were not cohabiting at the particular time for a period of at least 90 days that includes the particular time because of a breakdown of their conjugal relationship;

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"common-law partner"

"common-law partner", with respect to a taxpayer at any time, means a person who cohabits at that time in a conjugal relationship with the taxpayer and

(a) has so cohabited throughout the 12-month period that ends at that time, or

and, for the purpose of this definition, where at any time the taxpayer and the person cohabit in a conjugal relationship, they are, at any particular time after that time, deemed to be cohabiting in a conjugal relationship unless they were living separate and apart at the particular time for a period of at least 90 days that includes the particular time because of a breakdown of their conjugal relationship;

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(1), will amend the definition "common-law partner" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable in determining whether a person is, for 2001 et seq., a common-law partner of a taxpayer, except that the amendment does not apply to so determine whether a person is a common-law partner of a taxpayer for a taxation year to which a valid election, made under s. 144 of the Modernization of Benefits and Obligations Act, applied before February 27, 2004. However, after February 26, 2004, no such election may be made to affect a current or subsequent taxation year.

Technical Notes (July 2010): An individual becomes the common-law partner of another individual once they have cohabited in a conjugal relationship for at least one year. Paragraph (a) of the definition "common-law partner" in subsection 248(1) is amended, effective for the 2001 and subsequent taxation years, to clarify that, for an individual to be considered the common-law partner of another person at a particular time, the individual and that other person need to have cohabited in a conjugal relationship throughout the twelve-month period that ends at that particular time.

History: The definition "common-law partner" added to subsec. 248(1) by 2000, c. 12, subsec. 139(2), applicable to 2001 et seq., in force July 31, 2000.

Ss. 144 to 146 of 2000, c. 12 provide the following transitional rules:

144. Where a taxpayer and a person who would have been the taxpayer's common-law partner in the 1998, 1999 or 2000 taxation year, if sections 130 to 142 applied to the applicable year, jointly elect in respect of that year by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in prescribed manner on or before their filing due date for the year in which this Act receives royal assent, those sections apply to the taxpayer and the person in respect of the applicable taxation year and subsequent taxation years.

145. Where, but for the application of sections 130 to 142, paragraphs 56(1)(b) and 60(b) of the Income Tax Act would not apply to amounts paid and received pursuant to an order or a written agreement made before the coming into force of this section, those paragraphs do not apply unless the payor and the recipient of the amounts jointly elect to have those paragraphs apply to those amounts for the 2001 and following taxation years by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in prescribed manner on or before their filing due date for the year in which this Act receives royal assent.

146. Despite subsections 152(4) to (5) of the Income Tax Act, the Minister of National Revenue may make any assessment or reassessment and additional assessment of tax, interest and penalties and may make any determinations and redeterminations that are necessary to give effect to section 144 for any taxation year.

"corporation incorporated in Canada" includes a corporation incorporated in any part of Canada before or after it became part of Canada;

Related Provisions: 250(5.1) — Corporation continued outside Canada deemed incorporated in new jurisdiction.

"cost amount" to a taxpayer of any property at any time means, except as expressly otherwise provided in this Act,

(a) where the property was depreciable property of the taxpayer of a prescribed class, the amount that would be that proportion of the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of property of that class at that time that the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property is of the capital cost to the taxpayer of all property of that class that had not been disposed of by the taxpayer before that time if subsection 13(7) were read without reference to paragraph 13(7)(e) and if

(i) paragraph 13(7)(b) were read as follows:

"(b) where a taxpayer, having acquired property for some other purpose, has commenced at a later time to use it for the purpose of gaining or producing income, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired it at that later time at a capital cost to the taxpayer equal to the fair market value of the property at that later time;", and

(ii) subparagraph 13(7)(d)(i) were read as follows:

"(i) if the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property for the purpose of gaining or producing income has increased, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired at that time depreciable property of that class at a capital cost equal to the proportion of its fair market value at that time that the amount of the increase in the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property for that purpose is of the whole of the use regularly made of the property, and"

(b) where the property was capital property (other than depreciable property) of the taxpayer, its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer at that time,

(c) where the property was property described in an inventory of the taxpayer, its value at that time as determined for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income,

(c.1) where the taxpayer was a financial institution in its taxation year that includes that time and the property was a mark-to-market property for the year, the cost to the taxpayer of the property,

(d) where the property was eligible capital property of the taxpayer in respect of a business, 4/3 of the amount that would, but for subsection 14(3), be determined by the formula

where

A is the cumulative eligible capital of the taxpayer in respect of the business at that time,

B is the fair market value at that time of the property, and

C is the fair market value at that time of all the eligible capital property of the taxpayer in respect of the business,

(d.1) where the property was a loan or lending asset (other than a net income stabilization account or a property in respect of which paragraph (b), (c), (c.1) or (d.2) applies), the amortized cost of the property to the taxpayer at that time,

(d.2) where the taxpayer was a financial institution in its taxation year that includes that time and the property was a specified debt obligation (other than a mark-to-market property for the year), the tax basis of the property to the taxpayer at that time,

(e) where the property was a right of the taxpayer to receive an amount, other than property that is

(i) a debt the amount of which was deducted under paragraph 20(1)(p) in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ended before that time,

(ii) a net income stabilization account,

(iii) a right in respect of which paragraph (b), (c), (c.1), (d.1) or (d.2) applies, or

(iv) a right to receive production (as defined in subsection 18.1(1)) to which a matchable expenditure (as defined in subsection 18.1(1)) relates, the amount the taxpayer has a right to receive,

(e.1) where the property was a policy loan (within the meaning assigned by subsection 138(12)) of an insurer, nil,

(e.2) where the property is an interest of a beneficiary under a qualifying environmental trust, nil, and

(f) in any other case, the cost to the taxpayer of the property as determined for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income, except to the extent that that cost has been deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year ending before that time;

and, for the purposes of this definition, "financial institution", "mark-to-market property" and "specified debt obligation" have the meanings assigned by subsection 142.2(1), and "tax basis" has the meaning assigned by subsection 142.4(1);

Related Provisions: 13(7) — Rule affecting capital cost of depreciable property; 13(33) — Consideration given for depreciable capital; 52(3) — Cost of stock dividend; 53 — Adjusted cost base — adjustments; 70(14) — Order of disposal of depreciable property on death; 86.1(3) — Cost amount adjustments on foreign spin-off; 108(1) — Meaning of "cost amount" of capital interest in a trust; 248(25.3) — Deemed cost of trust units; 261(7)(b) — Cost of property when functional currency election made.

(a) in the case of a corporation, to taxation years of the corporation beginning after June 1988, and

(b) in any other case, to fiscal periods commencing after 1987, except that, in its application before July 14, 1990, para. (d) shall be read as follows:

(d) where the property was eligible capital property in respect of a business, 4/3 of the amount that would, but for subsection 14(3), be the cumulative eligible capital of the taxpayer in respect of the business at that time, and para. (e) applicable to 1991 et seq. Paras. (d) and (e) formerly read:

(d) where the property was eligible capital property of the taxpayer in respect of a business, the amount that would, but for subsection 14(3), be that proportion of the cumulative eligible capital of the taxpayer in respect of the business at that time that

(i) the fair market value at that time of the property

is of

(ii) the fair market value at that time of all of the eligible capital property of the taxpayer in respect of the business,

(e) where the property was a debt owing to the taxpayer (other than the amount in respect of that property that was deducted under paragraph 20(1)(p) in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year ending before that time) or any other right of the taxpayer to receive an amount, the amortized cost of the property to the taxpayer at that time or, where the property does not have an amortized cost to the taxpayer, the amount of the debt or right that was outstanding at that time,

Paras. (a), (d) of "cost amount" substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsecs. 192(2), (3), para. (a) applicable after May 22, 1985; para. (d) applicable after 1987 except that before July 14, 1990 the para. shall be read as follows:

(d) where the property was eligible capital property of the taxpayer in respect of a business, the amount that would, but for subsection 14(3), be the cumulative eligible capital of the taxpayer in respect of the business at that time,

Paras. (a), (d) formerly read:

(a) where the property was depreciable property of the taxpayer of a prescribed class, that proportion of the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of property of that class at that time that the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property is of the capital cost to the taxpayer of all property of that class,

"designated surplus" — [Repealed under former Act]

"disposition" of any property, except as expressly otherwise provided, includes

(a) any transaction or event entitling a taxpayer to proceeds of disposition of the property,

(b) any transaction or event by which,

(i) where the property is a share, bond, debenture, note, certificate, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar property, or an interest in it, the property is redeemed in whole or in part or is cancelled,

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"disposition"(b)(i) the property is in whole or in part redeemed, acquired or cancelled,

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(5), will amend subpara. (b)(i) of the definition "disposition" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable to redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occur after December 23, 1998.

Technical Notes (July 2010): The expression "disposition" is used throughout the Act, particularly in provisions relating to transactions involving property.

The definition "disposition" was added to subsection 248(1) by S.C. 2001, chapter 17, ss. 188(5) [formerly Bill C-22]. In general, that definition is applicable to transactions and events that occur after December 23, 1998. The former definition "disposition" was contained in section 54, applicable to transactions and events that occurred before December 24, 1998.

Under the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1), a "disposition" of any property includes a transaction or an event described in any of paragraphs (a) to (d) of that definition but does not include a transaction or an event described in any of paragraphs (e) to (m) of that definition.

Under subparagraph (b)(i) of that definition, a disposition of a property includes any transaction or event by which, where the property is a share, bond, debenture, note, certificate, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar property, or an interest in it, the property "is redeemed in whole or in part or is cancelled".

The definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) is amended in the following ways.

First, subparagraph (b)(i) of the definition now provides that a disposition of property includes any transaction or event by which, where the property is a share, bond, debenture, note, certificate, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar property, or an interest in it, the property "is in whole or in Part redeemed, acquired or cancelled". This amendment makes it clear that a disposition will also include a transaction or event by which the property is acquired.

In connection with redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occur before December 24, 1998, see the commentary to new subsection 248(1.1).

(ii) where the property is a debt or any other right to receive an amount, the debt or other right is settled or cancelled,

(iii) where the property is a share, the share is converted because of an amalgamation or merger,

(iv) where the property is an option to acquire or dispose of property, the option expires, and

(v) a trust, that can reasonably be considered to act as agent for all the beneficiaries under the trust with respect to all dealings with all of the trust's property (unless the trust is described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1)), ceases to act as agent for a beneficiary under the trust with respect to any dealing with any of the trust's property,

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"disposition"(b.1)

(b.1) where the property is an interest in a life insurance policy, a disposition within the meaning of section 148,

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(6), will add para. (b.1) to the definition "disposition", applicable to taxation years that begin after 2006.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Finally, the definition "disposition" is amended to add new paragraph (b.1). New paragraph (b.1) of the definition ensures that, where a property is an interest in a life insurance policy, what would constitute a disposition for the purposes of section 148 will also constitute a disposition for the entire Act.

Related Provisions: 148(9)"disposition" — Disposition of life insurance policy.

(c) any transfer of the property to a trust or, where the property is property of a trust, any transfer of the property to any beneficiary under the trust, except as provided by paragraph (f) or (k), and

(d) where the property is, or is part of, a taxpayer's capital interest in a trust, except as provided by paragraph (h) or (i), a payment made after 1999 to the taxpayer from the trust that can reasonably be considered to have been made because of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust,

but does not include

(e) any transfer of the property as a consequence of which there is no change in the beneficial ownership of the property, except where the transfer is

(i) from a person or a partnership to a trust for the benefit of the person or the partnership,

(ii) from a trust to a beneficiary under the trust, or

(iii) from one trust maintained for the benefit of one or more beneficiaries under the trust to another trust maintained for the benefit of the same beneficiaries,

(f) any transfer of the property as a consequence of which there is no change in the beneficial ownership of the property, where

(i) the transferor and the transferee are trusts,

(ii) the transfer is not by a trust resident in Canada to a non-resident trust,

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"disposition"(f)(i), (ii)

(i) the transferor and the transferee are trusts that are, at the time of the transfer, resident in Canada,

(ii) [Repealed]

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(7), will replace subparas. (f)(i) and (ii) of the definition "disposition" in subsec. 248(1) with subpara. (f)(i), applicable to transfers that occur after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Third, the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) is also amended by restricting the circumstances in which a transfer of property between trusts will not be treated as a disposition. In particular, paragraph (f) of the definition is amended so that a transfer of property from a trust to another trust will avoid, under that paragraph, characterization as a disposition only if both trusts are, at the time of the transfer, resident in Canada.

(iii) the transferee does not receive the property in satisfaction of the transferee's right as a beneficiary under the transferor trust,

(iv) the transferee held no property immediately before the transfer (other than property the cost of which is not included, for the purposes of this Act, in computing a balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts in respect of the transferee),

(v) the transferee does not file a written election with the Minister on or before the filing-due date for its taxation year in which the transfer is made (or on such later date as is acceptable to the Minister) that this paragraph not apply,

(vi) if the transferor is an amateur athlete trust, a cemetery care trust, an employee trust, an inter vivos trust deemed by subsection 143(1) to exist in respect of a congregation that is a constituent part of a religious organization, a related segregated fund trust (in this paragraph having the meaning assigned by section 138.1), a trust described in paragraph 149(1)(o.4) or a trust governed by an eligible funeral arrangement, an employees profit sharing plan, a registered disability savings plan, a registered education savings plan, a registered supplementary unemployment benefit plan or a TFSA, the transferee is the same type of trust, and

(vii) the transfer results, or is part of a series of transactions or events that results, in the transferor ceasing to exist and, immediately before the time of the transfer or the beginning of that series, as the case may be, the transferee never held any property or held only property having a nominal value,

(g) [Repealed]

(h) where the property is part of a capital interest of a taxpayer in a trust (other than a personal trust or a trust prescribed for the purpose of subsection 107(2)) that is described by reference to units issued by the trust, a payment after 1999 from the trust in respect of the capital interest, where the number of units in the trust that are owned by the taxpayer is not reduced because of the payment,

(i) where the property is a taxpayer's capital interest in a trust, a payment to the taxpayer after 1999 in respect of the capital interest to the extent that the payment

(i) is out of the income of the trust (determined without reference to subsection 104(6)) for a taxation year or out of the capital gains of the trust for the year, if the payment was made in the year or the right to the payment was acquired by the taxpayer in the year, or

(ii) is in respect of an amount designated in respect of the taxpayer by the trust under subsection 104(20),

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"disposition"(i)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, March 7, 2003 See under 132.11(4).

(j) any transfer of the property for the purpose only of securing a debt or a loan, or any transfer by a creditor for the purpose only of returning property that had been used as security for a debt or a loan,

(k) any transfer of the property to a trust as a consequence of which there is no change in the beneficial ownership of the property, where the main purpose of the transfer is

(i) to effect payment under a debt or loan,

(ii) to provide assurance that an absolute or contingent obligation of the transferor will be satisfied, or

(iii) to facilitate either the provision of compensation or the enforcement of a penalty, in the event that an absolute or contingent obligation of the transferor is not satisfied,

(l) any issue of a bond, debenture, note, certificate, mortgage or hypothecary claim, and

(m) any issue by a corporation of a share of its capital stock, or any other transaction that, but for this paragraph, would be a disposition by a corporation of a share of its capital stock;

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"disposition"(n)

(n) a redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation of a share or of a right to acquire a share (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to in this paragraph as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (referred to in this paragraph as the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (referred to in this paragraph as the "disposing corporation") if

(i) the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurs as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to in this paragraph as the "new corporation"),

(ii) the merger or combination

(A) is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) to which subsection 87(11) does not apply,

(B) is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(11)) to which subsection 87(11) applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively,

(C) is a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1)), or

(D) would be a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1)) if subparagraph 87(8.1)(c)(ii) were read without reference to the words "that was resident in a country other than Canada", and

(iii) either

(A) the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security, or

(B) in the case where the merger or combination is described by clause (ii)(C) or (D), the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the merger or combination, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the merger or combination, becomes property of the new corporation,

Application The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(8), will add para. (n) to the definition "disposition" in subsec. 248(1), applicable to redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occur after December 24, 1998.

Technical Notes (July 2010) Several paragraph (n) is added to the definition. New paragraph (n) provides that a redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation of a share, or of a right to be issued a share, (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (the "disposing corporation") is considered not to be a "disposition" in the case where:

- the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurs as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to as the "new corporation"),
- the particular merger or combination
  - is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) of the Act) to which subsection 87(11) does not apply,
  - is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(11)) to which subsection 87(11) applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively, or
  - is a merger or combination of non-resident corporations (referred to in these Notes as a "subject merger") that would be a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1)) if subparagraph 87(8.1)(c)(ii) were read without reference to the words "that was resident in a country other than Canada", and
- either
  - the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security, or
  - in the case of where the particular merger or combination is a subject merger, the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security other than property that was immediately before the particular merger or combination owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the foreign merger, becomes property of the new corporation.

In connection with redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occur before December 24, 1998, see the commentary to new subsection 248(1.1).

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 12, 2002

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in reply to your faxed letter dated January 23, 2002 to Mr. Willie Cosway in which you expressed concerns about the provisions in the Income Tax Act (the "Act") relating to the cancellation or surrender of shares of a predecessor corporation on an "amalgamation" (within the meaning of subsection 87(1) of the Act) or on a "foreign merger" (within the meaning of subsection 87(8.1)).

In your letter, you give the following example of a foreign merger:

1. A corporation ("Canco") resident in Canada owns all of the outstanding shares of a non-resident corporation ("Holdco").
2. Holdco owns all of the outstanding shares of another non-resident corporation ("Parentco").
3. Parentco owns all of the outstanding shares of another non-resident corporation ("Subco").
4. Under the foreign corporate law, Subco is merged into Parentco.

In your letter, you note that you would expect that the relevant foreign law would generally deem the shares of Subco held by Parentco to be cancelled for no consideration on the merger. However, you speculate that it is possible that the law in some foreign jurisdictions may deem the consideration for such shares to be the property of Subco that would, on the merger, be transferred or otherwise become property of the corporate entity formed on the merger.

Subsection 87(4) of the Act deals with the tax consequences, to a shareholder of a corporation, upon an amalgamation involving the corporation where the consideration received by that shareholder for the disposition of the shares held by that shareholder in the capital stock of the corporation consists only of shares of the capital stock of another corporation resulting from the merger. Paragraph 87(4)(d) ensures that subsection 87(4), with necessary changes, so reflects a similar result, applies in the case of a foreign merger. However, as you point out in your letter, subsection 87(4) does not apply to a shareholder where that shareholder is itself a corporation that is part of the amalgamation or foreign merger. Thus, referring to your example, subsection 87(4) would not apply to Parentco in its capacity as a shareholder of Subco.

In the context of foreign mergers involving foreign affiliates of a taxpayer, if the shares are not excluded property (within the meaning of subsection 95(1)), it is possible that foreign accrual property income of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer could arise as the merger as a result of the non-applicability of subsection 87(4). Similarly, in the context of domestic amalgamations, capital gain or losses could arise on the amalgamation as a result of the non-applicability of subsection 87(4). If not taxed, these tax results are irrational.

We will therefore recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended so as to exclude from being a "disposition" for the purposes of the Act a cancellation of a share of the capital stock of a corporation (the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (the "disposing corporation") where

- the cancellation occurred as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations, that included the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation, to form one corporate entity (the "new corporation"),

- the merger or combination is an amalgamation to which subsection 87(11) did not apply, or is a foreign merger, and
- the disposing corporation received no consideration for the share or, in the case of a foreign merger, received no consideration for the share other than property that was, immediately before the foreign merger, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the foreign merger, became property of the new corporation.

It will be recommended that this amendment apply to both past and future cancellations of shares.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

"dividend rental arrangement" of a person means any arrangement entered into by the person where it may reasonably be considered that

(a) the main reason for the person entering into the arrangement was to enable the person to receive a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation, other than a dividend on a prescribed share or a share described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in this subsection or an amount deemed to be received as a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation by reason of subsection 15(3), and

(b) under the arrangement someone other than that person bears the risk of loss or enjoys the opportunity for gain or profit with respect to the share in any material respect, and for greater certainty includes any arrangement under which

(c) a corporation at any time receives on a particular share a taxable dividend that would, but for subsection 112(2.3), be deductible in computing its taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada for the taxation year that includes that time, and

(d) the corporation is obligated to pay to another person an amount as compensation for

(i) that dividend,

(ii) a dividend on a share that is identical to the particular share, or

(iii) a dividend on a share that, during the term of the arrangement, can reasonably be expected to provide to a holder of the share the same or substantially the same proportionate risk of loss or opportunity for gain as the particular share,

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement"

"dividend rental arrangement", of a person or a partnership (each of which is referred to in this definition as the "person"),

(a) means any arrangement entered into by the person where it can reasonably be considered that

(i) the main reason for the person entering into the arrangement was to enable the person to receive a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation, other than a dividend on a prescribed share or on a share described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in this subsection or an amount deemed by subsection 15(3) to be received as a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation, and

(b) includes, for greater certainty, any arrangement under which

(i) a corporation at any time receives on a particular share a taxable dividend that would, if this Act were read without reference to subsection 112(2.3), be deductible in computing its taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada for the taxation year that includes that time, and

(ii) the corporation or a partnership of which the corporation is a member is obligated to pay to another person or partnership an amount

(A) that is compensation for

(I) the dividend described in subparagraph (i),

(II) a dividend on a share that is identical to the particular share, or

(III) a dividend on a share that, during the term of the arrangement, can reasonably be expected to provide to a holder of the share the same or substantially the same proportionate risk of loss or opportunity for gain as the particular share, and

(B) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by that other person or partnership, as the case may be, as a taxable dividend;

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(3), will amend the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable (per subsec. 148(27) of the draft legislation)

(a) to arrangements made after December 20, 2002; and

(b) to an arrangement made after November 2, 1998 and before December 21, 2002 if the parties to the arrangement jointly so elect in writing and file the election with the Minister of National Revenue within 90 days after this draft legislation is assented to, except that the reference to "subsection 260(5.1)" in cl. (b)(ii)(B) of the definition, as amended, is to be, in the application of that definition to any of those arrangements made before 2002, read as "subsection 260(5)".

For arrangements made after 2001 and before December 21, 2002, other than an arrangement to which para. (b) above applies, the portion of para. (d) of the definition after subpara. (iii) is to be read as follows:

that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by that other person as a taxable dividend.

Technical Notes (July 2010): A "dividend rental arrangement" is, in general terms, an arrangement under which one person receives a dividend on a share that has been borrowed from another person who retains the risk of loss or opportunity for gain from fluctuations in the share value. To clarify its application where a partnership is a party to the arrangement, the definition is restructured and amended; its language is also updated in certain respects.

Under the amended definition, the "person" who is the subject of the arrangement — that is, the person who enters into the arrangement in order to receive a dividend — may be a partnership or a person as otherwise defined.

Existing paragraph (c) of the definition ensures that the definition includes an arrangement under which a corporation receives a taxable dividend that would be deductible but for subsection 112(2.3), and is obligated to make dividend compensation payments. This paragraph is replaced by new paragraph (b), which adds to the arrangements described one in which it is not the corporation receiving the dividend that is obligated to make the compensation payment, but rather a partnership of which the corporation is a member.

At first reading, new paragraph (b) may seem asymmetrical, in that it expressly covers the case where a partnership is obligated to make the compensation payment, but not the case where a partnership receives the taxable dividend. In fact, the paragraph covers both: since in the latter case the corporate partner is itself already considered to receive the dividend, it is not necessary to add a reference to the partnership in that regard.

The reference to "subsection 260(5)" in this definition is replaced with "subsection 260(5.1)" consequential to the amendments to section 260. This amendment applies to paragraph (d) of the former definition and clause (b)(ii)(B) of the amended definition.

The amendment to paragraph (d) of the former definition applies between January 1, 2002 and December 20, 2002 unless an election noted below is filed.

The amended definition applies to arrangements made after December 20, 2002; it also applies to an arrangement made after November 2, 1998 and before the day after December 20, 2002, if the parties jointly elect in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue within 90 days after this Act has been assented to, except that before 2002 the reference to "subsection 260(5.1)" in the amended definition should be read as "subsection 260(5)".

History: That portion of the definition "dividend rental arrangement" after para. (b) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 74(1), applicable to dividends received at any time by a corporation on shares acquired

(a) before that time and after April 1989, where the corporation so elects by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing before 1996; and

(b) before that time and after June 1994, in any other case.

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"former business property" opening words

"former business property", in respect of a taxpayer, means a capital property of the taxpayer that was used by the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer primarily for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business, and that was real or immovable property of the taxpayer, an interest of the taxpayer in real property, a right of the taxpayer in an immovable or a property that is the subject of a valid election under subsection 13(4.2), but does not include

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(10), will amend the opening words of the definition "former business property" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable in respect of dispositions and terminations that occur after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): The definition "former business property" in subsection 248(1) describes properties the voluntarily disposition of which by a taxpayer are eligible for elections under subsections 13(4) and 44(1) to defer the recapture of depreciation and capital gains. Subject to certain exceptions, a former business property is generally real property or an interest in real property used primarily in a business. The definition is amended, applicable after December 20, 2002, to include a franchise, concession or license for a limited period that is wholly attributable to the carrying on of a business in a fixed place and that is the subject of a valid election under new subsection 13(4.2). For further information, refer to the commentary to new subsections 13(4.2) and (4.3).

(a) before November 17, 1978,

(b) after November 16, 1978 and before 1980 pursuant to an agreement in writing to do so made before November 17, 1978 (in this definition referred to as an "established agreement"), or

(c) by an issuing corporation resident in Canada for a term that may not, in any circumstances, exceed 5 years,

(i) as part of a proposal to or an arrangement with its creditors that had been approved by a court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act,

(ii) at a time when all or substantially all of its assets were under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or

(iii) at a time when, by reason of financial difficulty, the issuing corporation or another corporation resident in Canada with which it does not deal at arm's length was in default, or could reasonably be expected to default, on a debt obligation held by a person with whom the issuing corporation or the other corporation was dealing at arm's length and the bond or debenture was issued either wholly or in substantial part and either directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for that obligation or a part thereof, and, in the case of a bond or debenture issued after November 12, 1981, the proceeds from the issue may reasonably be regarded as having been used by the issuing corporation or a corporation with which it was not dealing at arm's length in the financing of its business carried on in Canada immediately before the bond or debenture was issued,

and, for the purposes of this definition,

(d) where the terms or conditions of an established agreement were amended after November 16, 1978, the agreement shall be deemed to have been made after that date, and

(e) where

(i) at any particular time the terms or conditions of a bond or debenture issued pursuant to an established agreement or of any agreement relating to such a bond or debenture have been changed,

(ii) under the terms or conditions of a bond or debenture acquired in the ordinary course of the business carried on by a specified financial institution or a partnership or trust (other than a testamentary trust) or under the terms or conditions of any agreement relating to any such bond or debenture (other than an agreement made before October 24, 1979 to which the issuing corporation or any person related thereto was not a party), the owner thereof could at any particular time after November 16, 1978 require, either alone or together with one or more taxpayers, the repayment, acquisition, cancellation or conversion of the bond or debenture otherwise than by reason of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the bond or debenture or any agreement that related to, and was entered into at the time of, the issuance of the bond or debenture,

(iii) at any particular time after November 16, 1978, the maturity date of a bond or debenture was extended or the terms or conditions relating to the repayment of the principal amount thereof were changed,

(iv) at a particular time a specified financial institution (or a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related to the institution is a member or beneficiary) acquires a bond or debenture that

(A) was issued before November 17, 1978 or under an established agreement,

(B) was issued to a person other than a corporation that was, at the time of issue,

(I) described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition "specified financial institution", or

(II) a corporation that was controlled by one or more corporations described in subclause (I) and, for the purpose of this subclause, one corporation is controlled by another corporation if more than 50% of its issued share capital (having full voting rights under all circumstances) belongs to the other corporation, to persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length, or to the other corporation and persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length,

(C) was acquired from a person that was, at the time the person last acquired the bond or debenture and at the particular time, a person other than a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of that definition, and

(D) was acquired otherwise than under an agreement in writing made before October 24, 1979, or

(v) at a particular time after November 12, 1981, a specified financial institution (or a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related to the institution is a member or beneficiary) acquires a bond or debenture that

(A) was not a bond or debenture referred to in paragraph (c),

(B) was acquired from a person that was, at the particular time, a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of the definition "specified financial institution", and

(C) was acquired subject to or conditional on a guarantee agreement (within the meaning that would be assigned by subsection 112(2.2) if the reference in that subsection to a "share" were read as a reference to an "income bond" or "income debenture") that was entered into after November 12, 1981, the bond or debenture shall, for the purposes of determining at any time after the particular time whether it is an income bond or income debenture, be deemed to have been issued at the particular time otherwise than pursuant to an established agreement;

"minerals" does not include petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons (except coal, bituminous sands, oil sands or oil shale);

"mining reclamation trust" — [Repealed]

History: The definition "mining reclamation trust" in subsec. 248(1) repealed by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 66(1), applicable after 1997 and, if an election is made by a trust in accordance with para. (i) of the definition "qualifying environmental trust" in subsec. 248(1),

(a) the trust is deemed to have never been a mining reclamation trust; and

(b) notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5), the Minister of National Revenue may before 2000 make any assessments and reassessments that are necessary to give effect to the election.

The definition formerly read:

"mining reclamation trust" at any time means a trust resident in a province and maintained at that time for the sole purpose of funding the reclamation of a mine in the province, where the first contribution to the trust was made after 1991, no amount was distributed before February 23, 1994 from the trust and the maintenance of the trust is or may become required under the terms of a contract entered into with Her Majesty in right of Canada or the province or is or may become required pursuant to a law of Canada or the province, but does not include a trust

(a) where that contract was not entered into or that law was not enacted, as the case may be, on or before the later of

(i) the day that is one year after the day the trust was created, and

(ii) January 1, 1996,

(b) that relates to the reclamation of a mine that at that time is a clay pit (other than a kaolin pit), a deposit of peat, a gravel pit, a peat bog, a sand pit, a shale pit or a stone quarry or that relates to the reclamation of a well,

(c) that is not maintained at that time to secure the mining reclamation obligations of one or more persons or partnerships that are beneficiaries under the trust,

(d) that at that time has a trustee other than

(i) Her Majesty in right of Canada or the province, or

(ii) a corporation resident in Canada that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee,

(e) that borrows money at that time,

(f) that acquired at that time any property that is not described in any of paragraphs (a), (b) and (f) of the definition "qualified investment" in section 204,

(g) that did not comply with prescribed conditions at that time, or

(h) that was at any previous time not a mining reclamation trust;

The definition "mining reclamation trust" added by 1995, c. 3, subsec. 52(4), applicable after 1993 except with respect to a trust the first contribution to which was made before February 23, 1994 and that elects in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue before 1996 that this definition not apply to the trust.

"qualifying environmental trust" at any time means a trust resident in a province and maintained at that time for the sole purpose of funding the reclamation of a site in the province that had been used primarily for, or for any combination of, the operation of a mine, the extraction of clay, peat, sand, shale or aggregates (including dimension stone and gravel) or the deposit of waste, where the maintenance of the trust is or may become required under the terms of a contract entered into with Her Majesty in right of Canada or the province or is or may become required under a law of Canada or the province and the contract was entered into or that law was enacted, as the case may be, on or before the later of January 1, 1996 and the day that is one year after the day on which the trust was created, but does not include a trust

(a) that relates at that time to the reclamation of a well,

(b) that is not maintained at that time to secure the reclamation obligations of one or more persons or partnerships that are beneficiaries under the trust,

(c) that at that time has a trustee other than

(i) Her Majesty in right of Canada or the province, or

(ii) a corporation resident in Canada that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee,

(d) that borrows money at that time,

(e) that acquired at that time any property that is not described in any of paragraphs (a), (b) and (f) of the definition "qualified investment" in section 204,

(f) to which the first contribution was made before 1992,

(g) from which any amount was distributed before February 23, 1994,

(h) if that time is before 1998 and the trust is not a mining reclamation trust at that time,

(i) to which the first contribution was made before 1996,

(ii) from which any amount was distributed before February 19, 1997, or

(iii) any interest in which was disposed of before February 19, 1997,

(i) that elected in writing filed with the Minister, before 1998 or before April of the year following the year in which the first contribution to the trust was made, never to have been a qualifying environmental trust, or

(j) that was at any previous time during its existence not a qualifying environmental trust;

The definition "qualifying environmental trust" addded to subsec. 248(1) by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 66(3), applicable after 1991.

"registered pension fund or plan" — [Repealed under former Act]

"registered pension plan" means a pension plan that has been registered by the Minister for the purposes of this Act, which registration has not been revoked;

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"registered pension plan"

"registered pension plan" means a pension plan (other than a pooled pension plan) that has been registered by the Minister for the purposes of this Act, which registration has not been revoked;

Application: The December 14, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 20(1), will amend the definition "registered pension plan" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, in force or deemed in force on the day of the coming into force of S.C. 2012, c. 16 (Bill C-25, Royal Assent June 18, 2012), Pooled Registered Pension Plans Act.

Technical Notes: A "registered pension plan" is defined to be a pension plan registered by the Minister of National Revenue for the purposes of the Act, if such registration has not been revoked.

The definition is amended to exclude PRPPs. Under new section 147.5, PRPPs are subject to separate rules and registration requirements. For further information, please see the commentary on section 147.5.

History: The definition "registered securities dealer" added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 74(2), applicable after April 26, 1989.

"registered supplementary unemployment benefit plan" has the meaning assigned by subsection 145(1);

"regulation" means a regulation made by the Governor in Council under this Act;

Related Provisions: 65(2) — Regulations allowing resource allowances; 147.1(18) — Regulations re pension plans; 215(5) — Regulations reducing amount to be deducted or withheld; 221 — Regulations generally; 248(1) — "Prescribed".

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"relevant factor"

"relevant factor" means

(a) for taxation years that end before 2010, 3, and

(b) for taxation years that end after 2009, the amount determined by the formula

$$1/(A - B)$$

where

A is the percentage set out in paragraph 123(1)(a), and

B is the percentage that is the corporation's general rate reduction percentage (as defined by section 123.4) for the taxation year;

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(14), will add the definition "relevant factor" to subsec. 248(1), applicable to 2003 et seq.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 248(1) is amended to add the definition of "relevant factor", which is relevant for the purposes of subparagraphs 125(1)(b)(ii) and 125.1(1)(b)(ii), and clause 129(3)(a)(ii)(C). This definition is relevant in determining the amount that a corporation can deduct under sections 125 and 125.1, and the amount of a dividend refund that a corporation can obtain under section 129. Such determination is made by taking into the taxable income of the corporation, reduced by any portion of which that is foreign business income that benefits from a foreign tax credit (FTC). Business income that supported an FTC is measured by multiplying the corporation's business income FTC by a factor that reflects assumed Canadian tax rates. The limit for business income FTCs is based on the applicable federal corporate income tax rate without taking into account the provincial abatement, because foreign business income earned through a permanent establishment outside Canada is typically not taxable by a province. Under this definition, the factor for taxation years that end after 2002 and before 2010 is 3, which implies an assumed tax rate of 33.3%. The factor for taxation years that end after 2009 takes into account the "general rate reduction percentage" that applies to a corporation's taxation year as provided in section 123.4. For example, if a corporation's taxation year corresponds to the 2010 calendar year, its relevant factor will be 1/(.38-.10), or 3.5714. For taxation years that end after 2009, this definition takes into account the fact that a corporation's taxation year may straddle two calendar years with different federal general corporate income tax rates. This amendment is made in the course of the review of provisions in the Act that assume a specific underlying corporate income tax rate in the context of the reductions in the general federal corporate income tax rate, as was announced in the Economic Statement delivered on October 30, 2007. The review of other such provisions continues and any other amendments will be announced upon completion of that review.

"restricted farm loss" has the meaning assigned by subsection 31(1.1);

Related Provisions: 111(1)(c) — Application of restricted farm losses; 111(9) — Restricted farm loss where taxpayer not resident in Canada.

History: The definition "restricted farm loss" amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 43(1), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. The definition formerly read:

> "restricted farm loss" has the meaning assigned by subsection 31(1);

"restricted financial institution" means

(a) a bank,

(b) a corporation licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee,

(c) a credit union,

(d) an insurance corporation,

(e) a corporation whose principal business is the lending of money to persons with whom the corporation is dealing at arm's length or the purchasing of debt obligations issued by such persons or a combination thereof,

(e.1) a corporation described in paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1), or

(f) a corporation that is controlled by one or more corporations described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1);

Related Provisions: 131(10) — Mutual fund corporation or investment corporation — election not to be restricted financial institution; 142.2(1)"financial institution" — Definition for mark-to-market and related rules; 256(6), (6.1) — Meaning of "controlled".

History: Para. (f) of the definition "restricted financial institution" in subsec. 248(1) amended, and para. (e.1) added, by 1999, c. 22, subsec. 80(4), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1998. Para. (f) formerly read:

(f) a corporation that is controlled by one or more corporations described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e);

Regulations: 8604 [to be repealed] (prescribed financial institutions).

I.T. Technical News: 25 (Silicon Graphics case — dispersed control is not control).

"retirement compensation arrangement" means a plan or arrangement under which contributions (other than payments made to acquire an interest in a life insurance policy) are made by an employer or former employer of a taxpayer, or by a person with whom the employer or former employer does not deal at arm's length, to another person or partnership (in this definition and in Part XI.3 referred to as the "custodian") in connection with benefits that are to be or may be received or enjoyed by any person on, after or in contemplation of any substantial change in the services rendered by the taxpayer, the retirement of the taxpayer or the loss of an office or employment of the taxpayer, but does not include

(a) a registered pension plan,

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"retirement compensation arrangement"(a.1)

(a.1) a pooled registered pension plan,

Application: The December 14, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 20(2), will add para. (a.1) to the definition "retirement compensation arrangement" in subsec. 248(1), in force or deemed in force on the day of the coming into force of S.C. 2012, c. 16 (Bill C-25, Royal Assent June 18, 2012), Pooled Registered Pension Plans Act.

Technical Notes: A "retirement compensation arrangement" (RCA) is a plan or arrangement under which an employer makes payments to another person, called a custodian, so that benefits may be paid to an employee or any other person after the employee retires or otherwise severs his or her employment with the employer. In the absence of this definition, such arrangements would ordinarily be employee benefit plans. Various registered plans and other specified plans and arrangements are specifically excluded from the definition of an RCA by its paragraphs (a) to (n).

A new paragraph (a.1) is added to the definition to exclude a PRPP from being an RCA.

(b) a disability or income maintenance insurance plan under a policy with an insurance corporation,

(c) a deferred profit sharing plan,

(d) an employees profit sharing plan,

(e) a registered retirement savings plan,

(f) an employee trust,

(f.1) an employee life and health trust,

(g) a group sickness or accident insurance plan,

(h) a supplementary unemployment benefit plan,

(i) a vacation pay trust described in paragraph 149(1)(y),

(j) a plan or arrangement established for the purpose of deferring the salary or wages of a professional athlete for his[59] services as such with a team that participates in a league having regularly scheduled games (in this definition referred to as an "athlete's plan"), where

(i) the plan or arrangement would, but for paragraph (j) of the definition "salary deferral arrangement" in this subsection, be a salary deferral arrangement, and

(ii) in the case of a Canadian team, the custodian of the plan or arrangement carries on business through a fixed place of business in Canada and is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee,

(k) a salary deferral arrangement, whether or not deferred amounts thereunder are required to be included as benefits under paragraph 6(1)(a) in computing a taxpayer's income,

(l) a plan or arrangement (other than an athlete's plan) that is maintained primarily for the benefit of non-residents in respect of services rendered outside Canada,

(m) an insurance policy, or

(n) a prescribed plan or arrangement, and, for the purposes of this definition, where a particular person holds property in trust under an arrangement that, if the property were held by another person, would be a retirement compensation arrangement, the arrangement shall be deemed to be a retirement compensation arrangement of which the particular person is the custodian;

Proposed Amendments — Retirement compensation arrangements

Federal Budget, Notice of Ways and Means Motion, March 29, 2012: Retirement Compensation Arrangements

(6) That, in respect of retirement compensation arrangements, the Act be amended by adding

(a) definitions "advantage", "prohibited investment", "significant interest" and "swap transaction", similar to the existing definitions in Part XI.01 of the Act [207.01(1) — ed.], with such modifications as the circumstances require;

(b) a definition "RCA strip", similar to the existing definition "RRSP strip" in Part XI.01 of the Act [207.01(1) — ed.], with such modifications as the circumstances require; and

(c) a definition "specified beneficiary" that refers to an individual who has an interest or right in respect of a retirement compensation arrangement and who has a significant interest in an employer in respect of the arrangement.

(7) That the Act be amended to require a custodian of a retirement compensation arrangement to pay a tax equal to 50% of the fair market value of a prohibited investment acquired or held by the arrangement, similar to the existing tax in section 207.04 of the Act, with such modifications as the circumstances require.

(8) That the Act be amended to require a custodian of a retirement compensation arrangement to pay a tax equal to the fair market value of any advantage obtained by a specified beneficiary of the arrangement or a person who does not deal at arm's length with the specified beneficiary, similar to the existing tax in section 207.05 of the Act, with such modifications as the circumstances require.

(9) That the Act be amended to provide that a specified beneficiary of a retirement compensation arrangement that participates in acquiring or holding a prohibited investment, or in extending an advantage, in respect of the arrangement be jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable, to the extent of their participation, for the tax payable in relation to the prohibited investment or the advantage.

(10) That,

(a) subject to subparagraphs (b) and (c), paragraphs (6) and (9) apply on and after March 29, 2012;

(b) paragraph (7) apply in respect of investments acquired, or that become prohibited investments, on or after March 29, 2012; and

(c) paragraph (8) apply to advantages extended, received or receivable on or after March 29, 2012, other than an advantage that relates to property acquired, or transactions occurring, before March 29, 2012

(i) if the advantage is obtained by a specified beneficiary of the retirement compensation arrangement (or a person who does not deal at arm's length with the specified beneficiary) and the amount of the advantage is included in computing the income of the specified beneficiary, or

(ii) if the advantage is obtained by a retirement compensation arrangement and the amount of the advantage is distributed from the arrangement and included in computing the income of a beneficiary or an employer in respect of the arrangement.

(11) [See under 207.5(2) — amendment to election affecting refundable tax on contributions to an RCA — ed.]

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, March 29, 2012: Retirement Compensation Arrangements

[59] Should be "the athlete's" — ed.

Under the Income Tax Act, a retirement compensation arrangement (RCA) [defined in 248(1) — ed.] is a type of employer-sponsored, funded retirement savings arrangement. RCAs are normally used to fund the portion of a higher-income employee's pension benefit that exceeds the maximum pension benefit permitted under the Registered Pension Plan (RPP) contribution limits. The RCA rules were introduced in the 1980s to ensure consistent tax treatment across all employers for pension arrangements above the RPP limits.

RCAs are exempt from regular Part I income tax [149(1)(o.1)(i)(B), 149(1)(q.1) — ed.], and contributions made to an RCA are generally deductible in computing income [8(1)(m.2) for employees, 20(1)(r) for employers — ed.]. A refundable RCA tax (RCA tax) [207.7(1), 207.5(1)"refundable tax" — ed.] is imposed at a rate of 50% on contributions to an RCA, as well as on income and gains earned or realized by an RCA. The RCA tax is generally refunded as taxable distributions are made from the RCA [207.7(2) — ed.]. However, a special rule [207.5(2) — ed.] assists taxpayers in circumstances where the RCA has suffered investment losses and the ability of the RCA to make distributions is significantly impaired. Under this rule, the RCA may obtain a refund of the RCA tax even if the property held in the RCA has lost some or all of its value.

The Canada Revenue Agency has identified a number of arrangements that seek to take advantage of various features of the RCA rules in order to obtain unintended tax benefits. For example, some arrangements involve the deduction of large contributions that are indirectly returned to the contributors through a series of steps ending with the purported RCA having little or no assets but still being able to claim the refundable tax using the impaired asset exception. Other arrangements use insurance products to allocate costs to the arrangement for benefits that arise outside the arrangement.

The Government is challenging these tax-motivated arrangements, which are not consistent with the policy intent of the RCA rules. Since these challenges are both time-consuming and costly [and could be unsuccessful! — ed.], the Government is acting now to introduce specific legislative measures to prevent the use of similar schemes in future.

Budget 2012 proposes new prohibited investment and advantage rules to directly prevent RCAs from engaging in non-arm's length transactions. These rules will be based very closely on existing rules for Tax-Free Savings Accounts and Registered Retirement Savings Plans (RRSPs) [207.01(1)"prohibited investment", 207.04 — ed.]. As well, Budget 2012 proposes a new restriction on RCA tax refunds in circumstances where RCA property has lost value [proposed amendment to 207.5(2) — ed.].

Prohibited Investments

Budget 2012 proposes that the new prohibited investment rules apply in respect of RCAs that have a "specified beneficiary". In general terms, a specified beneficiary of an RCA will be an employee entitled to benefits under the RCA who has a significant interest in their employer. The custodian of an RCA will be liable to pay a 50% tax on the fair market value of any prohibited investment acquired or held by the RCA. A specified beneficiary of an RCA that participates in the acquisition or holding of a prohibited investment by the RCA will be jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable, to the extent of their participation, for the tax.

This tax will be refundable if the RCA disposes of the prohibited investment by the end of the year following the year in which it was acquired (or such later time as the Minister of National Revenue considers reasonable) unless any of the persons liable for the tax knew or ought to have known that the investment was a prohibited investment. The Minister will also have the power to waive or cancel the tax where the Minister is satisfied that it is just and equitable to do so, having regard to all the circumstances.

This measure will apply in respect of investments acquired, or that become prohibited investments, on or after March 29, 2012.

Advantages

Budget 2012 also proposes that the definition of "advantage" [207.01(1) — ed.] be adapted to address the specific forms of tax planning that have been identified in relation to RCAs. For example, if an RCA buys a high-value property and that value is later intentionally eroded or transferred from the RCA without adequate consideration, an "RCA strip" transaction will be considered to have taken place and to constitute an advantage. An "RCA strip" will be a new definition similar to the existing definition of "RRSP strip" in the RRSP rules [207.01(1)"RRSP strip" — ed.], with such modifications as the circumstances require to apply to transactions involving RCAs. RCA strips will include situations where an RCA holds a promissory note issued by a non-arm's length debtor in respect of the RCA and the debtor fails to make commercially reasonable payments of principal and interest on the promissory note.

As is the case under the existing advantage rules [207.05 — ed.], an RCA advantage will be subject to a special tax equal to the fair market value of the advantage. The custodian of the RCA will be liable for the special tax. A specified beneficiary of the RCA that participates in extending the advantage will be jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable, to the extent of their participation, for the special tax.

The Minister of National Revenue will have the power to waive or cancel the special tax where the Minister is satisfied that it is just and equitable to do so, having regard to all the circumstances.

The special tax will generally apply to advantages extended, received or receivable on or after March 29, 2012, including advantages that relate to RCA property acquired, or transactions occurring, before March 29, 2012. However, advantages that relate to property acquired, or transactions occurring, before March 29, 2012 will be eligible for special transitional rules on an elective basis, as is the case under the existing advantage rules.

Transitional Rules

If RCA property acquired, or transactions occurring, before March 29, 2012 cause an advantage to be obtained by a specified beneficiary of the RCA (or a person who does not deal at arm's length with the specified beneficiary) on or after March 29, 2012, then the amount of the advantage will not be subject to the special tax provided that the amount is included in computing the income of the specified beneficiary. For example, if on or after March 29, 2012 a specified beneficiary of an RCA proceeds with steps, such as the removal of assets from a debtor corporation, that cause a pre-March 29, 2012 promissory note to lose its value, the amount of the decline in value will be treated as an "RCA strip" and therefore as an advantage subject to the special tax, unless the specified beneficiary includes the amount of the advantage in their income.

If RCA property acquired, or transactions occurring, before March 29, 2012 cause an advantage to be obtained (such as income earned, and capital gains accrued and realized, on a prohibited investment) by the RCA on or after March 29, 2012, the amount of the advantage will not be subject to the special tax provided that the amount is distributed from the RCA and included in the income of a beneficiary or an employer in respect of the RCA. Such distributions will be treated as regular taxable distributions for the purpose of determining RCA tax.

RCA Tax Refunds [207.05(2) — ed.]

Budget 2012 proposes that, if RCA property has declined in value, the RCA tax be refunded [under 207.7(2) — ed.] only in circumstances where the decline in value of the property is not reasonably attributable to prohibited investments or advantages, unless the Minister of National Revenue is satisfied that it is just and equitable to refund the RCA tax, having regard to all the circumstances.

This measure will apply in respect of RCA tax on RCA contributions made on or after March 29, 2012.

CRA Budget News, March 30, 2012: Retirement Compensation Arrangements (RCAs)

The budget proposes to introduce new anti-avoidance rules to prevent the use of schemes that seek to take advantage of the features of the RCA rules to obtain unintended tax benefits. These rules will be similar to the existing rules for registered retirement savings plans (RRSPs), registered retirement income funds (RRIFs) and tax free savings accounts (TFSAs). These new rules include the following:

- The custodian of an RCA will be liable to a tax on advantages;
- The custodian of an RCA will be liable to a tax on prohibited investments;
- Certain beneficiaries will also be liable to these new taxes; and
- RCA tax refunds based on the decline in value of RCA property will be restricted.

Q1. What is the new tax on RCA advantages?

A1. For advantages extended, received or receivable after March 28, 2012, the budget proposes that a custodian of an RCA pay a tax equal to the fair market value of an advantage obtained by a specified beneficiary of an RCA, or a person who does not deal at arm's length with the specified beneficiary.

The Minister will have the power to waive or cancel the tax where the Minister is satisfied that it is just and equitable to do so, having regard to all the circumstances.

Q2. What is an advantage in respect of an RCA?

A2. An advantage may generally be described as a benefit obtained from a transaction that is intended to unduly exploit the tax attributes of an RCA, including the reduction in value of the RCA. An advantage will include benefits attributable to prohibited investments, swap transactions and RCA strips (similar to the existing advantage rules).

Q3. Who is a specified beneficiary of an RCA?

A3. A specified beneficiary refers to an individual who has an interest or right in respect of an RCA and who has a significant interest in an employer in respect of the arrangement. A significant interest will be defined in a similar manner to the existing advantage rules.

Q4. Are there any exceptions to these new anti-avoidance rules for advantages?

A4. This measure excludes an advantage that relates to property acquired, or transactions occurring before March 29, 2012, if:

- the advantage is obtained by a specified beneficiary of the RCA (or a person who does not deal at arm's length with the specified beneficiary) and the amount of the advantage is included in computing the income of the specified beneficiary; or,
- if the advantage is obtained by an RCA and the amount of the advantage is distributed from the arrangement and included in computing the income of a beneficiary or an employer in respect of the arrangement.

Q5. What is the new tax on RCA prohibited investments?

A5. For investments acquired, or that become prohibited investments, after March 28, 2012, the budget proposes that the custodian of an RCA pay a 50% tax on the fair market value of any prohibited investment acquired or held by the RCA.

The Minister will have the power to waive or cancel the tax where the Minister is satisfied that it is just and equitable to do so, having regard to all the circumstances.

Q6. Are there any exceptions to the new rules for prohibited investments?

A6. The tax on prohibited investments will be refundable if the RCA disposes of the prohibited investment by the end of the year following the year in which it was acquired (or such later time as the Minister considers reasonable) unless any of the persons liable for the tax knew or ought to have known that the investment was a prohibited investment.

Q7. Other than the custodian of the RCA, are any others liable to the new tax on advantages or the new tax on prohibited investments?

A7. Effective after March 28, 2012, the budget proposes that a specified beneficiary of an RCA that participates in acquiring or holding a prohibited investment, or in extending an advantage, in respect of the RCA, will be jointly liable, to the extent of their participation, for the tax in respect of the prohibited investment or the tax in respect of the advantage.

Q8. Do these new rules change the election that can be made by the custodian of an RCA when there has been a decline in value of the property held under the RCA?

A8. For the refundable tax on contributions made to an RCA after March 28, 2012, the budget proposes that the election is available only in circumstances where a decline in value of property held under RCA is not reasonably attributable to a prohibited investment or an advantage, unless the Minister is satisfied that it is just and equitable to accept the election having regard to all the circumstances (including the extent to which tax has been paid under another provision of the Act).

Q9. What should I do if I participated in an inappropriate transaction involving my RCA?

A9. You can correct previous omissions or errors through the CRA's Voluntary Disclosures Program. If you make a full disclosure before any compliance enforcement action is started, you may only have to pay the taxes owing plus interest. Go to the Voluntary Disclosures Program [http://www.cra-arc.gc.ca/gncy/nvstgtns/vdp-eng.html] for more information.

Q10. Where can I obtain more information on the new RCA anti-avoidance rules?

A10. The CRA is committed to providing taxpayers with up-to-date information. The CRA encourages taxpayers to check its Web pages often. All new forms, policies, and guidelines will be posted as they become available.

In the meantime, please consult the Department of Finance Canada's Budget 2012 documents for details.

"short-term preferred share" of a corporation at any particular time means a share, other than a grandfathered share, of the capital stock of the corporation issued after December 15, 1987 that at that particular time

(a) is a share where, under the terms and conditions of the share, any agreement relating to the share or any modification of those terms and conditions or that agreement, the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation is or may, at any time within 5 years after the date of its issue, be required to redeem, acquire or cancel, in whole or in part, the share (unless the requirement to redeem, acquire or cancel the share arises only in the event of the death of the shareholder or by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share) or to reduce the paid-up capital of the share, and for the purposes of this paragraph

(i) an agreement in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be read without reference to that part of the agreement under which a person agrees to acquire the share for an amount

(A) in the case of a share (other than a share that would, but for that part of the agreement, be a taxable preferred share) the agreement in respect of which provides that the share is to be acquired within 60 days after the day on which the agreement was entered into, that does not exceed the greater of the fair market value of the share at the time the agreement was entered into, determined without reference to the agreement, and the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or

(B) that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or for an amount determined by reference to the assets or earnings of the corporation where that determination may reasonably be considered to be used to determine an amount that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, and

(ii) "shareholder" includes a shareholder of a shareholder, or

(b) is a share that is convertible or exchangeable at any time within 5 years from the date of its issue, unless

(i) it is convertible into or exchangeable for

(A) another share of the corporation or a corporation related to the corporation that, if issued, would not be a short-term preferred share,

(B) a right or warrant that, if exercised, would allow the person exercising it to acquire only a share of the corporation or a corporation related to the corporation that, if issued, would not be a short-term preferred share, or

(C) both a share described in clause (A) and a right or warrant described in clause (B), and

(ii) all the consideration receivable for the share on the conversion or exchange is the share described in clause (i)(A) or the right or warrant described in clause (i)(B) or both, as the case may be, and for the purposes of this subparagraph, where a taxpayer may become entitled on the conversion or exchange of a share to receive any particular consideration (other than consideration described in any of clauses (i)(A) to (C)) in lieu of a fraction of a share, the particular consideration shall be deemed not to be consideration unless it may reasonably be considered that the particular consideration was receivable as part of a series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of Part IV.1 or VI.1,

and, for the purposes of this definition,

(c) where at any particular time after December 15, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before December 16, 1987, the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation that are relevant to any matter referred to in any of paragraphs (a), (b), (f) and (h) are established or modified, or any agreement in respect of any such matter to which the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation is a party, is changed or entered into, the share shall be deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time,

(d) where at any particular time after December 15, 1987 a particular share of the capital stock of a corporation has been issued or its terms or conditions have been modified or an agreement in respect of the share is modified or entered into, and it may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, including the rate of interest on any debt obligation or the dividend provided on any short-term preferred share, that

(i) but for the existence at any time of such a debt obligation or such a short-term preferred share, the particular share would not have been issued or its terms or conditions modified or the agreement in respect of the share would not have been modified or entered into, and

(ii) one of the main purposes for the issue of the particular share or the modification of its terms or conditions or the modification or entering into the agreement in respect of the share was to avoid or limit the tax payable under subsection 191.1(1), the particular share shall be deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time and to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation,

(e) where at any particular time after December 15, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before December 16, 1987, the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation are modified or established or any agreement in respect of the share has been changed or entered into, and as a consequence thereof the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation may reasonably be expected to redeem, acquire or cancel (otherwise than by reason of the death of the shareholder or by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share that would not cause the share to be a short-term preferred share by reason of paragraph (b)), in whole or in part, the share, or to reduce its paid-up capital, within 5 years from the particular time, the share shall be deemed to have been issued at that particular time and to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation after the particular time until the time that such reasonable expectation ceases to exist and, for the purposes of this paragraph,

(i) an agreement in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be read without reference to that part of the agreement under which a person agrees to acquire the share for an amount

(A) in the case of a share (other than a share that would, but for that part of the agreement, be a taxable preferred share) the agreement in respect of which provides that the share is to be acquired within 60 days after the day on which the agreement was entered into, that does not exceed the greater of the fair market value of the share at the time the agreement was entered into, determined without reference to the agreement, and the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or

(B) that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or for an amount determined by reference to the assets or earnings of the corporation where that determination may reasonably be considered to be used to determine an amount that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, and

(ii) "shareholder" includes a shareholder of a shareholder,

(f) where a share of the capital stock of a corporation was issued after December 15, 1987 and at the time the share was issued the existence of the corporation was, or there was an arrangement under which it could be, limited to a period that was within 5 years from the date of its issue, the share shall be deemed to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation unless the share is a grandfathered share and the arrangement is a written arrangement entered into before December 16, 1987,

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"short-term preferred share"(f)

(f) if a share of the capital stock of a corporation was issued after December 15, 1987 and at the time the share was issued the existence of the corporation was, or there was an arrangement under which it could be, limited to a period that was within five years from the date of its issue, the share is deemed to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation unless the share is

(i) a grandfathered share and the arrangement is a written arrangement entered into before December 16, 1987, or

(ii) issued to an individual after April 14, 2005 under an agreement referred to in subsection 7(1), if when the individual last acquired a right under the agreement to acquire a share of the capital stock of the corporation, the existence of the corporation was not, and no arrangement was in effect under which it could be, limited to a period that was within five years from the date of that last acquisition,

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 55(3), will amend para. (f) of the definition "short-term preferred share" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable to shares issued after April 14, 2005.

Technical Notes: The definition "short-term preferred share" is relevant for, among other provisions, Part VI.1 of the Act. In particular, subparagraph 191.1(1)(a)(i) provides for a tax on taxable dividends, other than excluded dividends, paid on short-term preferred shares after 1987. This tax is to prevent a corporation from issuing equity with debt-like characteristics where the corporation is not in need of an interest deduction in respect of the debt (i.e., where the corporation is in a loss position for the taxation year).

Paragraph (f) of the definition "short-term preferred share" provides that a share of the capital stock of a corporation that is issued in circumstances where the existence of the corporation was, or there was an agreement under which it could be, limited to a period within 5 years from the date of the share's issue is deemed to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation.

However, in the context of a decision by a corporation to liquidate, if employees who were granted options under an employee stock option plan were only able to exercise those options following the corporation's decision to liquidate, any shares issued by the corporation in this situation would be deemed to be short-term preferred shares. This would be true even if the options were granted under the plan at a time when the existence of the corporation was not limited.

Accordingly, paragraph (f) of the definition is amended to provide that if a share of the capital stock of a corporation is issued to an individual after April 14, 2005 pursuant to an employee stock option plan, and if the existence of the corporation was not limited at the time the option to acquire the share was granted, then the share will not be deemed to be a short-term preferred share.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 11, 2005:

Mr. Alain Ranger, Fasken Martineau DuMoulin LLP, Montreal, QC

Dear Mr. Ranger:

Thank you for your letter of April 14, 2005 regarding paragraph (f) of the definition of "short-term preferred share" in subsection 248(1) of the Income Tax Act. That provision specifies that a share of the capital stock of a corporation that is issued in circumstances where the existence of the corporation was, or there was an agreement under which it could be, limited to a period within 5 years from the date of its issue is deemed to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation.

In your letter you have described a situation where employees of a company were granted stock options under an employee stock option plan at a time when the existence of the company was not limited. Although the options remain unvested, they will automatically vest following the decision of the company to sell all or substantially all of its assets and then liquidate, which it intends to do in the near future. Since the employees will be able to exercise their options only following the decision to liquidate the corporation, any share issued in those circumstances would be deemed to be a short-term preferred share.

The rules applicable to taxable preferred shares, of which short-term preferred shares are a subset, are intended to apply to situations where corporations that are not in need of an interest deduction, instead of issuing debt, issue equity having debt-like characteristics. One such debt-like characteristic is repayment within a fixed time period, which can be achieved indirectly with a limitation on the existence of the corporation, effectively guaranteeing that the "equity" investment will be returned within a certain period of time.

You have asked that shares issued pursuant to a grant of options occurring under an employee stock option plan or other employee arrangement, where such grant occurs at a time when the existence of the corporation was not limited to a period within 5 years from the date of grant, be excluded from the definition of short-term preferred share.

It does not seem appropriate that shares issued in the circumstances you describe should be brought into the ambit of the taxable preferred share rules. Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that such an amendment be made to the definition. Of course, we cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, we trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber, General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(g) where a share of the capital stock of a corporation is acquired at any time after December 15, 1987 by the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation and the share is at any particular time after that time acquired by a person with whom the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation was dealing at arm's length if this Act were read without reference to paragraph 251(5)(b), from the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation, the share shall be deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time,

(h) where at any particular time after December 15, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before December 16, 1987, as a result of the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation or any agreement entered into by the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation, any person (other than the corporation or an individual other than a trust) was obligated, either absolutely or contingently and either immediately or in the future, to effect any undertaking within 5 years after the day on which the share was issued (in this paragraph referred to as a "guarantee agreement") including any guarantee, covenant or agreement to purchase or repurchase the share, and including the lending of funds or the placing of amounts on deposit with, or on behalf of the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder given

(i) to ensure that any loss that the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder may sustain, by reason of the ownership, holding or disposition of the share or any other property is limited in any respect, and

(g) a corporation related to a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f);

Regulations: 8604 [to be repealed] (prescribed financial institutions).

"specified future tax consequence" for a taxation year means

(a) the consequence of the deduction or exclusion of an amount referred to in paragraph 161(7)(a),

(b) the consequence of a reduction under subsection 66(12.73) of a particular amount purported to be renounced by a corporation after the beginning of the year to a person or partnership under subsection 66(12.6) or (12.601) because of the application of subsection 66(12.66), determined as if the purported renunciation would, but for subsection 66(12.73), have been effective only where

(i) the purported renunciation occurred in January, February or March of a calendar year,

(ii) the effective date of the purported renunciation was the last day of the preceding calendar year,

(iii) the corporation agreed in that preceding calendar year to issue a flow-th[r]ough share to the person or partnership,

(iv) the particular amount does not exceed the amount, if any, by which the consideration for which the share is to be issued exceeds the total of all other amounts purported by the corporation to have been renounced under subsection 66(12.6) or (12.601) in respect of that consideration,

(v) paragraphs 66(12.66)(c) and (d) are satisfied with respect to the purported renunciation, and

(vi) the form prescribed for the purpose of subsection 66(12.7) in respect of the purported renunciation is filed with the Minister before May of the calendar year; and

(c) the consequence of an adjustment or a reduction described in subsection 161(6.1);

History: Para. (c) added to the definition "specified future tax consequence" in subsec. 248(1) by 1999, c. 22, subsec. 80(7), applicable to 1998 et seq.

The definition "specified future tax consequence" added to subsec. 248(1) by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 71(3), applicable to 1996 et seq.; and, for greater certainty, for taxation years that ended before 1996, there are deemed to be no specified future tax consequences.

"specified individual" has the meaning assigned by subsection 120.4(1);

History: The definition "specified individual" added to subsec. 248(1) by 2000, c. 19, subsec. 67(1), applicable to 2000 et seq.

"specified investment business" has the meaning assigned by subsection 125(7);

"specified member" of a partnership in a fiscal period or taxation year of the partnership, as the case may be, means

(a) any member of the partnership who is a limited partner (within the meaning assigned by subsection 96(2.4)) of the partnership at any time in the period or year, and

(b) any member of the partnership, other than a member who is

(i) actively engaged in those activities of the partnership business that are other than the financing of the partnership business, or

(ii) carrying on a similar business as that carried on by the partnership in its taxation year, otherwise than as a member of a partnership, on a regular, continuous and substantial basis throughout that part of the period or year during which the business of the partnership is ordinarily carried on and during which the member is a member of the partnership;

"specified pension plan" means a prescribed arrangement;

Related Provisions: 146(21.1)–(21.3) — Specified pension plan (Saskatchewan Pension Plan) deemed to be RRSP for certain purposes.

History: "Specified pension plan" enacted by 2011, c. 24, subsec. 72(4), applicable after 2009.

Regulations: 7800 (Saskatchewan Pension Plan is prescribed arrangement).

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"specified proportion"

"specified proportion", of a member of a partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership, means the proportion that the member's share of the total income or loss of the partnership for the partnership's fiscal period is of the partnership's total income or loss for that period and, for the purpose of this definition, where that income or loss for a period is nil, that proportion shall be computed as if the partnership had income for that period in the amount of $1,000,000;

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(14), will add the definition "specified proportion" to subsec. 248(1), applicable after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): The definition "specified proportion" of a member of a partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership is currently found in subsection 206(1). The apportionment that results from the definition is, however, useful for many purposes of the Act, and a number of other provisions apply the same concept. For simplicity, the definition is moved to subsection 248(1). As a result, for all purposes of the Act a partner's specified proportion for the period is that proportion of the partnership's total income or loss for that period that is the member's share. If the partnership's income or loss for the period is nil, the proportion is computed as if the partnership had $1 million of income for the period.

"specified shareholder" of a corporation in a taxation year means a taxpayer who owns, directly or indirectly, at any time in the year, not less than 10% of the issued shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation or of any other corporation that is related to the corporation and, for the purposes of this definition,

(a) a taxpayer shall be deemed to own each share of the capital stock of a corporation owned at that time by a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length,

(b) each beneficiary of a trust shall be deemed to own that proportion of all such shares owned by the trust at that time that the fair market value at that time of the beneficial interest of the beneficiary in the trust is of the fair market value at that time of all beneficial interests in the trust,

(c) each member of a partnership shall be deemed to own that proportion of all the shares of any class of the capital stock of a corporation that are property of the partnership at that time that the fair market value at that time of the member's interest in the partnership is of the fair market value at that time of the interests of all members in the partnership,

(d) an individual who performs services on behalf of a corporation that would be carrying on a personal services business if the individual or any person related to the individual were at that time a specified shareholder of the corporation shall be deemed to be a specified shareholder of the corporation at that time if the individual, or any person or partnership with whom the individual does not deal at arm's length, is, or by virtue of any arrangement, may become, entitled, directly or indirectly, to not less than 10% of the assets or the shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation or any corporation related thereto, and

(e) notwithstanding paragraph (b), where a beneficiary's share of the income or capital of the trust depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, any discretionary power, the beneficiary shall be deemed to own each share of the capital stock of a corporation owned at that time by the trust;

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"specified unitholder"

"specified unitholder", of a partnership or trust (referred to in this definition as the "entity"), the interests in which are described by reference to units, means a taxpayer who would be a specified shareholder of the entity if the entity were a corporation and each unit of the entity were a share of a class of the corporation having the same attributes as the unit;

Application: The December 14, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 20(5), will add the definition "specified unitholder" to subsec. 248(1), in force or deemed in force on the day of the coming into force of S.C. 2012, c. 16 (Bill C-25, Royal Assent June 18, 2012), Pooled Registered Pension Plans Act.

Technical Notes: A new definition "specified unitholder" is added to subsection 248(1), consequential on the rules in new section 147.5 for PRPPs. Under new paragraph 147.5(3)(e), a PRPP becomes a revocable plan if at any time the PRPP holds property that the administrator knew or ought to have known is a "restricted investment" as defined in subsection 147.5(1). Whether an investment in any particular trust or partnership is a restricted investment will generally depend on whether a PRPP member holds a "significant interest" (under subsection 147.5(29)) in the trust or partnership. In this regard, the new definition "specified unitholder" is relevant.

A "specified unitholder", in relation to a partnership or trust the interests in which are described by units, is generally defined to be a taxpayer who would be a specified shareholder (as defined in subsection 248(1)) if the partnership or trust were a corporation and the unit held by the taxpayer in the trust or partnership was a share in that corporation with the same attributes as the unit (e.g., the conditions attached to the unit are the same conditions that are attached to the notional share for the purposes of determining whether the taxpayer is a specified unitholder).

"split income" has the meaning assigned by subsection 120.4(1);

History: The definition "split income" added to subsec. 248(1) by 2000, c. 19, subsec. 67(1), applicable to 2000 et seq.

"stock dividend" includes any dividend (determined without reference to the definition "dividend" in this subsection) paid by a corporation to the extent that it is paid by the issuance of shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation;

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"subsidiary wholly-owned corporation"

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Nov. 5, 2004:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of September 16, 2004 regarding the definition of "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" in subsection 248(1) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") as it relates to subsection 138(11.94) of the Act. Subsection 138(11.94) of the Act provides for the transfer on a rollover basis of an insurance business carried on in Canada by an insurer resident in Canada to a corporation resident in Canada that is a "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" of that insurer.

In your letter and in your conversations with officials of the department, you requested that, for the purposes of subsection 138(11.94), the definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" be modified in anticipation of a proposed transfer of an insurance business as part of a reorganization of a corporate group. At present, the definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" means a corporation all of the issued shares of which (other than directors' qualifying shares) belong to the particular corporation of which it is a subsidiary. You have asked that, for the purposes of subsection 138(11.94), the definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" be defined in respect of a particular corporation in such a manner that the holding of issued shares of the capital stock of the subsidiary by other corporations that are subsidiary wholly-owned corporations of the particular corporation are permitted.

We are of the view that, for the purposes of subsection 138(11.94), it would be appropriate to modify the definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" in the manner requested. We are prepared to recommend that, for the purposes of subsection 138(11.94), the definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" be defined in respect of a particular corporation resident in Canada, in effect, to have the same meaning as "qualified related corporation" in subsection 219(8) of the Act.

In the absence of any information suggesting that this issue has arisen in the past, we would recommend that the modified definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" apply to transfers, after October 2004, of insurance businesses to which subsection 138(11.94) applies. If this recommendation is acted upon, the amendment will be included in a future technical bill.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

"superannuation or pension benefit" includes any amount received out of or under a superannuation or pension fund or plan and, without restricting the generality of the foregoing, includes any payment made to a beneficiary under the fund or plan or to an employer or former employer of the beneficiary thereunder

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"superannuation or pension benefit" opening words

"superannuation or pension benefit" includes any amount received out of or under a superannuation or pension fund or plan (including, except for the purposes of subparagraph 56(1)(a)(i), a pooled registered pension plan) and, without restricting the generality of the foregoing, includes any payment made to a beneficiary under the fund or plan or to an employer or former employer of the beneficiary thereunder

Application: The December 14, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 20(4), will amend the opening words of the definition "superannuation or pension benefit" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, in force or deemed in force on the day of the coming into force of S.C. 2012, c. 16 (Bill C-25, Royal Assent June 18, 2012), Pooled Registered Pension Plans Act.

Technical Notes: The definition "superannuation or pension benefit" generally includes any amount received out of or under a superannuation or pension fund or plan. The definition is amended, consequential on the introduction of new subsection 147.5 pertaining to PRPPs, to include an amount received from a PRPP, other than for the purposes of subparagraph 56(1)(a)(i). Under new paragraph 56(1)(z.3), amounts received by a taxpayer from a PRPP will be included in the taxpayer's income to the extent required under section 147.5.

For further information, please see the commentary on paragraph 56(1)(z.3) and section 147.5 relating to the taxation of amounts paid out of PRPPs.

"taxable Canadian corporation" has the meaning assigned by subsection 89(1);

"taxable Canadian property" of a taxpayer at any time in a taxation year means a property of the taxpayer that is

(a) real or immovable property situated in Canada,

(b) property used or held by the taxpayer in, eligible capital property in respect of, or property described in an inventory of, a business carried on in Canada, other than

(i) property used in carrying on an insurance business, and

(ii) where the taxpayer is non-resident, ships and aircraft used principally in international traffic and personal or movable property pertaining to their operation if the country in which the taxpayer is resident does not impose tax on gains of persons resident in Canada from dispositions of such property,

(c) if the taxpayer is an insurer, its designated insurance property for the year,

(d) a share of the capital stock of a corporation (other than a mutual fund corporation) that is not listed on a designated stock exchange, an interest in a partnership or an interest in a trust (other than a unit of a mutual fund trust or an income interest in a trust resident in Canada), if, at any particular time during the 60-month period that ends at that time, more than 50% of the fair market value of the share or interest, as the case may be, was derived directly or indirectly from one or any combination of

(d) a share of the capital stock of a corporation (other than a mutual fund corporation) that is not listed on a designated stock exchange, an interest in a partnership or an interest in a trust (other than a unit of a mutual fund trust or an income interest in a trust resident in Canada), if, at any particular time during the 60-month period that ends at that time, more than 50% of the fair market value of the share or interest, as the case may be, was derived directly or indirectly (otherwise than through a corporation, partnership or trust the shares or interests in which were not themselves taxable Canadian property at the particular time) from one or any combination of

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 3 — other amendments), subsec. 118(4), will amend the opening words of para. (d) of the definition "taxable Canadian property" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable in determining after March 4, 2010 whether a property is taxable Canadian property of taxpayer.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): "Taxable Canadian property" ("TCP") is a concept that is relevant primarily in relation to the taxation of non-residents and migrants. Paragraph (d) of the TCP definition was recently amended to effect an exclusion from its ambit of shares of corporations, and certain other interests, that do not derive their value principally from real or immovable property situated in Canada, Canadian resource property, or timber resource property (subject to a 60-month look-back rule).

Paragraph (d) is being further amended to ensure that the indirect or "look-through" rule does not extend through shares or other interests that are not themselves taxable Canadian property. For example, a non-resident may own, through a private holding company, shares of a Canadian public company that derive most of their value from real or immovable property situated in Canada. In such circumstances, it is possible that the shares of the private holding company could otherwise be TCP by virtue of the look-through to the real property, even though a direct holding by the non-resident of the public company shares might not be TCP. This amendment is intended to ensure the look-through rule does not, in these circumstances, apply where the public company shares are not themselves TCP.

(i) real or immovable property situated in Canada,

(ii) Canadian resource properties,

(iii) timber resource properties, and

(iv) options in respect of, or interests in, or for civil law rights in, property described in any of subparagraphs (i) to (iii), whether or not the property exists,

(e) a share of the capital stock of a corporation that is listed on a designated stock exchange, a share of the capital stock of a mutual fund corporation or a unit of a mutual fund trust, if, at any particular time during the 60-month period that ends at that time,

(i) 25% or more of the issued shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation, or 25% or more of the issued units of the trust, as the case may be, were owned by or belonged to one or any combination of

(A) the taxpayer, and

(B) persons with whom the taxpayer did not deal at arm's length, and

(ii) more than 50% of the fair market value of the share or unit, as the case may be, was derived directly or indirectly from one or any combination of properties described under subparagraphs (d)(i) to (iv), or

(f) an option in respect of, or an interest in, or for civil law a right in, a property described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e), whether or not the property exists, and, for the purposes of section 2, subsection 107(2.001) and sections 128.1 and 150, and for the purpose of applying paragraphs 85(1)(i) and 97(2)(c) to a disposition by a non-resident person, includes

(g) a Canadian resource property,

(h) a timber resource property,

(i) an income interest in a trust resident in Canada,

(j) a right to a share of the income or loss under an agreement referred to in paragraph 96(1.1)(a), and

(k) a life insurance policy in Canada;

"taxable preferred share" at any particular time means

(a) a share issued after December 15, 1987 that is a short-term preferred share at that particular time, or

(b) a share (other than a grandfathered share) of the capital stock of a corporation issued after 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, June 18, 1987 where, at that particular time by reason of the terms or conditions of the share or any agreement in respect of the share or its issue to which the corporation, or a specified person in relation to the corporation, is a party,

(i) it may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, that the amount of the dividends that may be declared or paid on the share (in this definition referred to as the "dividend entitlement") is, by way of a formula or otherwise

(A) fixed,

(B) limited to a maximum, or

(C) established to be not less than a minimum (including any amount determined on a cumulative basis) and with respect to the dividend that may be declared or paid on the share there is a preference over any other dividend that may be declared or paid on any other share of the capital stock of the corporation,

(ii) it may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, that the amount that the shareholder is entitled to receive in respect of the share on the dissolution, liquidation or winding-up of the corporation or on the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of the share (unless the requirement to redeem, acquire or cancel the share arises only in the event of the death of the shareholder or by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share) or on a reduction of the paid-up capital of the share by the corporation or by a specified person in relation to the corporation (in this definition referred to as the "liquidation entitlement") is, by way of a formula or otherwise

(A) fixed,

(B) limited to a maximum, or

(C) established to be not less than a minimum, and, for the purposes of this subparagraph, "shareholder" includes a shareholder of a shareholder,

(iii) the share is convertible or exchangeable at any time, unless

(A) it is convertible into or exchangeable for

(I) another share of the corporation or a corporation related to the corporation that, if issued, would not be a taxable preferred share,

(II) a right or warrant that, if exercised, would allow the person exercising it to acquire only a share of the corporation or a corporation related to the corporation that, if issued, would not be a taxable preferred share, or

(III) both a share described in subclause (I) and a right or warrant described in subclause (II), and

(B) all the consideration receivable for the share on the conversion or exchange is the share described in subclause (A)(I) or the right or warrant described in subclause (A)(II) or both, as the case may be, and, for the purposes of this clause, where a taxpayer may become entitled on the conversion or exchange of a share to receive any particular consideration (other than consideration described in any of subclauses (A)(I) to (III)) in lieu of a fraction of a share, the particular consideration shall be deemed not to be consideration unless it may reasonably be considered that the particular consideration was receivable as part of a series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of Part IV.1 or VI.1, or

(iv) any person (other than the corporation) was, at or immediately before that particular time, obligated, either absolutely or contingently, and either immediately or in the future, to effect any undertaking (in this subparagraph referred to as a "guarantee agreement"), including any guarantee, covenant or agreement to purchase or repurchase the share, and including the lending of funds to or the placing of amounts on deposit with, or on behalf of, the shareholder or any specified person in relation to the shareholder given

(A) to ensure that any loss that the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder may sustain by reason of the ownership, holding or disposition of the share or any other property is limited in any respect, or

(B) to ensure that the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder will derive earnings by reason of the ownership, holding or disposition of the share or any other property, and the guarantee agreement was given as part of a transaction or event or a series of transactions or events that included the issuance of the share and, for the purposes of this paragraph, where a guarantee agreement in respect of a share is given at any particular time after 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, June 18, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, June 18, 1987, the share shall be deemed to have been issued at the particular time and the guarantee agreement shall be deemed to have been given as part of a series of transactions that included the issuance of the share, but does not include a share that is at the particular time a prescribed share or a share described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in this subsection during the applicable time period referred to in that paragraph and, for the purposes of this definition,

(c) the dividend entitlement of a share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be deemed not to be fixed, limited to a maximum or established to be not less than a minimum where all dividends on the share are determined solely by reference to the dividend entitlement of another share of the capital stock of the corporation or of another corporation that controls the corporation that would not be a taxable preferred share if

(i) this definition were read without reference to paragraph (f),

(ii) the other share were issued after June 18, 1987, and

(iii) the other share were not a grandfathered share, a prescribed share or a share described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in this subsection,

(d) the liquidation entitlement of a share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be deemed not to be fixed, limited to a maximum or established to be not less than a minimum where all the liquidation entitlement is determinable solely by reference to the liquidation entitlement of another share of the capital stock of the corporation or of another corporation that controls the corporation that would not be a taxable preferred share if

(i) this definition were read without reference to paragraph (f),

(ii) the other share were issued after June 18, 1987, and

(iii) the other share were not a grandfathered share, a prescribed share or a share described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in this subsection,

(e) where at any particular time after 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, June 18, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, June 18, 1987, the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation that are relevant to any matter referred to in any of subparagraphs (b)(i) to (iv) are established or modified or any agreement in respect of any such matter, to which the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation is a party, is changed or entered into, the share shall, for the purpose of determining after the particular time whether it is a taxable preferred share, be deemed to have been issued at that particular time, unless

(i) the share is a share described in paragraph (b) of the definition "grandfathered share" in this subsection, and

(ii) the particular time is before December 16, 1987 and before the time at which the share is first issued,

(f) an agreement in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be read without reference to that part of the agreement under which a person agrees to acquire the share for an amount

(i) in the case of a share the agreement in respect of which provides that the share is to be acquired within 60 days after the day on which the agreement was entered into, that does not exceed the greater of the fair market value of the share at the time the agreement was entered into, determined without reference to the agreement, and the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or

(ii) that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or for an amount determined by reference to the assets or earnings of the corporation where that determination may reasonably be considered to be used to determine an amount that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement,

(g) where

(i) it may reasonably be considered that the dividends that may be declared or paid to a shareholder at any time on a share (other than a prescribed share or a share described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in this subsection during the applicable time period referred to in that paragraph) of the capital stock of a corporation issued after December 15, 1987 or acquired after June 15, 1988 are derived primarily from dividends received on taxable preferred shares of the capital stock of another corporation, and

(ii) it may reasonably be considered that the share was issued or acquired as part of a transaction or event or series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of Part IV.1 or VI.1,

the share shall be deemed at that time to be a taxable preferred share, and

(h) "specified person", in relation to any particular person, means another person with whom the particular person does not deal at arm's length or any partnership or trust of which the particular person or the other person is a member or beneficiary, respectively;

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-291R3: Transfer of property to a corporation under subsection 85(1).

"term preferred share" of a corporation (in this definition referred to as the "issuing corporation") means a share of a class of the capital stock of the issuing corporation if the share was issued or acquired after June 28, 1982 and, at the time the share was issued or acquired, the existence of the issuing corporation was, or there was an arrangement under which it could be, limited or, in the case of a share issued after November 16, 1978 if

(a) under the terms or conditions of the share, any agreement relating to the share or any modification of those terms or conditions or that agreement,

(i) the owner thereof may cause the share to be redeemed, acquired or cancelled (unless the owner of the share may cause the share to be redeemed, acquired or cancelled by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share) or cause its paid-up capital to be reduced,

(ii) the issuing corporation or any other person or partnership is or may be required to redeem, acquire or cancel, in whole or in part, the share (unless the requirement to redeem, acquire or cancel the share arises by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share) or to reduce its paid-up capital,

(iii) the issuing corporation or any other person or partnership provides or may be required to provide any form of guarantee, security or similar indemnity or covenant (including the lending of funds to or the placing of amounts on deposit with, or on behalf of, the holder thereof or any person related thereto) with respect to the share, or

(iv) the share is convertible or exchangeable unless

(A) it is convertible into or exchangeable for

(I) another share of the issuing corporation or a corporation related to the issuing corporation that, if issued, would not be a term preferred share,

(II) a right or warrant that, if exercised, would allow the person exercising it to acquire only a share of the issuing corporation or a corporation related to the issuing corporation that, if issued, would not be a term preferred share, or

(III) both a share described in subclause (I) and a right or warrant described in subclause (II), and

(B) all the consideration receivable for the share on the conversion or exchange is the share described in subclause (A)(I) or the right or warrant described in subclause (A)(II) or both, as the case may be, and, for the purposes of this clause, where a taxpayer may become entitled on the conversion or exchange of a share to receive any particular consideration (other than consideration described in any of subclauses (A)(I) to (III)) in lieu of a fraction of a share, the particular consideration shall be deemed not to be consideration unless it may reasonably be considered that the particular consideration was receivable as part of a series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of subsection 112(2.1) or 258(3), or

(b) the owner thereof acquired the share after October 23, 1979 and is

(i) a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "specified financial institution",

(ii) a corporation that is controlled by one or more corporations described in subparagraph (i),

(iii) a corporation that acquired the share after December 11, 1979 and is related to a corporation referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii), or

(iv) a partnership or trust of which a corporation referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii) or a person related thereto is a member or a beneficiary, that (either alone or together with any of such corporations, partnerships or trusts) controls or has an absolute or contingent right to control or to acquire control of the issuing corporation, but does not include a share of the capital stock of a corporation

(c) that was issued after November 16, 1978 and before 1980 pursuant to an agreement in writing to do so made before November 17, 1978 (in this definition referred to as an "established agreement"),

(d) that was issued as a stock dividend

(i) before April 22, 1980 on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation that was not a term preferred share, or

(ii) after April 21, 1980 on a share that was, at the time the stock dividend was paid, a share prescribed for the purposes of paragraph (f),

(d.1) that is listed on a designated stock exchange in Canada and was issued before April 22, 1980 by

(i) a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (d) of the definition "specified financial institution" in this subsection,

(ii) a corporation whose principal business is the lending of money or the purchasing of debt obligations or a combination thereof, or

(iii) an issuing corporation associated with a corporation described in subparagraph (i) or (ii),

(e) for a period not exceeding ten years and, in the case of a share issued after November 12, 1981, for a period not exceeding five years, from the date of its issuance, which share was issued by a corporation resident in Canada,

(i) as part of a proposal to, or an arrangement with, its creditors that had been approved by a court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act,

(ii) at a time when all or substantially all of its assets were under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or

(iii) at a time when, by reason of financial difficulty, the issuing corporation or another corporation resident in Canada with which it does not deal at arm's length was in default, or could reasonably be expected to default, on a debt obligation held by a person with whom the issuing corporation or the other corporation was dealing at arm's length and the share was issued either wholly or in substantial part and either directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for that obligation or a part thereof, and, in the case of a share issued after November 12, 1981, the proceeds from the issue may reasonably be regarded as having been used by the issuing corporation or a corporation with which it was not dealing at arm's length in the financing of its business carried on in Canada immediately before the share was issued,

(f) that is a prescribed share, or

(f.1) that is a taxable preferred share held by a specified financial institution that acquired the share

(i) before December 16, 1987, or

(ii) before 1989 pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before December 16, 1987, other than a share deemed by paragraph (c) of the definition "short-term preferred share" in this subsection or by paragraph (i.2) to have been issued after December 15, 1987 or a share that would be deemed by paragraph (e) of the definition "taxable preferred share" in this subsection to have been issued after December 15, 1987 if the references therein to "8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, June 18, 1987" were read as references to "December 15, 1987", and, for the purposes of this definition,

(g) where the terms or conditions of an established agreement were amended after November 16, 1978, the agreement shall be deemed to have been made after that date,

(h) where

(i) at any particular time the terms or conditions of a share issued pursuant to an established agreement or of any agreement relating to such a share have been changed,

(ii) under the terms or conditions of

(A) a share of a class of the capital stock of the issuing corporation issued before November 17, 1978 (other than a share that was listed on November 16, 1978 on a prescribed stock exchange in Canada),

(B) a share issued pursuant to an established agreement,

(C) any agreement between the issuing corporation and the owner of a share described in clause (A) or (B), or

(D) any agreement relating to a share described in clause (A) or (B) made after October 23, 1979, the owner thereof could at any particular time after November 16, 1978 require, either alone or together with one or more taxpayers, the redemption, acquisition, cancellation, conversion or reduction of the paid-up capital of the share otherwise than by reason of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the share or any agreement that related to, and was entered into at the time of, the issuance of the share,

(iii) in respect of a share issued before November 17, 1978, at any particular time after November 16, 1978 the redemption date was extended or the terms or conditions relating to its redemption, acquisition, cancellation, conversion or reduction of its paid-up capital were changed,

(iv) at a particular time after October 23, 1979 and before November 13, 1981, a specified financial institution (or a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related to the institution is a member or beneficiary) acquired a share that

(A) was issued before November 17, 1978 or under an established agreement,

(B) was issued to a person other than a corporation that was, at the time of issue,

(I) described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition "specified financial institution", or

(II) a corporation that was controlled by one or more corporations described in subclause (I) and, for the purpose of this subclause, one corporation is controlled by another corporation if more than 50% of its issued share capital (having full voting rights under all circumstances) belongs to the other corporation, to persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length, or to the other corporation and persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length,

(C) was acquired from a person that was, at the particular time, a person other than a corporation described in subclause (B)(I) or (II), and

(D) was acquired otherwise than under an agreement in writing made before October 24, 1979,

(v) at any particular time after November 12, 1981

(A) in respect of

(I) a share (other than a share referred to in paragraph (e) or a share listed on November 13, 1981 on a prescribed stock exchange in Canada) issued after November 16, 1978 and before November 13, 1981, or

(II) a share issued after November 12, 1981 and before 1983 pursuant to an agreement in writing to do so made before November 13, 1981 (in this definition referred to as a "specified agreement") the owner thereof could require, either alone or together with one or more taxpayers, the redemption, acquisition, cancellation, conversion or reduction of the paid-up capital of the share otherwise than by reason of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the share or any agreement that related to, and was entered into at the time of, the issuance of the share, or

(B) the redemption date of

(I) a share issued after November 16, 1978 and before November 13, 1981 or

(II) a share issued pursuant to a specified agreement was extended or the terms or conditions relating to its redemption, acquisition, cancellation, conversion or reduction of its paid-up capital were changed, or

(vi) at a particular time after November 12, 1981, a specified financial institution (or a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related to the institution is a member or beneficiary) acquired a share (other than a share referred to in paragraph (e)) that

(A) was issued before November 13, 1981 or under a specified agreement,

(B) was acquired from a partnership or person, other than a person that was, at the particular time, a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of the definition "specified financial institution" in this subsection,

(C) was acquired in an acquisition that was not subject to nor conditional on a guarantee agreement, within the meaning assigned by subsection 112(2.2), entered into after November 12, 1981, and

(D) was acquired otherwise than under an agreement in writing made before October 24, 1979 or a specified agreement, the share shall, for the purposes of determining at any time after the particular time whether it is a term preferred share, be deemed to have been issued at the particular time otherwise than pursuant to an established or specified agreement,

(i) where the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of the issuing corporation are modified or established after June 28, 1982 and as a consequence thereof the issuing corporation, any person related thereto or any partnership or trust of which the issuing corporation or a person related thereto is a member or a beneficiary may reasonably be expected at any time to redeem, acquire or cancel, in whole or in part, the share or to reduce its paid-up capital, the share shall be deemed as from the date of the modification or as from the date of the establishment, as the case may be, to be a share described in paragraph (a),

(i.1) where

(i) it may reasonably be considered that the dividends that may be declared or paid at any time on a share (other than a prescribed share or a share described in paragraph (e) during the applicable time period referred to in that paragraph) of the capital stock of a corporation issued after December 15, 1987 or acquired after June 15, 1988 are derived primarily from dividends received on term preferred shares of the capital stock of another corporation, and

(ii) it may reasonably be considered that the share was issued or acquired as part of a transaction or event or series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of subsection 112(2.1) or 138(6),

the share shall be deemed at that time to be a term preferred share acquired in the ordinary course of business,

(i.2) where at any particular time after December 15, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before December 16, 1987, the terms or conditions of a taxable preferred share of the capital stock of a corporation relating to any matter referred to in subparagraphs (a)(i) to (iv) have been modified or established, or any agreement in respect of the share relating to any such matter has been changed or entered into by the corporation or a specified person (within the meaning assigned by paragraph (h) of the definition "taxable preferred share" in this subsection) in relation to the corporation, the share shall be deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time, and,

(j) where a particular share of the capital stock of a corporation has been issued or its terms and conditions have been modified and it may reasonably be considered, having regard to all circumstances (including the rate of interest on any debt or the dividend provided on any term preferred share), that

(i) but for the existence at any time of the debt or the term preferred share, the particular share would not have been issued or its terms or conditions modified, and

(ii) one of the main purposes for the issue of the particular share or for the modification of its terms or conditions was to avoid a limitation provided by subsection 112(2.1) or 138(6) in respect of a deduction, the particular share shall be deemed after December 31, 1982 to be a term preferred share of the corporation;

Related Provisions: 80(1) — Definition of "distress preferred share"; 87(4.1) — Amalgamations — exchanged shares; 112(2.1) — No deduction on intercorporate dividends; 112(2.6)"exempt share"(c) — Distress preferred shares excluded from restrictions on collateralized preferred shares; 248(10) — Series of transactions; 248(13) — Interests in trusts or partnerships; 256(1.6) — Fair market valuation; 256(6), (6.1) — Meaning of "controlled"; Canada-U.S. Tax Treaty:Art. History: Para. (d.1) of the definition "term preferred share" in subsec. 248(1) amended to substitute "designated stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange" by 2007, c. 35, para. 68(1)(b), applicable after December 13, 2007.

Subparas. (b)(i) and (h)(iv) of the definition "term preferred share" in subsec. 248(1) amended by 1999, c. 22, subsecs. 80(9) and (10), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1998. Subparas. (b)(i) and (h)(iv) formerly read:

(i) a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition "specified financial institution" in this subsection,

(iv) a share issued before November 17, 1978 or a share issued pursuant to an established agreement (other than a share issued to a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of the definition "specified financial institution" in this subsection), is, at any particular time after October 23, 1979 and before November 13, 1981 acquired (otherwise than pursuant to an agreement in writing made before October 24, 1979) from a person (other than a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of that definition) by a specified financial institution or by a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related thereto is a member or a beneficiary,

Subpara. (h)(vi) of the definition "term preferred share" in subsec. 248(1) amended by the said c. 22, subsec. 80(11), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1998 except that, in its application to a share acquired from a corporation that last acquired the share in a taxation year that began before 1999, the expression "described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of the definition "specified financial institution" in this subsection," in cl. (h)(vi)(B), as amended, shall be read as "described in subclause (iv)(B)(I) or (II)". Subpara. (h)(vi) formerly read:

(vi) a share (other than a share referred to in paragraph (e)) issued before November 13, 1981 or a share issued pursuant to a specified agreement is, at any particular time after November 12, 1981, acquired (otherwise than pursuant to an agreement in writing made before October 24, 1979 or otherwise than pursuant to a specified agreement) from a partnership or person (other than an acquisition from a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of the definition "specified financial institution" in this subsection where that acquisition is neither subject to nor conditional on a guarantee agreement, within the meaning assigned by subsection 112(2.2), entered into after November 12, 1981) by a specified financial institution or by a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related thereto is a member or a beneficiary,

Para. (d.1) of the definition "term preferred share" in subsec. 248(1) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 239(5), applicable after February 22, 1994. Para. (d.1) formerly read:

(d.1) that was issued before April 22, 1980 by a corporation described in any of paragraphs 39(5)(b) to (f) or by an issuing corporation associated with any such corporation and is listed on a prescribed stock exchange in Canada,

"Term preferred share" amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(13), to add the word "or" at the end of para. (a), applicable after June 18, 1987.

Subpara. (e)(i) of "term preferred share" amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. V (1992, c. 27), para. 90(1)(q), to substitute "Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act" for "Bankruptcy Act", in force November 30, 1992.

Proposed Addition — 248(1.1)

(1.1) Non-disposition before December 24, 1998 — A redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation, at any particular time after 1971 and before December 24, 1998, of a share or of a right to acquire a share (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to in this subsection as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "disposing corporation") is not a disposition (within the meaning of the definition "disposition" in section 54 as that section read in its application to transactions and events that occurred at the particular time) of the security if

(a) the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to in this subsection as the "new corporation");

(b) the merger or combination

(i) is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) if in force, and as it read, at the particular time did not apply,

(ii) is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) if in force, and as it read, at the particular time applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) (if in force, and as it read, at the particular time) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively,

(iii) occurred before November 13, 1981 and is a merger of corporations that is described by subsection 87(8) (as it read in respect of the merger or combination), or

(iv) occurred after November 12, 1981 and

(A) is a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) as it read in respect of the merger or combination), or

(B) all of the following conditions are met, namely

(I) the merger or combination is not a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) as it read in respect of the merger or combination),

(II) subsection 87(8.1), as it read in respect of the merger or combination, contained a subparagraph (c)(ii), and

(III) the merger or combination would be a foreign merger (within the meaning of subsection 87(8.1), as it read in respect of the merger or combination) if that subparagraph 87(8.1)(c)(ii) were read as follows:

"(ii) if, immediately after the merger, the new foreign corporation was controlled by another foreign corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "parent corporation"), shares of the capital stock of the parent corporation,";

(c) either

(i) the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security, or

(ii) in the case where the merger or combination is described by subparagraph (b)(iv), the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the merger or combination, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the merger or combination, became property of the new corporation.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(15), will add subsec. 248(1.1), in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): The definition "disposition" was added to subsection 248(1) of the Act by S.C. 2001, chapter 17, subsection 188(5) [formerly Bill C-22]. In general, that definition applies to transactions and events that occur after December 23, 1998. The former definition "disposition" was contained in section 54, applicable to transactions and events that occurred before December 24, 1998.

New paragraph (n) is added to the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1), applicable to redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations of certain securities that occur after December 23, 1998. For more detail, see the commentary to subsection 248(1).

New subsection 248(1.1) is added to deal, in a corresponding fashion, with such redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occurred before December 24, 1998.

New subsection 248(1.1) provides that a redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation, at any particular time after 1971 and before December 24, 1998, of a share or of a right to acquire a share (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (referred to as the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (referred to as the "disposing corporation") is not a disposition of the security within the meaning of the definition "disposition" in section 54 (as that section read in its application to transactions and events that occur at the particular time), if

- the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred as part of a particular merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to as the "new corporation"),
- the particular merger or combination
  - — is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) of the Act as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) if in force, and as it read, at the particular time did not apply,
  - — is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) if in force, and as it read, at the particular time applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) (if in force, and as it read, at the particular time) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively,
  - — occurred before November 13, 1981 and is a merger of corporations that is described by subsection 87(8) (as it read in respect of the particular merger or combination), or
  - — is a merger or combination of non-resident corporations (referred to in these Notes as a "subject merger") that occurred after November 12, 1981 and
    - — is a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) as it read in respect of the particular merger or combination), or
    - — all of the following conditions are met, namely
      - 1. the particular merger or combination is not a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) as it read in respect of the particular merger or combination),
      - 2. subsection 87(8.1), as read in respect of the particular merger or combination, contained a subparagraph (c)(ii), and 181

- 3. the particular merger or combination would be a foreign merger (within the meaning of subsection 87(8.1), as it read in respect of the particular merger or combination) if that subparagraph 87(8.1)(c)(ii) were read as follows:
  - "(ii) if, immediately after the merger, the new foreign corporation was controlled by another foreign corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "parent corporation"), shares of the capital stock of the parent corporation," and

  - the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security, or
  - in the case where the particular merger or combination is a subject merger, the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the particular merger or combination, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the particular merger or combination, became property of the new corporation.

Related Provisions: 248(1)"disposition"(n) — Same rule after December 23, 1998.

(2) Tax payable — In this Act, the tax payable by a taxpayer under any Part of this Act by or under which provision is made for the assessment of tax means the tax payable by the taxpayer as fixed by assessment or reassessment subject to variation on objection or on appeal, if any, in accordance with the provisions of that Part.

Related Provisions: 117(1) — Meaning of "tax payable" for purposes of 117–127.4.

(3) Property subject to certain Quebec institutions and arrangements [deemed trusts] — For the purposes of this Act, if property is subject to an institution or arrangement that is described by this subsection and that is governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec, the following rules apply in respect of the property:

(a) if at any time property is subject to a usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution,

(i) the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, is deemed to be at that time

(A) a trust, and

(B) where the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, is created by will, a trust created by will,

(ii) the property is deemed

(A) where the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, arises on the death of a testator, to have been transferred to the trust on and as a consequence of the death of the testator, and not otherwise, and

(B) where the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, arises otherwise, to have been transferred (at the time it first became subject to the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be) to the trust by the person that granted the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, and

(iii) the property is deemed to be, throughout the period in which it is subject to the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, held by the trust, and not otherwise;

(b) an arrangement (other than a partnership, a qualifying arrangement or an arrangement that is a trust determined without reference to this paragraph) is deemed to be a trust and property subject to rights and obligations under the arrangement is, if the arrangement is deemed by this paragraph to be a trust, deemed to be held in trust and not otherwise, where the arrangement

(i) is established before October 31, 2003 by or under a written contract that

(A) is governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec, and

(B) provides that, for the purposes of this Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust, and

(ii) creates rights and obligations that are substantially similar to the rights and obligations under a trust (determined without reference to this subsection);

(c) if the arrangement is a qualifying arrangement,

(i) the arrangement is deemed to be a trust,

(ii) any property contributed at any time to the arrangement by an annuitant, a holder or a subscriber of the arrangement, as the case may be, is deemed to have been transferred, at that time, to the trust by the contributor, and

(iii) property subject to rights and obligations under the arrangement is deemed to be held in trust and not otherwise;

(d) a person who has a right (whether immediate or future and whether absolute or contingent) to receive all or part of the income or capital in respect of property that is referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) is deemed to be beneficially interested in the trust; and

(e) notwithstanding that a property is at any time subject to a servitude, the property is deemed to be beneficially owned by a person at that time if, at that time, the person has in relation to the property

(i) the right of ownership,

(ii) a right as a lessee under an emphyteusis, or

(iii) a right as a beneficiary in a trust.

History: Subsec. 248(3) amended by 2009, c. 2, subsec. 76(5), applicable to taxation years that begin after October 30, 2003 except that for taxation years that end before 2008, subpara. 248(3)(c)(ii) shall be read without reference to the expression "a holder". The subsec. formerly read:

(3) Rules applicable in relation to the Province of Quebec [deemed trusts] — For the purposes of the application of this Act in relation to the Province of Quebec,

(a) a usufruct shall be deemed to be a trust, created by will where the usufruct was so established, and property subject to a usufruct shall be deemed to have been transferred to the trust, on the death of the testator and as a consequence thereof where the usufruct arises on death, and to be held in trust and not otherwise;

(b) a right of use or habitation shall be deemed to be a trust, created by will where the right was so established, and property subject to such a right shall be deemed to have been transferred to the trust, on the death of the testator and as a consequence thereof where the right arises on death, and to be held in trust and not otherwise;

(c) a substitution shall be deemed to be a trust, created by will where the substitution was so established, and property subject to a substitution shall be deemed to have been transferred to the trust, on the death of the testator and as a consequence thereof where the substitution arises on death, and to be held in trust and not otherwise;

(d) property subject to rights and obligations under an arrangement (other than a trust) that

(i) is established by or under a written contract that

(A) is governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec, and

(B) provides that, for the purposes of this Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust, and

(ii) creates rights and obligations that are substantially similar to the rights and obligations under a trust (determined without reference to this subsection), shall be deemed to be held in trust and not otherwise, and such an arrangement shall be deemed to be a trust;

(e) a person who has a right (whether immediate or future and whether absolute or contingent) to receive all or any part of the income or capital in respect of property referred to in paragraph (a), (b), (c) or (d) shall be deemed to be beneficially interested in the trust referred to in that paragraph; and

(f) property in relation to which any person has, at any time,

(i) the right of ownership,

(ii) a right as a lessee in an emphyteutic lease, or

(iii) a right as a beneficiary in a trust

shall, notwithstanding that such property is subject to a servitude, be deemed to be beneficially owned by the person at that time.

The said c. 2, subsec. 76(15), states that for taxation years that begin after 1988 and before October 31, 2003, para. 248(3)(d) shall, in its application to each arrangement that is entered into between an individual and a corporation licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee and that is accepted by the Minister for registration under s. 146 or 146.3, be read without reference to

(a) cl. 248(3)(d)(i)(B), if the arrangement is presented as a declaration of trust but does not provide that, for the purposes of the Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust; and

(b) subpara. 248(3)(d)(ii).

Subsec. 248(3) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(15), applicable

(a) after 1990 with respect to property the ownership of which was acquired after 1990;

(b) after 1990 with respect to property that became subject to a usufruct, a right of use or habitation, a substitution, an emphyteutic lease or a trust after 1990;

(c) after 1989 with respect to property that became subject to a usufruct, a right of use or habitation or a substitution after 1989 and before 1991, where the persons who so acquire interests in the property elected jointly by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing before 1992 [1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), s. 159 provides that such an election made before December 11, 1993 shall be deemed to have been made before 1992]; and

(d) to 1989 et seq. with respect to property that became subject to an arrangement referred to in para. 248(3)(d) in the 1989 or any subsequent taxation year.

Subsec. 248(3) formerly read:

(3) References to property beneficially owned and to beneficial owner of property — In its application in relation to the Province of Quebec, a reference in this Act to any property that is or was beneficially owned by any person shall be read as including a reference to property in relation to which any person has or had the full ownership whether or not the property is or was subject to a servitude, or has or had a right as a usufructuary, a lessee in an emphyteutic lease, an institute in a substitution or a beneficiary in a trust; and a reference in this Act to the beneficial owner of any property shall be read as including a reference to a person who has or had, accordingly as the context requires, such ownership as a right in relation to that property.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-305R4: Testamentary spouse trusts; IT-437R: Ownership of property (principal residence).

(3.1) Gift of bare ownership of immovables — Subsection (3) does not apply in respect of a usufruct or a right of use of an immovable in circumstances where a taxpayer disposes of the bare ownership of the immovable by way of a gift to a qualified donee and retains, for life, the usufruct or the right of use.

History: Subsec. 248(3.1) amended by 2011, c. 24, subsec. 72(5), to substitute "qualified donee" for "donee described in the definition 'total charitable gifts', 'total Crown gifts' or 'total ecological gifts' in subsection 118.1(1)", in force on January 1, 2012.

Subsec. 248(3.1) added by 2009, c. 2, subsec. 76(5), applicable to dispositions that occur after July 18, 2005.

(3.2) Qualifying arrangement — For the purposes of paragraphs 248(3)(b) and (c), an arrangement is a qualifying arrangement if it is

(a) entered into with a corporation that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee;

(b) established by or under a written contract that is governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec;

(c) presented as a declaration of trust or provides that, for the purposes of this Act, it shall be considered to be a trust; and

(d) presented as an arrangement in respect of which the corporation is to take action for the arrangement to become a registered disability savings plan, a registered education savings plan, a registered retirement income fund, a registered retirement savings plan or a TFSA.

History: Subsec. 248(3.2) added by 2009, c. 2, subsec. 76(5), applicable to taxation years that begin after October 30, 2003 except that for taxation years that end before 2008, para. 248(3.2)(d) shall be read without reference to registered disability savings and TFSAs, and for taxation years that end in 2008, para. 248(3.2)(d) shall be read without reference to TFSAs.

(4) Interest in real property — In this Act, an interest in real property includes a leasehold interest in real property but does not include an interest as security only derived by virtue of a mortgage, hypothecary claim, agreement for sale or similar obligation.

Proposed Amendment — 248(4)

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — bijuralism), subsec. 254(5), will amend subsec. 248(4) to replace "mortgage, hypothecary claim," with "mortgage,", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): See under 248(4.1) below.

Related Provisions: 43.1(1) — Life estates in real property; 248(4.1) — Real right in an immovable under Quebec civil law; Interpretation Act 8.1, 8.2 — Common law and civil law equally authoritative.

History: Subsec. 248(4) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 230(2), to add "hypothecary claim,", in force June 14, 2001.

Proposed Addition — 248(4.1)

(4.1) Real right in immovables — In this Act, a real right in an immovable includes a lease but does not include a security right derived by virtue of a hypothec, agreement for sale or similar obligation.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — bijuralism), subsec. 254(5), will add subsec. 248(4.1), to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 248(4) of the current legislation uses the term "droit sur un bien immeuble" in the French version as equivalent for the term "interest in real property" used in the English version. The term refers to the relationship between a person and property and for purposes of the Act includes a leasehold interest but not an interest as security.

Subsection 248(4) is amended so as to provide, for common law purposes, the scope of the term "interest in real property." Reference to the civil law term "hypothecary claim" is removed from the English version of the provision. Furthermore, the term "intérêt sur un bien réel" is added in the French version of the Act. This term is the French equivalent of the common law term "interest in real property".

For civil law purposes, new subsection 248(4.1) is added in both linguistic versions of the Act. The scope of the civil law term "real right in immovables" / "droit réel sur un immeuble" is adjusted in a similar manner as its common law counterPart by including the lease and excluding security rights.

Related Provisions: 248(4) — Interest in real property under common law; Interpretation Act 8.1, 8.2 — Common law and civil law equally authoritative.

(5) Substituted property — For the purposes of this Act, other than paragraph 98(1)(a),

(a) where a person has disposed of or exchanged a particular property and acquired other property in substitution therefor and subsequently, by one or more further transactions, has effected one or more further substitutions, the property acquired by any such transaction shall be deemed to have been substituted for the particular property; and

(b) any share received as a stock dividend on another share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be deemed to be property substituted for that other share.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-244R3: Gifts by individuals of life insurance policies as charitable donations; IT-369R: Attribution of trust income to settlor; IT-489R: Non-arm's length sale of shares to a corporation; IT-511R: Interspousal and certain other transfers and loans of property.

(6) "Class" of shares issued in series — In its application in relation to a corporation that has issued shares of a class of its capital stock in one or more series, a reference in this Act to the "class" shall be read, with such modifications as the circumstances require, as a reference to a "series of the class".

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-328R3: Losses on shares on which dividends have been received.

(7) [Deemed date of] Receipt of things mailed — For the purposes of this Act,

(a) anything (other than a remittance or payment described in paragraph (b)) sent by first class mail or its equivalent shall be deemed to have been received by the person to whom it was sent on the day it was mailed; and

(b) the remittance or payment of an amount

(i) deducted or withheld, or

(ii) payable by a corporation,

as required by this Act or a regulation shall be deemed to have been made on the day on which it is received by the Receiver General.

Related Provisions: 153(1) [closing words] — Certain remittances must be made directly to a financial institution; 204.81(8.2) — Rule in 248(7) does not apply to voluntary de-registration of LSVCC; 244(5) — Proof of service by mail; 244(14) — Mailing date presumed to be date of assessment or notice; Reg. 110 — Certain remittances must be made directly to a financial institution.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-433R: Farming or fishing — use of cash method.

Charities Policies: CPS-017: Effective date of registration.

(8) Occurrences as a consequence of death — For the purpose of this Act,

(a) a transfer, distribution or acquisition of property under or as a consequence of the terms of the will or other testamentary instrument of a taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner or as a consequence of the law governing the intestacy of a taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner shall be considered to be a transfer, distribution or acquisition of the property as a consequence of the death of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner, as the case may be;

(b) a transfer, distribution or acquisition of property as a consequence of a disclaimer, release or surrender by a person who was a beneficiary under the will or other testamentary instrument or on the intestacy of a taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner shall be considered to be a transfer, distribution or acquisition of the property as a consequence of the death of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner, as the case may be; and

(c) a release or surrender by a beneficiary under the will or other testamentary instrument or on the intestacy of a taxpayer with respect to any property that was property of the taxpayer immediately before the taxpayer's death shall be considered not to be a disposition of the property by the beneficiary.

Related Provisions: 248(9) — Definitions; 248(9.1) — Whether trust created by taxpayer's will.

History: Subsec. 248(8) amended by 2000, c. 12, Sch. 2, s. 1, to replace "spouse" with "spouse or common-law partner", applicable to 2001 et seq., in force July 31, 2000. See also the transitional rules reproduced in the History to 248(1)"common-law partner".

(9) Definitions — In subsection (8),

"disclaimer" includes a renunciation of a succession made under the laws of the Province of Quebec that is not made in favour of any person, but does not include any disclaimer made after the period ending 36 months after the death of the taxpayer unless written application therefor has been made to the Minister by the taxpayer's legal representative within that period and the disclaimer is made within such longer period as the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances;

History: The definition "disclaimer" in subsec. 248(9) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 109(7), applicable June 15, 1994. That definition formerly read:

> "disclaimer" includes a renunciation of a succession made under the laws of the Province of Quebec that is not made in favour of any person;

Interpretation Bulletins ["disclaimer"]: IT-305R4: Testamentary spouse trusts; IT-313R2: Eligible capital property — rules where a taxpayer has ceased carrying on a business or has died; IT-349R3: Intergenerational transfers of farm property on death.

"release or surrender" means

(a) a release or surrender made under the laws of a province (other than the Province of Quebec) that does not direct in any manner who is entitled to benefit therefrom, or

(b) a gift inter vivos made under the laws of the Province of Quebec of an interest in, or right to property of, a succession that is made to the person or persons who would have benefited if the donor had made a renunciation of the succession that was not made in favour of any person, and that is made within the period ending 36 months after the death of the taxpayer or, where written application therefor has been made to the Minister by the taxpayer's legal representative within that period, within such longer period as the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances.

Interpretation Bulletins ["release or surrender"]: IT-305R4: Testamentary spouse trusts; IT-313R2: Eligible capital property — rules where a taxpayer has ceased carrying on a business or has died; IT-349R3: Intergenerational transfers of farm property on death.

(9.1) How trust created — For the purposes of this Act, a trust shall be considered to be created by a taxpayer's will if the trust is created

(a) under the terms of the taxpayer's will; or

(b) by an order of a court in relation to the taxpayer's estate made under any law of a province that provides for the relief or support of dependants.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-305R4: Testamentary spouse trusts.

(9.2) Vested indefeasibly — For the purposes of this Act, property shall be deemed not to have vested indefeasibly

(a) in a trust under which a taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner is a beneficiary, where the trust is created by the will of the taxpayer, unless the property vested indefeasibly in the trust before the death of the spouse or common-law partner; and

(b) in an individual (other than a trust), unless the property vested indefeasibly in the individual before the death of the individual.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-387R2: Meaning of "identical properties".

(13) Interests in trusts and partnerships — Where after November 12, 1981 a person has an interest in a trust or partnership, whether directly or indirectly through an interest in any other trust or partnership or in any manner whatever, the person shall, for the purposes of the definitions "income bond", "income debenture" and "term preferred share" in subsection (1), paragraph (h) of the definition "taxable preferred share" in that subsection, subsections 84(4.2) and (4.3) and 112(2.6) and section 258, be deemed to be a beneficiary of the trust or a member of the partnership, as the case may be.

(14) Related corporations — For the purpose of paragraph (g) of the definition "specified financial institution" in subsection (1), where in the case of 2 or more corporations it can reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, that one of the main reasons for the separate existence of those corporations in a taxation year is to limit or avoid the application of subsection 112(2.1) or (2.2) or 138(6), the 2 or more corporations shall be deemed to be related to each other and to each other corporation to which any such corporation is related.

History: Subsec. 248(14) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(17), to substitute "For the purpose of" for "For the purposes of" and "can reasonably" for "may reasonably", and to add "and to each other corporation to which any such corporation is related", applicable after July 13, 1990.

(15) Goods and services tax — change of use — For the purposes of this Act, where a liability for the goods and services tax is incurred in respect of a change of use at any time of a property, the liability so incurred shall be deemed to have been incurred immediately after that time in respect of the acquisition of the property.

(16) Goods and services tax — input tax credit and rebate — For the purposes of this Act, other than this subsection and subsection 6(8), an amount claimed by a taxpayer as an input tax credit or rebate with respect to the goods and services tax in respect of a property or service shall be deemed to be assistance from a government in respect of the property or service that is received by the taxpayer

(a) where the amount was claimed by the taxpayer as an input tax credit in a return under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act for a reporting period under that Act,

(i) at the time the goods and services tax in respect of the input tax credit was paid or became payable, if the tax was paid or became payable in the reporting period, or

(ii) if no such tax was paid or became payable in respect of the input tax credit in the reporting period, at the end of the reporting period; or

(b) where the amount was claimed as a rebate with respect to the goods and services tax, at the time the amount was received or credited.

Proposed Amendment — 248(16)

(16) Goods and services tax — input tax credit and rebate — For the purposes of this Act, other than this subsection and subsection 6(8), an amount claimed by a taxpayer as an input tax credit or rebate with respect to the goods and services tax in respect of a property or service is deemed to be assistance from a government in respect of the property or service that is received by the taxpayer

(a) where the amount was claimed by the taxpayer as an input tax credit in a return under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act for a reporting period under that Act,

(i) at the particular time that is the earlier of the time that the goods and services tax in respect of the input tax credit was paid and the time that it became payable,

(A) if the particular time is in the reporting period, or

(B) if,

(I) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax Act, is greater than $500,000 for the taxpayer's fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) that includes the particular time, and

(II) the taxpayer claimed the input tax credit at least 120 days before the end of the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year that includes the particular time,

(ii) at the end of the reporting period, if

(A) subparagraph (i) does not apply, and

(B) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax Act, is $500,000 or less for the fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) of the taxpayer that includes the particular time, and

(iii) in any other case, on the last day of the taxpayer's earliest taxation year

(A) that begins after the taxation year that includes the particular time, and

(B) for which the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer ends at least 120 days after the time that the input tax credit was claimed, or

(b) where the amount was claimed as a rebate with respect to the goods and services tax, at the time the amount was received or credited

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(1), will amend subsec. 248(16) to make it always applicable in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 248(16) provides rules under which amounts received by, or credited by a taxpayer as an input tax credit or rebate with respect to the goods and services tax (GST) are deemed to be assistance from a government received by a taxpayer. As a consequence, such amounts are either included in income or reduce the cost or capital cost of the related property or the amount of the related expenditure or expenditure pool for tax purposes.

Subsection 248(16) also specifies the time at which the receipt or credit of an input tax credit or rebate is deemed to be received as assistance. With respect to input tax credits, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) provides that the assistance (i.e., the input tax credit) is considered to be received by a taxpayer at the time the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid or became payable by the taxpayer or the GST was paid or became payable in the same reporting period under the Excise Tax Act in which the input tax credit was claimed. If a taxpayer does not claim the input tax credit in the same reporting period in which the GST was paid or became payable, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(ii) includes the amount of assistance in the taxpayer's income for the taxation year that includes the end of the reporting period in which the taxpayer claimed the input tax credit.

Subsection 248(16) is amended in three respects for input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

First, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) is amended to extend its application to cases where the input tax credit is claimed by a taxpayer in a reporting period that is subsequent to the period in which the related GST was paid or became payable if

- the taxpayer's threshold amount (as determined under subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax Act) is greater than $500,000 for the taxpayer's fiscal year (as defined by that Act) that includes the earlier of the time that the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid and the time that it became payable, and
- the taxpayer claimed the input tax credit at least 120 days before the end of the normal reassessment period (as determined under subsection 152(3.1) of the Income Tax Act) for the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year that includes that earlier time.

In general, the change to this subparagraph means that an input tax credit of a taxpayer (who is a GST filer with a threshold amount greater than $500,000 for GST purposes) is considered to have been received at the time the related GST was paid or became payable, even though the input tax credit is claimed in a later GST reporting period. However, this is the case only if the taxpayer claims the input tax credit at least 120 days before the taxation year in which the GST was paid or became payable becomes statute barred for income tax purposes.

Second, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(iii) is amended to provide that an input tax credit is considered to be received at the end of the reporting period in which it is claimed only if

- subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) does not apply, and
- the taxpayer's threshold amount (as determined under subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax Act) is $500,000 or less for the fiscal year of the taxpayer that includes the earlier of the time that the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid or became payable.

Thus, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(iii) does not apply if subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) applies. Where subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) does not apply, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(ii) provides that the input tax credit is considered to have been received at the end of the reporting period in which it is claimed only if the taxpayer's threshold amount (for GST purposes) was $500,000 or less at the time the GST was paid or became payable.

Third, new subparagraph 248(16)(a)(iii) is added to apply in any other case. If applicable, that subparagraph provides that the input tax credit is considered to have been received on the last day of the taxpayer's earliest taxation year

- that begins after the taxation year that includes the earlier of the time that the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid and the time that it became payable, and
- for which the normal reassessment period for the taxpayer ends at least 120 days after the time at which the input tax credit was claimed.

Proposed Addition — 248(16.1)

(16.1) Quebec input tax refund and rebate — For the purpose of this Act, other than this subsection and subsection 6(6), an amount claimed by a taxpayer as an input tax refund or a rebate with respect to the Quebec sales tax in respect of a property or service is deemed to be assistance from a government in respect of the property or service that is received by the taxpayer

(a) where the amount was claimed by the taxpayer as an input tax refund in a return under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T-0.1, for a reporting period under that Act,

(i) at the particular time that is the earlier of the time that the Quebec sales tax in respect of the input tax refund was paid and the time that it became payable,

(A) if the particular time is in the reporting period, or

(B) if,

(I) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with section 462 of that Act is greater than $500,000 for the taxpayer's fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) that includes the particular time, and

(II) the taxpayer claimed the input tax refund at least 120 days before the end of the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year that includes the particular time,

(ii) at the end of the reporting period, if

(A) subparagraph (i) does not apply, and

(B) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with section 462 of that Act is $500,000 or less for the fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) of the taxpayer that includes the particular time, and

(iii) in any other case, on the last day of the taxpayer's earliest taxation year

(A) that begins after the taxation year that includes the particular time, and

(B) for which the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer ends at least 120 days after the time that the input tax refund was claimed; or

(b) where the amount was claimed as a rebate with respect to the Quebec sales tax, at the time the amount was received or credited.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(18), will add subsec. 248(16.1), applicable in respect of input tax refunds and rebates that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(16.1) provides special rules for amounts received, or credited to, a taxpayer as an input tax refund or rebate in respect of Quebec sales tax. Such amounts are either included in a taxpayer's income or reduce the cost or capital cost of the related property, or the amount of the related expenditure or expenditure pool, for tax purposes.

In general, an input tax refund in respect of Quebec sales tax may — depending on the circumstances — have to be included in a taxpayer's income in the taxation year in which the taxpayer may first claim the refund, rather than the year in which it is received. A rebate of Quebec sales tax is included in income at the time the rebate is received or credited. For a more detailed explanation of the application of subsection 248(16.1), reference should be made to the commentary accompanying amendments to subsection 248(16), which provides analogous special rules in respect of the timing of the inclusion in income of certain input tax credits and rebates assessed under the Excise Tax Act.

Related Provisions: 12(1)(x) — Inclusion in income; 12(2.2) — Deemed outlay or expense; 13(7.1) — Deemed capital cost of certain property; 37(1)(d) — Scientific research and experimental development; 53(2)(k) — Reduction in adjusted cost base; 66.1(6)"cumulative Canadian exploration expense"I — Assistance reduces CCEE; 66.2(5)"cumulative Canadian development expense"M — Assistance reduces CCDE; 66.4(5)"cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense"I — Assistance reduces CCOGPE; 248(16) — Parallel rule for GST; 248(17.1) — Application of 248(16) to passenger vehicles and aircraft; 248(17.3) — Timing of deemed assistance where QST assessed; 248(18.1) — Repayment of input tax refund.

(17) Application of subsec. (16) to passenger vehicles and aircraft — Where the input tax credit of a taxpayer under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft is determined with reference to subsection 202(4) of the Excise Tax Act, subparagraphs (16)(a)(i) and (ii) shall, as they apply in respect of such property, be read as follows:

Proposed Amendment — 248(17) opening words

(17) Application of subsec. (16) to passenger vehicles and aircraft — If the input tax credit of a taxpayer under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft is determined with reference to subsection 202(4) of that Act, subparagraphs (16)(a)(i) to (iii) are to be read as they apply in respect of the passenger vehicle or aircraft, as the case may be, as follows:

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(19), will amend the opening words of subsec. 248(17) to read as above, applicable in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 248(17) applies in the case of an input tax credit in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft claimable by an individual or partnership where the credit is determined by reference to capital cost allowance in respect of the vehicle or aircraft (i.e., where there is less than exclusive use in commercial activity). Subsection 248(17) is amended to reflect the amendments made to subsection 248(16) as described in the commentary to that subsection.

"(i) at the beginning of the first taxation year or fiscal period of the taxpayer commencing after the end of the taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, in which the goods and services tax in respect of such property was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax credit to be payable, if the tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax credit to have become payable in the reporting period, or

(ii) if no such tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax credit to have become payable in the reporting period, at the end of the reporting period; or"

Related Provisions: 248(17.1) — Parallel rule for QST.

Proposed Addition — 248(17.1)

(17.1) Application of subsec. (16.1) to passenger vehicles and aircraft — If the input tax refund of a taxpayer under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T-0.1, in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft is determined with reference to section 252 of that Act, subparagraphs (16.1)(a)(i) to (iii) are to be read as they apply in respect of the passenger vehicle or aircraft, as the case may be, as follows:

"(i) at the beginning of the first taxation year or fiscal period of the taxpayer that begins after the end of the taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, in which the Quebec sales tax in respect of such property was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax refund to be payable, if the tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax refund to have become payable in the reporting period, or

(ii) if no such tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax refund to have become payable in the reporting period, at the end of the reporting period; or".

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(20), will add subsec. 248(17.1), applicable in respect of input tax refunds and rebates that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(17.1) applies in the case of an input tax refund of Quebec sales tax, in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft, claimable by an individual or partnership where the credit is determinable by reference to capital cost allowance in respect of the vehicle or aircraft (that is, where there is less than exclusive use in commercial activity). In general, this subsection defers the time the input tax refund is considered to be received for income tax purposes to the taxation year or fiscal period following that in which Quebec sales tax in respect of the property is considered as payable for the purposes of determining the input tax refund. This avoids circularity with subsection 248(16.1). The provision preserves the proper timing between the input tax refund entitlement and the adjustment to the capital cost. This change applies in respect of Quebec input tax refunds that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Related Provisions: 248(17) — Parallel rule for GST.

Proposed Addition — 248(17.2)

(17.2) Input tax credit on assessment — An amount in respect of an input tax credit that is deemed by subsection 296(5) of the Excise Tax Act to have been claimed in a return or application filed under Part IX of that Act is deemed to have been so claimed for the reporting period under that Act that includes the time when the Minister makes the assessment referred to in that subsection.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(20), will add subsec. 248(17.2), applicable in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(17.2) determines, in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002, the time at which an input tax credit is considered to have been claimed in respect of certain input tax credit assessments made under the Excise Tax Act (ETA).

This subsection provides that, if an amount in respect of an input tax credit is deemed by subsection 296(5) of the ETA to have been claimed in a return or application filed under Part IX of that Act, the input tax credit is deemed to have been claimed for the GST reporting period that includes the time the Minister of National Revenue makes the GST assessment.

Accordingly, the rule in clause 248(16)(a)(i)(A) of the Income Tax Act (ITA) relating to the time at which an input tax credit is considered to have been received cannot apply to an input tax credit to which subsection 296(5) of the ETA applies. However, the other rules in paragraph 248(16)(a) of the ITA that determine the time at which an input tax credit is received are to be applied on the basis that an input tax credit (to which subsection 296(5) of the ETA applies) is not claimed by the taxpayer until the reporting period that includes the time at which the input tax credit is actually assessed — i.e., not the reporting period to which the assessment relates but the reporting period in which the input tax credit is deemed to be claimed for GST purposes.

Related Provisions: 248(17.3) — Parallel rule for QST.

Proposed Addition — 248(17.3)

(17.3) Quebec input tax refund on assessment — An amount in respect of an input tax refund that is deemed by section 30.5 of An Act respecting the Ministère du Revenu, R.S.Q., c. M-31, to have been claimed is deemed to have been so claimed for the reporting period under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T[-]0.1, that includes the day on which an assessment is issued to the taxpayer indicating that the refund has been allocated under that section 30.5.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(20), will add subsec. 248(17.3), applicable in respect of input tax refunds and rebates that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(17.3) provides that an input tax refund of Quebec sales tax, that is deemed to be claimed by section 30.5 of An Act respecting the Quebec Revenue Minister, is deemed to be claimed for the reporting period under An Act respecting Quebec Sales Tax that includes the day on which an assessment is issued to the taxpayer indicating that the refund has been allocated to the taxpayer. This change applies in respect of Quebec input tax refunds and rebates that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Related Provisions: 248(17.2) — Parallel rule for GST.

(18) Goods and services tax — repayment of input tax credit — For the purposes of this Act, where an amount is added at a particular time in determining the net tax of a taxpayer under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act in respect of an input tax credit relating to property or a service that had been previously deducted in determining the net tax of the taxpayer, that amount shall be deemed to be assistance repaid at the particular time in respect of the property or service pursuant to a legal obligation to repay all or part of that assistance.

Related Provisions: 20(1)(hh) — Deduction for repayment of assistance; 39(13) — Capital loss on repayment of assistance; 53(1)(e)(ix)(B) — Adjusted cost base of partnership interest; 127(10.7) — Investment tax credit — repayment of assistance; 248(18.1) — Parallel rule for QST.

Proposed Addition — 248(18.1)

(18.1) Repayment of Quebec input tax refund — For the purposes of this Act, if an amount is added at a particular time in determining the net tax of a taxpayer under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T-0.1, in respect of an input tax refund relating to property or service that had been previously deducted in determining the net tax of the taxpayer, that amount is deemed to be assistance repaid at the particular time in respect of the property or service under a legal obligation to repay all or part of that assistance.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(21), will add subsec. 248(18.1), applicable after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(18.1) provides that an amount added in determining net tax of a taxpayer under An Act respecting Quebec Sales Tax in respect of an input tax refund relating to a property or service that had previously been deducted in computing such net tax is treated as assistance repaid under a legal obligation to repay that assistance. Such an amount could be so added under Quebec law pursuant to an assessment of Quebec sales tax. As a consequence, such an amount will either be deducted in computing income under paragraph 20(1)(hh) or will increase the cost or capital cost of the related property or the amount of the related expenditure or expenditure pool for tax purposes (as provided under subsection 13(7.1), paragraphs 37(1)(e) and 53(2)(k) and under the definitions "cumulative Canadian exploration expense" in subsection 66.1(6), "cumulative Canadian development expense" in subsection 66.2(5) and "cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense" in subsection 66.4(5)).

Related Provisions: 20(1)(hh) — Deduction for repayment of assistance; 39(13) — Capital loss on repayment of assistance; 53(1)(e)(ix)(B) — Adjusted cost base of partnership interest; 127(10.7) — Investment tax credit — repayment of assistance; 248(18) — Parallel rule for GST.

(19) When property available for use — Except as otherwise provided, property shall be considered to have become available for use for the purposes of this Act at the time at which it has, or would have if it were depreciable property, become available for use for the purpose of subsection 13(26).

Related Provisions: 13(27)–(31) — Meaning of "available for use"; 37(1.2) — R&D capital expenditures; 127(11.2) — Investment tax credit.

History: Subsec. 248(19) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(18), applicable after 1989.

(20) Partition of property — Subject to subsections (21) to (23), for the purposes of this Act, where at any time a property owned by two or more persons is the subject of a partition, the following rules apply, notwithstanding any retroactive or declaratory effect of the partition:

(a) each such person who had an interest in the property immediately before that time shall be deemed not to have disposed at that time of that proportion, not exceeding 100%, of the interest that the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately after that time is of the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately before that time,

(b) each such person who has an interest in the property immediately after that time shall be deemed not to have acquired at that time that proportion of the interest that the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately before that time is of the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately after that time,

(c) each such person who had an interest in the property immediately before that time shall be deemed to have had until that time, and to have disposed at that time of, that proportion of the person's interest to which paragraph (a) does not apply,

(d) each such person who has an interest in the property immediately after that time shall be deemed not to have had before that time, and to have acquired at that time, that proportion of the person's interest to which paragraph (b) does not apply, and

(e) paragraphs (a) to (d) do not apply where the interest of the person is an interest in fungible tangible property described in that person's inventory, and, for the purposes of this subsection, where an interest in the property is an undivided interest, the fair market value of the interest at any time shall be deemed to be equal to that proportion of the fair market value of the property at that time that the interest is of all the undivided interests in the property.

Proposed Amendment — 248(20)

(20) Partition of property — Subject to subsections (21) to (23), for the purposes of this Act, if at any time a property owned by two or more persons is the subject of a partition, the following rules apply, notwithstanding any retroactive or declaratory effect of the partition:

(a) each such person who had, immediately before that time, an interest in, or for civil law a right in, the property (which interest or right in the property is referred to in this subsection and subsection (21) as an "interest" or a "right", as the case may be) is deemed not to have disposed at that time of that proportion, not exceeding 100%, of the interest or right that the fair market value of that person's interest or right in the property immediately after that time is of the fair market value of that person's interest or right in the property immediately before that time,

(b) each such person who has an interest or right in the property immediately after that time is deemed not to have acquired at that time that proportion of the interest or right that the fair market value of that person's interest or right in the property immediately before that time is of the fair market value of that person's interest or right in the property immediately after that time,

(c) each such person who had an interest or a right in the property immediately before that time is deemed to have had until that time, and to have disposed at that time of, that proportion of the person's interest or right to which paragraph (a) does not apply,

(d) each such person who has an interest or a right in the property immediately after that time is deemed not to have had before that time, and to have acquired at that time, that proportion of the person's interest or right to which paragraph (b) does not apply, and

(e) paragraphs (a) to (d) do not apply if the interest or right of the person is an interest or a right in fungible tangible property, or for civil law fungible corporeal property described in that person's inventory, and, for the purposes of this subsection, if an interest or a right in the property is an undivided interest or right, the fair market value of the interest or right at any time is deemed to be equal to that proportion of the fair market value of the property at that time that the interest or right is of all the undivided interests or rights in the property.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — bijuralism), subsec. 254(6), will amend subsec. 248(20) to read as above, to come into force on Royal Assent.

Subsec. 248(20) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(18), applicable after July 13, 1990 except that the subsec. does not apply to a partition effected before 1992

(a) pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing entered into on or before that day; or

(b) in accordance with a confirmation in writing from the Department of National Revenue or a provincial department of revenue as to the tax consequences of that partition, where the confirmation is in respect of a written request received by such department on or before that day.

(21) Subdivision of property — Where a property that was owned by two or more persons is the subject of a partition among those persons and, as a consequence thereof, each such person has, in the property, a new interest the fair market value of which immediately after the partition, expressed as a percentage of the fair market value of all the new interests in the property immediately after the partition, is equal to the fair market value of that person's undivided interest immediately before the partition, expressed as a percentage of the fair market value of all the undivided interests in the property immediately before the partition,

(a) subsection (20) does not apply to the property, and

(b) the new interest of each such person shall be deemed to be a continuation of that person's undivided interest in the property immediately before the partition,

and, for the purposes of this subsection,

(c) subdivisions of a building or of a parcel of land that are established in the course of, or in contemplation of, a partition and that are co-owned by the same persons who co-owned the building or the parcel of land, or by their assignee, shall be regarded as one property, and

(d) where an interest in the property is or includes an undivided interest, the fair market value of the interest shall be determined without regard to any discount or premium that applies to a minority or majority interest in the property.

Proposed Amendment — 248(21)

(21) Subdivision of property — If a property that was owned by two or more persons is the subject of a partition among those persons and, as a consequence of it, each such person has, in the property, a new interest or right the fair market value of which immediately after the partition, expressed as a percentage of the fair market value of all the new interests or rights in the property immediately after the partition, is equal to the fair market value of that person's undivided interest or right immediately before the partition, expressed as a percentage of the fair market value of all the undivided interests or rights in the property immediately before the partition,

(a) subsection (20) does not apply to the property, and

(b) the new interest or right of each such person is deemed to be a continuation of that person's undivided interest or right in the property immediately before the partition,

and, for the purposes of this subsection,

(c) subdivisions of a building or of a parcel of land that are established in the course of, or in contemplation of, a partition and that are co-owned by the same persons who co-owned the building or the parcel of land, or by their assignee, shall be regarded as one property, and

(d) if an interest or a right in the property is or includes an undivided interest or right, the fair market value of the interest or right shall be determined without regard to any discount or premium that applies to a minority or majority interest or right in the property.

(22) Matrimonial regimes — Where at any time property could, as the consequence of the dissolution of a matrimonial regime between 2 spouses or common-law partners, be the subject of a partition, for the purposes of this Act

(a) where that property was owned by one of the spouses or common-law partners immediately before it became subject to that regime and had not subsequently been disposed of before that time, it shall be deemed to be owned at that time by that spouse or common-law partner and not by the other spouse or common-law partner; and

(b) in any other case, the property shall be deemed to be owned by the spouse or common-law partner who has the administration of that property at that time and not by the other spouse or common-law partner.

(25) Beneficially interested — For the purposes of this Act,

(a) a person or partnership beneficially interested in a particular trust includes any person or partnership that has any right (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any person or partnership) as a beneficiary under a trust to receive any of the income or capital of the particular trust either directly from the particular trust or indirectly through one or more trusts or partnerships;

(b) except for the purpose of this paragraph, a particular person or partnership is deemed to be beneficially interested in a particular trust at a particular time where

(i) the particular person or partnership is not beneficially interested in the particular trust at the particular time,

(ii) because of the terms or conditions of the particular trust or any arrangement in respect of the particular trust at the particular time, the particular person or partnership might, because of the exercise of any discretion by any person or partnership, become beneficially interested in the particular trust at the particular time or at a later time, and

(iii) at or before the particular time, either

(A) the particular trust has acquired property, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, from

(I) the particular person or partnership,

(II) another person with whom the particular person or partnership, or a member of the particular partnership, does not deal at arm's length,

(III) a person or partnership with whom the other person referred to in subclause (II) does not deal at arm's length,

(IV) a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular person or of another person with whom the particular person or partnership, or a member of the particular partnership, does not deal at arm's length, or

(V) a non-resident corporation that would, if the particular partnership were a corporation resident in Canada, be a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular partnership, or

(B) a person or partnership described in any of subclauses (A)(I) to (V) has given a guarantee on behalf of the particular trust or provided any other financial assistance whatever to the particular trust; and

(c) a member of a partnership that is beneficially interested in a trust is deemed to be beneficially interested in the trust.

(25.1) Trust-to-trust transfers — If, at any time, a particular trust transfers property to another trust (other than a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or by a registered retirement income fund) in circumstances to which paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1) applies, without affecting the personal liabilities under this Act of the trustees of either trust or the application of subsection 104(5.8) and paragraph 122(2)(f),

(a) the other trust is deemed to be after that time the same trust as, and a continuation of, the particular trust; and

(b) for greater certainty, if, as a result of a transaction or event, the property was deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the particular trust by any of paragraphs 51(1)(f), 85(1)(i) and 85.1(1)(a), subsection 85.1(5), paragraph 85.1(8)(b), subsections 87(4) and (5) and paragraphs 97(2)(c) and 107(3.1)(d), the property is also deemed to be, at any time that is within 60 months after the transaction or event, taxable Canadian property of the other trust.

History: Subsec. 248(25.1) amended by 2010, c. 12, subsec. 22(2), applicable in determining after March 4, 2010 whether a property is taxable Canadian property of a taxpayer. It formerly read:

> (25.1) Where at any time a particular trust transfers property to another trust (other than a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or by a registered retirement income fund) in circumstances to which paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1) applies, without affecting the personal liabilities under this Act of the trustees of either trust or the application of subsection 104(5.8) and paragraph 122(2)(f), the other trust is deemed to be after that time the same trust as, and a continuation of, the particular trust, and, for greater certainty, if the property was deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the particular trust by paragraph 51(1)(f), 85(1)(i) or 85.1(1)(a) or (8)(b), subsection 85.1(5) or 87(4) or (5) or paragraph 97(2)(c) or 107(2)(d.1) or (3.1)(d), the property is deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the other trust.

Subsec. 248(25.1) amended by 2009, c. 2, subsec. 76(6), applicable after December 19, 2007. It formerly read:

> (25.1) Where at any time a particular trust transfers property to another trust (other than a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or by a registered retirement income fund) in circumstances to which paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1) applies, without affecting the personal liabilities under this Act of the trustees of either trust or the application of subsection 104(5.8) and paragraph 122(2)(f), the other trust is deemed to be after that time the same trust as, and a continuation of, the particular trust.

Subsec. 248(25.1) added by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 188(6), applicable to transfers that occur after December 23, 1998.

(25.2) Trusts to ensure obligations fulfilled — Except for the purpose of this subsection, where at any time property is transferred to a trust in circumstances to which paragraph (k) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1) applies, the trust is deemed to deal with the property as agent for the transferor throughout the period that begins at the time of the transfer and ends at the time of the first change after that time in the beneficial ownership of the property.

History: Subsec. 248(25.2) added by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 188(6), applicable to transfers that occur after December 23, 1998.

(25.3) Cost of trust interest — The cost to a taxpayer of a particular unit of a trust is deemed to be equal to the amount described in paragraph (a) where

(a) the trust issues the particular unit to the taxpayer directly in satisfaction of a right to enforce payment of an amount by the trust in respect of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust;

(b) at the time that the particular unit is issued, the trust is neither a personal trust nor a trust prescribed for the purpose of subsection 107(2); and

(c) either

(i) the particular unit is capital property and subparagraph 53(2)(h)(i.1) applies in respect of the amount described in paragraph (a), or would apply if that subparagraph were read without reference to clauses 53(2)(h)(i.1)(A) and (B), or

Proposed Amendment — 248(25.3)(c)(i)

(i) the particular unit is capital property and the amount is not proceeds of disposition of a capital interest in the trust, or

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(23), will amend subpara. 248(25.3)(c)(i) to read as above, applicable to units issued after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 248(25.3) applies where a trust (other than a personal trust or a trust prescribed for the purpose of subsection 107(2)) issues particular units of the trust to a taxpayer directly in satisfaction of a right to a qualifying amount payable from the trust in respect of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust. In such a case, the cost to the taxpayer of the particular units is deemed to equal the amount so payable. Subparagraph 248(25.3)(c)(i) provides that in the case of particular units of a trust that are capital property, a qualifying amount payable is one that causes, or but for clauses 53(2)(h)(i.1)(A) and (B) would cause, a reduction under subparagraph 53(2)(h)(i.1) to the adjusted cost base of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust.

Subparagraph 248(25.3)(c)(i) is amended to provide that, in the case of particular units of a trust that are capital property, a qualifying amount payable is an amount payable that does not represent proceeds of disposition of a capital interest in the trust.

(ii) the particular unit is not capital property and subparagraph 53(2)(h)(i.1) does not apply in respect of the amount described in paragraph (a) but would so apply if that subparagraph were read without reference to clauses 53(2)(h)(i.1)(A) and (B).

History: Subsec. 248(25.3) added by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 188(6), applicable to 1999 et seq.

(25.4) Where acquisition by another of right to enforce — If at a particular time a taxpayer's capital interest in a trust includes a right to enforce payment of an amount by the trust, the amount shall be added at the particular time to the cost otherwise determined to the taxpayer of the capital interest where

(a) immediately after the particular time there is a disposition by the taxpayer of the capital interest;

(b) as a consequence of the disposition, the right to enforce payment of the amount is acquired by another person or partnership; and

(c) if the right to enforce payment of the amount had been satisfied by a payment to the taxpayer by the trust, there would have been no disposition of that right for the purposes of this Act because of the application of paragraph (i) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1).

Related Provisions: 107(1.1) — Cost of capital interest in a trust.

History: Subsec. 248(25.4) added by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 188(6), applicable to transfers that occur after December 23, 1998.

(26) Debt obligations — For greater certainty, where at any time a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "debtor") becomes liable to repay money borrowed by the debtor or becomes liable to pay an amount (other than interest)

(a) as consideration for any property acquired by the debtor or services rendered to the debtor, or

(b) that is deductible in computing the debtor's income, for the purposes of applying the provisions of this Act relating to the treatment of the debtor in respect of the liability, the liability shall be considered to be an obligation, issued at that time by the debtor, that has a principal amount at that time equal to the amount of the liability at that time.

(27) Parts of debt obligations — For greater certainty,

(a) unless the context requires otherwise, an obligation issued by a debtor includes any part of a larger obligation that was issued by the debtor;

(b) the principal amount of that part shall be considered to be the portion of the principal amount of that larger obligation that relates to that part; and

(c) the amount for which that part was issued shall be considered to be the portion of the amount for which that larger obligation was issued that relates to that part.

Related Provisions: 43 — Partial disposition of capital property; 142.4(9) — Partial disposition of specified debt obligation by financial institution.

History: Subsec. 248(27) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 43(3), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994.

(28) Limitation respecting inclusions, deductions and tax credits — Unless a contrary intention is evident, no provision of this Act shall be read or construed

(a) to require the inclusion or permit the deduction, either directly or indirectly, in computing a taxpayer's income, taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada, for a taxation year or in computing a taxpayer's income or loss for a taxation year from a particular source or from sources in a particular place, of any amount to the extent that the amount has already been directly or indirectly included or deducted, as the case may be, in computing such income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or loss, for the year or any preceding taxation year;

(b) to permit the deduction, either directly or indirectly, in computing a taxpayer's tax payable under any Part of this Act for a taxation year of any amount to the extent that the amount has already been directly or indirectly deducted in computing such tax payable for the year or any preceding taxation year; or

(c) to consider an amount to have been paid on account of a taxpayer's tax payable under any Part of this Act for a taxation year to the extent that the amount has already been considered to have been paid on account of such tax payable for the year or any preceding taxation year.

Proposed Addition — 248(30)–(33)

Technical Notes (July 2010): At common law, it is generally the view that a gift includes only a property transferred voluntarily, without any contractual obligation and with no advantage of a material character returned to the transferor.

In contrast, under section 1806 of the Civil Code of Québec ("CCQ"), a gift in Quebec is a contract by which ownership of property is transferred by gratuitous title. However, the rights of ownership may be separated, such that it may be possible for a transferor to transfer part of the rights of ownership without any material advantage returned (i.e., by way of gift) and to transfer the other part separately for consideration. It is therefore possible, in Quebec, to sell a property to a charity at a price below fair market value, resulting in a gift of the difference.

Under both the common law and the CCQ, it is generally accepted that a transfer of property is not a gift unless the donor is impoverished by the transfer to the benefit of the donee and it is the donor's intention to enrich the donee without consideration.

At common law there is generally no ability to separate the rights of ownership of a single property in the course of making a gift. As such, at common law a contract to dispose of a property to a charity at a price below fair market value would not generally be considered to include a gift.

Nevertheless, there have been certain decisions made under the common law where it has been found that a transfer of property to a charity was made partly in consideration for services and partly as a gift.

Subsections 248.30(1), (31) and (32) are added to the Act to clarify the circumstances under which taxpayers and donees may be eligible for tax benefits available under the Act in respect of the impoverishment of a taxpayer in favour of a donee. In addition to the clarification provided by these new rules, on December 24, 2002, the Canada Revenue Agency released guidelines (Income Tax Technical News No. 26) that describe how it will apply the new rules to various situations and fundraising methods commonly used in the charitable sector. Subsection 248(34) provides technical rules regarding the repayment of debt that previously reduced the eligible amount of a gift. Subsections 248(35) to (39) provide technical rules regarding the eligible amount of a gift or the value of property transferred and benefits receivable, that apply in calculating the eligible amount of a gift or political contribution. New subsection 149(3) provides that the rule in subsection 248(30) does not generally apply to inter-charity transfers. New subsection 241(4) deems the eligible amount of a gift to be nil if a donor fails to provide that information.

In general, these provisions are intended to reflect the policy that the amount eligible for an income tax benefit to a donor, by way of a charitable donation deduction or credit or a political contributions tax credit, should reflect the economic impact on the donor (before considering the income tax benefits of the gift or contribution).

(30) Intention to give — The existence of an amount of an advantage in respect of a transfer of property does not in and by itself disqualify the transfer from being a gift to a qualified donee if

(a) the amount of the advantage does not exceed 80% of the fair market value of the transferred property; or

(b) the transferor of the property establishes to the satisfaction of the Minister that the transfer was made with the intention to make a gift.

Technical Notes (July 2010): For the transfer of property to qualify as a gift, it is necessary that the transfer be voluntary and with the intention to make a gift. At common law, where the transferor of the property has received any financial consideration or benefit, it is generally presumed that such an intention is not present. New subsection 248.30(1), which applies in respect of transfers of property after December 20, 2002 to qualified donees (such as registered charities), allows the opportunity to rebut this presumption. New paragraph 248(30)(a) provides that the existence of an amount of an advantage to the transferor will not necessarily disqualify the transfer from being a gift if the amount of the advantage does not exceed 80% of the fair market value of the transferred property.

Example

Mr. Short transfers land and a building with a fair market value of $300,000 to a registered charity. The charity assumes liability for an outstanding $200,000 mortgage on the property. The assumption of the mortgage by the charity does not necessarily disqualify the transfer from being a gift for the purposes of the Act.

If the value of the mortgage is equal to the outstanding amount (i.e., the interest rate and terms and conditions are representative of current market conditions), the eligible amount of the gift, in respect of which Mr. Short may be entitled to a tax credit under subsection 118.1(3), is $240,000.

If the amount of an advantage in respect of a transfer of property exceeds 80% of the fair market value of the transferred property, new paragraph 248.30(1)(b) provides that the transfer will not necessarily be disqualified from being a gift if the transferor can establish to the satisfaction of the Minister of National Revenue that the transfer was made with the intention to make a gift.

In the above example, if the amount of the mortgage outstanding had been greater than $240,000, Mr. Short (or the charity on Mr. Short's behalf) could apply to the Minister of National Revenue for a determination as to whether the transfer was made with the intention to make a gift.

It is generally accepted that the tax benefit available to a taxpayer, by way of a charitable donation deduction or credit, is not considered an advantage or benefit that would reflect a lack of donative intent on the part of a taxpayer. However, there may be circumstances where the intention of a taxpayer to make a gift is in doubt because of the combination of tax and other benefits to the taxpayer. It is the primary intention of a taxpayer for entering into a transaction or series of transactions (s.) to receive a profit to the taxpayer by way of a combination of tax and other benefits, the taxpayer may not be impoverished by the transfer of a property to a charity. Subsection 248(30) is not intended to allow a taxpayer to profit by the making of a gift.

Dept. of Finance news release 2003-061, Dec. 5, 2003: The Minister also released draft amendments relating to limited-recourse debt and "split-receipting." These measures implement proposals announced in Budget 2003 that address charitable donation arrangements that were promoted in recent years, including the use of limited-recourse debt. [See 143.2(6.1) and 248(34) — ed.] The draft amendments also incorporate changes put forward in December 2002 relating to the right to receive a benefit in respect of the donation. (31) Eligible amount of gift or monetary contribution [split receipting] — The eligible amount of a gift or monetary contribution is the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift or monetary contribution exceeds the amount of the advantage, if any, in respect of the gift or monetary contribution.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(31), which applies in respect of gifts and political contributions made after December 20, 2002, defines the eligible amount of a gift or contribution as the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift or contribution exceeds the amount of the advantage, if any, in respect of the gift or contribution. Subsection 248(31) is added concurrently with amendments to subsections 130.1(1) and 118.1(1), which describe the types of gifts in respect of which an eligible amount will qualify for a deduction (for corporations) or a tax credit (for individuals). The amount of the advantage in respect of a gift or contribution is described in new subsection 248(32).

(32) Amount of advantage — The amount of the advantage in respect of a gift or monetary contribution by a taxpayer is the total of

(a) the total of all amounts, other than an amount referred to in paragraph (b), each of which is the value, at the time the gift or monetary contribution is made, of any property, service, compensation, use or other benefit that the taxpayer, or a person or partnership who does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer, has received, obtained or enjoyed, or is entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to receive, obtain, or enjoy

(i) that is consideration for the gift or monetary contribution,

(ii) that is in gratitude for the gift or monetary contribution, or

(iii) that is in any other way related to the gift or monetary contribution, and

(b) the limited-recourse debt, determined under subsection 143.2(6.1), in respect of the gift or monetary contribution at the time the gift or monetary contribution is made.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(32), which generally applies in respect of gifts or political contributions made after December 20, 2002, describes the amount of an advantage in respect of a gift or contribution as, in general, the total value of all property, services, compensation or other benefits to which the donor of a property is entitled.

Subsection 248(32) is added concurrently with the addition of subsection 248(31), which defines the eligible amount of a gift or contribution, and with the amendment of subsection 127(3) in respect of contributions to a political party. The amount of an advantage reduces the eligible amount of a gift or contribution.

In general, new subsection 248(32) is intended to apply in respect of any transaction or series of transactions having either the purpose or the effect of reducing the economic impact to a donor of a gift or contribution. This includes, for instance, situations where a charity invests funds or acquires property in a manner that benefits the donor. The reduction to an eligible amount also includes an advantage that is partial consideration for, or in gratitude for, the gift or contribution, or is in any way related to the gift or contribution. An example would include the option of a donor to satisfy or pay a loan by assigning or transferring to another person a property (including the rights under an insurance policy) that has less economic value than the amount of loan outstanding. Another example would include an assumption of a donor's risk by a charity, where the acquisition, directly or indirectly, of an interest in a property of the donor by the charity may have the effect of reducing the potential loss of the donor from that investment. (However, a tax credit or deduction resulting from a charitable donation is not considered a benefit.)

An advantage may exist even though it is not received at the time of the gift or contribution. For example, it may have been received prior to the time of the gift or may be contingent or receivable in the future. The advantage may accrue either to the donor or to a person not dealing at arm's length with the donor. It is not necessary that the advantage be receivable from the donee.

Paragraph 248(32)(b) includes as an advantage any limited-recourse debt in respect of the gift or contribution. For additional details regarding limited-recourse debt, see the commentary to new subsection 143.2(6.1) of the Act.

Related Provisions: 248(30) — Existence of advantage does not negate gift; 248(33) — Deemed cost of property acquired; 248(34) — Repayment of limited-recourse debt.

Regulations: 2000(1)(h), 2000(2)(i) (amount of advantage to be disclosed in political contribution receipts); 3501(1)(h.1), 3501(1.1)(h.1) (amount of advantage to be disclosed in charitable donation receipts).

(33) Cost of property acquired by donor — The cost to a taxpayer of a property, acquired by the taxpayer in circumstances where subsection (32) applies to include the value of the property in computing the amount of the advantage in respect of a gift or monetary contribution, is equal to the fair market value of the property at the time the gift or monetary contribution is made.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(33), which applies in respect of gifts or political contributions made after December 20, 2002, provides that the cost to a taxpayer of property acquired by the taxpayer in the course of the making of a gift or contribution by the taxpayer is the fair market value of the property at the time of the making of the gift or contribution. The fair market value of such a property is relevant in computing the amount of the advantage in respect of the gift or contribution under subsection 248(32).

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(24), will add subsecs. 248(30)–(33), applicable in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made after December 20, 2002, except that subsec. 248(32) is to be read without reference to

(i) its para. (b) in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made before February 19, 2003, and

Proposed Addition — 248(34)

(34) Repayment of limited-recourse debt — If at any time in a taxation year a taxpayer has paid an amount (in this subsection referred to as the "repaid amount") on account of the principal amount of an indebtedness which was, before that time, an unpaid principal amount that was a limited-recourse debt referred to in subsection 143.2(6.1) (in this subsection referred to as the "former limited-recourse debt") in respect of a gift or monetary contribution (in this subsection referred to as the "original gift" or "original monetary contribution", respectively, as the case may be) of the taxpayer (otherwise than by way of an assignment or transfer of a guarantee, security or similar indemnity or covenant, or by way of a payment in respect of which any taxpayer referred to in subsection 143.2(6.1) has incurred an indebtedness that would be a limited-recourse debt referred to in that subsection if that indebtedness were in respect of a gift or monetary contribution made at the time that that indebtedness was incurred), the following rules apply:

(a) if the former limited-recourse debt is in respect of the original gift, for the purposes of sections 110.1 and 118.1, the taxpayer is deemed to have made in the taxation year a gift to a qualified donee, the eligible amount of which deemed gift is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would have been the eligible amount of the original gift, if the total of all such repaid amounts paid at or before that time were paid immediately before the original gift was made,

exceeds

(ii) the total of

(A) the eligible amount of the original gift, and

(B) the eligible amount of all other gifts deemed by this paragraph to have been made before that time in respect of the original gift; and

(b) if the former limited-recourse debt is in respect of the original monetary contribution, for the purposes of subsection 127(3), the taxpayer is deemed to have made in the taxation year a monetary contribution referred to in that subsection, the eligible amount of which is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would have been the eligible amount of the original monetary contribution, if the total of all such repaid amounts paid at or before that time were paid immediately before the original monetary contribution was made,

exceeds

(ii) the total of

(A) the eligible amount of the original monetary contribution, and

(B) the eligible amount of all other monetary contributions deemed by this paragraph to have been made before that time in respect of the original monetary contribution.

Application The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 148(34), will add subsec. 248(34), applicable in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made after February 18, 2003.

Technical Notes (July 2010) New subsection 248(34), which applies in respect of gifts or political contributions made after February 18, 2003, generally provides that a repayment of the principal amount of a limited-recourse debt in respect of a gift or political contribution is deemed to be a gift in the year it is paid. However, in some circumstances the total amount of limited-recourse debt and other advantages to the donor may exceed the fair market value of the property transferred to a charity, resulting in no eligible amount to the donor under subsection 248(31). In this case, the donor must pay off the excess amount before any amount will be allowed as a gift. Also, a payment financed by other limited-recourse debt or made by way of assignment or transfer of a guarantee, security or similar indemnity or covenant is not recognized for these purposes. For example, the assumption of a taxpayer's limited-recourse debt by another person in exchange for an insurance policy in favour of the taxpayer that guarantees a particular rate of return on an investment held by any person, would not qualify as a deemed gift under subsection 248(34).

Dept. of Finance news release 2003-061, Dec. 5, 2003 The Minister also released draft amendments relating to limited-recourse debt and "gifts-and-swaps". These measures implement proposals introduced in Budget 2003 that address charitable donation arrangements that were promoted in recent years involving the use of limited-recourse debt. [See under 248(35)-(41) for full text of news release — ed.]

Proposed Addition — 248(35)–(41)

(35) Deemed fair market value [of donated property] — For the purposes of subsection (31), paragraph 69(1)(b) and subsections 110.1(2,1) and (3) and 118.1(5.4) and (6), the fair market value of a property that is the subject of a gift made by a taxpayer to a qualified donee is deemed to be the lesser of the fair market value of the property otherwise determined and the cost, or in the case of capital property, the adjusted cost base, or in the case of a life insurance policy in respect of which the taxpayer is a policyholder, the adjusted cost basis (as defined in subsection 148(9)), of the property to the taxpayer immediately before the gift is made if

(a) the taxpayer acquired the property under a gifting arrangement that is a tax shelter as defined in subsection 237.1(1), or

(b) except where the gift is made as a consequence of the taxpayer's death,

(i) the taxpayer acquired the property less than 3 years before the day that the gift is made, or

(ii) the taxpayer acquired the property less than 10 years before the day that the gift is made and it is reasonable to conclude that, at the time the taxpayer acquired the property, one of the main reasons for the acquisition was to make a gift of the property to a qualified donee.

Technical Notes (July 2010) New subsection 248(35), which applies in respect of a gift made after 6:00 p.m. (EST), December 5, 2003, provides that the fair market value of a property that is the subject of a gift is, for the purposes of determining the eligible amount of a gift under subsection 248(31), deemed to be the lesser of the actual fair market value of the property and its cost to the donor. This rule applies if the property was acquired by the donor as part of a gifting arrangement that is a tax shelter. For more information on gifting arrangements, refer to the commentary for subsection 237.1(1).

Unless the donation is made as a consequence of the donor's death, this rule also applies if the property was acquired

- less than three years before the time of donation, or
- less than 10 years before that time, if one of the main purposes of acquisition was to sell the property to a qualified donee.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 23, 2004

Mr. Alain Ranger, Fasken Martineau DuMoulin LLP, Montreal, QC

Dear Mr. Ranger:

SUBJECT: Draft Amendments Regarding Charitable Donations

I am writing in regard to your letter of April 15, 2004 and your subsequent discussions with us, concerning the draft amendments to the Income Tax Act ("the Act") proposed by the Minister of Finance on December 5, 2003. You have suggested that these proposed amendments be revised to grandfather gifts made pursuant to a written undertaking given before that date.

It is our view that such a basis for grandfathering could be problematic in the area of gifting, since it may be argued as a matter of law that a promise to make a gift is not enforceable. However, we have read with interest the submissions of others who have suggested that proposed subsection 248(35) of the Act not apply in respect of newly-listed shares acquired in the context of a rollover of property to a corporation. We also understand that, in the situation you describe, the donated shares are publicly traded shares that do not meet the exception in proposed paragraph 248(36)(a) of the Act because the gift will be made as a private foundation.

The proposed rule in subsection 248(35) is not, in general, intended to apply in respect of property that has been held for longer than three years and was not originally acquired with an expectation of donation. Accordingly, a result that would come into section 248(35) apply simply because that property has been substituted with another property for the purposes of rolling a donation, would be inconsistent with the intent of the proposed rule. However, we would have policy concerns if an exception to the proposed rule could be used by a donor, or a related group of taxpayers that includes the donor, to avoid the application of the rule to property that has been held less than three years or acquired with an expectation of donation.

To accommodate your concerns, without creating an opportunity for avoidance, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that an exception to proposed subsection 248(35) apply in respect of the donation of certain shares of a private corporation completed by the donor or a person related to the donor. These shares would be exempted from the proposed rule if they were received as consideration for property transferred to the corporation, to which subsection 248(35) would not have applied if instead that property had been donated, at the time of the transfer, by the transferor to a qualified donee. However, no tax deduction or credit would be available if it is established by the Canada Revenue Agency that a particular gift was related to a transaction or series of transactions in respect of which one of the purposes was to avoid the application of subsection 248(35) to any gift of any property.

We will recommend that this exception have the same coming-into-force as subsection 248(35) of the Act.

Of course, I can offer no assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendation that I have described. Nonetheless, I hope that this discussion is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Lee Parker, General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Related Provisions 5(1)(b) — Gift of property acquired at prior to its fair market value; 8(1)(z.6,z.7) — Deduction of employee's contribution; 110.1(2,1) and (3), 118.1(5.4) and (6) — Amalgamation or windup — continuing corporation; 237.1(7) — Definition of "gifting arrangement" and "tax shelter"; 248(36) — Non-arm's length acquisition by donor; 248(37) — Exception; 248(38) — Anti-avoidance rule — artificial transactions; 248(39) — Anti-avoidance — selling property and donating proceeds; 248(41) — Donative value deemed nil if acquired does not initiate donee of circumstances requiring reduction.

I.T. Technical News 41 (donation of flow-through shares).

Registered Charities Newsletters 18 (charitable donation tax shelter arrangements); 24 (determining fair market value).

(36) Non-arm's length transaction — If a taxpayer acquired a property that is the subject of a gift to which subsection (35) applies because of subparagraph (35)(b)(ii) or (ii) and the property was, at any time within the 3-year or 10-year period, respectively, that ends when the gift was made, acquired by a person or partnership with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, for the purpose of applying subsection (35) to the taxpayer, the cost, or in the case of capital property, the adjusted cost base, of the property to the taxpayer immediately before the gift is made is deemed to be equal to the lowest amount that is the cost, or in the case of capital property, the adjusted cost base, to the taxpayer or any of those persons or partnerships immediately before the property was disposed of by that person or partnership.

Technical Notes (July 2010) New subsection 248(36) applies in conjunction with subsection 248(35), to "look back" to discover whether a donated property was previously acquired by a person dealing non-arm's length with the donor. If subsection 248(35) applies because the donor acquired the property within the three years of donation, then if a non-arm's length person owned that property within that three-year period, the value of the gift to the donor will be the lower of the taxpayer's cost and the lowest cost to any such non-arm's length person.

Similarly, the rule will apply if subsection (35) applies because the taxpayer acquired the property within the last ten years and one of the main reasons of the acquisition was to gift the property, if a non-arm's length person acquired that property within that ten year period

Related Provisions: 248(41) – Donation value deemed nil if taxpayer does not inform donee of circumstances requiring reduction.

(37) Non-application of subsec. (35) — Subsection (35) does not apply to a gift

(a) of inventory;

(b) of real property or an immovable situated in Canada;

(c) of an object referred to in subparagraph 39(1)(a)(i.1);

(d) of property to which paragraph 38(a.1) or (a.2) applies;

(e) of a share of the capital stock of a corporation if

(i) the share was issued by the corporation to the donor,

(ii) immediately before the gift, the corporation was controlled by the donor, a person related to the donor or a group of persons each of whom is related to the donor, and

(iii) subsection (35) would not have applied in respect of the consideration for which the share was issued had that consideration been donated by the donor to the qualified donee when the share was so donated;

(f) by a corporation of property if

(i) the property was acquired by the corporation in circumstances to which subsection 85(1) or (2) applied,

(ii) immediately before the gift, the shareholder from whom the corporation acquired the property controlled the corporation or was related to a person or each member of a group of persons that controlled the corporation, and

(iii) subsection (35) would not have applied in respect of the property had the property not been transferred to the corporation and had the shareholder made the gift to the qualified donee when the corporation so made the gift; or

(g) of a property that was acquired in circumstances where subsection 70(6) or (9) or 73(1), (3) or (4) applied, unless subsection (36) would have applied if this subsection were read without reference to this paragraph.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(37) provides exceptions to the application of subsection 248(35) where the property that is the subject of a gift is an ecological gift, inventory, real property situated in Canada, publicly-traded securities or cultural property, the value of which is certified by the Cultural Property Export Review Board.

In some circumstances, a shareholder might transfer a property to a controlled corporation in exchange for shares issued by the corporation, and then donate the shares. Alternatively, the corporation might donate the property it received. If subsection 248(35) would not have applied to a gift of a property by a shareholder, either because it is a type of property referred to above or because subsection 248(35) would not apply to the shareholder in any event, and if the shareholder donates the share, subsection 248(37) will further exempt the share from the application of subsection 248(35). If subsections 85(1) or 85(2) applied to the transfer of such an exempt property to the corporation, then subsection 248(37) will preclude the application of subsection 248(35) to that property if it is then donated by the corporation.

Similarly, sometimes a donor will make a gift of a property that was acquired in circumstances where subsection 70(6) or (9) or 73(1), (3) or (4) of the Act applied. In such a case, the donor has acquired the property from a transferor (such as a spouse) on a tax-deferred "rollover" basis. Unless the transferor acquired the property within the 3-year period referred to in subsection 248(35) (or the 10-year period, if applicable), subsection 248(37) provides that subsection 248(35) will not apply in these circumstances to deem the value of the gift to be the donor's rollover cost or adjusted cost base.

(38) Artificial transactions — The eligible amount of a particular gift of property by a taxpayer is nil if it can reasonably be concluded that the particular gift relates to a transaction or series of transactions

(a) one of the purposes of which is to avoid the application of subsection (35) to a gift of any property; or

(b) that would, if this Act were read without reference to this paragraph, result in a tax benefit to which subsection 245(2) applies.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(38) applies in respect of gifts made after 6:00 p.m. (EST), December 5, 2003, to prevent a donor from avoiding the application of subsection 248(35) by disposing and reacquiring a property before donating it to a qualified donee. If this is the purpose of any transaction or series of transactions that includes a disposition or acquisition of a property, for such gifts made before July 18, 2005, the cost of the property to the donor for the purpose of subsection 248(35) is deemed to be the lowest cost incurred by the taxpayer at any time to acquire that property or an identical property.

For gifts made on or after July 18, 2005, the eligible amount is deemed to be nil if a transaction or series of transactions

- has, as one of its purposes, the avoidance of the application of subsection 248(35), or
- would otherwise result in a tax benefit to which the General Anti-Avoidance Rule in subsection 245(2) would otherwise apply.

For example, the eligible amount of a gift resulting from a transaction or series to which subsection 248(38) would apply, if the gift were made before July 18, 2005, would be deemed to be nil if instead the gift were made on or on or after July 18, 2005.

The objectives of the provisions in the Act related to gifting are generally described above under the heading "Gifts and Contributions", but are not limited to that description.

Related Provisions: 248(41) — Donation value deemed nil if taxpayer does not inform donee of circumstances requiring reduction.

(39) Substantive gift [selling property and donating proceeds] — If a taxpayer disposes of a property (in this subsection referred to as the "substantive gift") that is a capital property or an eligible capital property of the taxpayer, to a recipient that is a registered party, a registered association or a candidate, as those terms are defined in the Canada Elections Act, or that is a qualified donee, subsection (35) would have applied in respect of the substantive gift if it had been the subject of a gift by the taxpayer to a qualified donee, and all or a part of the proceeds of disposition of the substantive gift are (or are substituted, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, for) property that is the subject of a gift or monetary contribution by the taxpayer to the recipient or any person dealing not at arm's length with the recipient, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purpose of subsection (31), the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift or monetary contribution made by the taxpayer is deemed to be that proportion of the lesser of the fair market value of the substantive gift and the cost, or if the substantive gift is capital property of the taxpayer, the adjusted cost base, of the substantive gift to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition to the recipient, that the fair market value otherwise determined of the property that is the subject of the gift or monetary contribution is of the proceeds of disposition of the substantive gift;

(b) if the substantive gift is capital property of the taxpayer, for the purpose of the definitions "proceeds of disposition" of property in subsection 13(21) and section 54, the sale price of the substantive gift is to be reduced by the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift (determined without reference to this section) exceeds the fair market value determined under paragraph (a); and

(c) if the substantive gift is eligible capital property of the taxpayer, the amount determined under paragraph (a) in the description of E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) in respect of the substantive gift is to be reduced by the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift (determined without reference to this section) exceeds the fair market value determined under paragraph (a).

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(39), which applies in respect of gifts made after February 26, 2004, prevents a donor from avoiding the application of subsection 248(35) by disposing a property (the "substantive gift") to a qualified donee and donating the proceeds, rather than donating the property itself. The provision applies similarly in respect of political contributions. The fair market value of the gift or contribution of the proceeds, for the purpose of determining its eligible amount under subsection 248(31) is deemed to be the lesser of the fair market value of the property and its cost. Subsection 248(30) does not apply if subsection 248(35) would not have applied to a gift by the taxpayer of that property.

Related Provisions: 248(41) — Donation value deemed nil if taxpayer does not inform donee of circumstances requiring reduction.

(40) Inter-charity gifts — Subsection (30) does not apply in respect of a gift received by a qualified donee from a registered charity.

Related Provisions: 248(41) — Eligible amount deemed nil if information not provided.

Technical Notes (July 2010): The July 18, 2003 proposal in respect of subsection 248(40) has been revised and replaced with an amended proposal.

New subsection 248(30) allows the opportunity for a donee to rebut the general presumption that the receipt of any form of consideration or benefit results in that lack of an intention to make a gift. Such a rule is unnecessary in the context of inter-charity transfers and could lead to complexities of the "disbursement quota" calculation of a charity under section 149.1. New subsection 248(40) therefore precludes the application of subsection 248(30) to transfers made by a registered charity to a qualified donee. Consequently, the eligible amount of a gift under new subsection 248(31) should always equal its fair market value.

[This was not included in the July 18, 2005 draft legislation. That draft contained a 248(40) which proposed that charities be required to issue receipts with respect to any donation of $5,000 or more, before issuing a receipt, to ascertain compliance with 248(31)-(39). It was withdrawn following objections from the charity sector — ed.]

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Nov. 29, 2005 [re former 248(40)]

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letter of November 2, 2005 in which you expressed concern regarding the administrative burden on charities that may be implied by [former] proposed subsection 248(40) of the Income Tax Act.

This proposal was made in response to suggestions from the charitable sector that charities were unsure as to what information should be obtained from donors in order to correctly prepare a receipt. It was recognized that in some cases charities would not have direct knowledge of all circumstances that might have implications for the eligible amount of a gift. The provision was intended to provide clarity as to what charities should ask their donors before preparing a receipt.

However, we recognize the difficulties that have been brought to light by this proposal. Therefore, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that proposed subsection 248(40) be withdrawn. As was the case before the proposal of this provision, charities will still be responsible for seeking relevant information from donors where the need for such information is apparent to them in the particular circumstances.

Thank you for bringing this matter to my attention.

Yours sincerely,

Les Farber, General Director, Tax Legislative Division, Tax Policy Branch

(41) Information not provided — Notwithstanding subsection (31), the eligible amount of a gift or monetary contribution made by a taxpayer is nil if the taxpayer does not — before a receipt referred to in subsection 110.1(2), 118.1(2) or 127(3), as the case may be, is issued in respect of the gift or monetary contribution — inform the qualified donee or the recipient, as the case may be, of any circumstances in respect of which subsection (31), (35), (36), (38) or (39) requires that the eligible amount of the gift or monetary contribution be less than the fair market value, determined without reference to subsection (35) and subsections 110.1(3) and 118.1(6), of the property that is the subject of the gift or monetary contribution.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 248(41), which applies in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made after 2006, provides that the eligible amount of a gift is nil if, before an official charitable receipt is issued by a donee, the donor fails to inform the donee of information that would be relevant to the application of subsections 248(31), (35), (36), (38) or (39). The donee requires such information for correct preparation of the receipt.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — economic update, 148(2)), will add subsec. 248(35)-(41), applicable in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made after December 20, 2002, except that

(a) subsec. 248(35), (37) and (38) do not apply in respect of gifts made before 5:00 p.m. EST on December 5, 2003 and that

(b) in respect of gifts made after that time but before March 18, 2007, para. 248(37)(a) is to be read as follows:

> (a) of property to which paragraph 110.1(1.1) or (1.2) would apply, if those paragraphs were read without reference to "other than a private foundation";

(b) in respect of gifts made after that time but before July 18, 2005, subsec. 248(38) is to be read as follows:

> (38) If it can reasonably be concluded that one of the reasons for a series of transactions that includes a disposition or acquisition of a property of a taxpayer that is the subject of a gift by the taxpayer is to increase the amount that would be deemed by subsection (35) to be the fair market value of the property, the cost of the property for the purpose of that subsection is deemed to be the lowest cost to the taxpayer to acquire that property or an identical property at any time.

(b) subsec. 248(26) does not apply in respect of gifts or monetary contributions made before July 18, 2005;

(c) subsec. 248(39) does not apply in respect of gifts or monetary contributions made before February 27, 2004;

(d) subsec. 248(40) does not apply in respect of gifts made before November 9, 2006; and

(e) subsec. 248(41) does not apply in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made before 2006.

Dept. of Finance news release 2003-061, Dec. 5, 2003: Government Announces Restrictions on Charitable Donation Tax Shelter Arrangements

John Manley, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Finance, today released draft amendments to the Income Tax Act limiting the tax benefits of charitable donations made under tax shelter and other arrangements.

The amendments proposed today respond to concerns that various promoters are marketing charitable gifting schemes to the public in which property acquired by a taxpayer is donated to a charity at a value represented to be in excess of the taxpayer's acquisition cost. These "buy-low, donate-high" arrangements provide taxpayers with a tax benefit greater than their actual cost of the donated property. These proposed amendments will not apply to gifts of publicly traded securities, certified cultural property, ecological gifts, or real property situated in Canada.

As of 6:00 p.m. EST on December 5, 2003, the value of a gift of property for charitable donation purposes will be limited to a donor's cost of the property, where it is donated within three years of acquisition by the donor or is otherwise acquired through a gifting arrangement or in contemplation of donation.

The Minister also released draft amendments relating to limited-recourse debt and "split-receipting." These measures implement proposals introduced in Budget 2003 that address charitable donation arrangements that were presented in recent years involving the use of limited-recourse debt [see 143(2)(c.1), 237.1(1)"gifting arrangement"(b) and 248(34) — ed.]. The draft amendments also incorporate changes put forward in December 2002 relating to the right to receive a benefit in respect of the donation [see 248(30)-(33) — ed.].

References in the draft legislation to "Announcement Time" (itself) be read to refer to 5:00 p.m. EST on December 5, 2003.

249. (1) Definition of "taxation year" — For the purpose of this Act, a "taxation year" is

(a) in the case of a corporation or Canadian resident partnership, a fiscal period, and

(b) in the case of an individual, a calendar year, and when a taxation year is referred to by reference to a calendar year, the reference is to the taxation year or years coinciding with, or ending in, that year.

Proposed Amendment — 249(1)

249. (1) Definition of "taxation year" — Except as expressly otherwise provided in this Act, a "taxation year" is

(a) in the case of a corporation, a fiscal period;

(b) in the case of an individual (other than a testamentary trust), a calendar year; and

(c) in the case of a testamentary trust, the period for which the accounts of the trust are made up for purposes of assessment under this Act.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 149(1), will amend subsec. 249(1) to read as above, applicable after December 20, 2002. See also the addition of para. 249(1)(d) by S.C. 2007, c. 29 (Bill C-52) below.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 249(1) sets out, for purposes of the Act, the definition "taxation year". Paragraph 249(1)(a) provides that in the case of a corporation, a taxation year is a fiscal period. Paragraph 249(1)(b) provides that the taxation year of an individual is the calendar year. Subsection 249(1) also provides that when a taxation year is referred to by reference to a calendar year, the reference is to the taxation year or years coinciding with, or ending in, that year.

Subsection 249(1) is amended to clarify that the definition "taxation year" contained in that subsection applies for purposes of the Act except as otherwise provided. For examples of exceptions, which apply for limited purposes, see the definitions "taxation year" in subsections 95(1) and 149.1(1).

Subsection 249(1) is also amended to add new paragraph 249(1)(c), which provides that the taxation year of a testamentary trust is the period for which the accounts of the trust are made up for purposes of assessment under the Act. This definition was previously contained in paragraph 104(23)(a), which is being repealed.

New subsection 249(1.1) provides that, when a taxation year is referred to by reference to a calendar year, the reference is to the taxation year or taxation years that coincide with, or that end in, that calendar year. This rule combines the identical rules previously found in paragraph 104(23)(b), which is repealed, and subsection 249(1).

These amendments apply after December 20, 2002. For a related set of amendments, see the commentary on paragraphs 104(23)(a) and (b).

Proposed Addition — 249(1)(d)

(d) in the case of a Canadian resident partnership, a fiscal period.

Application: S.C. 2007, c. 29 (Bill C-52, Royal Assent June 22, 2007), s. 42, will add para. 249(1)(d) once Bill C-10 (2007) (now replaced by July 16, 2010 proposed amendment above) receives Royal Assent, deemed to have come into force on October 31, 2006.

Technical Notes (Dec. 21, 2006): Subsection 249(1) defines "taxation year" in the case of a corporation or an individual. Subsection 249(1) is amended, in conjunction with the introduction of Part IX.1, to provide that the taxation year of a Canadian resident partnership is its fiscal period.

Related Provisions: 11(2) — Reference to "taxation year" of individual who carries on a business; 14(4) — Taxation year of individual — eligible capital property rules; 20(16.2) — Taxation year of individual — terminal loss rules; 87(2)(a) — Deemed year-end and new taxation year on amalgamation; 95(1)"taxation year" — Taxation year of foreign affiliate; 96(1)(b) — Taxation year of partnership; 104(23) — Testamentary trusts; 128(2)(d) — Deemed year-end where individual bankrupt; 128.1(1)(a) — Deemed year-end and new taxation year on becoming resident in Canada; 128.1(4)(a) — Deemed year-end and new taxation year on ceasing to be resident in Canada; 132.11 — Election for mutual fund trust to have December 15 year-end; 132.2(1)(b) [to be repealed], 132.2(3)(b) [draft] — Deemed year-end and new taxation year on transfer of property between mutual funds; 144(11) — Deemed year-end on EPSP becoming DPSP; 149(10)(a) — Taxation year of corporation becoming or ceasing to be exempt; 149.1(1) — Taxation year of registered charity; 188(1) — Deemed year-end on notice of revocation of charity registration; 249(2), (3) — References to "taxation year" and "fiscal period"; 249(3.1) — Deemed year end on becoming or ceasing to be CCPC; 249(4) — Deemed year-end on change of control; 249(5), (6) — Rules for testamentary trust; 250.1(a) — Taxation year of non-resident person.

History: Para. 249(1)(a) amended by 2007, c. 29, s. 29 to add "or Canadian resident partnership", deemed to have come into force on October 31, 2006.

Regulations: 1104(1) (taxation year of individual for capital cost allowance purposes).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-184R: Deferred cash purchase tickets issued by Canadian Wheat Board; IT-363R2: Deferred profit sharing plans — deductibility of employer contributions and taxation of amounts received by a beneficiary (archived).

Proposed Addition — 249(1.1)

(1.1) References to calendar year — When a taxation year is referred to by reference to a calendar year, the reference is to the taxation year or taxation years that coincide with, or that end in, that calendar year.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 149(1), will add subsec. 249(1.1), applicable after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): See under 249(1) above.

(2) References to certain taxation years and fiscal periods — For the purposes of this Act,

(a) a reference to a taxation year ending in another year includes a reference to a taxation year ending coincidentally with that other year; and

(b) a reference to a fiscal period ending in a taxation year includes a reference to a fiscal period ending coincidentally with that year.

Related Provisions: 249(1) — "Taxation year"; 250.1(a) — Taxation year of non-resident person.

History: Para. 249(2)(b) amended by 1995, c. 3, s. 53, applicable to fiscal periods that end after 1993. Para. (b) formerly read:

(b) a reference to a fiscal period of a partnership ending in a taxation year includes a reference to a fiscal period of the partnership ending coincidentally with that year.

(3) Deemed year end where fiscal period exceeds 365 days — Notwithstanding subsection (1), where the fiscal period of a corporation exceeds 365 days and by reason thereof the corporation does not have a taxation year that ends in a particular calendar year, for the purposes of this Act, the corporation's first taxation year ending in the immediately following calendar year shall be deemed to end on the last day of the particular calendar year.

Proposed Amendment — 249(3)

(3) Deemed year end [and fiscal period end] if fiscal period exceeds 365 days — If a fiscal period of a corporation exceeds 365 days and by reason thereof the corporation does not have a taxation year that ends in a particular calendar year, for the purposes of this Act,

(a) the corporation's first taxation year that would otherwise end in the immediately following calendar year is deemed to end on the last day of the particular calendar year and its next taxation year is deemed to commence on the first day of the immediately following calendar year; and

(b) the corporation's first fiscal period that would otherwise end in the immediately following calendar year is deemed to end on the last day of the particular calendar year and its next fiscal period is deemed to commence on the first day of the immediately following calendar year.

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, s. 56, will amend subsec. 249(3) to read as above, applicable to 2012 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 249(3) provides that, if a fiscal period of a corporation exceeds 365 days and as a result the corporation does not have a taxation year that ends in a particular calendar year, the corporation's first taxation year that would otherwise end in the calendar year immediately following the particular calendar year is considered to end at the end of the particular calendar year.

Subsection 249(3) is amended to make two changes. First, if a corporation's taxation year is deemed to end on the last day of a particular calendar year under new paragraph 249(3)(a), the corporation's next taxation year is deemed to commence on the first day of the immediately following calendar year. Second, under new paragraph 249(3)(b), the corporation's fiscal period that was otherwise more than 365 days (and which resulted in paragraph (a) applying to end the corporation's taxation year at the end of the particular calendar year) is deemed to end at the end of the particular calendar year, and the corporation's next fiscal period is deemed to commence on the first day of the immediately following calendar year.

(3.1) Year end on [CCPC] status change — If at any time a corporation becomes or ceases to be a Canadian-controlled private corporation, otherwise than because of an acquisition of control to which subsection (4) would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, apply,

(a) subject to paragraph (c), the corporation's taxation year that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, include that time is deemed to end immediately before that time;

(b) a new taxation year of the corporation is deemed to begin at that time;

(c) notwithstanding subsections (1) and (3), the corporation's taxation year that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, have been its last taxation year that ended before that time is deemed instead to end immediately before that time if

(i) were this Act read without reference to this paragraph, that taxation year would, otherwise than because of paragraph 128(1)(d), section 128.1 and paragraphs 142.6(1)(a) or 149(10)(a), have ended within the 7-day period that ended immediately before that time,

(ii) within that 7-day period no person or group of persons acquired control of the corporation, and the corporation did not become or cease to be a Canadian-controlled private corporation, and

(iii) the corporation elects, in its return of income under Part I for that taxation year to have this paragraph apply; and

(d) for the purpose of determining the corporation's fiscal period after that time, the corporation is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time.

Related Provisions: 89(4) — General rate income pool addition on becoming CCPC; 89(8) — Low rate income pool addition on ceasing to be CCPC; 125(7)"Canadian-controlled private corporation"(d) — Election not to be CCPC for purposes of 249(3.1).

History: Subsec. 249(3.1) added by 2007, c. 2, s. 53, applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

(4) Year end on change of control — Where at any time control of a corporation (other than a corporation that is a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada and that did not carry on a business in Canada at any time in its last taxation year beginning before that time) is acquired by a person or group of persons, for the purposes of this Act,

(a) subject to paragraph (c), the taxation year of the corporation that would, but for this paragraph, have included that time shall be deemed to have ended immediately before that time;

(b) a new taxation year of the corporation shall be deemed to have commenced at that time;

(c) subject to paragraph 128(1)(d), section 128.1, and paragraphs 142.6(1)(a) and 149(10)(a), and notwithstanding subsections (1) and (3), where the taxation year of the corporation that would, but for this subsection, have been its last taxation year that ended before that time would, but for this paragraph, have ended within the 7-day period that ended immediately before that time, that taxation year shall, except where control of the corporation was acquired by a person or group of persons within that period, be deemed to end immediately before that time where the corporation so elects in its return of income under Part I for that taxation year; and

(d) for the purpose of determining the corporation's fiscal period after that time, the corporation shall be deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time.

Related Provisions: 139.1(18) — Holding corporation deemed not to acquire control of insurer on demutualization; 149(10) — Exempt corporations; 256(6)–(9) — Whether control acquired.

History: Para. 249(4)(c) amended by 1995, c. 21, s. 60, applicable after February 22, 1994. Para. (c) formerly read:

> (c) subject to paragraph 128(1)(d), section 128.1 and paragraph 149(10)(a), and notwithstanding subsections (1) and (3), where the taxation year of the corporation that would, but for this subsection, have been its last taxation year that ended before that time would, but for this paragraph, have ended within the 7-day period that ended immediately before that time, that taxation year shall, except where control of the corporation was acquired by a person or group of persons within that period, be deemed to end immediately before that time where the corporation so elects in its return of income under Part I for that taxation year; and

Para. 249(4)(c) substituted by 1994, c. 21, s. 110, applicable after 1992 except that, where a corporation has elected in accordance with paragraph 111(4)(a) of 1994, c. 21 (see subsec. 250(5.1)), the amended para. applies to the time at which the corporation was first granted articles of continuation (or similar constitutional documents) in any jurisdiction. That para. formerly read:

> (c) subject to paragraphs 88.1(c), 128(1)(d) and 149(10)(a), and notwithstanding subsections (1) and (3), where the taxation year of the corporation that would, but for this subsection, have been its last taxation year ending before that time and would, but for this paragraph, have ended within the seven day period ending immediately before that time, that taxation year shall, except where control of the corporation has been acquired by a person or group of persons within the seven day period ending immediately before that time, be deemed to end immediately before that time where the corporation so elects in its return of income under Part I for that taxation year; and

That portion of subsec. 249(4) preceding para. (a) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 193, applicable to acquisitions of control occurring after July 13, 1990. That portion formerly read:

> (4) Deemed year end where change of control occurs — Where, at any time, control of a corporation has been acquired by a person or group of persons, the following rules apply:

Proposed Addition — 249(5), (6)

(5) Testamentary trusts — The period for which the accounts of a testamentary trust are made up for the purposes of an assessment under this Act may not exceed 12 months, and no change in the time when such a period ends may be made for the purposes of this Act without the concurrence of the Minister.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 249(5) is added consequential on the repeal of paragraph 104(23)(a).

Subsection 249(5) provides that the period for which the accounts of a testamentary trust are made up for purposes of assessment under the Act may not exceed 12 months and that no change in the time when such a period ends may be made for the purposes of the Act without the concurrence of the Minister of National Revenue. The rule was previously found in paragraph 104(23)(a) of the Act, which is being repealed.

This amendment applies after December 20, 2002. For a related set of amendments, see the commentary on paragraphs 104(23)(a) and (b) and subsection 249(1) and (1.1).

Related Provisions: 249(6) — Deemed year-end on loss of testamentary trust status.

(6) Loss of testamentary trust status — If at a particular time after December 20, 2002 a transaction or event, described in any of paragraphs (b) to (d) of the definition "testamentary trust" in subsection 108(1), occurs and as a result of that occurrence a trust or estate is not a testamentary trust, the following rules apply:

(a) the fiscal period for a business or property of the trust or estate that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection and those paragraphs, have included the particular time is deemed to have ended immediately before the particular time;

(b) the taxation year of the trust or estate that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection and those paragraphs, have included the particular time is deemed to have ended immediately before the particular time;

(c) a new taxation year of the trust or estate is deemed to have started at the particular time; and

(d) in determining the fiscal period for a business or property of the trust or estate after the particular time, the trust or estate is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 149(2), will add subsecs. 249(5) and (6), subsec. (5) applicable after December 20, 2002, and subsec. (6) applicable after July 18, 2005 and, if a trust or estate so elects in writing by filing the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before its filing-due date for its taxation year in which the draft legislation is assented to, it also applies to that trust or estate, as the case may be, after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 249(6) provides a set of rules that apply where a trust or estate loses its status under the Act as a "testamentary trust". This loss of status will generally occur where property has been contributed or loaned to the trust or estate in circumstances described in any of paragraphs (b) to (d) of the definition "testamentary trust" in subsection 108(1) or where the trust or estate has been created by someone other than the deceased person on and as a consequence of whose death the trust or estate arose (in this regard, see paragraph (a) of that definition). Under the existing rules in the Act, where a transaction or event described in any of those paragraphs occurs at a particular time, the trust or estate will lose its status as a testamentary trust for its entire taxation year that would otherwise include that time. As a result, the trust will be treated as an inter vivos trust at all times after the end of its last taxation year, if any, throughout which it was a testamentary trust. As such, its first taxation year after that last taxation year will be, given the definition "taxation year" in subsection 249(1), the calendar year.

New subsection 249(6) provides transitional relief for trusts or estates that lose their "testamentary trust" status. Under that subsection, if at a particular time after December 20, 2002 a transaction or event, described in any of paragraphs (b) to (d) of the definition "testamentary trust" in subsection 108(1), occurs and as a result of that occurrence a trust or estate is not a testamentary trust, a number of special rules apply in determining its taxation years and fiscal periods. (Note that a trust or estate that fails to qualify as a testamentary trust because of paragraph (a) of the definition "testamentary trust" will be an inter vivos trust from its creation and is, therefore, not in need of this transitional relief.) In particular,

- under paragraph 249(6)(a), the fiscal period, for a business or property of the trust or estate, that would, if the Act were read without reference to subsection 249(6) and paragraphs (b) to (d) of the definition "testamentary trust", have included the particular time, is deemed to have ended immediately before the particular time. Subsection 249.1(3) ensures that the next fiscal period starts at the particular time and subsection 249.1(1) requires that that next fiscal period end no later than the calendar year in which it began (i.e. the new taxation year) — this is because the trust would then have become an inter vivos trust.
- the taxation year of the trust or estate that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection and paragraphs (b) to (d) of the definition "testamentary trust", have included the particular time is deemed to have ended immediately before the particular time. As a result, the trust or estate maintains testamentary trust status until the offside event occurs.
- a new taxation year of the trust or estate is deemed to have started at the particular time.
- in determining the fiscal period for a business or property of the trust or estate after the particular time, the trust or estate is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time.

New subsection 249(6) applies after July 18, 2005. However, if a trust or estate elects in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue on or before its filing-due date for its taxation year in which the subsection receives Royal Assent, it also applies to that trust or estate, as the case may be, after December 20, 2002.

Example:

Trust A was created on and as a consequence of the death of John Smith in 2004. Trust A has a November 30 year-end. For its 2004 and 2005 taxation years, Trust A is a testamentary trust. On April 15, 2006, Trust A becomes indebted to a beneficiary of the trust by way of an interest-free loan.

Results:

(i) Existing scheme of the Act

Because of paragraph (d) of the definition "testamentary trust", Trust A cannot qualify as a testamentary trust at any time in its taxation year that began December 1, 2005. Therefore, Trust A becomes an inter vivos trust effective December 1, 2005. Trust A would, as an inter vivos trust, have a December 31, 2005 year-end, with an April 1, 2006 filing-due date.

(ii) New Subsection 249(6)

Because of paragraph (d) of the definition "testamentary trust", Trust A cannot qualify as a testamentary trust. Its taxation year that began December 1, 2005 is deemed to have ended immediately before April 15, 2006 — that is to say, on April 14, 2006 (Assume that a reference to time in the legislation is to a day.) Therefore, Trust A maintains its status as a testamentary trust throughout the stub year that began on December 1, 2005 and ended on April 14, 2006. The trust would have 90 days from the end of that taxation year to file its return of income for the stub year. A new taxation year is deemed to begin April 15, 2006.

As the April 15, 2006 loan occurs in the new taxation year, Trust A is an inter vivos trust throughout the new taxation year, which, accordingly, will end on December 31, 2006. As a result, Trust A is able to maintain testamentary trust status until the time immediately before the offside event. With respect to any late-filing for the stub year, relief may be available under the provisions in section 220.

249.1 (1) Definition of "fiscal period" — For the purposes of this Act, a "fiscal period" of a business or a property of a person or partnership means the period for which the person's or partnership's accounts in respect of the business or property are made up for purposes of assessment under this Act, but no fiscal period may end

(a) in the case of a corporation, more than 53 weeks after the period began,

(b) in the case of

(i) an individual (other than an individual to whom section 149 or 149.1 applies or a testamentary trust),

(i.1) a fiscal period of an inter vivos trust (other than a fiscal period to which paragraph 132.11(1)(c) applies),

(ii) a partnership of which

(A) an individual (other than a testamentary trust or an individual to whom section 149 or 149.1 applies),

(B) a professional corporation, or

(C) a partnership to which this subparagraph applies, would, if the fiscal period ended at the end of the calendar year in which the period began, be a member of the partnership in the period, or

(iii) a professional corporation that would, if the fiscal period ended at the end of the calendar year in which the period began, be in the period a member of a partnership to which subparagraph (ii) applies,

after the end of the calendar year in which the period began unless, in the case of a business, the business is not carried on in Canada, is a prescribed business or is carried on by a prescribed person or partnership,

Proposed Amendment — 249.1(1)(b) closing words

after the end of the calendar year in which the period began unless, in the case of a business, the business is not carried on in Canada,

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, s. 57, will amend the closing words of para. 249.1(1)(b) to read as above, applicable to fiscal periods that begin after Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: Subsection 249.1(1) provides the definition "fiscal period" for the purposes of the Act. Paragraph 249.1(1)(b) provides restrictions on the timing of fiscal periods of certain individuals, trusts, partnerships and professional corporations (other than the fiscal period of a business not carried on in Canada or a business that is a prescribed business or is carried on by a prescribed person or partnership). Paragraph 249.1(1)(b) is intended to ensure that certain businesses will have a fiscal period end at the end of the calendar year.

The exception in paragraph 249.1(1)(b) for a business that "is a prescribed business or is carried on by a prescribed person or partnership" is repealed.

(c) in the case of a partnership (other than a partnership to which subparagraph (b)(ii) or subsection (9) applies) that is a member of a partnership or has a member that is a partnership, after the end of the calendar year in which it began, if at the end of the calendar year

(i) a corporation has a significant interest, as defined in section 34.2, in the partnership,

(ii) the partnership is a member of another partnership in which a corporation has a significant interest as defined in section 34.2,

(iii) a membership interest in the partnership is held directly, or indirectly through one or more partnerships, by a partnership described in subparagraph (i) or (ii), or

(iv) the partnership holds directly, or indirectly through one or more partnerships, a membership interest in a partnership described in any of subparagraphs (i) to (iii), or

(d) in any other case, more than 12 months after the period began, and, for the purpose of this subsection, the activities of a person to whom section 149 or 149.1 applies are deemed to be a business.

Related Provisions: 25(1) — Optional continuation of year-end after disposing of business; 34.1–34.3 — Partnership stub period income inclusion where partnership and partner year-ends do not match; 96(1.01) — Income allocation to former partner; 96(1.1) — Allocation of share of income to retiring partner; 99(2) — Optional continuation of original year-end of partnership that ceases to exist; 128.1(4)(a.1) — Deemed end of fiscal period (FP) on emigration; 249(2)(b) — Reference to FP ending in a taxation year; 249(3)(b) — Deemed end of FP where FP exceeds 365 days; 249.1(2), (3) — Interpretation; 249.1(4), (5) — Election for non-calendar year-end; 249.1(8)–(11) — Partnership — election to align fiscal period with corporate partner.

(2) Not a member of a partnership — For the purpose of subparagraph (1)(b)(ii) and subsection (4), a person or partnership that would not have a share of any income or loss of a partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership, if the period ended at the end of the calendar year in which the period began, is deemed not to be a member of the partnership in that fiscal period.

Related Provisions: 96(1.01) — Income allocation to former partner.

(3) Subsequent fiscal periods — Where a fiscal period of a business or a property of a person or partnership ends at any time, the subsequent fiscal period, if any, of the business or property of the person or partnership is deemed to begin immediately after that time.

(4) Alternative method — Paragraph (1)(b) does not apply to a fiscal period of a business carried on, throughout the period of time that began at the beginning of the fiscal period and ended at the end of the calendar year in which the fiscal period began,

(a) by an individual (otherwise than as a member of a partnership), or

(b) by an individual as a member of a partnership, where throughout that period

(i) each member of the partnership is an individual, and

(ii) the partnership is not a member of another partnership,

where

(c) in the case of an individual

(i) who is referred to in paragraph (a), or

(ii) who is a member of a partnership no member of which is a testamentary trust, an election in prescribed form to have paragraph (1)(b) not apply is filed with the Minister by the individual on or before the individual's filing-due date, and with the individual's return of income under Part I, for the taxation year that includes the first day of the first fiscal period of the business that begins after 1994, and

(d) in the case of an individual who is a member of a partnership a member of which is a testamentary trust, an election in prescribed form to have paragraph (1)(b) not apply is filed with the Minister by the individual on or before the earliest of the filing-due dates of the members of the partnership for a taxation year that includes the first day of the first fiscal period of the business that begins after 1994.

Related Provisions: 34.1(1) — Additional income adjustment where election made; 96(1.01) — Income allocation to former partner; 96(1.1) — Allocation of share of income to retiring partner; 96(3) — Election by members of partnership; 249.1(5) — Alternative method not applicable to tax shelter; 249.1(6) — Revocation of election; Reg. 600(b.1) — Late filing of election by January 31, 1998.

Forms: RC354: Election for transitional relief by a participant taxpayer of a joint venture.

(5) Alternative method not applicable to tax shelter investments — Subsection (4) does not apply to a particular fiscal period of a business where, in a preceding fiscal period or throughout the period of time that began at the beginning of the particular period and ended at the end of the calendar year in which the particular period began, the expenditures made in the course of carrying on the business were primarily the cost or capital cost of tax shelter investments (as defined in subsection 143.2(1)).

History: Subsec. 249.1(5) amended by 1998, c. 19, s. 240, applicable to fiscal periods that begin after 1994. Subsec. 249.1(5) formerly read:

(5) Alternative method not applicable to tax shelter — Subsection (4) does not apply to a particular fiscal period of a business where, in a preceding fiscal period or throughout the period of time that began at the beginning of the particular period and ended at the end of the calendar year in which the particular period began, the expenditures made in the course of carrying on the business were primarily the cost or capital cost of tax shelters (within the meaning assigned by subsection 237.1(1)).

(6) Revocation of election — Subsection (4) does not apply to fiscal periods of a business carried on by an individual that begin after the beginning of a particular taxation year of the individual where

(a) an election in prescribed form to revoke an election filed under subsection (4) in respect of the business is filed with the Minister; and

(b) the election to revoke is filed

(i) in the case of an individual

(A) who is not a member of a partnership, or

(B) who is a member of a partnership no member of which is a testamentary trust, by the individual on or before the individual's filing-due date, and with the individual's return of income under Part I, for the particular taxation year, and

(ii) in [the] case of an individual who is a member of a partnership a member of which is a testamentary trust, by the individual on or before the earliest of the filing-due dates of the members of the partnership for a taxation year that includes the first day of the first fiscal period of the business that begins after the beginning of the particular year.

Related Provisions: 96(3) — Election by members of partnership.

(7) Change of fiscal period — No change in the time when a fiscal period ends may be made for the purposes of this Act without the concurrence of the Minister.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.91), (qq) — Change in fiscal period after amalgamation; 149(10)(a) — Change in fiscal period on becoming or ceasing to be exempt; 249(4)(d) — Change in fiscal period allowed after change in control of corporation; 249.1(8)–(11) — Partnership can change fiscal period to align with corporate partner.

(8) Single-tier fiscal period alignment — The members of a partnership that has a fiscal period that begins before March 22, 2011 and that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection and subsection (10), end on a day after March 22, 2011, may elect to end that fiscal period on a particular day that is before the day on which the fiscal period would otherwise end (in this subsection and subsection (10) referred to as a "single-tier alignment election") if

(a) each member of the partnership is, on the particular day, a corporation that is not a professional corporation;

(b) the partnership is not, on the particular day, a member of another partnership;

(c) at least one member of the partnership is, on the particular day, a corporation that has a significant interest, as defined in section 34.2, in the partnership;

(d) at least one member of the partnership referred to in paragraph (c) has a taxation year that ends on a day that differs from the day on which the fiscal period of the partnership would end if this Act were read without reference to this subsection and subsection (10);

(e) the particular day is after March 22, 2011 and no later than the latest day that is the last day of the first taxation year that ends after March 22, 2011 of any corporation that has been a member of the partnership continuously since March 21, 2011; and

(f) subsection (10) applies to the single-tier alignment election.

Related Provisions: 34.2(1)"single-tier alignment" — Alignment under 249.1(8); 249.1(10) — Conditions requirement for alignment.

History: Subsec. 249.1(8) added by 2011, c. 24, subsec. 73(2), applicable to 2011 et seq.

(9) Multi-tier fiscal period alignment — one-time election — The members of a partnership to which paragraph (1)(c) would apply if it were read without reference to this subsection may elect (in this subsection and subsections (10) and (11) referred to as a "multi-tier alignment election") to end a fiscal period of the partnership on a particular day if

(a) as a consequence of the multi-tier alignment election, the fiscal period of the partnership, and of each other partnership described in relation to the partnership by any of subparagraphs (1)(c)(ii) to (iv), ends on the particular day;

(b) the particular day is before March 22, 2012; and

(c) subsection (10) applies to the multi-tier alignment election.

Related Provisions: 34.2(1)"multi-tier alignment" — Alignment under 249.1(9); 249.1(10) — Conditions requirement for alignment; 249.1(11) — Deemed multi-tier alignment election for 2011.

History: Subsec. 249.1(9) added by 2011, c. 24, subsec. 73(2), applicable to 2011 et seq.

(10) Conditions to align a partnership fiscal period — This subsection applies to a single-tier alignment election or a multi-tier alignment election, as the case may be, for a partnership if

(a) the election is filed in writing and in prescribed form with the Minister

(i) in the case of a single-tier alignment election, by a corporation that is a member of the partnership on or before the day that is the earliest filing-due date of any corporation that is a member of the partnership for its first taxation year ending after March 22, 2011, and

(ii) in the case of a multi-tier alignment election,

(A) by a corporation that is a member of the partnership, or of a partnership described in relation to the partnership by any of subparagraphs (1)(c)(ii) to (iv), and

(B) on or before the day that is the earliest filing-due date of any corporation that is a member of a partnership referred to in clause (A) for the first taxation year of the corporation ending after March 22, 2011;

Proposed Amendment — 249.1(10)(a)(I), (ii) — Extension of alignment election filing deadline

Dept. of Finance news release 2011-138, Dec. 16, 2011: Minister of Finance Announces Extension of Time to File Corporate Partnership Alignment Elections

The Honourable Jim Flaherty, Minister of Finance, today announced the Government's intention to extend the time to file an alignment election for corporate partnerships under the corporate partnership deferral rules.

The corporate partnership tax deferral rules allow corporate partners to elect to align the fiscal period of their partnership with the taxation year of one of the corporate partners or, in the case of a tiered-partnership structure, to a common fiscal period for all partnerships in the structure. The time period provided in the Keeping Canada's Economy and Jobs Growing Act [2011 Budget second bill — ed.] for filing this election means that some corporate partners would have had to file the election as early as September 23, 2011.

The Government intends to recommend a change that treats late alignment elections as having been filed on time if the election is filed on or before January 31, 2012.

In addition, the Government will recommend that paragraph 249.1(9)(b) of the Income Tax Act be clarified to refer to the year "2012" rather than "2011". [It already reads "2012" in English, but erroneously reads "2011" in French — ed.]

(b) as a consequence of the election, the fiscal period of each partnership to which the election applies is 12 months or less;

(c) the election was made by a corporation that has the authority to act for the members of the partnership and each member of any other partnership described in relation to the partnership in subparagraph (1)(c)(ii) to (iv); and

(d) no other election is filed with the Minister to end the fiscal period of the partnership, or of any other partnership described in relation to the partnership in subparagraph (1)(c)(ii) to (iv), on a day other than the particular day referred to in subsection (8) or (9), as the case may be.

Related Provisions: 249.1(8) — Single-tier fiscal period alignment; 249.1(9) — Multi-tier fiscal period alignment.

History: Subsec. 249.1(10) added by 2011, c. 24, subsec. 73(2), applicable to 2011 et seq.

(11) Deemed multi-tier alignment election — For the purposes of this Act, if paragraph (1)(c) applies to end the fiscal period of a partnership on December 31, 2011, a multi-tier alignment election under subsection (9) is deemed to have been made to end the fiscal period of the partnership on December 31, 2011.

Related Provisions: 34.2(1)"multi-tier alignment" — Alignment under 249.1(11).

(6) Residence of international shipping corporation — For the purposes of this Act, a corporation that was incorporated or otherwise formed under the laws of a country other than Canada or of a state, province or other political subdivision of such a country shall be deemed to be resident in that country throughout a taxation year and not to be resident in Canada at any time in the year, where

(a) the corporation

(i) has as its principal business in the year the operation of ships that are used primarily in transporting passengers or goods in international traffic (determined on the assumption that the corporation is non-resident and that, except where paragraph (c) of the definition "international traffic" in subsection 248(1) applies, any port or other place on the Great Lakes or St. Lawrence River is in Canada), or

(ii) holds throughout the year shares of one or more other corporations, each of which

(A) is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the corporation as defined by subsection 87(1.4), and

(B) is deemed by this subsection to be resident in a country other than Canada throughout the year, and at no time in the year is the total of the cost amounts to the corporation of all those shares less than 50% of the total of the cost amounts to it of all its property;

(b) all or substantially all of the corporation's gross revenue for the year consists of

(i) gross revenue from the operation of ships in transporting passengers or goods in that international traffic,

(ii) dividends from one or more other corporations each of which

(A) is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the corporation, as defined by subsection 87(1.4), and

(B) is deemed by this subsection to be resident in a country other than Canada throughout each of its taxation years that began after February 1991 and before the last time at which it paid any of those dividends, or

(iii) a combination of amounts described in subparagraph (i) or (ii); and

(c) the corporation was not granted articles of continuance in Canada before the end of the year.

251. (1) Arm's length — For the purposes of this Act,

(a) related persons shall be deemed not to deal with each other at arm's length;

(b) a taxpayer and a personal trust (other than a trust described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1)) are deemed not to deal with each other at arm's length if the taxpayer, or any person not dealing at arm's length with the taxpayer, would be beneficially interested in the trust if subsection 248(25) were read without reference to subclauses 248(25)(b)(iii)(A)(II) to (IV); and

(c) where paragraph (b) does not apply, it is a question of fact whether persons not related to each other are at a particular time dealing with each other at arm's length.

Proposed Amendment — 251(1)(c)

(c) in any other case, it is a question of fact whether persons not related to each other are, at a particular time, dealing with each other at arm's length.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), s. 150, will amend para. 251(1)(c) to read as above, applicable after December 23, 1998.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 251(1) provides a set of rules that determine whether persons are considered, for the purposes of the Act, to deal with each other at arm's length. Paragraph 251(1)(a) deems related persons not to deal with each other at arm's length. Paragraph 251(1)(b) deems a taxpayer and a personal trust (other than a trust described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1)) not to deal with each other at arm's length if the taxpayer, or any person not dealing at arm's length with the taxpayer, is beneficially interested in the trust. Paragraph 251(1)(c) provides that, where paragraph 251(1)(b) does not apply, it is a question of fact whether persons not related to each other are at a particular time dealing with each other at arm's length.

Paragraph 251(1)(c) is amended to clarify that it applies in any case where paragraphs (a) and (b) do not apply.

History: Para. 251(1)(b) amended and para. (c) added by 2001, c. 17, s. 192, applicable after December 23, 1998, except that para. (b) shall, for the purpose of applying the definition "taxable Canadian property" in subsec. 248(1), not apply in respect of property acquired before December 24, 1998. Para. 251(1)(b) formerly read:

(b) it is a question of fact whether persons not related to each other were at a particular time dealing with each other at arm's length.

251.1 (1) Definition of "affiliated persons" — For the purposes of this Act, "affiliated persons", or persons affiliated with each other, are

(a) an individual and a spouse or common-law partner of the individual;

(b) a corporation and

(i) a person by whom the corporation is controlled,

(ii) each member of an affiliated group of persons by which the corporation is controlled, and

(iii) a spouse or common-law partner of a person described in subparagraph (i) or (ii);

(c) two corporations, if

(i) each corporation is controlled by a person, and the person by whom one corporation is controlled is affiliated with the person by whom the other corporation is controlled,

(ii) one corporation is controlled by a person, the other corporation is controlled by a group of persons, and each member of that group is affiliated with that person, or

(iii) each corporation is controlled by a group of persons, and each member of each group is affiliated with at least one member of the other group;

(d) a corporation and a partnership, if the corporation is controlled by a particular group of persons each member of which is affiliated with at least one member of a majority-interest group of partners of the partnership, and each member of that majority-interest group is affiliated with at least one member of the particular group;

(e) a partnership and a majority interest partner of the partnership;

(f) two partnerships, if

(i) the same person is a majority-interest partner of both partnerships,

(ii) a majority-interest partner of one partnership is affiliated with each member of a majority-interest group of partners of the other partnership, or

(iii) each member of a majority-interest group of partners of each partnership is affiliated with at least one member of a majority-interest group of partners of the other partnership;

(g) a person and a trust, if the person

(i) is a majority-interest beneficiary of the trust, or

(ii) would, if this subsection were read without reference to this paragraph, be affiliated with a majority-interest beneficiary of the trust; and

(h) two trusts, if a contributor to one of the trusts is affiliated with a contributor to the other trust and

(i) a majority-interest beneficiary of one of the trusts is affiliated with a majority-interest beneficiary of the other trust,

(ii) a majority-interest beneficiary of one of the trusts is affiliated with each member of a majority-interest group of beneficiaries of the other trust, or

(iii) each member of a majority-interest group of beneficiaries of each of the trusts is affiliated with at least one member of a majority-interest group of beneficiaries of the other trust.

(2) Affiliation where amalgamation or merger — Where at any time 2 or more corporations (in this subsection referred to as the "predecessors") amalgamate or merge to form a new corporation, the new corporation and any predecessor are deemed to have been affiliated with each other where they would have been affiliated with each other immediately before that time if

(a) the new corporation had existed immediately before that time; and

(b) the persons who were the shareholders of the new corporation immediately after that time had been the shareholders of the new corporation immediately before that time.

History: Subsec. 251.1(2) added by 1998, c. 19, s. 243, applicable after April 26, 1995.

(3) Definitions — The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"affiliated group of persons" means a group of persons each member of which is affiliated with every other member.

"beneficiary", under a trust, includes a person beneficially interested in the trust.

"contributor", to a trust, means a person who has at any time made a loan or transfer of property, either directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, to or for the benefit of the trust other than, if the person deals at arm's length with the trust at that time and is not immediately after that time a majority-interest beneficiary of the trust,

(a) a loan made at a reasonable rate of interest; or

(b) a transfer made for fair market value consideration.

"controlled" means controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever.

Related Provisions: 256(5.1), (6.2) — Controlled directly or indirectly.

"majority-interest beneficiary", of a trust at any time, means a person whose interest as a beneficiary, if any, at that time

(a) in the income of the trust has, together with the interests as a beneficiary in the income of the trust of all persons with whom the person is affiliated, a fair market value that is greater than 50% of the fair market value of all the interests as a beneficiary in the income of the trust; or

(b) in the capital of the trust has, together with the interests as a beneficiary in the capital of the trust of all persons with whom the person is affiliated, a fair market value that is greater than 50% of the fair market value of all the interests as a beneficiary in the capital of the trust.

"majority-interest group of beneficiaries", of a trust at any time, means a group of persons each of whom is a beneficiary under the trust at that time such that

(a) if one person held the interests as a beneficiary of all of the members of the group, that person would be a majority-interest beneficiary of the trust; and

(b) if any member of the group were not a member, the test described in paragraph (a) would not be met.

"majority-interest group of partners" of a partnership means a group of persons each of whom has an interest in the partnership such that

(a) if one person held the interests of all members of the group, that person would be a majority interest partner of the partnership; and

(b) if any member of the group were not a member, the test described in paragraph (a) would not be met.

History: The definitions "beneficiary", "contributor", "majority-interest beneficiary" and "majority-interest group of beneficiaries" added to subsec. 251.1(3) by 2005, c. 19, subsec. 54(2), applicable in determining whether persons are, at any time after March 22, 2004, affiliated.

Subsec. 251.1(3) added by 1998, c. 19, s. 243, applicable after April 26, 1995.

(4) Interpretation — For the purposes of this section,

(a) persons are affiliated with themselves;

(b) a person includes a partnership;

(c) notwithstanding subsection 104(1), a reference to a trust does not include a reference to the trustee or other persons who own or control the trust property; and

(d) in determining whether a person is affiliated with a trust,

(i) if the amount of income or capital of the trust that a person may receive as a beneficiary under the trust depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, a discretionary power, that person is deemed to have fully exercised, or to have failed to exercise, the power, as the case may be,

(ii) the interest of a person in a trust as a beneficiary is disregarded in determining whether the person deals at arm's length with the trust if the person would, in the absence of the interest as a beneficiary, be considered to deal at arm's length with the trust,

(iii) a trust is not a majority interest beneficiary of another trust unless the trust has an interest as a beneficiary in the income or capital, as the case may be, of the other trust, and

(iv) in determining whether a contributor to one trust is affiliated with a contributor to another trust, individuals connected by blood, marriage, common-law partnership or adoption are deemed to be affiliated with one another.

History: Paras. 251.1(4)(c) and (d) added by 2005, c. 19, subsec. 54(3), applicable in determining whether persons are, at any time after March 22, 2004, affiliated, except that para. (d) is to be read without reference to subpara. (iv) in determining whether persons are, before September 16, 2004, affiliated.

(3) Extended meaning of "spouse" and "former spouse" — For the purposes of paragraph 56(1)(b), section 56.1, paragraphs 60(b) and (j), section 60.1, subsections 70(6) and (6.1), 73(1) and (5) and 104(4), (5.1) and (5.4), the definition "pre-1972 spousal trust" in subsection 108(1), subsection 146(16), the definition "survivor" in subsection 146.2(1), subparagraph 146.3(2)(f)(iv), subsections 146.3(14), 147(19), 147.3(5) and (7) and 148(8.1) and (8.2), the definition "small business property" in subsection 206(1), the definition "qualifying transfer" in subsection 207.01(1), and subsections 210(1) and 248(22) and (23), "spouse" and "former spouse" of a particular individual include another individual who is a party to a void or voidable marriage with the particular individual.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), s. 151, will amend subsec. 252(3) to replace "subparagraph 210(c)(ii) and subsections 248(22) and (23)" with "subsections 210(1) and 248(22) and (23)", applicable to 1996 et seq. Note: amendments made by S.C. 2008, c. 28 (Bill C-50, Royal Assent June 18, 2008), s. 35, adding reference to 146.2(1) and 207.01 applicable to 2009 et seq., are incorporated in the final version above, per s. 42 of said c. 28.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 252(3) extends the meaning of the terms "spouse" and "former spouse" to include, for a number of purposes, a party to a void or voidable marriage.

The provision is amended consequential on amendments to Part XII.2 of the Act, which add a new reference to "spouse" in the definition "designated income" and maintain the existing references to "spouse" and "former spouse" in the definition "designated beneficiary" in subsection 210(1). For more detail, see the commentary on subsection 210(1).

Technical Notes (April 2008): Coordinating Amendments — [former] Bill C-10

Bill C-10, introduced in the 2nd session of the 39th Parliament and entitled the Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006, includes a number of measures that enact or amend provisions that are also the subject of the present enactment. If both are enacted, it will be necessary to ensure that the changes to those provisions are coordinated. This is accomplished through a series of technical coordinating amendments in the present enactment. . . .

The coordinating amendment in clause 42 ensures that the present enactment modifies the correct version of subsection 252(3), which provides extended meanings of "spouse" and "former spouse" for a number of purposes under that Act. Bill C-10 includes a change to one of the statutory references in the subsection, while the present enactment adds a reference in relation to the TFSA rules [146.2 and 207.01 — ed.]. Clause 42 ensures that both of these will operate as intended, regardless of the order of the two enactments.

Related Provisions: 147.1(1) — RPP — Definition of spouse; Reg. 8500(5) — Rule in 252(3) applies to Regs. 8500–8520.

History: References to "the definition "survivor" in subsection 146.2(1)" and "the definition "qualifying transfer" in subsection 207.01(1)" added to subsec. 252(3) in numerical order by 2008, c. 28, s. 35, applicable to 2009 et seq.

Subsec. 252(3) amended by 2005, c. 33, subsec. 12(3) to delete "of the opposite sex" and to replace "voidable or void" with "void or voidable", in force on July 20, 2005 (Royal Assent).

Subsec. 252(3) amended by 2003, c. 15, s. 89, applicable after 2003. The subsec. formerly read:

> (3) For the purposes of paragraphs 56(1)(b) and (c), section 56.1, paragraphs 60(b), (c) and (j), section 60.1, subsections 70(6) and (6.1), 73(1) and (5) and 104(4), (5.1) and (5.4), the definition "pre-1972 spousal trust" in subsection 108(1), subsection 146(16), subparagraph 146.3(2)(f)(iv), paragraph 146.3(14)(b), subsections 147.3(5) and (7) and 148(8.1) and (8.2), the definition "small business property" in subsection 206(1), subparagraph 210(c)(ii) and subsections 248(22) and (23), "spouse" and "former spouse" of a particular individual include another individual of the opposite sex who is a party to a voidable or void marriage with the particular individual.

Subsec. 252(3) amended to add the words "the definition "small business property" in subsection 206(1)" by 2000, c. 19, s. 69, applicable to 1998 et seq.

Subsec. 252(3) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 140(2), applicable to 1991 et seq. Subsec. (3) formerly read:

> (3) For the purposes of paragraphs 56(1)(b) and (c), section 56.1, paragraphs 60(b), (c) and (j), section 60.1, subsections 73(1) and 146(16), subparagraph 146.3(2)(f)(iv), paragraph 146.3(14)(b), subsections 147.3(5) and (7) and 148(8.1) and (8.2), subparagraph 210(c)(ii) and subsections 248(22) and (23), "spouse" and "former spouse" include a party to a voidable or void marriage, as the case may be.

Subsec. 252(3) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 196, applicable after 1989. Subsec. 252(3) formerly read:

> (3) For the purposes of paragraphs 56(1)(b) and (c), section 56.1, paragraphs 60(b), (c) and (j), section 60.1, subsections 73(1) and 146(16), subparagraph 146.3(2)(f)(iv), paragraph 146.3(14)(b), subsections 147.3(5) and (7) and 148(8) and subparagraph 210(c)(ii), "spouse" and "former spouse" include a party to a voidable or void marriage, as the case may be.

253.1 Investments in limited partnerships [deemed not carrying on business] — For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b) and 132(6)(b), subsection 146.2(6), paragraphs 146.4(5)(b) and 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), if a trust or corporation holds an interest as a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member shall not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of that interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Proposed Amendment — 253.1 [temporary]

253.1 Investments in limited partnerships — For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b), 132(6)(b), [subsection 146.2(6), paragraph 146.4(5)(b) — ed.] 146.1(2.1)(c) and 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), if a trust or corporation holds an interest as a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member shall not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of that interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), s. 152, will amend s. 253.1 to read as above, applicable after 1997 except that, for taxation years that end after December 16, 1999 and before 2003, s. 253.1 is to be read as follows:

253.1 For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b), 132(6)(b), 146.1(2.1)(c) and 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), if a trust or corporation is a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member is deemed

(a) to undertake an investing of its funds because of its acquisition and holding of its interest as a member of the partnership; and

(b) not to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Section 253.1 applies for specified provisions of the Act and Regulations where a trust or corporation holds an interest as a limited partner in a limited partnership. It provides that the trust or corporation will not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of the limited partnership interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Section 253.1 is amended so that it also applies for the purpose of paragraph 146.1(2.1)(c), which provides that the registration of a registered education savings plan (RESP) is revocable if a trust governed by the plan carries on a business. The amendment to section 253.1 ensures that the acquisition and holding of a limited partnership interest by an RESP trust does not jeopardize the registered status of the plan. provided the interest is a qualified investment for the trust.

253.1 Investments in limited partnerships — For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b), 132(6)(b) and 146.1(2.1)(c), subsection 146.2(6), paragraph 146.4(5)(b), subsection 147.5(8), paragraph 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), if a trust or corporation holds an interest as a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member shall not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of that interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Application: The December 14, 2011 draft legislation, s. 21, will amend s. 253.1 to read as above, in force or deemed in force on the day of the coming into force of S.C. 2012, c. 16 (Bill C-25, Royal Assent June 18, 2012), Pooled Registered Pension Plans Act.

Technical Notes: Section 253.1 applies for the purposes of specified provisions of the Act and Income Tax Regulations where a trust or corporation holds an interest as a limited partner in a limited partnership. It provides that the trust or corporation will not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of the limited partnership interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Section 253.1 is amended so that it also applies for the purposes of new subsection 147.5(8). That subsection provides that a trust governed by a PRPP is generally not subject to tax under Part I of the Act, except to the extent that it carries on a business. The amendment ensures that a PRPP trust will not, solely because of the acquisition and holding of an interest in a limited partnership, be considered to carry on a business carried on by the partnership.

History: S. 253.1 amended by 2009, c. 2, s. 77, applicable to 2009 et seq. It formerly read:

> 253.1 For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b) and 132(6)(b), subsection 146.2(4), paragraphs 146.4(5)(b) and 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), if a trust or corporation holds an interest as a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member shall not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of that interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

S. 253.1 amended to substitute "131(8)(b) and 132(6)(b), subsection 146.2(4), paragraphs 146.4(5)(b)" for "131(8)(b), 132(6)(b), 146.4(5)(b)" by 2008, c. 28, s. 36, applicable to 2009 et seq.

S. 253.1 amended to substitute "132(6)(b), 146.4(5)(b)" for "132(6)(b)" and "if a trust" for "where a trust" by 2007, c. 35, s. 124, applicable to 2008 et seq.

S. 253.1 added by 2001, c. 17, s. 193, applicable after 1992, except that for taxation years that end after December 16, 1999 and before 2003, the section shall be read as follows:

> 253.1 For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b), 132(6)(b) and 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), where a trust or corporation is a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member is deemed
> (a) to undertake an investing of its funds because of its acquisition and holding of its interest as a member of the partnership; and
> (b) not to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

(1.1) Definition of "specified class" — For the purposes of subsection (1), "specified class" means a class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation where, under the terms or conditions of the shares or any agreement in respect thereof,

(a) the shares are not convertible or exchangeable;

(b) the shares are non-voting;

(c) the amount of each dividend payable on the shares is calculated as a fixed amount or by reference to a fixed percentage of an amount equal to the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued;

(d) the annual rate of the dividend on the shares, expressed as a percentage of an amount equal to the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued, cannot in any event exceed,

(i) where the shares were issued before 1984, the rate of interest prescribed for the purposes of subsection 161(1) at the time the shares were issued, and

(ii) where the shares were issued after 1983, the prescribed rate of interest at the time the shares were issued; and

(e) the amount that any holder of the shares is entitled to receive on the redemption, cancellation or acquisition of the shares by the corporation or by any person with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length cannot exceed the total of an amount equal to the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued and the amount of any unpaid dividends thereon.

Related Provisions: 256(1.2) — Control; 256(1.5) — Person deemed related to self.

History: Para. 256(1.1)(d) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 198(1), to substitute subparas. (i) and (ii) for "the prescribed rate of interest at the time the shares were issued", applicable to 1989 et seq.

Regulations: 4301(c) (prescribed rate of interest).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-64R4: Corporations: association and control.

(1.2) Control, etc. — For the purposes of this subsection and subsections (1), (1.1) and (1.3) to (5),

(a) a group of persons in respect of a corporation means any two or more persons each of whom owns shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

(b) for greater certainty,

(i) a corporation that is controlled by one or more members of a particular group of persons in respect of that corporation shall be considered to be controlled by that group of persons, and

(ii) a corporation may be controlled by a person or a particular group of persons notwithstanding that the corporation is also controlled or deemed to be controlled by another person or group of persons;

(c) a corporation shall be deemed to be controlled by another corporation, a person or a group of persons at any time where

(i) shares of the capital stock of the corporation having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation, or

(ii) common shares of the capital stock of the corporation having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding common shares of the capital stock of the corporation are owned at that time by the other corporation, the person or the group of persons, as the case may be;

(d) where shares of the capital stock of a corporation are owned, or deemed by this subsection to be owned, at any time by another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "holding corporation"), those shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by any shareholder of the holding corporation in a proportion equal to the proportion of all those shares that

(i) the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of the holding corporation owned at that time by the shareholder

is of

(ii) the fair market value of all the issued shares of the capital stock of the holding corporation outstanding at that time;

(e) where, at any time, shares of the capital stock of a corporation are property of a partnership, or are deemed by this subsection to be owned by the partnership, those shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by each member of the partnership in a proportion equal to the proportion of all those shares that

(i) the member's share of the income or loss of the partnership for its fiscal period that includes that time

is of

(ii) the income or loss of the partnership for its fiscal period that includes that time and for this purpose, where the income and loss of the partnership for its fiscal period that includes that time are nil, that proportion shall be computed as if the partnership had had income for that period in the amount of $1,000,000;

(f) where shares of the capital stock of a corporation are owned, or deemed by this subsection to be owned, at any time by a trust,

(i) in the case of a testamentary trust under which one or more beneficiaries were entitled to receive all of the income of the trust that arose before the date of death of one or the last surviving of those beneficiaries (in this paragraph referred to as the "distribution date") and no other person could, before the distribution date, receive or otherwise obtain the use of any of the income or capital of the trust,

(A) where any such beneficiary's share of the income or capital therefrom depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, any discretionary power, those shares shall be deemed to be owned at any time before the distribution date by the beneficiary, and

(B) where clause (A) does not apply, those shares shall be deemed to be owned at any time before the distribution date by any such beneficiary in a proportion equal to the proportion of all those shares that the fair market value of the beneficial interest in the trust of the beneficiary is of the fair market value of the beneficial interests in the trust of all those beneficiaries,

(ii) where a beneficiary's share of the accumulating income or capital therefrom depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, any discretionary power, those shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by the beneficiary, except where subparagraph (i) applies and that time is before the distribution date,

(iii) in any case where subparagraph (ii) does not apply, a beneficiary shall be deemed at that time to own the proportion of those shares that the fair market value of the beneficial interest in the trust of the beneficiary is of the fair market value of all beneficial interests in the trust, except where subparagraph (i) applies and that time is before the distribution date, and,

(iv) in the case of a trust referred to in subsection 75(2), the person referred to in that subsection from whom property of the trust or property for which it was substituted was directly or indirectly received shall be deemed to own those shares at that time; and

(g) in determining the fair market value of a share of the capital stock of a corporation, all issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation shall be deemed to be non-voting.

(1.3) Parent deemed to own shares — Where at any time shares of the capital stock of a corporation are owned by a child who is under 18 years of age, for the purpose of determining whether the corporation is associated at that time with any other corporation that is controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a parent of the child or by a group of persons of which the parent is a member, the shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by the parent unless, having regard to all the circumstances, it can reasonably be considered that the child manages the business and affairs of the corporation and does so without a significant degree of influence by the parent.

Related Provisions: 256(1.2) — Control, etc.; 256(1.5) — Person deemed related to self; 256(5.1), (6.2) — Control in fact.

History: Subsec. 256(1.3) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 198(2), applicable retroactively to its introduction (see History note to subsec. (1.6)). Subsec. (1.3) formerly read:

(1.3) Where, at any time, shares of the capital stock of a corporation are owned by a child who is under 18 years of age, for the purposes of determining if the corporation is associated at that time with any other corporation that is controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a parent of the child or by a group of persons of which the parent is a member, those shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by the parent or the group, as the case may be, unless, having regard to all the circumstances, it may reasonably be considered that the child manages the business and affairs of the corporation and does so without a significant degree of influence by the parent.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-64R4: Corporations: association and control.

(1.4) Options and rights — For the purpose of determining whether a corporation is associated with another corporation with which it is not otherwise associated, where a person or any partnership in which the person has an interest has a right at any time under a contract, in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently,

(a) to, or to acquire, shares of the capital stock of a corporation, or to control the voting rights of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, the person or partnership shall, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, be deemed to own the shares at that time, and the shares shall be deemed to be issued and outstanding at that time; or

(b) to cause a corporation to redeem, acquire or cancel any shares of its capital stock owned by other shareholders of a corporation, the person or partnership shall, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, be deemed at that time to have the same position in relation to control of the corporation and ownership of shares of its capital stock as if the shares were redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation.

Related Provisions: 256(1.2) — Control, etc.; 256(1.5) — Person deemed related to self; 256(1.6) — Exception; 256(5.1) — Control in fact.

History: Subsec. 256(1.4) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 198(2), applicable retroactively to its introduction (see History note to subsec. (1.6)). Subsec. (1.4) formerly read:

(1.4) For the purposes of determining if a corporation is associated at any time with any other corporation that is controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person, or by a group of persons of which the person is a member, where the person, or any partnership in which the person has an interest, has a right at any time under contract, in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently,

(a) to, or to acquire, shares of the capital stock of the corporation, or to control the voting rights of shares of the capital stock of the corporation, the person or partnership shall, except where the contract provides that the right is not exercisable until the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual designated therein, be deemed to own the shares at that time and the shares shall be deemed to be issued and outstanding at that time; or

(b) to cause the corporation to redeem, acquire or cancel any shares of its capital stock owned by other shareholders of the corporation, the person or partnership shall, except where the contract provides that the right is not exercisable until the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual designated therein, be deemed at that time to have had the same position in relation to control of the corporation and ownership of shares of its capital stock as if the shares were redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-64R4: Corporations: association and control.

(1.5) Person related to himself, herself or itself — For the purposes of subsections (1) to (1.4) and (1.6) to (5), where a person owns shares in two or more corporations, the person shall as shareholder of one of the corporations be deemed to be related to himself, herself or itself as shareholder of each of the other corporations.

Related Provisions: 256(1.2) — Control, etc.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-64R4: Corporations: association and control.

(1.6) Exception — For the purposes of subsection (1.2) and notwithstanding subsection (1.4), any share that is

(a) described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in subsection 248(1) during the applicable time referred to in that paragraph, or shall be deemed not to have been issued and outstanding and not to be owned by any shareholder and an amount equal to the greater of the paid-up capital of the share and the amount, if any, that any holder of the share is entitled to receive on the redemption, cancellation or acquisition of the share by the corporation shall be deemed to be a liability of the corporation.

(b) a share of a specified class within the meaning of subsection (1.1)

Related Provisions: 256(1.2) — Control, etc.; 256(1.5) — Person deemed related to self.

(2) Corporations associated through a third corporation — Where two corporations

(a) would, but for this subsection, not be associated with each other at any time, and

(b) are associated, or are deemed by this subsection to be associated, with the same corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "third corporation") at that time, they shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be associated with each other at that time, except that, for the purposes of section 125, where the third corporation is not a Canadian-controlled private corporation at that time or elects, in prescribed form, for its taxation year that includes that time not to be associated with either of the other two corporations, the third corporation shall be deemed not to be associated with either of the other two corporations in that taxation year and its business limit for that taxation year shall be deemed to be nil.

Related Provisions: 256(1.2) — Control, etc.; 256(1.5) — Person deemed related to self.

Advance Tax Rulings: ATR-13: Corporations not associated.

Forms: T2 SCH 28: Election not to be an associated corporation.

(2.1) Anti-avoidance — For the purposes of this Act, where, in the case of two or more corporations, it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the separate existence of those corporations in a taxation year is to reduce the amount of taxes that would otherwise be payable under this Act or to increase the amount of refundable investment tax credit under section 127.1, the two or more corporations shall be deemed to be associated with each other in the year.

Selected Cases [subsec. 256(2.1)]: LJP Sales Agency Inc. v. R., [2004] 2 C.T.C. 2278 (TCC) (Even if professional advisors aware of tax advantages, possible that purpose of separate existence was not to reduce taxes); Hughes Homes Inc. v. R., [1998] 1 C.T.C. 2367 (TCC) (Asset protection and wife's separate business interests were main reasons for separate existence; no deemed association).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-64R4: Corporations: association and control.

Advance Tax Rulings: ATR-13: Corporations not associated.

(3) Saving provision — Where one corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "controlled corporation") would, but for this subsection, be associated with another corporation in a taxation year by reason of being controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the other corporation or by reason of both of the corporations being controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the same person at a particular time in the year (which corporation or person so controlling the controlled corporation is in this subsection referred to as the "controller") and it is established to the satisfaction of the Minister that

(a) there was in effect at the particular time an agreement or arrangement enforceable according to the terms thereof, under which, on the satisfaction of a condition or the happening of an event that it is reasonable to expect will be satisfied or happen, the controlled corporation will

(i) cease to be controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the controller, and

(ii) be or become controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person or group of persons, with whom or with each of the members of which, as the case may be, the controller was at the particular time dealing at arm's length, and

(b) the purpose for which the controlled corporation was at the particular time so controlled was the safeguarding of rights or interests of the controller in respect of

(i) any indebtedness owing to the controller the whole or any part of the principal amount of which was outstanding at the particular time, or

(ii) any shares of the capital stock of the controlled corporation that were owned by the controller at the particular time and that were, under the agreement or arrangement, to be redeemed by the controlled corporation or purchased by the person or group of persons referred to in subparagraph (a)(ii), the controlled corporation and the other corporation with which it would otherwise be so associated in the year shall be deemed, for the purpose of this Act, not to be associated with each other in the year.

Related Provisions: 256(1.2) — Control, etc.; 256(1.5) — Person deemed related to self; 256(5.1), (6.2) — Controlled directly or indirectly; 256(6.1) — Simultaneous control by different persons.

(4) Saving provision — Where one corporation would, but for this subsection, be associated with another corporation in a taxation year by reason of both of the corporations being controlled by the same executor, liquidator of a succession or trustee and it is established to the satisfaction of the Minister

(a) that the executor, liquidator or trustee did not acquire control of the corporations as a result of one or more estates or trusts created by the same individual or two or more individuals not dealing with each other at arm's length, and

(b) that the estate or trust under which the executor, liquidator or trustee acquired control of each of the corporations arose only on the death of the individual creating the estate or trust, the two corporations are deemed, for the purposes of this Act, not to be associated with each other in the year.

Related Provisions: 256(1.2) — Control, etc.; 256(1.5) — Person deemed related to self; 256(6.1) — Simultaneous control by different persons.

History: Subsec. 256(4) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 231, in force June 14, 2001. Subsec. 256(4) formerly read:

(4) Where one corporation would, but for this subsection, be associated with another corporation in a taxation year by reason of both of the corporations being controlled by the same trustee or executor and it is established to the satisfaction of the Minister

(a) that the trustee or executor did not acquire control of the corporations as a result of one or more trusts or estates created by the same individual or two or more individuals not dealing with each other at arm's length, and

(b) that the trust or estate under which the trustee or executor acquired control of each of the corporations arose only on the death of the individual creating the trust or estate, the two corporations shall be deemed, for the purposes of this Act, not to be associated with each other in the year.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-64R4: Corporations: association and control.

(5) Idem — Where one corporation would, but for this subsection, be associated with another corporation in a taxation year, by reason only that the other corporation is a trustee under a trust pursuant to which the corporation is controlled, the two corporations shall be deemed, for the purposes of this Act, not to be associated with each other in the year unless, at any time in the year, a settlor of the trust controlled or is a member of a related group that controlled the other corporation that is the trustee under the trust.

Related Provisions: 256(1.2) — Control, etc.; 256(1.5) — Person deemed related to self; 256(6.1) — Simultaneous control by different persons.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-64R4: Corporations: association and control.

(5.1) Control in fact — For the purposes of this Act, where the expression "controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever," is used, a corporation shall be considered to be so controlled by another corporation, person or group of persons (in this subsection referred to as the "controller") at any time where, at that time, the controller has any direct or indirect influence that, if exercised, would result in control in fact of the corporation, except that, where the corporation and the controller are dealing with each other at arm's length and the influence is derived from a franchise, licence, lease, distribution, supply or management agreement or other similar agreement or arrangement, the main purpose of which is to govern the relationship between the corporation and the controller regarding the manner in which a business carried on by the corporation is to be conducted, the corporation shall not be considered to be controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the controller by reason only of that agreement or arrangement.

(6) Idem — For the purposes of this Act, where a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "controlled corporation") would, but for this subsection, be regarded as having been controlled or controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "controller") at a particular time and it is established that

(a) there was in effect at the particular time an agreement or arrangement enforceable according to the terms thereof, under which, on the satisfaction of a condition or the happening of an event that it is reasonable to expect will be satisfied or happen, the controlled corporation will

(i) cease to be controlled, or controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, as the case may be, by the controller, and

(ii) be or become controlled, or controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, as the case may be, by a person or group of persons, with whom or with each of the members of which, as the case may be, the controller was at the particular time dealing at arm's length, and

(b) the purpose for which the controlled corporation was at the particular time so controlled, or controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, as the case may be, was the safeguarding of rights or interests of the controller in respect of

(i) any indebtedness owing to the controller the whole or any part of the principal amount of which was outstanding at the particular time, or

(ii) any shares of the capital stock of the controlled corporation that were owned by the controller at the particular time and that were, under the agreement or arrangement, to be redeemed by the controlled corporation or purchased by the person or group of persons referred to in subparagraph (a)(ii), the controlled corporation is deemed not to have been controlled by the controller at the particular time.

(6.1) Simultaneous control — For the purposes of this Act and for greater certainty,

(a) where a corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "subsidiary") would be controlled by another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "parent") if the parent were not controlled by any person or group of persons, the subsidiary is controlled by

(i) the parent, and

(ii) any person or group of persons by whom the parent is controlled; and

(b) where a corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "subject corporation") would be controlled by a group of persons (in this paragraph referred to as the "first-tier group") if no corporation that is a member of the first-tier group were controlled by any person or group of persons, the subject corporation is controlled by

(i) the first-tier group, and

(ii) any group of one or more persons comprised of, in respect of every member of the first-tier group, either the member, or a person or group of persons by whom the member is controlled.

Proposed Amendment — 256(7) opening words

(7) Acquiring control — For the purposes of this subsection, of subsections 10(10), 13(21.2) and (24), 14(12) and 18(15), sections 18.1 and 37, subsection 40(3.4), the definition "superficial loss" in section 54, section 55, subsections 66(11), (11.4) and (11.5), 66.5(3) and 66.7(10) and (11), section 80, paragraph 80.04(4)(h), subsections 85(1.2), 88(1.1) and (1.2) and 110.1(1.2), sections 111 and 127 and subsection 249(4) and of subsection 5905(5.2) of the Income Tax Regulations,

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates) s. 37, will amend the opening words of subsec. 256(7) to read as above, applicable after December 18, 2009.

S. 53 of the draft legislation provides that any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation year that ends before the day on which the draft legislation is assented to and would, in the absence of this section, be precluded because of subsec. 152(4) to (5) of the Act shall be made to the extent necessary to take into account this amendment, if the taxpayer

(a) elects in writing in respect of all of its foreign affiliates that this section apply in respect of that provision, and

(b) files that election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before June 30, 2011.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Subsection 256(7) provides rules for certain enumerated provisions of the Act that deem certain transactions or events to result or not to result in an acquisition of control of a corporation. Subsection 256(7) is amended to add to those enumerated provisions a reference to new subsection 5905(5.2) of the Regulations, a rule that is engaged where a Canadian corporation is subject to an acquisition of control.

(a) control of a particular corporation shall be deemed not to have been acquired solely because of

(i) the acquisition at any time of shares of any corporation by

(A) a particular person who acquired the shares from a person to whom the particular person was related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) immediately before that time,

(B) a particular person who was related to the particular corporation (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) immediately before that time,

(C) an estate that acquired the shares because of the death of a person, or

(D) a particular person who acquired the shares from an estate that arose on the death of another person to whom the particular person was related, or

Proposed Addition — 256(7)(a)(i)(E)

(E) a corporation on a distribution (within the meaning assigned by subsection 55(1)) by a specified corporation (within the meaning assigned by that subsection) if a dividend, to which subsection 55(2) does not apply because of paragraph 55(3)(b), is received in the course of the reorganization in which the distribution occurs,

Application: The July 6, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 15(3), will add cl. 256(7)(a)(i)(E), applicable to acquisitions of shares that occur after 2009.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Paragraph 256(7)(a) describes the circumstances where control of a corporation (or a corporation controlled by the corporation) is considered not to have been acquired for the purposes of certain provisions of the Act. That paragraph is amended in two ways.

First, subparagraph 256(7)(a)(i) is amended effective with respect to the acquisition of shares after 2009 to add clause (E), which precludes an acquisition of control of a corporation as a distribution (within the meaning assigned by subsection 55(1)) by a specified corporation (within the meaning assigned by that subsection) if a dividend is received in the course of a spin-off distribution to which no portion of the dividend is treated as a capital gain by the anti-avoidance rule in subsection 55(2) because of the application of the exception for certain reorganizations under paragraph 55(3)(b).

Facts

Pubco is a specified corporation under the butterfly rules in section 55 and a person or group of persons does not control Pubco. Pubco owns all of the shares of Subco. In the course of a distribution (as defined by subsection 55(1)), Pubco distributes the Subco shares to Newco, which is established in the course of the reorganization for the purposes of the distribution. The same shareholders that own all of the shares of Pubco own all of the shares of Newco. Because there is no person or group of persons that control Pubco and Newco, an acquisition of control of Subco would occur upon Newco's acquisition of the Subco shares on the distribution, despite the fact the same shareholders own Pubco and Newco.

Application

In this example, new clause 256(7)(a)(i)(E) provides that there is no acquisition of control of Subco by Newco if Pubco's distribution of its Subco shares to Newco is a distribution to which the anti-avoidance rule in subsection 55(2) does not apply because the distribution complies with the exception in paragraph 55(3)(b).

Second, new subparagraph 256(7)(a)(iii), which applies to the acquisition of shares after 2009, provides that, where there is an acquisition of any shares of a corporation, there is no acquisition of control of the corporation by a related group of persons if each member of each group of persons that controls the corporation was related to the corporation immediately before the change of control.

Example

Facts

Corporation X has issued 100 common shares with 1 vote per share. There are no other issued shares. Mr. X owns 51% of Corporation X's issued shares. Ms. D, who is the daughter of Mr. X, owns 49% of the common shares issued by Corporation X. Mr. X has de facto control of Corporation X.

Mr. X disposes of 10 shares of Corporation X to Mr. Z, an arm's length person. Consequently, Mr. X no longer has de facto control and a group of persons acquires de facto control of Corporation X.

Application

If Mr. X and Ms. D form a related group of persons that collectively acquired control of Corporation X upon the disposition of shares by Mr. X, new subparagraph 256(7)(a)(iii) deems no acquisition of control to occur by any group of persons that includes Mr. Z acquires control of Corporation X. It is a question of fact whether Mr. X and Ms. D form a group of persons that would otherwise acquire control of Corporation X and, if so, whether there is any smaller group of persons that also acquires control. Depending on the circumstances, Mr. X and Ms. D, Mr. X and Mr. Z, Ms. D and Mr. Z, or Mr. X, Ms. D and Mr. Z could form a group of persons that acquires control of Corporation X. Consequently, new subparagraph 256(7)(a)(iii) applies only if, in this example, Mr. X and Ms. D form a group of persons that control Corporation X and there exists no other group of persons that controls Mr. Z's shareholding of Corporation X.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 3, 2001

Dear [xxxx]

This is in reply to your firm's letters of December 22, 2000, January 24 and 31, February 5, 9 and 23, 2001, and telephone communications with officials of the Department regarding the application of section 55 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") to a proposed Canadian public corporation spin-off.

You have expressed the concern that the inclusion of a public corporation's shares under paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act should not, by itself, result in any acquisition of control on a "butterfly" of property. Canadian public corporation spin-off. As well, you are concerned that certain shares referred to below should not be considered to be taxable Canadian property for the purposes of the Act. I propose to address each matter separately.

Acquisition of Control

Under paragraph 55.3(b) of the Act, a Canadian public corporation ("Pubco") will spin-off the shares of its subsidiary corporation ("Subco") to a newly created public corporation ("Newco"). We understand that, pursuant to a Plan of Arrangement, the shareholders of Pubco will exchange their common shares for common shares and "special" shares of Pubco. Pubco shareholders will transfer to Newco, in exchange for common shares of Newco, their special Pubco shares, which have a total value equal to the value of the Subco shares owned by Pubco. Pubco will transfer all of its Subco shares to Newco in consideration for preferred shares of Newco. There will be a cross repurchase of the special Pubco shares held by Newco and the Newco preferred shares held by Pubco. Pubco will be a "specified corporation" within the meaning of subsection 55(1) of the Act in relation to the distribution of the shares of Subco.

Your concern is that Newco will acquire control of Subco on the acquisition of the Subco shares from Pubco, with the result that the acquisition of control and successor rules under the Act will apply to Subco after its acquisition by Newco.

We agree there should not be an acquisition of control and the successor rules of the Act should not apply to the acquisition of the Subco shares by Newco in the circumstances you describe provided the spin-off of Subco is not subsequently tainted. In this regard therefore we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to ensure there is no acquisition of control in these circumstances.

In particular, we will recommend an amendment [now 256(7)(a)(i)(E) — ed.] which will provide that where Pubco, a "specified corporation" within the meaning of subsection 55(1) of the Act, spins off its shares of Subco to Newco in the course of a reorganization in which all the dividends that are received are ones to which paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act applies, control of Subco will be considered not to have been acquired solely as a result of the acquisition of the Subco shares by Newco. We will also recommend that such an amendment be effective for acquisitions made after 2000. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that such an amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Taxable Canadian Property

As well, because of subparagraph 115(l)(b)(iv) of the Act, the special shares of Pubco that will be acquired by a non-resident shareholder of Pubco pursuant to a Plan of Arrangement will be considered to be taxable Canadian property for the purposes of the Act. Under the provisions of sections 85 and 85.1 of the Act, the taxable Canadian property status of the special shares issued by Pubco will cause the Newco shares acquired by the non-resident in exchange for the non-resident's special shares of Pubco to be taxable Canadian property of the non-resident even though the Newco shares will be listed on a prescribed stock exchange. As well, the special shares of Pubco will not be excluded property for the purpose of subsection 116(3) of the Act because the definition "excluded property" in subsection 116(6) applies in the case of shares of the capital stock of a corporation only if the shares are listed on a prescribed stock exchange.

In these circumstances, we agree that the Newco shares should not be considered to be taxable Canadian property by reason only of a deeming rule that applies on the exchange of the special shares for the Newco shares (i.e., because subparagraph 115(1)(b)(iv) applied before the exchange to the special shares of Newco). Consequently, we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended [now 55(6) — ed.] to ensure that the above-mentioned special shares of Pubco held by a non-resident shareholder will not be considered to be taxable Canadian property of the non-resident in these circumstances for the purposes of the Act. We will recommend that such an amendment be effective for such special shares issued by a public corporation after April 26, 1995 where the shares are issued by the corporation as part of the series of transactions or events that includes a distribution of property by the corporation in the course of a butterfly reorganization. The date of April 26, 1995 is the date upon which the related amendments to paragraph 115(l)(b) took effect. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that such an amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(ii) the redemption or cancellation at any particular time of, or a change at any particular time in the rights, privileges, restrictions or conditions attaching to, shares of the particular corporation or of a corporation controlling the particular corporation, where each person and each member of each group of persons that controls the particular corporation immediately after the particular time was related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the corporation

(A) immediately before the particular time, or

(B) immediately before the death of a person, where the shares were held immediately before the particular time by an estate that acquired the shares because of the person's death;

Proposed Addition — 256(7)(a)(iii)

(iii) the acquisition at any time of shares of the particular corporation if

(A) the acquisition of those shares would otherwise result in the acquisition of control of the particular corporation at that time by a related group of persons, and

(B) each member of each group of persons that controls the particular corporation at that time was related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular corporation immediately before that time;

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 153(3), will add subpara. 256(7)(a)(iii), applicable to acquisitions of shares that occur after 2000.

Technical Notes (July 2010): See under 256(7)(a)(i)(E) above.

(b) where at any time 2 or more corporations (each of which is referred to in this paragraph as a "predecessor corporation") have amalgamated to form one corporate entity (in this paragraph referred to as the "new corporation"),

(i) control of a corporation is deemed not to have been acquired by any person or group of persons solely because of the amalgamation unless it is deemed by subparagraph (ii) or (iii) to have been so acquired,

(ii) a person or group of persons that controls the new corporation immediately after the amalgamation and did not control a predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation is deemed to have acquired immediately before the amalgamation control of the predecessor corporation and of each corporation it controlled immediately before the amalgamation (unless the person or group of persons would not have acquired control of the predecessor corporation if the person or group of persons had acquired all the shares of the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation), and

(iii) control of a predecessor corporation and of each corporation it controlled immediately before the amalgamation is deemed to have been acquired immediately before the amalgamation by a person or group of persons

(A) unless the predecessor corporation was related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) immediately before the amalgamation to each other predecessor corporation,

(B) unless, if one person had immediately after the amalgamation acquired all the shares of the new corporation's capital stock that the shareholders of the predecessor corporation, or of another predecessor corporation that controlled the predecessor corporation, acquired on the amalgamation in consideration for their shares of the predecessor corporation or of the other predecessor corporation, as the case may be, the person would have acquired control of the new corporation as a result of the acquisition of those shares, or

(C) unless this subparagraph would, but for this clause, deem control of each predecessor corporation to have been acquired on the amalgamation where the amalgamation is an amalgamation of

(I) two corporations, or

(II) two corporations (in this subclause referred to as the "parents") and one or more other corporations (each of which is in this subclause referred to as a "subsidiary") that would, if all the shares of each subsidiary's capital stock that were held immediately before the amalgamation by the parents had been held by one person, have been controlled by that person;

(c) subject to paragraph (a), where 2 or more persons (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferors") dispose of shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation in exchange for shares of the capital stock of another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation"), control of the acquiring corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before the exchange is deemed to have been acquired at the time of the exchange by a person or group of persons unless

(i) the particular corporation and the acquiring corporation were related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to each other immediately before the exchange, or

(ii) if all the shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock that were acquired by the transferors on the exchange were acquired at the time of the exchange by one person, the person would not control the acquiring corporation;

Proposed Addition — 256(7)(c.1)

(c.1) subject to paragraph (a), where, at any particular time, as part of a series of transactions or events, two or more persons acquire shares of a corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") in exchange for or upon a redemption or surrender of interests in, or as a consequence of a distribution from, a SIFT trust (determined without reference to subsection 122.1(2)), SIFT partnership (determined without reference to subsection 197(8)) or real estate investment trust (as defined in subsection 122.1(1)), control of the acquiring corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before the particular time is deemed to have been acquired by a person or group of persons at the particular time unless

(i) in respect of each of the corporations, a person (in this subparagraph referred to as a "relevant person") affiliated (within the meaning assigned by section 251.1 read without reference to the definition "controlled" in subsection 251.1(5)) with the SIFT trust, SIFT partnership or real estate investment trust owned shares of the particular corporation having a total fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the particular corporation at all times during the period that

(A) begins on the latest of July 14, 2008, the date the particular corporation came into existence and the time of the last acquisition of control, if any, of the particular corporation by a relevant person, and

(B) ends immediately before the particular time,

(ii) if all the securities (in this subparagraph as defined in subsection 122.1(1)) of the acquiring corporation that were acquired as part of the series of transactions or events at or before the particular time were acquired by one person, the person would

(A) not at the particular time control the acquiring corporation, and

(B) have at the particular time acquired securities of the acquiring corporation having a fair market value of not more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the acquiring corporation, or

(iii) this paragraph previously applied to deem an acquisition of control of the acquiring corporation upon an acquisition of shares that was part of the same series of transactions or events.

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — other amendments), subsec. 1(9)(1), will add para. 256(7)(c.1), applicable to transactions undertaken after 4:00 p.m. EST March 4, 2010, other than transactions the parties to which are obliged to complete pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing between the parties entered into before that time. However, the person or a transaction that is considered not to be obligated to complete the transaction (but in respect of these parties may be excused from completing the transaction as a result of a condition in the Act).

Para. 256(7)(c.1) is also applicable to transactions completed or agreed to in writing in the period that begins on July 14, 2008 and ends at 4:00 pm EST March 4, 2010 if the parties to the transactions jointly elect in writing to the Minister of National Revenue on or before

(a) where a party to the transactions is a partnership, the day that is the later of

(i) the day that is the latest on which a return is required by section 229 of the Income Tax Regulations to be filed in respect of the partnership's fiscal period that includes the day on which the draft legislation receives Royal Assent, and

(ii) the day that is the latest filing due date of any party for an taxation year that includes the day on which this draft legislation receives Royal Assent, and

(b) if none of the parties to the transaction is a partnership, the day that is no later than the date of any party for its taxation year-end(s) the day on which this draft legislation receives Royal Assent.

For purposes of this application, no person shall be considered to be the relevant SIFT trust, SIFT partnership, real estate investment trust and resulting corporation described in para. 256(7)(c.1) or (g), as the case may be.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Subsection 256(7) describes circumstances in which control of a corporation is deemed to have been acquired, or not to have been acquired, for the purposes of certain provisions of the Act. Subsection 256(7) is amended to add new paragraphs (c.1) and (g), generally applicable after March 4, 2010.

The Act contains a number of provisions aimed at preventing or restricting the use of tax losses after an acquisition of control of a corporation. A few basic principles for acquisition of control. These rules include a rule found in existing paragraph 256(7)(c), that in general treats the acquisition of control of an acquiring corporation and corporations controlled by it, in the case of certain "reverse takeovers".

New paragraph 256(7)(c.1) clarifies that tax loss trading is unlike "reverse takeover" transactions between a corporation and a SIFT trust, SIFT partnership (collectively, "SIFTs") (as determined without reference to subsection 122.1(2)), or real estate investment trust ("REIT") is contrary to the existing scheme of the Act.

Subject to the exceptions in new subparagraphs 256(7)(c.1)(i), (ii) and (iii), new paragraph 256(7)(c.1) provides for control of a corporation (and of corporations controlled by it) to be deemed to have been acquired if, as part of a series of transactions or events (the "series"), two or more persons acquire shares at a particular time (the "acquisition time") in the corporation (the "acquiring corporation") in exchange for interests in a SIFT or REIT, for the purpose of this subsection includes a redemption, surrender or distribution of an interest.

Consistent with the general scheme of the acquisition of control regime in subsection 256(7), a deemed acquisition of control of a corporation will not occur under paragraph 256(7)(c.1) if, in respect of the exchange, there is a sufficient continuity of ownership of the corporation. Subparagraphs 256(7)(c.1)(i) and (ii) provide for this result.

Subparagraph 256(7)(c.1)(i) applies to a corporation (and to each corporation controlled by it immediately before the acquisition time) if more than 50% (measured by value) of the shares of the corporation were owned by a person (including a partnership) affiliated with the SIFT or REIT (including the SIFT or REIT itself) throughout a qualifying period. The qualifying period is the period that ends immediately before the acquisition time and that begins, generally, on July 14, 2008. For corporations that came into existence on a particular day after July 14, 2008, the qualifying period begins on the particular day. If control of the corporation was last acquired by the affiliated SIFT or REIT at a particular time after the later of July 14, 2008 and the day on which the corporation came into existence, then the qualifying period begins at this particular time.

Subparagraph 256(7)(c.1)(ii) applies to a corporation and each corporation controlled by it immediately before the acquisition time if, were a hypothetical person to have acquired all of the securities (using the extended meaning provided by subsection 122.1(1)) of the acquiring corporation that were actually acquired at or before the acquisition time and as part of the series, that hypothetical person would not have more than 50% of the shares (measured by value) and would not have control, of the acquiring corporation.

Subparagraph 256(7)(c.1)(iii) provides a third "safe harbour" under which a deemed acquisition of control of a corporation will not occur under paragraph 256(7)(c.1). This subparagraph applies to a corporation if as part of the series paragraph 256(7)(c.1) has already applied to deem an acquisition of control of the acquiring corporation.

New paragraph 256(7)(c.1) applies after 4:00 p.m. Eastern Standard Time March 4, 2010 (the "Application Time"). However, that paragraph will not apply to transactions that occur after the time if the parties to the transactions were at that time obligated, pursuant to an agreement in writing, subject to certain exceptions, to complete the transaction. Paragraph 256(7)(c.1) and new paragraph 256(7)(g) will both also apply to transactions that were completed or agreed to in writing between July 14, 2008 and the Application Time if the parties (for this purpose being the acquiring corporation and, as the case may be, the REIT or SIFT) to the transactions so elect in writing to the Minister of National Revenue.

Example

A SIFT partnership has held at all times after July 14, 2008 all of the shares of Acco, which in turn has owned at all times after July 14, 2008 all of the shares of Opco. The interests in the SIFT partnership consist of publicly-traded LP units, and GP units held by GPco.

Aco acquires all of the shares of GPco and all of the outstanding LP units in exchange for shares of Aco. The shares of Aco held by LP are redeemed in exchange for its interest in Opco. Subject to subparagraph 256(7)(c.1)(ii) to (iii), paragraph 257(6)(c.1) would apply to deem there to be an acquisition of control of Aco and Opco.

Subparagraph 256(7)(c.1)(i) recognizes that the continuity of ownership of Aco and Opco has been preserved over the course of the reorganization of the SIFT partnership's business and, as a result, will cause paragraph 256(7)(c.1) not to apply to deem an acquisition of control of either corporation to arise solely because of that reorganization.

Federal Budget, Notice of Ways and Means Motion, March 4, 2010: (35) That subsection 256(7) of the Act be modified to add a rule similar to that in existing paragraph 256(7)(e) such that where two or more persons dispose of interests in a SIFT trust (as defined in the Act, determined without reference to subsection 122.1(2) of the Act), SIFT partnership (as defined in the Act, determined without reference to subsection 197(8) of the Act) or real estate investment trust in exchange for shares of the capital stock of a corporation, control of that corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before the exchange is deemed to have been acquired at the time of the exchange by a person or group of persons.

(36) That subsection 256(7) of the Act be modified such that where a SIFT wind-up corporation is the only beneficiary of a trust and the trust controls another corporation, on a distribution of the shares of the other corporation that is part of a SIFT trust wind-up event (as defined in the Act), the SIFT wind-up corporation will be deemed not to acquire control of the other corporation because of that distribution.

(37) That the amendments referred to in paragraphs (35) and (36) apply to transactions undertaken after 4:00 pm Eastern Standard Time March 4, 2010, other than transactions that the parties are obligated to complete pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing between the parties entered into before that time. A party shall be considered not to be obligated to complete a transaction if the party may be excused from completing the transaction as a result of amendments to the Income Tax Act. If the relevant parties so elect in writing, the amendments referred to in paragraphs (35) and (36) will apply to transactions that were completed or agreed to in writing before 4:00 pm Eastern Standard Time March 4, 2010.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, March 4, 2010: SIFT Conversions and Loss Trading

The Income Tax Act includes provisions intended to allow specified investment flow-through (SIFT) trusts and partnerships — commonly referred to as income trusts and partnerships — to convert their structures into corporate form on a tax-deferred basis. Aggressive schemes have been designed to use these provisions to achieve inappropriate tax loss trading that would not be allowed as between two corporations.

In particular, the ability of a corporation to utilize its tax losses is constrained where control of the corporation has been acquired. In the case of a "reverse takeover" of a public corporation, an existing rule in the Income Tax Act generally deems there to be an acquisition of control of the public corporation in situations where shares of the public corporation are exchanged for shares of another corporation. Budget 2010 proposes to extend this rule to ensure that it also applies to impose restrictions on the use of losses in situations where units of a SIFT trust or SIFT partnership are exchanged for shares of a corporation.

Budget 2010 also proposes to amend the acquisition-of-control rules in the Income Tax Act to ensure that they do not inappropriately restrict the use of losses where a SIFT trust is wound up and distributes the shares of a corporation it holds. The rules will be amended to provide that where a SIFT trust, the sole beneficiary of which is a corporation, owns shares of another corporation, the wind-up of the trust will not cause an acquisition of control of the other corporation and restrict the subsequent use of that corporation's losses.

It is proposed that these amendments apply to transactions undertaken after 4:00 pm Eastern Standard Time on March 4, 2010, other than transactions that the parties are obligated to complete pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing between the parties entered into before that time. A party shall be considered not to be obligated to complete a transaction if the party may be excused from completing the transaction as a result of changes to the Income Tax Act. These amendments will also apply to other SIFT conversion transactions if the parties to the transaction make the appropriate election.

(d) where at any time shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation are disposed of to another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") for consideration that includes shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock and, immediately after that time, the acquiring corporation and the particular corporation are controlled by a person or group of persons who

(i) controlled the particular corporation immediately before that time, and

(ii) did not, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the disposition, cease to control the acquiring corporation, control of the particular corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before that time is deemed not to have been acquired by the acquiring corporation solely because of the disposition;

(e) where at any time all the shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation are disposed of to another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") for consideration that consists solely of shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock and, immediately after that time,

(i) the acquiring corporation is not controlled by any person or group of persons, and

(ii) the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation is not less than 95% of the fair market value of all the assets of the acquiring corporation, control of the particular corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before that time is deemed not to have been acquired by the acquiring corporation solely because of the disposition; and

Proposed Amendment — 256(7)(e)

(e) control of a particular corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before a particular time is deemed not to have been acquired at the particular time by a corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") if at the particular time, the acquiring corporation acquires shares of the particular corporation's capital stock for consideration that consists solely of shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock, and if

(i) immediately after the particular time

(A) the acquiring corporation owns all the shares of each class of the particular corporation's capital stock (determined without reference to shares of a specified class, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 88(1)(c.8)),

(B) the acquiring corporation is not controlled by any person or group of persons, and

(C) the fair market value of the shares of the particular corporation's capital stock that are owned by the acquiring corporation is not less than 95% of the fair market value of all of the assets of the acquiring corporation, or

(ii) any of clauses (i)(A) to (C) do not apply and the acquisition occurs as part of a plan of arrangement that, on completion, results in

(A) the acquiring corporation (or a new corporation that is formed on an amalgamation of the acquiring corporation and a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the acquiring corporation) owning all the shares of each class of the particular corporation's capital stock (determined without reference to shares of a specified class, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 88(1)(c.8)),

(B) the acquiring corporation (or the new corporation) not being controlled by any person or group of persons, and

(C) the fair market value of the shares of the particular corporation's capital stock that are owned by the acquiring corporation (or the new corporation) being not less than 95% of the fair market value of all of the assets of the acquiring corporation (or the new corporation).

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 153(4), will amend para. 256(7)(e) to read as above, applicable in respect of shares acquired after 1999.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Paragraph 256(7)(e) provides that, where certain conditions are satisfied, control of a particular corporation will be considered not to have been acquired solely because of a disposition of all of the shares of the particular corporation for consideration consisting solely of shares of the acquiring corporation. There conditions include a requirement that, immediately after the disposition, the acquiring corporation is not controlled by a person or group of persons and that the fair market value of the shares of the particular corporation is not less than 95% of the fair market value of all of the assets of the acquiring corporation.

Paragraph 256(7)(e) is amended, for shares acquired after 1995, to ensure that it applies on the acquisition of any shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation by the acquiring corporation if, immediately after the acquisition, the acquiring corporation owns all of the shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation (other than shares of a specified class) and the 95% test is met. This provision is also amended to deem control not to be acquired if shares of the particular corporation are acquired as part of a plan of arrangement and, upon completion of the arrangement, the acquiring corporation owns all the shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation (other than shares of a specified class) and the 95% test is met. Thus, amended paragraph 256(7)(e) may apply in circumstances where the acquiring corporation owns shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation before the acquisition being examined. In addition, amended paragraph 256(7)(e) excludes shares of a specified class, as defined in paragraph 85.1(c.3) of the Act, from the determination of whether the acquiring corporation has acquired all of the shares of the particular corporation. Shares of a specified class are excluded on the basis that they are non-voting securities similar to debt and should not be considered in determining whether control has been acquired for the purpose of paragraph 256(7)(e).

This amendment also ensures that, in circumstances where the acquisition occurs as part of a plan of arrangement, the acquiring corporation includes a new corporation formed on an amalgamation of the acquiring corporation and a subsidiary controlled corporation of the acquiring corporation. As a result, paragraph 256(7)(e) may apply to a situation where the acquiring corporation owns shares of the particular corporation indirectly through a subsidiary controlled corporation if the acquiring corporation and the subsidiary controlled corporation are amalgamated as part of a plan of arrangement that includes the acquisition.

(f) if a particular trust is the only beneficiary of another trust, the particular trust is described in paragraph (e) of the definition "SIFT trust wind-up event", the particular trust would, in the absence of this paragraph, acquire control of a corporation solely because of a SIFT trust wind up event that is a distribution of shares of the capital stock of the corporation by the other trust, and the other trust controlled the corporation immediately before the distribution, the particular trust is deemed not to acquire control of the corporation because of the distribution.

Proposed Addition — 256(7)(g)

(g) a corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") that acquires shares of another corporation on a distribution that is a SIFT trust wind-up event of a SIFT wind-up entity is deemed not to acquire control of the other corporation because of that acquisition where the following conditions are met

(i) the SIFT wind-up entity is a trust whose only beneficiary immediately before the distribution is the acquiring corporation,

(ii) the SIFT wind-up entity controlled the other corporation immediately before the distribution,

(iii) as part of a series of transactions or events under which the acquiring corporation became the only beneficiary under the trust, two or more persons acquired shares in the acquiring corporation in exchange for their interests as beneficiaries under the trust, and

(iv) if all the shares described in subparagraph (iii) had been acquired by one person, the person would

(A) control the acquiring corporation, and

(B) have acquired shares of the acquiring corporation having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the acquiring corporation.

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 3 — other amendments), subsec. 11(8)(a), will add para. 256(7)(g), applicable to transactions undertaken after 4:00 p.m. EST March 4, 2010, other than transactions the parties to which are obligated to complete pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing between the parties entered into before that time. However, the parties to a transaction shall be considered not to be obligated to complete the transaction if one or more of those parties may be excused from completing the transaction as a result of amendments to the Act.

Para. 256(7)(g) is also applicable to transactions completed or agreed to in writing in the period that begins on July 14, 2008 and ends at 4:00 pm EST March 4, 2010 if the parties to the transactions jointly elect in writing to the Minister of National Revenue on or before

(a) where a party to the transactions is a partnership, the day that is the later of

(i) the day that is the latest on which a return is required by section 229 of the Income Tax Regulations to be filed in respect of the partnership's fiscal period that includes the day on which this draft legislation receives Royal Assent, and

(ii) the day that is the latest filing due date of any party for its taxation year that includes the day on which this draft legislation receives Royal Assent, and

(b) if none of the parties to the transaction is a partnership, the day that is the latest filing due date of any party for its taxation year that includes the day on which this draft legislation receives Royal Assent.

For purposes of this application, the parties shall be considered to be the relevant SIFT trust, SIFT partnership, real estate investment trust and acquiring corporation described in para. 256(7)(c.1) or (g), as the case may be.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): New paragraph 256(7)(g) applies to clarify that an acquisition of control of a corporation ("subsidiary corporation") does not occur upon a distribution of shares of the subsidiary corporation's capital stock by another corporation (the "acquiring corporation") by a trust to a SIFT trust wind up event of the trust.

The requirements that must be met in order for paragraph 256(7)(g) to apply to the subsidiary corporation are that the following:

- the distributing trust must be a SIFT wind-up entity — meaning a SIFT trust (determined without reference to subsection 127.1(1) of the Act) or a real estate investment trust;
- the trust must control the subsidiary corporation immediately before the distribution;
- the acquiring corporation must be the sole beneficiary of the trust immediately before the distribution and it must have come to be in that position as part of a series of transactions under which two or more persons acquired shares (the "exchange shares") of its capital stock in exchange for their interests as beneficiaries under the trust; and
- had all of the exchange shares been acquired by a hypothetical person, the person would have more than 50% of the shares (measured by value), and would have control, of the acquiring corporation.

New paragraph 256(7)(g) applies after 4:00 p.m. Eastern Standard Time March 4, 2010 (the "Application Time"). However, that paragraph will not apply to transactions that occur after that time if the parties to the transactions were at that time obligated, pursuant to an agreement in writing, subject to certain exceptions, to complete the transaction. This paragraph and new paragraph 256(7)(h.1) will also apply to transactions that were completed or agreed to in writing between July 14, 2008 and the Application Time if the parties (for this purpose being the acquiring corporation and the trust) to the transactions so elect in writing to the Minister of National Revenue.

Example

Trust A, a SIFT trust, owns 100% of the shares of Acco, which is now owns 100% of the shares of Cco. Bco is a corporation none of the shareholders of which is Trust A or persons affiliated with Trust A. On July 1, 2008 Bco acquires from Trust A's unitholders all of the outstanding units of Trust A. As consideration for the trust units acquired, Bco issues to Trust A's unitholders shares of its capital stock carrying 51% of the votes of Bco. Trust A undergoes, on July 2, 2008 a SIFT trust wind-up event, and distributes its shares of Acco to Bco.

Paragraph 256(7)(g) of the Act will apply to cause there to be no acquisition of control of either Acco or Cco on the distribution.

Had the transactions described above occurred in February 2010, in order for paragraph 256(7)(g) of the Act to apply to deem no acquisition of control of Acco or Cco to occur on the distribution, Bco and Trust A would file a valid election with the CRA. However, the filing of the election would also result in the application of paragraph 237(6)(a.1) to the transactions under which Trust A's unitholders acquired capital stock carrying 51% of the votes of Bco. Specifically, that paragraph would apply to deem there to have been an acquisition of control of Bco in respect of that purchaser.

All that portion of subsec. 256(7) preceding para. (b) substituted by 1994, c. 21, s. 114, applicable to acquisitions, redemptions and cancellations occurring after 1992. That portion of the subsec. formerly read:

(7) Control deemed not to be acquired — For the purposes of subsection 13(24), section 37, subsections 66(11), (11.4) and (11.5), 66.5(3), 66.7(10) and (11), 85(1.2), 87(2.1), 88(1.1) and (1.2) and 89(1.1), sections 111 and 127 and subsection 249(4),

(a) a person shall be deemed not to have acquired control of a particular corporation, or of any corporation controlled by it, because of the redemption, acquisition or cancellation of shares of the particular corporation if that person

(i) was, immediately before the share redemption, acquisition or cancellation, related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular corporation,

(ii) was an executor, administrator or trustee of an estate who acquired the shares by virtue of the death of any other person,

(iii) acquired the shares by way of a distribution from an estate arising on the death of another person with whom the first-mentioned person was related, or

(iv) was a corporation formed by an amalgamation (within the meaning of section 87) of two or more predecessor corporations each of which was related (otherwise than by virtue of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular corporation immediately before the amalgamation; and

All that portion of subsec. 256(7) preceding subpara. (a)(ii) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsecs. 198(3), (4), to add reference to subsec. 85(1.2), applicable to dispositions occurring after 1984, and to substitute all that portion of para. (a) preceding subsec. (ii), applicable with respect to redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations of shares occurring after 1989, except that, in applying the para. to a person who so elected by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing before 1992 [1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), s. 159 provides that such an election made before December 11, 1993 shall be deemed to have been made before 1992], the references therein to "redemption" and "cancellation" shall be read as references to "redemption after July 13, 1990" and "cancellation after July 13, 1990", respectively. The substitution portion of para. (a) formerly read:

(a) where shares of a particular corporation have been acquired by a person after March 31, 1977, that person shall be deemed not to have acquired control of the particular corporation by virtue of that share acquisition if that person

(i) was, immediately before the share acquisition, related (otherwise than by virtue of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular corporation, in determining whether control of the corporation has been acquired for the purposes of subsection 13(24), section 37, subsections 66(11), (11.4) and (11.5), 66.5(3), 66.7(10) and (11), sections 111 and 127 and subsection 249(4), the taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired the shares at that time.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-64R4: Corporations: association and control.

(8.1) Corporations without share capital — For the purposes of subsections (7) and (8),

(a) a corporation incorporated without share capital is deemed to have a capital stock of a single class;

(b) each member, policyholder and other participant in the corporation is deemed to be a shareholder of the corporation; and

(c) the membership, policy or other interest in the corporation of each of those participants is deemed to be the number of shares of the corporation's capital stock that the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances, having regard to the total number of participants in the corporation and the nature of their participation.

History: Subsec. 256(8.1) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 246(5), applicable after April 26, 1995.

(9) Date of acquisition of control — For the purposes of this Act, other than for the purposes of determining if a corporation is, at any time, a small business corporation or a Canadian-controlled private corporation, where control of a corporation is acquired by a person or group of persons at a particular time on a day, control of the corporation shall be deemed to have been acquired by the person or group of persons, as the case may be, at the beginning of that day and not at the particular time unless the corporation elects in its return of income under Part I filed for its taxation year that ends immediately before the acquisition of control not to have this subsection apply.

Related Provisions: 220(3.2), Reg. 600(b) — Late filing or revocation of election; 249(4) — Deemed year end where change of control occurs; Reg. 6204(4) — Subsec. 256(9) ignored for purposes of "specified person" in determining prescribed shares under 110(1)(d).

History: Subsec. 256(9) amended by 2009, c. 2, subsec. 78(2), applicable in respect of an acquisition of control of a corporation that occurs after 2005, other than in respect of such an acquisition of control that occurs before January 28, 2009 and in respect of which the taxpayer elects in writing, filed with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's 2009 taxation year, that the amendment not apply.

The said c. 2, subsec. 78(5), states that a taxpayer is deemed to have made the election described above in respect of an acquisition of control of a corporation that occurs before January 28, 2009 if it can reasonably be considered, having regard to a return of income, notice of objection, or notice of appeal, filed or served by the taxpayer under the Act before January 28, 2009, that the taxpayer has interpreted and applied subsection 256(9) for the purposes of determining if the corporation was a small business corporation or a Canadian-controlled private corporation at the time of the transfer of shares of the corporation that caused the acquisition of control to occur.

Subsec. 256(9) formerly read:

(9) For the purposes of this Act, where control of a corporation is acquired by a person or group of persons at a particular time on a day, control of the corporation shall be deemed to have been acquired by the person or group of persons, as the case may be, at the commencement of that day and not at the particular time unless the corporation elects in its return of income under Part I filed for its taxation year ending immediately before the acquisition of control not to have this subsection apply.

Definitions [s. 257]: "amount" — 248(1).

258. (1) [Repealed under former Act]

(2) Deemed dividend on term preferred share — Notwithstanding subsection 15(3), an amount paid or payable after 1978 as interest on or as an amount in lieu of interest in respect of

(a) any interest or dividend payable after November 16, 1978 on an income bond or an income debenture issued before November 17, 1978 or pursuant to an agreement in writing made before that date, or

(b) a dividend that became payable or in arrears after November 16, 1978 on a share of the capital stock of a corporation that is not a term preferred share by reason of having been issued before November 17, 1978 or pursuant to an agreement in writing made before that date, shall, for the purposes of subsections 112(2.1) and 138(6), be deemed to be a dividend received on a term preferred share.

Related Provisions: 248(13) — Interests in trusts and partnerships.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-52R4: Income bonds and income debentures (archived).

(3) Deemed interest on preferred shares — Subject to subsection (4), for the purposes of paragraphs 12(1)(c) and (k) and sections 113 and 126, each amount that is a dividend received in a taxation year on

(a) a term preferred share by a specified financial institution resident in Canada from a corporation not resident in Canada, or

(b) any other share that

(i) is a grandfathered share, or

(ii) was issued before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, June 18, 1987 and is not deemed by subsection 112(2.22) to have been issued after that time by a corporation from a corporation not resident in Canada, if the dividend would have been a dividend in respect of which no deduction could have been made under subsection 112(1) or (2) or 138(6) because of subsection 112(2.2) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read on June 17, 1987, if the corporation that paid the dividend were a taxable Canadian corporation shall be deemed to be interest received in the year and not a dividend received on a share of the capital stock of a corporation.

Related Provisions: 248(1) — "amount" — stock dividend; 248(13) — Interests in trusts and partnerships; 258(4) — Exception.

History: Subpara. 258(3)(b)(ii) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 195, applicable in respect of dividends received after 1998. Subpara.(3)(b)(ii) formerly read:

(ii) was issued before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, June 18, 1987 and was not deemed by paragraph 112(2.2)(f) to have been issued after that time

Para. 258(3)(b) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), s. 141, applicable to dividends received or deemed to be received on shares acquired after 8:00 p.m. EDST, June 18, 1987. Para. (3)(b) formerly read:

(b) any other share by a corporation from a corporation not resident in Canada, if the dividend would have been a dividend in respect of which no deduction could have been made under subsection 112(1) or (2) or 138(6) by reason of subsection 112(2.2) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read on June 17, 1987 if the corporation that paid the dividend were a taxable Canadian corporation

I.T. Application Rules: 69 (meaning of "chapter 148 of ...").

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-88R2: Stock dividends.

(4) Exception — Subsection (3) is not applicable to a dividend described in paragraph (3)(a) if the share on which the dividend was paid was not acquired in the ordinary course of the business carried on by the corporation.

Proposed Amendment — 258(4)

(4) Exception — Subsection (3) does not apply to a dividend described in paragraph (3)(a)

(a) if the share on which the dividend was paid was not acquired in the ordinary course of the business carried on by the corporation; or

(b) to the extent that the dividend would be described by subparagraph 53(2)(b)(ii) if the corporation not resident in Canada were not a foreign affiliate of the corporation.

Application: The August 19, 2011 draft legislation (foreign affiliates), subsec. 21(1), will amend subsec. 258(4) to read as above, applicable to dividends paid after August 19, 2011.

See also Application under s. 90 re extended reassessment deadline.

Technical Notes: Subsections 258(3) and (5) provide rules that deem, in certain circumstances, certain dividends to be interest received by a taxpayer.

Subsection 258(4), which provides exceptions to subsection 258(3), is being amended to add an additional exception; and new subsection 258(6) is being added to provide a new exception to subsection 258(5). Both new exceptions carve-out any returns of paid-up capital received from a foreign affiliate as such returns are now to be treated as dividends (as per new subsection 90(2)) and it is not appropriate to subject these types of dividends to the deemed interest rules of subsections 258(3) and (5).

(5) Deemed interest on certain shares — For the purposes of paragraphs 12(1)(c) and (k) and sections 113 and 126, a dividend received after June 18, 1987 and in a taxation year from a corporation not resident in Canada, other than a corporation in which the recipient had or would have, if the corporation were a taxable Canadian corporation, a substantial interest (within the meaning assigned by section 191), on a share, if the dividend would have been a dividend in respect of which no deduction could have been made under subsection 112(1) or (2) or 138(6) by reason of subsection 112(2.2) or (2.4) if the corporation that paid the dividend were a taxable Canadian corporation, shall be deemed to be interest received in the year and not a dividend received on a share of the capital stock of the payer corporation.

Related Provisions: 191(2), (3) — Meaning of "substantial interest"; 248(1)"amount" — stock dividend; 248(13) — Interests in trusts and partnerships; 258(6) — Exception.

Proposed Addition — 258(6)

(6) Exception — Subsection (5) does not apply to a dividend described in that subsection to the extent that the dividend would be described by subparagraph 53(2)(b)(ii) if the corporation not resident in Canada were not a foreign affiliate of the recipient.

Application: The August 19, 2011 draft legislation (foreign affiliates), subsec. 21(2), will add subsec. 258(6), applicable to dividends paid after August 19, 2011.

See also Application under s. 90 re extended reassessment deadline.

Technical Notes: See under 258(4).

259. (1) Proportional holdings in trust property — For the purposes of designated provisions, if at any time a specified taxpayer acquires, holds or disposes of a particular unit in a qualified trust and the qualified trust elects for any period that includes that time to have this subsection apply,

(a) the taxpayer shall be deemed not to acquire, hold or dispose of at that time, as the case may be, the particular unit;

(b) where the taxpayer holds the particular unit at that time, the taxpayer shall be deemed to hold at that time that proportion (referred to in this subsection as the "specified portion") of each property (in this subsection referred to as a "relevant property") held by the trust at that time that one (or, where the particular unit is a fraction of a whole unit, that fraction) is of the number of units of the trust outstanding at that time;

(c) [Repealed]

(d) where that time is the later of

(i) the time the trust acquires the relevant property, and

(ii) the time the taxpayer acquires the particular unit,

the taxpayer shall be deemed to acquire the specified portion of a relevant property at that time;

(e) where that time is the time the specified portion of a relevant property is deemed by paragraph (d) to have been acquired, the fair market value of the specified portion of the relevant property at that time shall be deemed to be the specified portion of the fair market value of the relevant property at the time of its acquisition by the trust;

(f) where that time is the time immediately before the time the trust disposes of a particular relevant property, the taxpayer shall be deemed to dispose of, immediately after that time, the specified portion of the particular relevant property for proceeds equal to the specified portion of the proceeds of disposition to the trust of the particular relevant property;

(g) where that time is the time immediately before the time the taxpayer disposes of the particular unit, the taxpayer shall be deemed to dispose of, immediately after that time, the specified portion of each relevant property for proceeds equal to the specified portion of the fair market value of that relevant property at that time; and

(h) where the taxpayer is deemed because of this subsection

(i) to have acquired a portion of a relevant property as a consequence of the acquisition of the particular unit by the taxpayer and the acquisition of the relevant property by the trust, and

(ii) subsequently to have disposed of the specified portion of the relevant property, the specified portion of the relevant property shall, for the purposes of determining the consequences under this Act of the disposition and without affecting the proceeds of disposition of the specified portion of the relevant property, be deemed to be the portion of the relevant property referred to in subparagraph (i).

(2) [Repealed]

(3) Election — An election by a qualified trust under subsection (1) shall be made by the qualified trust filing a prescribed form with the Minister and shall apply for the period

(a) that begins on the later of

(i) the day that is 15 months before the day on which the election is filed, and

(ii) the day, if any, that is designated by the qualified trust in the election; and

(b) that ends on the earlier of

(i) the day on which the qualified trust files with the Minister a notice of revocation of the election, and

(ii) the day, if any, that is designated by the qualified trust in the notice of revocation and that is not before the day that is 15 months before the day on which the notice of revocation is filed.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-412R2: Foreign property of registered plans.

Forms: T1024: Election to deem a proportional holding in qualified trust/corporate property.

(4) Requirement to provide information — Where a qualified trust elects under subsection (1),

(a) it shall provide notification of the election

(i) within 30 days after making the election, to each person who held a unit in the qualified trust at any time in the period before the election was made and during which the election is applicable, and

(ii) at the time of acquisition, to each person who acquires a unit in the qualified trust at any time in the period after the election was made and during which the election is applicable; and

(b) if a person who holds a unit in the qualified trust at any time in the period during which the election is applicable makes a written request to the qualified trust for information that is necessary for the purpose of determining the consequences under this Act of the election for that person, the qualified trust shall provide to the person that information within 30 days after receiving the request.

(5) Definitions — In this section,

"designated provisions" means sections 146 and 146.1 to 146.4 and Parts X and XI to XI.1, as they apply in respect of investments that are not qualified investments for a trust, and Part X.2;

"qualified corporation" — [Repealed]

"qualified trust" at any time means a trust (other than a registered investment or a trust that is prescribed to be a small business investment trust) where

(a) each trustee of the trust at that time is a corporation that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as a trustee or a person who is a trustee of a trust governed by a registered pension plan,

(b) all the interests of the beneficiaries under the trust at that time are described by reference to units of the trust all of which are at that time identical to each other,

(c) it has never before that time borrowed money except where the borrowing was for a term not exceeding 90 days and the borrowing was not part of a series of loans or other transactions and repayments, and

(d) it has never before that time accepted deposits.

"specified taxpayer" means a taxpayer that is a registered investment or that is described in any of paragraphs 149(1)(r), (s), (u) to (u.2) and (x).

Proposed Amendment — 259(5)"specified taxpayer"

"specified taxpayer" means a taxpayer that is a registered investment or that is described in any of paragraphs 149(1)(r), (s), (u) to (u.3) and (x).

Application: The December 14, 2011 draft legislation, s. 22, will amend the definition "specified taxpayer" in subsec. 259(5) to read as above, in force or deemed in force on the day of the coming into force of S.C. 2012, c. 16 (Bill C-25, Royal Assent June 18, 2012), Pooled Registered Pension Plans Act.

Technical Notes: Subsection 259(1) provides a "look-through" rule that applies to "specified taxpayers" that acquire units of a "qualified trust". If the qualified trust so elects, each taxpayer is deemed to acquire, hold and dispose of its proportionate interest in the underlying assets of the qualified trust. This rule may allow a specified taxpayer to reduce or eliminate the tax penalties that result from holding certain investments. Subsection 259(5) defines "specified taxpayer" to include trusts governed by a registered retirement savings plans, deferred profit sharing plans, registered education savings plans, registered disability savings plans and tax-free savings accounts.

The definition "specified taxpayer" is amended to add a reference to new paragraph 149(1)(u.3) to include pooled registered pension plans in the list of specified taxpayers.

Related Provisions: 149(1)(o.4) — No tax payable by master trust; 248(10) — Series of transactions; 248(12) — Identical properties.

Regulations: 5103 (prescribed small business investment trust; needs to be amended to apply for 259(5) rather than 259(3)).

History [s. 259]: The opening words of subsec. 259(1) amended by 2011, c. 24, subsec. 75(1), applicable after 1999. The opening words formerly read:

(1) For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1), 146.2(6) and 146.3(7), (8) and (9) and Parts X, X.2 and XI to XI.1, if at any time a taxpayer that is a registered investment or that is described in any of paragraphs 149(1)(r), (s), (u) to (u.2) or (x) acquires, holds or disposes of a particular unit in a qualified trust and the qualified trust elects for any period that includes that time to have this subsection apply,

The definition "designated provisions" added to subsec. 259(5) by the said c. 24, subsec. 75(2), applicable after 1999, except that

(a) in its application to taxation years that begin before 2005, it is to be read as follows:

"designated provisions" means subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1), 146.1(2.1), 146.3(7), (8) and (9), and Parts X, X.2, XI and XI.1;

(b) in its application to taxation years that begin after 2004 and before 2008, it is to be read as follows:

"designated provisions" means subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1), 146.1(2.1), 146.3(7), (8) and (9), and Parts X, X.2 and XI.1;

(c) in its application to taxation years that begin after 2007 and before 2009, it is to be read as follows:

"designated provisions" means subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1), 146.1(2.1), 146.3(7), (8) and (9), and 146.4(5), and Parts X, X.2, XI and XI.1;

(d) in its application to taxation years that begin after 2008 and end before March 23, 2011, it is to be read as follows:

"designated provisions" means subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1), 146.1(2.1), 146.2(6), 146.3(7), (8) and (9), and 146.4(5), and Parts X, X.2 and XI to XI.1;

The definition "specified taxpayer" added to subsec. 259(5) by the said c. 24, subsec. 75(2), applicable after 1999, except that

(a) in its application to taxation years that begin before 2005, it is to be read as follows:

"specified taxpayer" means a taxpayer described in section 205.

(b) in its application to taxation years that begin after 2004 and before 2008, it is to be read as follows:

"specified taxpayer" means a taxpayer that is a registered investment or that is described in any of paragraphs 149(1)(r), (s), (u) and (x).

(c) in its application to taxation years that begin after 2007 and before 2009, it is to be read as follows:

"specified taxpayer" means a taxpayer that is a registered investment or that is described in any of paragraphs 149(1)(r), (s), (u), (u.1) and (x).

The opening words of subsec. 259(1) amended by 2009, c. 2, s. 79 to substitute "146.2(6)" for "146.2(4)", applicable to 2009 et seq.

The opening words of subsec. 259(1) amended by 2008, c. 28, s. 37, applicable to 2009 et seq. The opening words formerly read:

(1) For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1) and 146.3(7), (8) and (9) and Parts X, X.2 and XI.1, if at any time a taxpayer that is a registered investment or that is described in paragraph 149(1)(r), (s), (u) or (x) acquires, holds or disposes of a particular unit in a qualified trust and the qualified trust elects for any period that includes that time to have this subsection apply,

Opening words of subsec. 259(1) amended by 2005, c. 30, subsec. 18(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2004. The opening words formerly read:

For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1) and 146.3(7), (8) and (9) and Parts X, X.2, XI and XI.1, where at any time a taxpayer described in section 205 acquires, holds or disposes of a particular unit in a qualified trust and the trust elects for any period that includes that time to have the provisions of this subsection apply,

Para. 259(1)(c) and subsec. 259(2) repealed by the said c. 30, subsecs. 18(2), (3), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2004. The para. and subsec. formerly read:

(c) the cost amount to the taxpayer at that time of the specified portion of a relevant property shall be deemed to be equal to the specified portion of the cost amount at that time to the trust of the relevant property;

. . . . .

(2) Proportional holdings in corporate property — Subsection (1) applies to an election by a qualified corporation as if

(a) the reference to "a qualified trust" were read as "the capital stock of a qualified corporation";

(b) the references to "unit" were read as "share"; and

(c) the references to "the trust" were read as "the corporation".

Subsecs. 259(3) and (4) amended by the said c. 30, subsec. 18(4), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2004. The subsecs. formerly read:

(3) The election by a trust or a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "elector") under subsection (1) shall be made by the elector filing a prescribed form with the Minister and shall apply for the period beginning 15 months before the day of filing thereof (or such later time as the elector designates in its election) and ending at such time as the election is revoked by the elector filing with the Minister a notice of revocation (or at such earlier time within the 15-month period before the day on which the notice of revocation is filed with the Minister as the elector designates in its notice of revocation).

(4) Where a trust or a corporation elects under subsection (1),

(a) it shall, not more than 30 days after making the election, notify each person who, before the election is made and during the period for which the election is made, held a unit in the trust or a share in the capital stock of the corporation, as the case may be, of the election; and

(b) where any person who holds such a unit or share during the period for which the election is made makes a written request to the trust or the corporation for information that is necessary for the purpose of determining the consequences under this Act of the election for that person, the trust or the corporation, as the case may be, shall provide the person with that information not more than 30 days after the receipt of the request.

The definition "qualified corporation" in subsecs. 259(5) amended by the said c. 30, subsec. 18(5), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2004. The definition formerly read:

"qualified corporation" at any time means a corporation described in paragraph 149(1)(o.2) where, at that time,

(a) all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation are identical to each other, or

(b) all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation are held by one person;

S. 259 substituted by 1994, c. 21, s. 115, subsecs. (1), (3) and (5) applicable to periods occurring after 1985, subsec. (2) applicable to periods occurring after 1991, and subsec. (4) applicable to elections made after December 21, 1992. That section formerly read:

259. (1) Proportional holdings in trust property — For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1) and 146.3(7) to (9) and Parts X, X.2, XI and XI.1 of this Act and subsections 146.2(12), (13) and (14) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, where at any time a taxpayer described in section 205 acquires, holds or disposes of an interest in a qualified trust and the trust elects for any period that includes that time to have the provisions of this subsection apply, the taxpayer shall be deemed

(a) not to acquire, hold or dispose of at that time, as the case may be, that interest in the trust;

(b) to hold at that time that proportion (in this subsection referred to as the taxpayer's "specified portion") of each property of the trust that the number of units of the trust held by the taxpayer at that time is of the number of units of the trust outstanding at that time, and the cost amount to the trust of the taxpayer's specified portion of each such property shall be deemed to be the cost amount to the taxpayer of the taxpayer's specified portion of the property;

(c) to acquire the taxpayer's specified portion of each property of the trust at the later of

(i) the date the trust acquires the property, and

(ii) the date the taxpayer acquires the interest in the trust, and the fair market value, at the time of acquisition by the taxpayer, of the taxpayer's specified portion of the property shall be deemed to be the fair market value of that specified portion of the property at the time of its acquisition by the trust; and

(d) to dispose of the taxpayer's specified portion of each property of the trust at the earlier of

(i) the date the trust disposes of the property, and

(ii) the date the taxpayer disposes of the interest in the trust

for proceeds equal to,

(iii) where subparagraph (i) applies, the proceeds of disposition to the trust of the taxpayer's specified portion of the property, and

(iv) where subparagraph (ii) applies, the fair market value, immediately before the disposition of the interest, of the taxpayer's specified portion of the property.

(2) Election — The election by a trust under subsection (1) shall be made by the trust filing a prescribed form with the Minister and shall be applicable in respect of the period commencing 15 months before the date of filing thereof (or such later time as the trust may designate in its election) and ending at such time as the election is revoked by the trust filing with the Minister a notice of revocation (or at such earlier time within the 15 month period immediately preceding the date on which the notice of revocation is filed with the Minister as the trust may designate in its notice of revocation).

(3) Definition of "qualified trust" — In this section, "qualified trust" means a trust, other than a registered investment or a trust that is prescribed to be a small business investment trust, where

(a) each trustee of the trust is a corporation that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee or a person who is a trustee of a trust governed by a registered pension fund or plan;

(b) the interests of the beneficiaries under the trust are described by reference to units of the trust that are identical in all respects and any difference between the interest in the trust of each beneficiary and the interest in the trust of each other beneficiary is dependent solely on the difference in the number of units held by those beneficiaries;

(c) it has never borrowed money except where the borrowing was for a term not exceeding 90 days and was not part of a series of loans or other transactions and repayments;

(d) it has never accepted deposits; and

(e) it complies with prescribed conditions.

Para. 259(3)(c) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), s. 142, applicable to borrowings occurring after 1990. Para. (3)(c) formerly read:

(c) it has never borrowed money;

Regulations [s. 259]: 5103 (small business investment trust).

260. (1) Definitions — In this section,

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"dealer compensation payment"

"dealer compensation payment" means an amount received by a taxpayer as compensation, for an underlying payment,

(a) from a registered securities dealer resident in Canada who paid the amount in the ordinary course of a business of trading in securities, or

(b) in the ordinary course of the taxpayer's business of trading in securities, where the taxpayer is a registered securities dealer resident in Canada;

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(5), will add the definition "dealer compensation payment" to subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes (July 2010): "Dealer compensation payment" is one of the newly-defined terms, introduced not to effect any substantive change to the relevant rules but only for simplicity and clarity. A dealer compensation payment is an amount paid or received as compensation for an underlying payment by a registered securities dealer who is resident in Canada and who pays or receives the amount in the ordinary course of its business of trading in securities.

"qualified security" means

(a) a share of a class of the capital stock of a corporation that is listed on a stock exchange or of a class of the capital stock of a corporation that is a public corporation by reason of the designation of the class by the corporation in an election made under subparagraph (b)(i) of the definition "public corporation" in subsection 89(1) or by the Minister in a notice to the corporation under subparagraph (b)(ii) of that definition,

(b) a bond, debenture, note or similar obligation of a corporation described in paragraph (a) or of a corporation that is controlled by such a corporation,

(c) a bond, debenture, note or similar obligation of or guaranteed by the government of any country, province, state, municipality or other political subdivision, or a corporation, commission, agency or association controlled by any such person, or

(d) a warrant, right, option or similar instrument with respect to a share described in paragraph (a);

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"qualified security"(e)

(e) a qualified trust unit;

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(1), will add para. (e) to the definition "qualified security" in subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes (July 2010): The securities lending arrangement rules apply only to securities that are qualified securities. A new paragraph (e) is added to the definition "qualified security" to include a qualified trust unit.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 11, 2002

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letters concerning the application of the Income Tax Act's securities lending rules to listed units of mutual fund trusts.

In your letters and our subsequent discussions, you represent that listed mutual fund trust units ought to be included as "qualified securities" for purposes of the securities lending arrangements ("SLA") rules in section 260 of the Income Tax Act. You explain that some taxpayers have already made loans of listed mutual fund trust units. You further state that most of the lenders are mutual funds, and suggest that such lenders need to clarify as much as possible their tax position on the lent trust units before their current taxation year ends.

We agree that the attributes of listed mutual fund trust units, in the context of the SLA rules, are very similar to those of listed stocks and bonds. Therefore, we are prepared to recommend an amendment to the SLA rules to treat listed mutual fund trust units as "qualified securities" for the purposes of ensuring that there would be no disposition by lenders as a result of the loan of such securities. Subject to further submissions, we would propose that this change apply to loans of listed mutual fund units after 2001.

As you know, we have not been able — based on the material provided to us [xxx] — to reach a decision to recommend changes relating to the income tax treatment of compensation payments received by lenders or of compensation payments made by borrowers. However, we remain open to consider further representations on these issues.

Should this recommendation be acted upon it will be presented in a Technical Bill to be tabled at the first opportunity for consideration by Parliament.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber, General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

History: The definition "qualified security" in subsec. 260(1) amended to substitute "stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange" by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 66(1), applicable after December 13, 2007.

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"qualified trust unit"

"qualified trust unit" means a unit of a mutual fund trust that is listed on a stock exchange;

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(5), will add the definition "qualified trust unit" to subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001, except that for the period before December 14, 2007, the reference to "stock exchange" in the definition is to be read as a reference to "prescribed stock exchange".

Technical Notes (July 2010): A "qualified trust unit" is defined to mean a unit of a mutual fund trust that is listed on a stock exchange.

This new definition applies to securities lending arrangements made after 2001, except that for the period before December 14, 2007, the reference to "stock exchange" is to be read as "prescribed stock exchange".

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"SLA compensation payment"

"SLA compensation payment" means an amount paid pursuant to a securities lending arrangement as compensation for an underlying payment;

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(5), will add the definition "SLA compensation payment" to subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes (July 2010): "SLA compensation payment" is a newly-defined term, introduced not to effect any substantive change to the relevant rules but only for simplicity and clarity. An SLA compensation payment is an amount paid pursuant to a securities lending arrangement as compensation for an underlying payment.

"securities lending arrangement" means an arrangement under which

(a) a person (in this section referred to as the "lender") transfers or lends at any particular time a qualified security to another person (in this section referred to as the "borrower") with whom the lender deals at arm's length,

Proposed Amendment — 260(1)"securities lending arrangement"(a)

(a) a person (in this section referred to as the "lender") transfers or lends at any particular time a qualified security to another person (in this section referred to as the "borrower"),

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(2), will amend para. (a) of the definition "securities lending arrangement" in subsec. 260(1) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): There are three amendments to the definition "securities lending arrangement".

Paragraph (a) of the existing definition provides that in order for there to be a securities lending arrangement, the lender and the borrower of a security must be dealing at arm's length. The amendment to paragraph (a) extends the definition to include an arrangement entered into by non-arm's length parties. New paragraph (e) provides that where the lender and borrower do not deal with each other at arm's length, the arrangement must be of a term not exceeding 270 days and must not be part of a series of securities lending arrangements, loans or other transactions intended to be in effect for more than 270 days.

(b) it may reasonably be expected, at the particular time, that the borrower will transfer or return after the particular time to the lender a security (in this section referred to as an "identical security") that is identical to the security so transferred or lent,

(c) where the qualified security is a share of the capital stock of a corporation, the borrower is obligated to pay to the lender amounts equal to and as compensation for all dividends, if any, paid on the security that would have been received by the borrower if the borrower had held the security throughout the period beginning after the particular time and ending at the time an identical security is transferred or returned to the lender, and

Proposed Amendment — 260(1)"securities lending arrangement"(c)

(c) the borrower is obligated to pay to the lender amounts equal to and as compensation for all amounts, if any, paid on the security that would have been received by the borrower if the borrower had held the security throughout the period that begins after the particular time and that ends at the time an identical security is transferred or returned to the lender,

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(3), will amend para. (c) of the definition "securities lending arrangement" in subsec. 260(1) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Paragraph (c) of the existing definition provides that where a borrowed security is a share, the borrower must be obligated to pay to the lender a dividend compensation payment in order for the transaction to be a securities lending arrangement. This paragraph is amended to apply a comparable requirement in respect of all arrangements. This recognizes and codifies the commercial reality that compensation payments are required to be made by the borrower to the lender in all securities lending arrangements, and not just those arrangements involving shares.

(d) the lender's risk of loss or opportunity for gain or profit with respect to the security is not changed in any material respect,

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"securities lending arrangement"(e)

(e) if the lender and the borrower do not deal with each other at arm's length, it is intended that neither the arrangement nor any series of securities lending arrangements, loans or other transactions of which the arrangement is a part be in effect for more than 270 days,

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(4), will add para. (e) to the definition "securities lending arrangement" in subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): See under 260(1)"securities lending arrangement"(a).

but does not include an arrangement one of the main purposes of which may reasonably be considered to be to avoid or defer the inclusion in income of any gain or profit with respect to the security.

History: Para. (c) of "securities lending arrangement" substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 199(1), applicable to transfers, loans and payments made after April 26, 1989. Para. (c) formerly read:

(c) the borrower is obligated to pay to the lender amounts equal to and as compensation for all dividends, if any, paid on the security after the particular time and before an identical security is transferred or returned to the lender, and

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"security distribution", "underlying payment"

"security distribution" means an amount that is

(a) an underlying payment, or

(b) an SLA compensation payment, or a dealer compensation payment, that is deemed by subsection (5.1) to be an amount received as an amount described by any of paragraphs (5.1)(a) to (c);

Technical Notes (July 2010): "Security distribution" is a newly-defined term, introduced not to effect any substantive change to the relevant rules but only for simplicity and clarity. A security distribution is an amount, in respect of a borrowed security, that is either an underlying payment paid by the issuer of the security (for example as a dividend or a trust distribution) or a dealer compensation payment, or an SLA compensation payment.

"underlying payment" means an amount paid on a qualified security by the issuer of the security.

Technical Notes (July 2010): "Underlying payment" is a newly-defined term. As with most of the other new definitions in this subsection, this term is defined for simplicity and clarity. An underlying payment is an amount paid on a qualified security by the issuer of the security.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(5), will add the definitions "security distribution" and "underlying payment" to subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

(1.1) Eligible dividend — This subsection applies to an amount if the amount is received by a person who is resident in Canada, the amount is deemed under subsection (5.1) to be a taxable dividend, and the amount is either

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(6), will amend the opening words of subsec. 260(1.1) to read as above, applicable to amounts received as compensation for dividends paid after 2005.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Existing subsection 260(1.1) sets out the conditions under which a dividend compensation payment is deemed by subsection 260(5) to be an eligible dividend. The subsection is updated to instead reference new subsection 260(5.1).

(a) received as compensation for an eligible dividend, within the meaning assigned by subsection 89(1); or

(b) received as compensation for a taxable dividend (other than an eligible dividend) paid by a corporation to a non-resident shareholder in circumstances where it is reasonable to consider that the corporation would, if that shareholder were resident in Canada, have designated the dividend to be an eligible dividend under subsection 89(14).

Related Provisions: 260(5) — Dividend compensation payment deemed to be eligible dividend.

History: Subsec. 260(1.1) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 54(1), applicable to amounts received as compensation for dividends paid after 2005.

(2) Non-disposition — Subject to subsections (3) and (4), for the purposes of this Act, any transfer or loan by a lender of a security under a securities lending arrangement shall be deemed not to be a disposition of the security and the security shall be deemed to continue to be property of the lender and, for the purposes of this subsection, a security shall be deemed to include an identical security that has been transferred or returned to the lender under the arrangement.

Related Provisions: 260(10), (11) — Application to partnerships.

(3) Disposition of right — Where, at any time, a lender receives property (other than an identical security or an amount deemed by subsection (4) to have been received as proceeds of disposition) in satisfaction of or in exchange for the lender's right under a securities lending arrangement to receive the transfer or return of an identical security, for the purposes of this Act the lender shall be deemed to have disposed at that time of the security that was transferred or lent for proceeds of disposition equal to the fair market value of the property received for the disposition of the right (other than any portion thereof that is deemed to have been received by the lender as a taxable dividend), except that section 51, 85.1, 86 or 87, as the case may be, shall apply in computing the income of the lender with respect to any such disposition as if the security transferred or lent had continued to be the lender's property and the lender had received the property directly.

(4) Idem — Where, at any time, it may reasonably be considered that a lender would have received proceeds of disposition for a security that was transferred or lent under a securities lending arrangement, if the security had not been transferred or lent, the lender shall be deemed to have disposed of the security at that time for those proceeds of disposition.

(5) Deemed dividend — For the purposes of this Act, any amount received (other than an amount received as proceeds of disposition or an amount received by a corporation under an arrangement where it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the corporation entering into the arrangement was to enable it to receive an amount that would otherwise have been deemed by this subsection to be a dividend)

(a) under a securities lending arrangement from a person resident in Canada, or a person not resident in Canada where the amount was paid in the course of carrying on business in Canada through a permanent establishment as defined by regulation, or

(b) by or from a person who is a registered securities dealer resident in Canada, where the amount is received or paid, as the case may be, in the ordinary course of the business of trading in securities carried on by the dealer, as compensation for a taxable dividend paid on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation that is a qualified security shall, to the extent of the amount of that dividend, be deemed to have been received as a taxable dividend and, if subsection (1.1) applies to the amount, as an eligible dividend on the share from the corporation.

Proposed Amendment — 260(5), (5.1)

(5) Where subsec. (5.1) applies — Subsection (5.1) applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of a particular amount (other than an amount received as proceeds of disposition or an amount received by a person under an arrangement where it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the person entering into the arrangement was to enable the person to receive an SLA compensation payment or a dealer compensation payment that would be deductible in computing the taxable income, or not included in computing the income, for any taxation year of the person) received by the taxpayer in the taxation year

(a) as an SLA compensation payment,

(i) from a person resident in Canada, or

(ii) from a non-resident person who paid the particular amount in the course of carrying on business in Canada through a permanent establishment as defined by regulation; or

(b) as a dealer compensation payment.

(5.1) Deemed character of compensation payments [temporary] — If this subsection applies in respect of a particular amount received by a taxpayer in a taxation year as an SLA compensation payment or as a dealer compensation payment, the particular amount is deemed, to the extent of the underlying payment to which the amount relates, to have been received by the taxpayer in the taxation year as,

(a) where the underlying payment is a taxable dividend paid on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation (other than an underlying payment to which paragraph (b) applies), a taxable dividend on the share and, if subsection (1.1) applies to the particular amount, an eligible dividend on the share from the corporation;

(b) where the underlying payment is paid by a trust on a qualified trust unit issued by the trust,

(i) an amount of the trust's income that was, to the extent that subsection 104(13) applied to the underlying payment,

(A) paid by the trust to the taxpayer as a beneficiary under the trust, and

(B) designated by the trust in respect of the taxpayer to the extent of a valid designation, if any, by the trust under this Act in respect of the recipient of the underlying payment, and

(ii) to the extent that the underlying payment is a distribution of a property from the trust, a distribution of that property from the trust; or

(c) in any other case, interest.

Related Provisions: 18(1)(w) — No deduction for underlying payment deemed received by another person; 260(5) — Conditions for 260(5.1) to apply; 260(6) — Deductibility of compensation for security distribution; 260(7) — Dividend refund.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(7), will amend subsec. 260(5) to read as above, and add subsec. (5.1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001, except that

(a) if the parties to an arrangement jointly so elect in writing and file the election with the Minister of National Revenue within 90 days after the day on which this draft legislation is assented to, subsec. 260(5.1) is to be read, in its application to SLA compensation payments or dealer compensation payments received under the arrangement before February 28, 2004, without reference to para. 260(5.1)(b), para. (c) or both paras. (b) and (c), as specified by the parties in the election; and

(b) for amounts received as compensation for dividends paid before 2006, para. 260(5.1)(a) is to be read without reference to "and, if subsection (1.1) applies to the amount, an eligible dividend on the share from the corporation".

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 260(5), in its current form, treats dividend compensation payments that are received under specified circumstances as dividends. The subsection also, however, denies this dividend treatment where the amount is received by a corporation and one of the main reasons for the corporation entering into the arrangement was to enable it to receive an amount that would be treated as a dividend by the subsection.

Subsection 260(5) is reorganized into two subsections, and these subsections incorporate three newly-defined terms: "dealer compensation payment", "SLA compensation payment" and "underlying payment".

New subsection 260(5) describes the circumstances under which the compensation payment deeming rule, now found in new subsection 260(5.1), applies. The deeming rule applies where an amount is received under a securities lending arrangement under one of these circumstances: from a person resident in Canada, from a person not resident in Canada where the amount was paid in the course of carrying on business in Canada through a permanent establishment, or from or by a registered securities dealer. These are essentially the same as the circumstances specified prior to the amendment.

Also, the anti-avoidance rule in this subsection — which currently addresses only the case of an amount that would otherwise be received by a corporation as a dividend — is amended to include all otherwise non-taxable amounts that may be received under a securities lending arrangement, by any person. This amendment recognizes that with the introduction of qualified trust units as "qualified securities," a person may be treated as having received any of several kinds of non-taxable amounts.

New subsection 260(5.1) treats a given compensation payment as one of three things: a dividend, an amount paid by a trust and having the same characteristics, source and purpose as the "underlying payment" amount paid by the trust directly, or interest. The overall effect of the provision is, in addition to replicating the former dividend deeming rule, to deem compensation payments in respect of payments from a trust to have the same characteristics, source and purpose as if the amounts were paid by the trust.

These amendments apply to securities lending arrangements made after 2001 except that if the parties to an arrangement file a joint election in writing within 90 days after Royal Assent of this amendment with the Minister of National Revenue, the parties may elect such that either one or both of the deeming rules in paragraph 260(5.1)(b) or (c) will not apply with respect to non-dividend compensation payments received before February 28, 2004. Taxpayers may wish to make this election to leave open the possibility that these non-dividend compensation payments had a different characterization under the law prior to these amendments.

History: The closing words of subsec. 260(5) amended by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 54(2), applicable to amounts received as compensation for dividends paid after 2005. The closing words formerly read:

> as compensation for a taxable dividend paid on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation that is a qualified security shall, to the extent of the amount of that dividend, be deemed to have been received as a taxable dividend on the share from the corporation.

Para. 260(5)(b) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 75(1), applicable to transfers, loans and payments made after April 26, 1989. Para. (b) formerly read:

> (b) by or from a person resident in Canada who is registered or licensed under the laws of a province to trade in securities where the amount is received or paid, as the case may be, in the ordinary course of the business of trading or dealing in securities carried on by that person,

(6) Non-deductibility — In computing a taxpayer's income under Part I from a business or property

(a) where the taxpayer is not a registered securities dealer, no deduction shall be made in respect of an amount that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend; and

(b) where the taxpayer is a registered securities dealer, no deduction shall be made in respect of more than ⅔ of that amount.

Proposed Amendment — 260(6)

(6) Deductibility — In computing the income of a taxpayer under Part I from a business or property for a taxation year, there may be deducted a particular amount, paid by the taxpayer in the year as an SLA compensation payment or as a dealer compensation payment, that is equal to

(a) if the taxpayer is a registered securities dealer and the particular amount is deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received as a taxable dividend, no more than ⅔ of the particular amount; or

(b) if the particular amount is in respect of an amount other than an amount that is, or is deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been, received as a taxable dividend,

(i) where the taxpayer disposes of the borrowed security and includes the gain or loss, if any, from the disposition in computing its income from a business, the particular amount, or

(ii) in any other case, the lesser of

(A) the particular amount, and

(B) the amount, if any, in respect of the security distribution to which the SLA compensation payment or dealer compensation payment relates that is included in computing the income, and not deducted in computing the taxable income, for any taxation year of the taxpayer or of any person to whom the taxpayer is related.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(7), will amend subsec. 260(6) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 260(6) limits the extent to which a person who makes a dividend compensation payment under a securities lending arrangement may deduct the payment in computing income from a business or property. In brief, the subsection denies a deduction for any dividend compensation payment made by persons other than registered securities dealers, and provides that registered securities dealers may deduct up to ⅔ of the dividend compensation payments they make.

Amended subsection 260(6) retains this ⅔ dividend compensation payment deduction for registered securities dealers. It also allows any taxpayer — including but not limited to registered securities dealers — a deduction in respect of compensation payments, either SLA compensation payments or dealer compensation payments, that are not dividend compensation payments. The amount of this new deduction is computed differently depending on the actions of the taxpayer in question (the one who made the payment and seeks to deduct it). If the taxpayer has disposed of the borrowed security and has included any resulting gain or loss in computing business income, the compensation payment is fully deductible. In any other case, new subsection 260(6) allows a deduction to the extent of the lesser of (i) the compensation payment and (ii) the amount, to which the compensation payment relates, included in the taxable income of the taxpayer or persons related to it.

Related Provisions: 18(1)(w) — No deduction allowed except as expressly permitted; 82(1)(a)(ii) — Deduction for individual; 260(6.1) — Deductible amount; 260(10), (11) — Application to partnerships.

History: Subsec. 260(6) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 75(2), applicable to payments made after June 1989. Subsec. (6) formerly read:

> (6) In computing the income of a taxpayer under Part I from a business or property, no deduction shall be made in respect of an amount that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend.

(6.1) Deductible amount — Notwithstanding subsection (6), there may be deducted in computing a corporation's income under Part I from a business or property for a taxation year an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the amount that the corporation is obligated to pay to another person under an arrangement described in paragraphs (c) and (d) of the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend, and

Proposed Amendment — 260(6.1)(a)

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that the corporation becomes obligated in the taxation year to pay to another person under an arrangement described in paragraph (b) of the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend, and

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(8), will amend para. 260(6.1)(a) to read as above, applicable to

(a) arrangements made after December 20, 2002;

(b) an arrangement made after November 2, 1998 and before December 21, 2002 if the parties to the arrangement have made the election described in the Application note to the proposed amendment to 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement", except that, in its application to an arrangement made before 2002, the reference to "subsection 260" in para. 260(6.1)(a) is to be read as "subsection (5)"; and

(c) an arrangement, other than an arrangement to which para. (b) above applies, made after 2001 and before December 21, 2002, except that, in its application before December 21, 2002, para. 260(6.1)(a) is to be read as follows:

> (a) the amount that the corporation is obligated to pay to another person under an arrangement described in paragraphs (c) and (d) of the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend, and

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 260(6.1) provides a deduction for dividend compensation payments made pursuant to certain dividend rental arrangements. The amount deductible is the lesser of the amount the corporation is obligated to pay as compensation under the arrangement and the amount of the dividends received by the corporation under the arrangement that were identified in its return of income as amounts which are not deductible because of subsection 112(2.3).

Paragraph 260(6.1)(a) is amended to clarify that the amount described in that paragraph is the total of all amounts that the corporation becomes obligated in the taxation year to pay to another person as compensation under certain dividend rental arrangements.

Also, paragraph 260(6.1)(a) is amended, as a consequence of the amendments to the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1), by replacing the reference to "paragraphs (c) and (d)" of that definition to a reference to "paragraph (b)" of that definition.

This amendment applies to dividend rental arrangements made after December 20, 2002 and, if the parties jointly elect within 90 days after this Act has been assented to, it also applies to dividend rental arrangements made after November 2, 1998 and on or before December 21, 2002, except that before 2002 the reference to "subsection 260(5.1)" should be read as "subsection 260(5)".

For arrangements made after 2001 and before December 21, 2002 that are not the subject of the election described in the previous paragraph, the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in effect before December 21, 2002 is applicable, except that the reference to "subsection 260(5)" in that definition should be read as "subsection 260(5.1)".

(b) the amount of the dividends received by the corporation under the arrangement that were identified in its return of income under Part I for the year as an amount in respect of which no amount was deductible because of subsection 112(2.3) in computing the taxpayer's taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada.

Related Provisions: 18(1)(w) — No deduction allowed except as expressly permitted; 260(7)(b) — No dividend refund on amount deductible under 260(6.1); 260(10), (11) — Application to partnerships.

History: Subsec. 260(6.1) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 75(2), applicable to payments made

(a) after April 1989, where the corporation has elected under subsec. 74(3) (of 1995, c. 21 — see under 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement"), except that, for the purposes of para. 260(6.1)(b), a dividend received after April 1989 and before July 1994 that was identified in the corporation's return of income under Part I of the Act for its first taxation year that ends after June 22, 1995 shall be deemed to have been identified in its return of income under that Part for its taxation year in which the dividend was received; and

(b) after June 1994, in any other case.

(7) Dividend refund — For the purposes of section 129,

(a) any amount paid by a corporation that is not a registered securities dealer (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1)), and

(b) 1/3 of any amount paid by a corporation that is a registered securities dealer (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1)) that is deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend shall be deemed to have been paid by the corporation as a taxable dividend.

Proposed Amendment — 260(7)

(7) Dividend refund — For the purpose of section 129, if a corporation pays an amount for which no deduction in computing the corporation's income may be claimed under subsection (6.1) and subsection (5.1) deems the amount to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend,

(a) the corporation is deemed to have paid the amount as a taxable dividend, where the corporation is not a registered securities dealer; and

(b) the corporation is deemed to have paid 1/3 of the amount as a taxable dividend, where the corporation is a registered securities dealer.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(9), will amend subsec. 260(7) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 260(7) provides that, where a corporation makes a payment which is deemed by the former subsection 260(5) to be a taxable dividend, the corporation will also be entitled to treat the amount as the payment of a dividend for the purposes of section 129.

Subsection 260(7) is amended to replace the reference "subsection 260(5)" with "subsection 260(5.1)" and is reorganized for clarity and simplicity and specifically not to effect any substantive changes to the rule.

History: Subsec. 260(7) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 75(2), applicable to payments made after June 1989, except that in its application to payments made after June 1989 and before July 1994 with respect to a corporation that has not elected under subsec. 74(3) (of 1995, c. 21 — see under 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement"), subsec. 260(7) shall be read without reference to the expression "(other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1))". Subsec. (7) formerly read:

(7) For the purposes of section 129, any amount paid by a corporation that is deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend shall be deemed to have been paid by the corporation as a taxable dividend.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-243R4: Dividend refund to private corporations.

(8) Non-resident withholding tax — For the purposes of Part XIII,

(a) any amount paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid in respect of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest, except that where, throughout the term of the securities lending arrangement, the borrower has provided the lender under the arrangement with money in an amount of, or securities described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1) that have a fair market value of, not less than 95% of the fair market value of the security and the borrower is entitled to enjoy, directly or indirectly, the benefits of all or substantially all income derived from, and opportunity for gain with respect of, the money or securities,

(i) the amount paid or credited shall, to the extent of the amount of the interest or dividend paid in respect of the security, be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, payable on the security, and

(ii) the security is deemed to be a security described in paragraph (a) of the definition "fully exempt interest" in subsection 212(3) if the security is described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1), and

(iii) [Repealed]

(b) any amount paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest and, for the purposes of this paragraph, where the borrower has at any time provided the lender with money, either as collateral or consideration for the security, and the borrower does not under the arrangement pay or credit a reasonable amount to the lender as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the security, the amount, if any, by which

(i) interest on the money computed at the prescribed rates in effect during the term of the arrangement

exceeds

(ii) the amount, if any, by which any amount that the lender pays or credits to the borrower under the arrangement exceeds the amount of the money shall be deemed to be an amount paid under the arrangement by the borrower to the lender as a fee for the use of the security, at the time that an identical security is or can reasonably be expected to be transferred or returned to the lender, and, for the purposes of Part XIII and any agreement or convention between the Government of Canada and the government of another country that has the force of law in Canada, any amount deemed by this subsection (other than subparagraph (a)(i) or (ii)) to be a payment of interest shall be deemed not to be payable on or in respect of the security.

Proposed Amendment — 260(8)

(8) Non-resident withholding tax — For the purpose of Part XIII, any amount paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender

(a) as an SLA compensation payment is, subject to paragraph (b) or (c), deemed to be a payment of interest made by the borrower to the lender;

(b) as an SLA compensation payment in respect of a security that is a qualified trust unit, is deemed, to the extent of the amount of the underlying payment to which the SLA compensation payment relates, to be an amount paid by the trust and having the same character and composition as the underlying payment;

(c) as an SLA compensation payment, if the security is not a qualified trust unit and throughout the term of the securities lending arrangement, the borrower has provided the lender under the arrangement with money in an amount of, or securities described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1) that have a fair market value of, not less than 95% of the fair market value of the security and the borrower is entitled to enjoy, directly or indirectly, the benefits of all or substantially all income derived from, and opportunity for gain with respect of, the money or securities,

(i) is, to the extent of the amount of the interest or dividend paid in respect of the security, deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, payable on the security, and

(ii) is, to the extent of the amount of the interest, if any, paid in respect of the security, deemed to have been payable on a security described in paragraph (a) of the definition "fully exempt interest" in subsection 212(3) if the security is described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1); and

(d) as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the security is deemed to be a payment of interest made by the borrower to the lender.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(9), will amend subsec. 260(8) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2001, except that before 2008, subpara. 260(8)(c)(ii) is to be read as follows:

(ii) is, to the extent of the amount of the interest, if any, paid in respect of the security, deemed

(A) for the purpose of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) to have been payable by the issuer of the security, and

(B) to have been payable on a security that is a security described in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(ii) where the security is a security described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1); and

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 260(8) applies special rules, for the purposes of Part XIII of the Act, to payments made under securities lending arrangements. The subsection has two main aspects: rules that ensure the appropriate treatment for Part XIII purposes of compensation payments; and a rule that in certain circumstances will treat a borrower as having paid to a lender a "borrow fee".

In addition to incorporating the newly added definitions, SLA compensation payments and underlying payments (which do not effect any substantive changes), the subsection is rearranged into three separate subsections. Amended subsection 260(8) retains the previous rules for compensation payments relating to interest and dividends, confining them to amounts paid on a security that is not a qualified trust unit. Subsection 260(8) also provides for compensation payments made in respect of a borrowed qualified trust unit: these are treated as payments from a trust and as having the same character and composition as the trust payments for which they compensate.

Related Provisions: 212(1)(b)(xii), (xiii), 212(2.1) — Exemptions from non-resident withholding tax; 212(19) — Special tax on securities dealers re non-resident withholding tax exemption; 260(8.1) — Deemed fee for 260(8)(d); 260(8.2) — Effect for tax treaty purposes.

History: Subpara. 260(8)(a)(ii) amended and subpara. (iii) repealed by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 66(2), applicable after 2007. The subparas. formerly read:

(ii) the amount paid or credited shall, to the extent of the amount of the interest, if any, paid in respect of the security, be deemed for the purpose of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) to have been payable by the issuer of the security, and

(iii) the security shall be deemed to be a security described in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(ii) if it is a security described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1), and

Subpara. 260(8)(a)(iii) added by 1994, c. 21, s. 116, applicable to securities lending arrangements entered into after May 28, 1993.

Subsec. 260(8) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 199(2), applicable to transfers, loans and payments made after April 26, 1989, except that, in its application to transfers, loans and payments made before May 27, 1989, para. 260(8)(a) shall be read as follows:

(a) any payment made by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid in respect of the security shall be deemed to be a payment by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, on the security; and

Subsec. 260(8) formerly read:

(8) For the purposes of Part XIII,

(a) any payment made under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid in respect of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest, except that where, throughout the term of the securities lending arrangement the borrower has provided to the lender under the arrangement cash in an amount of, or securities described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1) that have a fair market value of, not less than 95% of the fair market value of the security and the borrower is entitled to enjoy, directly or indirectly, the benefits of substantially all income derived from and opportunity for gain with respect to the cash or securities, the payment shall be deemed to be a payment by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, payable on the security; and

(b) any payment made under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of a borrower of a security to the lender for the use of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest and, for the purposes of this paragraph, any profit earned by the lender that may reasonably be considered to have resulted from the securities lending arrangement, other than any payment made by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid on the security, shall be deemed to be a payment made under the securities lending arrangement by the borrower of the security to the lender for the use of the security.

Proposed Addition — 260(8.1), (8.2)

(8.1) Deemed fee for borrowed security — For the purpose of paragraph (8)(d), if under a securities lending arrangement the borrower has at any time provided the lender with money, either as collateral or consideration for the security, and the borrower does not, under the arrangement, pay or credit a reasonable amount to the lender as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the security, the borrower is deemed to have, at the time that an identical security is or can reasonably be expected to be transferred or returned to the lender, paid to the lender under the arrangement an amount as a fee for the use of the security equal to the amount, if any, by which

(a) the interest on the money computed at the prescribed rates in effect during the term of the arrangement

exceeds

(b) the amount, if any, by which any amount that the lender pays or credits to the borrower under the arrangement exceeds the amount of the money.

(8.2) Effect for tax treaties — In applying subsection (8), any amount, paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender, that is deemed by paragraph (8)(a), (b) or (d) to be a payment of interest, is deemed for the purposes of any tax treaty not to be payable on or in respect of the security.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(9), will add subsecs. 260(8.1) and (8.2), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 260(8.1) provides for a deemed borrow fee, on the same basis as the existing paragraph 260(8)(b). New subsection 260(8.2) similarly preserves the effect of the existing postamble to subsection 260(8) in relation to tax treaties.

(9) Restricted financial institution — For the purposes of subsection 187.3(1), where at any time a dividend is received by a restricted financial institution on a share that was last acquired before that time pursuant to an obligation of a borrower to return or transfer a share under a securities lending arrangement, an acquisition of the share under the arrangement shall be deemed at and after that time not to be an acquisition of the share.

(10) Non-arm's length compensation payment — For the purpose of Part XIII, where the lender under a securities lending arrangement is not dealing at arm's length with either the borrower under the arrangement or the issuer of the security that is transferred or lent under the arrangement, or both, and subsection (8) deems an amount to be a payment of interest by a person to the lender in respect of that security, the lender is deemed, in respect of that payment, not to be dealing at arm's length with that person.

Proposed Amendment — 260(10) to be (9.1)

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(10), will renumber subsec. 260(10) as 260(9.1), applicable after 2007.

Proposed Addition — 260(10)–(12)

(10) Partnerships — For the purpose of this section,

(a) a person includes a partnership; and

(b) a partnership is deemed to be a registered securities dealer if each member of the partnership is a registered securities dealer.

Technical Notes (July 2010) A "securities lending arrangement" (SLA) is defined in subsection 260(1) as a particular transaction between two persons, the "lender" and the "borrower" of a security. A partnership — which for most purposes of the Act is not a person — can be a party to a transaction that would be an SLA if the partnership were a person. In such a case, it is appropriate in policy terms for the arrangement to be treated as an SLA. New subsections (10), (11) and (12) are added to section 260 to bring partnerships within the SLA rules.

New subsection 260(10) provides that, for the purposes of section 260, a person includes a partnership. Existing subsection 260(10) is renumbered as subsection 260(9.1). New subsection 260(10) allows a partnership to be either the borrower or the lender in respect of an SLA. The subsection also treats a partnership as a registered securities dealer, if all of its members are themselves registered securities dealers.

(11) Corporate members of partnerships — A corporation that is, in a taxation year, a member of a partnership is deemed

(a) for the purpose of applying subsection (5) in respect of the taxation year,

(i) to receive its specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount received by the partnership in that fiscal period, and

(ii) in respect of the receipt of its specified proportion of that amount, to be the same person as the partnership;

(b) for the purpose of applying paragraph (6.1)(a) in respect of the taxation year, to become obligated to pay its specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of the amount the partnership becomes, in that fiscal period, obligated to pay to another person under the arrangement described in that paragraph; and

(c) for the purpose of applying section 129 in respect of the taxation year, to have paid

(i) if the partnership is not a registered securities dealer, the corporation's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount paid by the partnership (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1) by the corporation), and

(ii) if the partnership is a registered securities dealer, ⅓ of the corporation's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount paid by the partnership (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1) by the corporation).

Technical Notes (July 2010) A transaction's status as an SLA is relevant to, among other things, the tax treatment of amounts paid and received in compensation for dividends or interest on the security that is transferred or lent. New subsections 260(11) and (12) are added to ensure the appropriate treatment of these amounts in a case where a corporation or an individual is a member of a partnership that has entered into an SLA.

- Under new paragraph 260(11)(a), a corporation that is a member of a partnership is treated for the purpose of subsection 260(5) as having received its "specified proportion" (new defined in subsection 248(1)) of each compensation payment or amount in respect of proceeds of disposition that is described in subsection 260(5) and was received by the partnership. It is also treated as being the same person as the partnership, thus ensuring that the partnership's reasons for entering into the arrangement (which are relevant to the applicability of the subsection) are attributed to the corporation.

- New paragraph 260(11)(b) treats the corporation as being obligated to pay its specified proportion of each dividend compensation payment described in paragraph 260(6.1)(a).

- New paragraph 260(11)(c) treats the corporation, for the purpose of applying the dividend refund rules in section 129, as having paid its specified proportion of each non-deductible dividend compensation payment made by the partnership.

(12) Individual members of partnerships — An individual that is, in a taxation year, a member of a partnership is deemed

(a) for the purpose of applying subsection (5) in respect of the taxation year,

(i) to receive the individual's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount received by the partnership in that fiscal period, and

(ii) in respect of the receipt of the individual's specified proportion of that amount, to be the same person as the partnership; and

(b) for the purpose of subsection 82(1), to have paid the individual's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year, of each amount paid by the partnership in that fiscal period that is deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend.

Technical Notes (July 2010)

- New paragraph 260(12)(a) performs for individuals who are members of a partnership the same functions as new paragraph 260(11)(a) does for corporations that are partners.

- New paragraph 260(12)(b) treats an individual partner as having paid, for the purpose of clause 82(1)(a)(ii)(B), the individual's specified proportion of each dividend compensation payment paid by the partnership that is deemed by new subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend.

Application The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 155(11), will add subsecs. 260(10) to (12), applicable to

(a) arrangements made after December 20, 2002, and

(b) an arrangement made after November 2, 1998 and before December 21, 2002 if the parties to the arrangement have made the election described in the Application note to the amendment to 248(1), "dividend rental arrangement", except that, in its application to an arrangement made before 2002, the reference to "subsection (260)(5.1)" in para. 260(12)(b) is to be read as "subsection (5)".

Related Provisions: 260(11) — Corporate partners.

History: Subsec. 260(10) added by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 66(3), applicable after 2007.

261. [Functional currency tax reporting] — (1) Definitions — The following definitions apply in this section.

"Canadian currency year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year that precedes the first functional currency year of the taxpayer.

"Canadian tax results" of a taxpayer for a taxation year means

(a) the amount of the income, taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada of the taxpayer for the taxation year;

(b) the amount (other than an amount payable on behalf of another person under subsection 153(1) or section 215) of tax or other amount payable under this Act by the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year;

(c) the amount (other than an amount refundable on behalf of another person in respect of amounts payable on behalf of that person under subsection 153(1) or section 215) of tax or other amount refundable under this Act to the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year; and

(d) any amount that is relevant in determining the amounts described in respect of the taxpayer under paragraphs (a) to (c).

Related Provisions: 261(2)(b) — Determination of Canadian tax results when no election filed; 261(5)(a), (c), 261(6), (6.1), (7)(h), (15)–(18) — Determination when election filed.

"elected functional currency" of a taxpayer means the currency of a country other than Canada that was the functional currency of the taxpayer for its first taxation year in respect of which it made an election under paragraph (3)(b).

"functional currency" of a taxpayer for a taxation year means the currency of a country other than Canada if that currency is, throughout the taxation year,

(a) a qualifying currency; and

(b) the primary currency in which the taxpayer maintains its records and books of account for financial reporting purposes.

"functional currency year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year in respect of which subsection (5) applies to the taxpayer.

"pre-reversion debt" of a taxpayer means a debt obligation of the taxpayer that was issued by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's first reversionary year.

Related Provisions: 261(13) — Pre-reversion debt denominated in foreign currency; 261(14) — Deferred amount relating to pre-reversion debt.

"pre-transition debt" of a taxpayer means a debt obligation of the taxpayer that was issued by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year.

Related Provisions: 261(8)–(10), 261(12)(f) — Pre-transition debts.

"qualifying currency" at any time means each of

(a) the currency of the United States of America;

(b) the currency of the European Monetary Union;

(c) the currency of the United Kingdom;

(d) the currency of Australia; and

(e) a prescribed currency.

Related Provisions: 261(1)"functional currency"(a) — Currency must be qualifying currency.

"relevant spot rate" for a particular day means, in respect of a conversion of an amount from a particular currency to another currency,

(a) if the particular currency or the other currency is Canadian currency, the rate quoted by the Bank of Canada for noon on the particular day (or, if there is no such rate quoted for the particular day, the closest preceding day for which such a rate is quoted) for the exchange of the particular currency for the other currency, or, in applying paragraphs (2)(b) and (5)(c), another rate of exchange that is acceptable to the Minister; and

(b) if neither the particular currency nor the other currency is Canadian currency, the rate — calculated by reference to the rates quoted by the Bank of Canada for noon on the particular day (or, if either of such rates is not quoted for the particular day, the closest preceding day for which both such rates are quoted) for the exchange of Canadian currency for each of those currencies — for the exchange of the particular currency for the other currency, or, in applying paragraphs (2)(b) and (5)(c), another rate of exchange that is acceptable to the Minister.

"reversionary year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year that begins after the last functional currency year of the taxpayer.

"tax reporting currency" of a taxpayer for a taxation year, and at any time in the taxation year, means the currency in which the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the taxation year are to be determined.

(2) Canadian currency requirement — In determining the Canadian tax results of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year,

(a) subject to this section, other than this subsection, Canadian currency is to be used; and

(b) subject to this section, other than this subsection, subsection 79(7) and paragraphs 80(2)(k) and 142.7(8)(b), if a particular amount that is relevant in computing those Canadian tax results is expressed in a currency other than Canadian currency, the particular amount is to be converted to an amount expressed in Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which the particular amount arose.

Related Provisions: 76.1 — Debt of non-resident moved from (or assumed in) non-resident's Canadian business.

(3) Application of subsec. (5) — Subsection (5) applies to a taxpayer in respect of a particular taxation year if

(a) the taxpayer is, throughout the particular taxation year, a corporation (other than an investment corporation, a mortgage investment corporation or a mutual fund corporation) resident in Canada;

(b) the taxpayer has elected that subsection (5) apply to the taxpayer and has filed that election with the Minister in prescribed form and manner on or before the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxation year;

(c) there is a functional currency of the taxpayer for the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which subsection (5) would, if this subsection were read without reference to this paragraph, apply;

(d) the taxpayer has not filed another election under paragraph (b); and

(e) a revocation by the taxpayer under subsection (4) does not apply to the particular taxation year.

Related Provisions: 261(1)"elected functional currency" — Definition once election made; 261(2) — Rules where no election made; 261(4) — Revocation of election; Reg. 205.1(2)(c) — Corporation electing functional currency not required to file T2 electronically.

(4) Revocation of election — A taxpayer may revoke its election under paragraph (3)(b) by filing, on a day that is in a functional currency year of the taxpayer (other than its first functional currency year), a notice of revocation in prescribed form and manner. The revocation applies to each taxation year of the taxpayer that begins on or after the day that is six months after that day.

(5) Functional currency tax reporting — If this subsection applies to a taxpayer in respect of a particular taxation year,

(a) [elected currency to be used] — the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year are to be determined using the taxpayer's elected functional currency;

(b) [dollar amounts] — unless the context otherwise requires, each reference in this Act or the regulations to an amount (other than in respect of a penalty or fine) that is described as a particular number of Canadian dollars is to be read, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, as a reference to that amount expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the first day of the particular taxation year;

(c) [conversion at date amount arose] — subject to paragraph (9)(b), subsection (15), subsection 79(7) and paragraphs 80(2)(k) and 142.7(8)(b), if a particular amount that is relevant in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year is expressed in a currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency, the particular amount is to be converted to an amount expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which the particular amount arose;

(d) [debt forgiveness] — the definition "exchange rate" in subsection 111(8) is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, to be read as follows:

"exchange rate" at any time in respect of a particular currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency means the relevant spot rate, for the day that includes that time, in respect of the conversion of an amount from the particular currency to the taxpayer's elected functional currency, or a rate of exchange acceptable to the Minister;

(e) [subsec. 39(2)] — except in applying paragraph 95(2)(f.15) in respect of a taxation year, of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, that is a functional currency year of the foreign affiliate within the meaning of subsection (6.1), each reference in subsection 39(2)

(i) to "the value of the currency or currencies of one or more countries other than Canada relative to Canadian currency, a taxpayer" is to be read, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, as a reference to "the value of the currency or currencies of one or more countries (other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency) relative to a taxpayer's elected functional currency, the taxpayer", and

(ii) to "currency of a country other than Canada" is to be read, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, as a reference to "currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency";

Proposed Amendment — 261(5)(e)

(e) except in applying paragraph 95(2)(f.15) in respect of a taxation year, of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, that is a functional currency year of the foreign affiliate within the meaning of subsection (6.1), each reference in subsection 39(2) to "Canadian currency" is to be read, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, as "the taxpayer's elected functional currency";

Application: The August 19, 2011 draft legislation (foreign affiliates), subsec. 22(1), will amend para. 261(5)(e) to read as above, applicable in respect of gains made and losses sustained in taxation years that begin after August 19, 2011.

See also Application under s. 90 re extended reassessment deadline.

Technical Notes: Subsection 261(5) provides a number of rules for taxpayers that have elected under the functional currency tax reporting regime.

Paragraph 261(5)(e) provides a "reading rule" for the purposes of subsection 39(2). This reading rule replaces, effectively, references to Canadian currency in that subsection with references to the taxpayer's elected functional currency.

Subparagraph 261(5)(f)(i) provides reading rules for various provisions of the Act and the Regulations. Those reading rules replace references to "Canadian currency" with references to the taxpayer's elected functional currency.

Two amendments are being made to subsection 261(5):

First, paragraph 261(5)(e) is being amended consequential to the amendments to subsection 39(2) which, among other things, simplify the "currency" references in that subsection.

Second, subparagraph 261(5)(f)(i) is being amended to add new subsections 93(2.01) to (2.31) to its listed provisions, as those new subsections contain references to Canadian currency. For more details, see the above commentary relating to new subsections 93(2) to (2.32).

(f) [loss carryovers] — each reference in

(i) section 76.1, subsection 79(7), paragraph 80(2)(k), subsections 80.01(11), 80.1(8), 142.4(1) and 142.7(8) and the definition "amortized cost" in subsection 248(1), and subparagraph 231(6)(a)(iv) of the Regulations, to "Canadian currency" is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, to be read as a reference to "the taxpayer's elected functional currency", and

Proposed Amendment — 261(5)(f)(i)

(i) section 76.1, subsection 79(7), paragraph 80(2)(k), subsections 80.01(11), 80.1(8), 93(2.01) to (2.31), 142.4(1) and 142.7(8) and the definition "amortized cost" in subsection 248(1), and subparagraph 231(6)(a)(iv) of the Income Tax Regulations, to "Canadian currency" is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, to be read as "the taxpayer's elected functional currency", and

Application: The August 19, 2011 draft legislation (foreign affiliates), subsec. 22(2), will amend subpara. 261(5)(f)(i) to read as above, applicable in respect of taxation years that begin after December 13, 2007.

See also Application under s. 90 re extended reassessment deadline.

Technical Notes: See under 261(5)(e).

(ii) subparagraph 94.1(1)(b)(vii), the definition "foreign currency debt" in subsection 111(8), subsection 142.4(1), and the definition "amortized cost" in subsection 248(1) to "currency of a country other than Canada" is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, to be read as a reference to "currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency";

(g) [definition "foreign currency"] — the definition "foreign currency" in subsection 248(1) is, in respect of the taxpayer and the taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, to be read as follows:

"foreign currency" in respect of a taxpayer, at any time in a taxation year, means a currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency;

(h) [FAPI rules] — where a taxation year, of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, is a functional currency year of the foreign affiliate within the meaning of subsection (6.1),

(i) the references in section 95 (other than paragraph 95(2)(f.15)) and the references in regulations made for the purposes of section 95 or 113 (other than subsection 5907(6) of the Regulations) to

Proposed Amendment — 261(5)(h)(i) opening words

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 38(1), will amend the opening words of subpara. 261(5)(h)(i) to delete "(other than subsection 5907(6) of the Regulations)", applicable in respect of taxation years of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that begin after December 18, 2009.

S. 53 of the draft legislation provides that any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation year that ends before the day on which the draft legislation is assented to and would, in the absence of this section, be precluded because of subsecs. 152(4) to (5) of the Act shall be made to the extent necessary to take into account this amendment, if the taxpayer

(i) elects in writing in respect of all of its foreign affiliates that this section apply in respect of that provision, and

(ii) files that election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before June 30, 2011.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Subsection 261(5) provides a number of rules for taxpayers that have elected under the functional currency tax reporting regime. Subparagraph 261(5)(h)(i) provides "reading rules" in respect of foreign affiliates of a functional currency tax reporter that replace references in the Act and the Regulations to "Canadian currency" with references to the taxpayer's elected functional currency. Subparagraph 261(5)(h)(i) is amended to remove the exception for subsection 5907(6) of the Regulations.

This exception is no longer necessary as that subsection is being amended to remove the reference to Canadian currency.

(A) "Canadian currency" are to be read, in respect of the foreign affiliate and the taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, as references to "the taxpayer's elected functional currency", and

(B) "currency of a country other than Canada" are to be read, in respect of the foreign affiliate and the taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, as references to "currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency", and

(ii) the reference in paragraph 95(2)(f.13) to "the rate of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on" is to be read, in respect of the foreign affiliate and the taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, as a reference to "the relevant spot rate for".

Related Provisions: 76.1 — Debt of non-resident moved from (or assumed in) non-resident's Canadian business; 95(2)(f.12)–(f.15) — Currency calculations for foreign affiliates (FAPI); 261(1)"functional currency year" — Year to which 261(5) applies; 261(2) — Rules where no election made; 261(3) — Conditions for 261(5) to apply; 261(6) — Application to partnership; 261(7) — Converting Canadian currency amounts; 261(11) — Determination of amounts payable for administrative rules; 261(15) — Amounts carried back; 261(16)(a)(i), (b)(ii)(C) — Application on winding-up; 261(18) — Anti-avoidance rule; Reg. 205.1(2)(e) — Corporation electing functional currency not required to file T2 electronically.

(6) Partnerships — For the purposes of computing the Canadian tax results of a particular taxpayer for each taxation year that is a functional currency year or a reversionary year of the particular taxpayer, this section is to be applied as if each partnership of which the particular taxpayer is a member at any time in the taxation year were a taxpayer that

(a) had as its first functional currency year its first fiscal period, if any, that

(i) is a fiscal period at any time during which the particular taxpayer is a member of the partnership,

(ii) begins after December 13, 2007, and

(iii) ends at least six months after the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxpayer's first functional currency year;

(b) had as its last Canadian currency year its last fiscal period, if any, that ends before its first functional currency year;

(c) had as its first reversionary year its first fiscal period, if any, that begins after the particular taxpayer's last functional currency year;

(d) is subject to subsection (5) for each of its fiscal periods that is, or begins after, its first functional currency year and that ends before its first reversionary year;

(e) had as its elected functional currency in respect of each fiscal period described in paragraph (d) the elected functional currency of the particular taxpayer; and

(f) had as its last functional currency year its last fiscal period, if any, that ends before its first reversionary year.

Related Provisions: 96(1) — Income determination for partnership; 261(22) — Partnership transactions — anti-avoidance rules.

(6.1) Foreign affiliates — For the purposes of computing the foreign accrual property income of a foreign affiliate of a particular taxpayer, in respect of the particular taxpayer, for each taxation year that is a functional currency year or a reversionary year of the particular taxpayer, this section is to be applied as if

(a) the foreign affiliate were a taxpayer that

(i) had, as its first functional currency year, its first taxation year that

(A) is a taxation year at any time during which the foreign affiliate is a foreign affiliate of the particular taxpayer,

(B) begins after December 13, 2007, and

(C) ends at least six months after the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxpayer's first functional currency year,

(ii) had as its last Canadian currency year its last taxation year, if any, that ends before its first functional currency year,

(iii) had as its first reversionary year its first taxation year, if any, that begins after the particular taxpayer's last functional currency year,

(iv) is subject to subsection (5) for each of its taxation years that is, or begins after, its first functional currency year and that ends before its first reversionary year,

(v) had as its elected functional currency in respect of each taxation year described in subparagraph (iv) the elected functional currency of the particular taxpayer, and

(vi) had as its last functional currency year its last taxation year, if any, that ends before its first reversionary year; and

(b) the Canadian tax results of the foreign affiliate for each taxation year that is a functional currency year or a reversionary year of the foreign affiliate, within the meaning of paragraph (a), were its foreign accrual property income, in respect of the particular taxpayer, for that taxation year and any amount that is relevant in determining such foreign accrual property income.

Related Provisions: 261(5)(h) — Where foreign affiliate's taxation year is functional currency year.

(7) Converting Canadian currency amounts [— use last day of year] — In applying this Act to a taxpayer for a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer, the following amounts are to be converted from Canadian currency to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year:

(a) each particular amount that

(i) is, or is relevant to the determination of, an amount that may be deducted under subsection 37(1) or 66(4), element F in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsection 95(1), section 110.1 or 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 129(1), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3), in the particular functional currency year, and

Proposed Amendment — 261(7)(a)(i)

(i) is, or is relevant to the determination of, an amount that may be deducted under subsection 37(1) or 66(4), variable F or F.1 in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsection 95(1), section 110.1 or 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 129(1), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3), in the particular functional currency year, and Application: The August 19, 2011 draft legislation (foreign affiliates), subsec. 22(3), will amend subpara. 261(7)(a)(i) to read as above, applicable after August 19, 2011.

See also Application under s. 90 re extended reassessment deadline.

Technical Notes: Subsection 261(7) sets out various rules for converting tax attributes from Canadian currency to a taxpayer's elected functional currency, where a taxpayer has elected into the functional currency tax reporting regime. Paragraph 261(7)(a) deals with loss and other similar carryforward balances.

Subparagraph 261(7)(a)(i) is being amended to add a reference to variable F.1 in the FAPI definition. This amendment is consequential to the introduction of the new concept of a foreign accrual capital loss. For more details, see the commentary below relating to new section 5903.1 of the Regulations.

(ii) was determined for a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer;

(b) the cost to the taxpayer of a property that was acquired by the taxpayer in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer;

(c) an amount that was required by section 53 to be added or deducted in computing, at any time in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of a capital property that was acquired by the taxpayer in such a year;

(d) an amount that

(i) is in respect of the taxpayer's undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property of a prescribed class, cumulative eligible capital in respect of a business, cumulative Canadian exploration expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.1(6)), cumulative Canadian development expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.2(5)), cumulative foreign resource expense in respect of a country other than Canada (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.21(1)) or cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.4(5)) (each of which is referred to in this paragraph as a "pool amount"), and

(ii) was added to or deducted from a pool amount of the taxpayer in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer;

(e) an amount that has been deducted or claimed as a reserve in computing the income of the taxpayer for its last Canadian currency year;

(f) an outlay or expense referred to in subsection 18(9) that was made or incurred by the taxpayer in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, and any amount that was deducted in respect of the outlay or expense in computing the income of the taxpayer for such a year;

(g) an amount that was added or deducted in computing the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of a class of shares of its capital stock in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer; and

(h) any amount (other than an amount referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (g) or any of subsections (6), (6.1) and (8)) determined under the provisions of this Act in or in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer that is relevant in determining the Canadian tax results of the taxpayer for the particular functional currency year.

Related Provisions: 261(11) — Conversion rules for amounts of tax payable; 261(12) — Application to reversionary year.

(8) Converting pre-transition debts — In determining, at any time in a particular functional currency year of a taxpayer, the amount for which a pre-transition debt of the taxpayer (other than a pre-transition debt denominated in the taxpayer's elected functional currency) was issued and its principal amount at the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year,

(a) where the pre-transition debt is denominated in Canadian currency, those amounts are to be converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year; and

(b) where the pre-transition debt is denominated in a currency (referred to in this paragraph as the "debt currency") that is neither Canadian currency nor the taxpayer's elected functional currency, those amounts are to be converted from the debt currency to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year.

Related Provisions: 261(9) — Where denominated in other currency; 261(10) — Deferred amount relating to pre-transition debt; 261(12) — Application to reversionary year.

(9) Pre-transition debts — A pre-transition debt of a taxpayer that is denominated in a currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency is deemed to have been issued immediately before the taxpayer's first functional currency year for the purposes of

(a) determining the amount of the taxpayer's income, gain or loss, for a functional currency year of the taxpayer (other than an amount that subsection (10) deems to arise), that is attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency; and

(b) applying paragraph 80(2)(k) in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer.

(10) Deferred amounts relating to pre-transition debts — If a taxpayer has, at any time in a taxation year that is a functional currency year or a reversionary year of the taxpayer, made a particular payment on account of the principal amount of a pre-transition debt of the taxpayer:

(a) where the taxpayer would have made a gain — or, if the pre-transition debt was not on account of capital, would have had income — (referred to in this paragraph as the "hypothetical gain or income") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-transition debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of its last Canadian currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the currency in which the pre-transition debt is denominated, which currency is referred to in this subsection as the "debt currency") at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to make a gain or to have income, as the case may be, for the taxation year equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is

(i) if the taxation year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the amount of the hypothetical gain or income converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year, and

(ii) if the taxation year is a reversionary year of the taxpayer, the amount determined under subparagraph (i) converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year,

B is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the debt currency), and

C is the principal amount of the pre-transition debt at the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year (expressed in the debt currency); and

(b) where the taxpayer would have sustained a loss — or, if the pre-transition debt was not on account of capital, would have had a loss — (referred to in this paragraph as the "hypothetical loss") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-transition debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of its last Canadian currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the debt currency) at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to sustain or to have a loss in respect of the particular payment for the taxation year equal to the amount that would be determined by the formula in paragraph (a) if the reference in the description of A in that paragraph to "hypothetical gain or income" were read as a reference to "hypothetical loss".

(11) Determination of amounts payable [under the Act] — Notwithstanding subsections (5) and (7), for the purposes of applying this Act in respect of a functional currency year (referred to in this subsection as the "particular taxation year") of a taxpayer,

(a) for the purposes of determining the taxpayer's payment obligations under paragraph 157(1)(a) or (1.1)(a),

(i) the estimated amounts, each of which is described in subparagraph 157(1)(a)(i) or (1.1)(a)(i), that are payable by the taxpayer for the particular taxation year are to be determined by converting those amounts, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency, to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which those amounts are due,

(ii) the taxpayer's first instalment base (within the meaning assigned by subsection 157(4)) for the particular taxation year is to be determined

(A) if the particular taxation year is the taxpayer's first functional currency year, without reference to this section, and

(B) in any other case, as if the taxes payable by the taxpayer for the taxpayer's functional currency year (referred to in this paragraph as the "first base year") immediately preceding the particular taxation year were the total of

(I) the total of the taxpayer's payment obligations under paragraph 157(1)(a) or (1.1)(a), as determined with reference to this subparagraph or subparagraph (i) or (iii), as the case may be, in respect of the first base year, and

(II) the amount, if any, of the remainder of the taxes payable by the taxpayer under paragraph 157(1)(b) or (1.1)(b), as determined under paragraph (b), in respect of the first base year, and

(iii) the taxpayer's second instalment base (within the meaning assigned by subsection 157(4)) for the particular taxation year is to be determined

(A) if the particular taxation year is the taxpayer's first functional currency year or its taxation year that immediately follows its first functional currency year, without reference to this section, and

(B) in any other case, as if the taxes payable by the taxpayer for the taxpayer's functional currency year (referred to in this subparagraph as the "second base year") immediately preceding the first base year were the total of

(I) the total of the taxpayer's payment obligations under paragraph 157(1)(a) or (1.1)(a), as determined with reference to this subparagraph or subparagraph

(i) or (ii), as the case may be, in respect of the second base year, and

(II) the amount, if any, of the remainder of the taxes payable by the taxpayer under paragraph 157(1)(b) or (1.1)(b), as determined under paragraph (b), in respect of the second base year;

(b) the remainder of the taxes payable by the taxpayer under paragraph 157(1)(b) or (1.1)(b) for the particular taxation year is the amount, if any, determined by

(i) computing the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of the taxes payable by the taxpayer under this Part and Parts VI, VI.1 and XIII.1 for the particular taxation year, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency

exceeds

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount determined by converting the amount of a payment obligation — determined by paragraph 157(1)(a) or (1.1)(a), as the case may be, with reference to subparagraph (a)(i), (ii) or (iii), as the case may be — of the taxpayer in respect of the particular taxation year to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which the payment obligation was due, and

(ii) converting the amount, if any, determined by subparagraph (i) to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the taxpayer's balance-due day for the particular taxation year;

(c) for the purposes of determining any amount (other than tax) that is payable by the taxpayer under this Part or Part VI, VI.1 or XIII.1 for the particular taxation year, the taxpayer's tax payable under the Part for the particular taxation year is deemed to be equal to the total of

(i) the total of the taxpayer's payment obligations under paragraph 157(1)(a) or (1.1)(a), in respect of the Part, as determined with reference to subparagraph (a)(i), (ii) or (iii), as the case may be, in respect of the particular taxation year, and

(ii) the amount, if any, of the remainder of the taxes payable by the taxpayer under paragraph 157(1)(b) or (1.1)(b), in respect of the Part, as determined under paragraph (b), in respect of the particular taxation year;

(d) amounts of tax that are payable under this Act (except under this Part and Parts VI, VI.1 and XIII.1) by the taxpayer for the particular taxation year are to be determined by converting those amounts, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency, to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which those amounts are due;

(e) if a particular amount that is determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency is deemed to be paid at any time on account of an amount payable by the taxpayer under this Act for the particular taxation year, the particular amount is to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day that includes that time;

(f) the following amounts are to be determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency and converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the taxpayer's balance-due day for the particular taxation year:

(i) amounts described in paragraph 163(1)(a) in respect of the particular taxation year, and

(ii) the amount of the taxpayer's taxable capital employed in Canada, for the purpose of applying section 235; and

(g) for greater certainty, all amounts payable by the taxpayer under this Act in respect of the particular taxation year are to be paid in Canadian currency.

(12) Application of subsecs. (7) and (8) to reversionary years — In applying this Act to a reversionary year of a taxpayer, subsections (7) and (8) are to be read as if the references in those subsections to

(a) "Canadian currency" were references to "the taxpayer's elected functional currency";

(b) "Canadian currency year" were references to "functional currency year";

(c) "functional currency year" were references to "reversionary year";

(d) "first functional currency year" were references to "first reversionary year";

(e) "last Canadian currency year" were references to "last functional currency year";

(f) "pre-transition debt" were references to "pre-reversion debt"; and

(g) "the taxpayer's elected functional currency" were references to "Canadian currency".

(13) Pre-reversion debts — A pre-reversion debt of a taxpayer that is denominated in a currency other than Canadian currency is deemed to have been issued immediately before the taxpayer's first reversionary year for the purposes of

(a) determining the amount of the taxpayer's income, gain or loss, for a reversionary year of the taxpayer (other than an amount that subsection (14) deems to arise), that is attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency; and

(b) applying paragraph 80(2)(k) in respect of a reversionary year of the taxpayer.

(14) Deferred amounts relating to pre-reversion debts — If a taxpayer has, at any time in a reversionary year of the taxpayer, made a particular payment on account of the principal amount of a pre-reversion debt of the taxpayer:

(a) where the taxpayer would have made a gain — or, if the pre-reversion debt was not on account of capital, would have had income — (referred to in this paragraph as the "hypothetical gain or income") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-reversion debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of its last functional currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the currency in which the pre-reversion debt is denominated, which currency is referred to in this subsection as the "debt currency") at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to make a gain or to have income, as the case may be, for the reversionary year equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount of the hypothetical gain or income converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year,

B is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the debt currency), and

C is the principal amount of the pre-reversion debt at the beginning of the taxpayer's first reversionary year (expressed in the debt currency); and

(b) where the taxpayer would have sustained a loss — or, if the pre-reversion debt was not on account of capital, would have had a loss — (referred to in this paragraph as the "hypothetical loss") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-reversion debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of its last functional currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the debt currency) at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to sustain or to have a loss in respect of the particular payment for the reversionary year equal to the amount that would be determined by the formula in paragraph (a) if the reference in the description of A in that paragraph to "hypothetical gain or income" were read as a reference to "hypothetical loss".

(15) Amounts carried back — For the purposes of determining the amount that may be deducted, in respect of a particular amount that arises in a taxation year (referred to in this subsection as the "later year") of a taxpayer, under section 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3) in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for a taxation year (referred to in this subsection as the "current year") that ended before the later year,

Proposed Amendment — 261(15) opening words

(15) Amounts carried back — For the purposes of determining the amount that may be deducted, in respect of a particular amount that arises in a taxation year (referred to in this subsection as the "later year") of a taxpayer, under section 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3) in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for a taxation year (referred to in this subsection as the "current year") that ended before the later year, and for the purposes of determining the amount by which the amount included under subsection 91(1) for the current year is reduced because of a reduction referred to in paragraph 152(6.1)(b) in respect of the later year,

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — foreign affiliates), subsec. 38(2), will amend the opening words of subsec. 261(15) to read as above, applicable after December 13, 2007.

S. 53 of the draft legislation provides that any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation year that ends before the day on which the draft legislation is assented to and would, in the absence of this section, be precluded because of subsecs. 152(4) to (5) of the Act shall be made to the extent necessary to take into account this amendment, if the taxpayer

(i) elects in writing in respect of all of its foreign affiliates that this section apply in respect of that provision, and

(ii) files that election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before June 30, 2011.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Subsection 261(15) provides rules for the application of amounts carried back for taxpayers that have elected under the functional currency tax reporting regime. Subsection 261(15) is amended consequential to the introduction of a carryback provision for foreign accrual property losses, as provided for in amended subsection 5903(1) of the Regulations.

(a) if the later year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer and the current year is a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the following amounts (expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency) are to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year:

(i) the particular amount, and

(ii) any amount so deducted in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for another functional currency year of the taxpayer;

(b) if the later year is a reversionary year of the taxpayer and the current year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer,

(i) the following amounts (expressed in Canadian currency) are to be converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year:

(A) the particular amount, and

(B) any amount so deducted in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for another reversionary year of the taxpayer, and

(ii) any amount (expressed in Canadian currency) so deducted in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer is to be converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year;

(c) if the later year is a reversionary year of the taxpayer and the current year is a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the following amounts (expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency) are to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year:

(i) the amount that would be determined under clause (b)(i)(A) in respect of the particular amount if the current year were a functional currency year of the taxpayer, and

(ii) any amount so deducted in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for a functional currency year of the taxpayer; and

(d) in any other case, this subsection does not apply.

(16) Windings-up — If a winding-up described in subsection 88(1) commences at any time (referred to in this subsection as the "commencement time") and the parent and the subsidiary referred to in that subsection would, in the absence of this subsection, have different tax reporting currencies at the commencement time, the following rules apply for the purposes of determining the subsidiary's Canadian tax results for its taxation years that end after the commencement time:

(a) where the subsidiary's tax reporting currency is Canadian currency,

(i) notwithstanding subsection (3), subsection (5) is deemed to apply to the subsidiary in respect of its taxation year that includes the commencement time and each of its subsequent taxation years, if any,

(ii) the subsidiary is deemed to have as its elected functional currency the parent's tax reporting currency, and

(iii) if the subsidiary's taxation year that includes the commencement time would, in the absence of this subsection, be a reversionary year of the subsidiary, this section is to be read with any modifications that the circumstances require; and

(b) where the subsidiary's tax reporting currency is not Canadian currency,

(i) the subsidiary is deemed to have filed, at the time that is six months and one day before the beginning of its taxation year that includes the commencement time, in prescribed form and manner, a notice of revocation described in subsection (4), and

(ii) if the parent's tax reporting currency is not Canadian currency,

(A) the subsidiary's first reversionary year is deemed to have ended at the particular time that is immediately after the time at which it began,

(B) a new taxation year of the subsidiary is deemed to have begun immediately after the particular time,

(C) notwithstanding subsection (3), subsection (5) is deemed to apply to the subsidiary in respect of its taxation year that includes the commencement time and each of its subsequent taxation years, if any, and

(D) the subsidiary is deemed to have as its elected functional currency the parent's tax reporting currency.

Related Provisions: 261(17) — Application to amalgamation; 261(18) — Anti-avoidance.

(17) Amalgamations — If a predecessor corporation and the new corporation, in respect of an amalgamation within the meaning of subsection 87(1), have different tax reporting currencies for their last and first taxation years, respectively, paragraphs (16)(a) and (b) apply, for the purposes of determining the predecessor corporation's Canadian tax results for its last taxation year, as if the tax reporting currencies referred to in those paragraphs were the tax reporting currencies referred to in this subsection and as if the references in those paragraphs to

(a) "subsidiary" were references to "predecessor corporation";

(b) "parent" were references to "new corporation"; and

(c) "taxation year that includes the commencement time" were references to "last taxation year".

Related Provisions: 261(18) — Anti-avoidance.

(18) Anti-avoidance — The Canadian tax results of a corporation for any one or more taxation years shall be determined using a particular currency if

(a) at any time (referred to in this subsection as the "transfer time") one or more properties are directly or indirectly transferred

(i) by the corporation to another corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "transferor" and the "transferee", respectively), or

(ii) by another corporation to the corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "transferor" and the "transferee", respectively);

(b) the transferor and the transferee are related at the transfer time or become related in the course of a series of transactions or events that includes the transfer;

(c) the transfer time

(i) is, or would in the absence of subsections (16) and (17) be, in a functional currency year of the transferor and the transferor and the transferee have, or would in the absence of those subsections have, different tax reporting currencies at the transfer time, or

(ii) is, or would in the absence of those subsections be, in a reversionary year of the transferor and is not in a reversionary year of the transferee;

(d) it can reasonably be considered that one of the main purposes of the transfer or of any portion of a series of transactions or events that includes the transfer is to change, or to enable the changing of, the currency in which the Canadian tax results in respect of the property, or property substituted for it, for a taxation year would otherwise be determined; and

(e) the Minister directs that those Canadian tax results be determined in the particular currency.

Related Provisions: 261(19) — Mergers; 261(22) — Partnership transactions.

(19) Mergers — For the purposes of subsection (18), if one corporate entity (referred to in this subsection as the "new corporation") is formed at a particular time by the amalgamation or other merger of two or more corporations (each of which is referred to in this subsection as a "predecessor corporation"),

(a) the predecessor corporation is deemed to have transferred to the new corporation at the time (referred to in this subsection as the "merger transfer time") that is immediately before the particular time each property that was held at the merger transfer time by the predecessor corporation and at the particular time by the new corporation;

(b) the new corporation is deemed to exist, and to be related to the predecessor corporation, at the merger transfer time; and

(c) the new corporation is deemed to have as its tax reporting currency at the merger transfer time its tax reporting currency at the particular time.

Related Provisions: 261(22) — Partnership transactions.

(20) Application of subsec. (21) — Subsection (21) applies in determining a taxpayer's income, gain or loss for a taxation year in respect of a transaction (referred to in this subsection and subsection (21) as a "specified transaction") if

(a) the specified transaction was entered into, directly or indirectly, at any time by the taxpayer and a corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "related corporation") to which the taxpayer is at that time related;

(b) the taxpayer and the related corporation had different tax reporting currencies at any time during the period (referred to in this subsection as the "accrual period") in which the income, gain or loss accrued; and

(c) it would, in the absence of this subsection and subsection (21), be reasonable to consider that a fluctuation at any time in the accrual period in the value of the taxpayer's tax reporting currency relative to the value of the related corporation's tax reporting currency

(i) increased the taxpayer's loss in respect of the specified transaction,

(ii) reduced the taxpayer's income or gain in respect of the specified transaction, or

(iii) caused the taxpayer to have a loss, instead of income or a gain, in respect of the specified transaction.

Related Provisions: 261(22) — Partnership transactions.

(21) Income, gain or loss determinations — If this subsection applies, each fluctuation in value referred to in paragraph (20)(c) is, for the purposes of determining the taxpayer's income, gain or loss in respect of the specified transaction and notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, deemed not to have occurred.

Related Provisions: 261(20) — Conditions for 261(21) to apply; 261(22) — Partnership transactions.

(22) Partnership transactions — For the purposes of this subsection and subsections (18) to (21),

(a) if a property is directly or indirectly transferred to or by a partnership, the property is deemed to have been transferred to or by (as the case may be) each member of the partnership; and

(b) if a partnership is a party to a transaction, each member of the partnership is deemed to be that party to that transaction.

History [s. 261]: S. 261 amended by 2009, c. 2, s. 80, applicable as follows:

(a) the definitions in subsec. 261(1) other than "Canadian tax results", subsecs. 261(3) to (14) and subsecs. 261(16) to (22) are applicable in respect of taxation years that begin after December 13, 2007, except that

(i) where a taxpayer has, before June 28, 2008, made an election under para. 261(3)(b),

(A) if the taxpayer makes a further election in writing, and files it with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes March 12, 2009, the relevant spot rate for a particular day is deemed, for the purposes of subsecs. 261(7) to (10), to be the average of the rates that would, in the absence of this clause, be the relevant spot rates for each day in the 12-month period that ends on the particular day, and

(B) subsecs. 261(20) and (21) apply in respect of taxation years that begin after June 27, 2008; and

(ii) in applying para. 261(3)(b), if the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxation year referred to in that paragraph is before December 15, 2008, the reference in that paragraph to "the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxation year" is, in respect of that particular taxation year, to be read as a reference to "December 15, 2008".

(b) the definition "Canadian tax results" in subsec. 261(1) and subsec. 261(2) apply for all taxation years; and

(c) subsec. 261(15) applies after December 13, 2007.

S. 261 formerly read:

261. (1) Definitions — The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"Canadian currency year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which subsection (4) did not apply to the taxpayer.

"Canadian tax results" of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer means

(a) the amount of the income of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year;

(b) the amount of the taxable income of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year;

(c) the amount (other than an amount payable on behalf of another person under subsection 153(1) or section 215) of tax or other amount payable under this Act by the taxpayer in respect of the particular taxation year;

(d) the amount (other than an amount refundable on behalf of another person in respect of amounts payable on behalf of that person under subsection 153(1) or section 215) of tax or other amount refundable under this Act to the taxpayer in respect of the particular taxation year; and

(e) any amount that is relevant in determining the amounts described in respect of the taxpayer under paragraphs (a) to (d).

"consolidated financial statements" of a taxpayer for a taxation year means the financial statements of the taxpayer that are prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles that are applicable to that taxation year.

"currency exchange rate" on a particular day means, in respect of a conversion of an amount determined in a particular currency into an amount determined in another currency, the average, for the 12 month period ending on the particular day,

(a) where the particular currency is Canadian currency, of the rate of exchange (calculated by reference to the rate of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on each business day in the period) for the exchange of the Canadian dollar for a unit of the other currency or such rate or rates of exchange acceptable to the Minister;

(b) where the other currency is Canadian currency, of the rate of exchange (calculated by reference to the rate of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on each business day in the period) for the exchange of a unit of the particular currency for the Canadian dollar or such rate or rates of exchange acceptable to the Minister; or

(c) where neither the particular currency nor the other currency is Canadian currency, of the rate of exchange (calculated by reference to the rates of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on each business day in the period for the exchange of the Canadian dollar for a unit of each of those currencies) for the exchange of a unit of the particular currency for a unit of the other currency or such rate or rates of exchange acceptable to the Minister.

"functional currency" of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer means the currency of a country other than Canada if that currency is

(a) a qualifying currency;

(b) the currency that is, more often than any other currency, used in the conduct of the taxpayer's principal business activities in the particular taxation year; and

(c) the currency in which the financial results of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year are computed in the taxpayer's consolidated financial statements and legal-entity financial statements for the particular taxation year.

"functional currency year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which subsection (4) applies to the taxpayer.

"generally accepted accounting principles" means the accounting principles established or recommended by the Accounting Standards Board of Canada or such other accounting principles as are determined to be acceptable by the Minister.

"initial functional currency year" of a taxpayer means a functional currency year of the taxpayer if the particular taxation year of the taxpayer ending immediately before the beginning of that functional currency year of the taxpayer was a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer.

"initial reversionary year" of a taxpayer means the first taxation year of the taxpayer that begins immediately after the last functional currency year of the taxpayer.

"last Canadian currency year" of a taxpayer means the last taxation year of the taxpayer that ends before the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer.

"last functional currency year" of a taxpayer means a functional currency year of the taxpayer if the particular taxation year of the taxpayer beginning immediately after the end of that functional currency year is a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer.

"legal-entity financial statements" of a taxpayer for a taxation year means the financial statements of the taxpayer that would be prepared for that taxation year in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles that are applicable to that taxation year if those generally accepted accounting principles did not require consolidation

"qualifying currency" of a taxpayer for a taxation year means each of

(a) the currency of the United States of America;

(b) the currency of the European Monetary Union;

(c) the currency of the United Kingdom; and

(d) a prescribed currency.

"reversionary exchange rate" of a taxpayer for a functional currency year of the taxpayer means the average, for the 12-month period ending on the last day of the functional currency year of the taxpayer, of the rate of exchange (quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on each business day in the period) for the exchange of a unit of the functional currency of the taxpayer for the functional currency year for the Canadian dollar.

"tax credit" means an amount deductible in computing a taxpayer's tax payable, or deemed to have been paid on account of a taxpayer's tax payable, under any Part of this Act for a taxation year.

"transitional exchange rate" of a taxpayer means the average, for the 12-month period ending on the last day of the last Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, of the rate of exchange (calculated by reference to the rate of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on each business day in the period) for the exchange of the Canadian dollar for a unit of the functional currency of the taxpayer for the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer.

(2) Canadian currency requirement — Subject to subsections (3) to (10),

(a) the Canadian tax results of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year are to be determined using Canadian currency; and

(b) subject to subsection 79(7), paragraphs 80(2)(k) and 142.7(8)(b), if a particular amount that is relevant in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year is an amount expressed in a currency other than Canadian currency, that amount is to be converted to an amount expressed in Canadian currency using the rate of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on the day on which that amount first arose for the exchange of a unit of that other currency for a unit of Canadian currency or such other rate of exchange as is acceptable to the Minister.

(3) Application of subsec. (4) — Subsection (4) applies to a taxpayer in respect of a particular taxation year of the taxpayer if

(a) the taxpayer is, throughout the particular taxation year, a corporation (other than an investment corporation, a mortgage investment corporation or a mutual fund corporation) resident in Canada;

(b) the taxpayer has elected that subsection (4) apply to the taxpayer in respect of the particular taxation year, or a preceding taxation year, and each subsequent taxation year of the taxpayer and has filed that election with the Minister in prescribed form and manner on or before the taxpayer's filing due date

(i) for the taxation year immediately preceding the first taxation year in respect of which the election was made, or

(ii) where there was not a taxation year immediately preceding the first taxation year in respect of which the election was made, for the first taxation year in respect of which the election was made;

(c) there is a functional currency of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year;

(d) where the taxpayer's taxation year immediately preceding the particular taxation year was a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the functional currency of the taxpayer for that preceding taxation year is the same as the functional currency of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year; and

(e) where the taxpayer's taxation year immediately preceding the particular taxation year was a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, no preceding taxation year of the taxpayer was a functional currency year of the taxpayer.

(4) Functional currency reporting — If, because of subsection (3), this subsection applies to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer,

(a) the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year are to be determined using the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year;

(b) each reference in the Act or the regulations to a particular amount expressed in Canadian dollars is to be read as a reference to a particular amount expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year determined by applying the currency exchange rate in respect of the conversion of Canadian currency into that functional currency as of the first day of the particular taxation year;

(c) subject to subsection 79(7), paragraphs 80(2)(k) and 142.7(8)(b), if a particular amount that is relevant in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year is an amount expressed in a currency other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year, that amount is to be converted to an amount expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year by using the rates of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on the day that the particular amount first arose for the exchange of the Canadian dollar for a unit of each of those currencies or such other rate of exchange as is acceptable to the Minister;

(d) each reference in subsection 79(7), paragraph 80(2)(k) and subsections 80.01(11) and 80.1(8) to "Canadian currency" is to be read as a reference to "the taxpayer's functional currency";

(e) the reference in subsection 39(2) to "the value of the currency or currencies of one or more countries other than Canada relative to Canadian currency, a taxpayer has made a gain or sustained a loss in a taxation year" is to be read as reference to "the value of the currency or currencies of one or more countries (other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the taxation year) relative to a taxpayer's functional currency for a taxation year, the taxpayer has made a gain or sustained a loss in the taxation year" and the references in that subsection to "currency of a country other than Canada" shall be read as references to "currency other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the taxation year";

(f) the definition "foreign currency" in subsection 248(1) is, in respect of the taxpayer, to be, at any time in the particular taxation year, read as:

"foreign currency" in respect of a taxpayer, at any time in a particular taxation year, means a currency other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year;

(g) where a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer ends in the particular taxation year of the taxpayer, the references in section 95 and in regulations made for the purposes of that section (other than subsection

5907(6) of the Regulations) to "Canadian currency" shall be read, in respect of the foreign affiliate, as a reference to "the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year".

(5) Converting Canadian currency amounts — In applying this Act to a taxpayer for a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer

(a) subject to subparagraph (10)(b)(iii), in determining the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) that may be deducted, or relevant in determining the amount that may be deducted, under subsection 37(1) or 66(4), section 110.1 or 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 129(1), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3) in the particular functional currency year, each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that is relevant to the determination and that was determined for a taxation year of the taxpayer that preceded the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(b) in determining, at any time in the particular functional currency year, the cost (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) to the taxpayer of a property that was acquired by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's initial functional currency year, the cost (determined in Canadian currency) to the taxpayer of the property at the end of the last Canadian currency year of the taxpayer is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(c) in determining, at any time in the particular functional currency year, the adjusted cost base (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) to the taxpayer of a capital property that was acquired by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's initial functional currency year, each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that was required by section 53 to be added or deducted in computing, at any time before the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, the adjusted cost base of the property to the taxpayer is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(d) in determining, at any time in the particular functional currency year, the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of the taxpayer's undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property of a prescribed class, cumulative eligible capital in respect of a business, cumulative Canadian exploration expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.1(6)), cumulative Canadian development expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.2(5)), cumulative foreign resource expense in respect of a country other than Canada (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.21(1)) and cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.4(5)), (each of which is referred to in this paragraph as a "pool amount") each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that was added to or deducted from a particular pool amount of the taxpayer in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(e) in determining any amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) that has been deducted or claimed as a reserve in computing the income of the taxpayer for its last Canadian currency year, that amount (determined in Canadian currency) deducted or claimed as a reserve is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(f) in determining the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of any outlay or expense referred to in subsection 18(9) that was made or incurred by the taxpayer and the amount that was deducted in respect of that outlay or expense in respect of a taxation year preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, such amounts of outlay or expense or deductions (determined in Canadian currency for those years) are to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(g) in determining, at any time in the particular functional currency year, the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of any class of shares of its capital stock, any amount (determined in Canadian currency) added or deducted in computing the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of the class in a taxation year preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(h) where the taxpayer issued a debt obligation in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, in determining the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) for which the obligation was issued, the principal amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of the obligation, any amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, and the amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of any gain or loss attributable to the fluctuation in the values of currencies,

(i) where the obligation was issued in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year, the amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) for which the obligation was issued, the principal amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of the obligation and the amounts (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation, in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer are those amounts determined in those years in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year,

(ii) where the obligation was issued in Canadian currency, the amount for which the obligation was issued (determined in Canadian currency), the principal amount (determined in Canadian currency) of the obligation and the amounts (determined in Canadian currency) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation, in a taxation year preceding the initial functional currency year are to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer, and

(iii) where the obligation was issued in a currency (referred to in this subparagraph as the "third currency") other than Canadian currency or the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year, the amount (determined in the third currency) for which the obligation was issued, the principal amount (determined in the third currency) of the obligation and the amounts (determined in the third currency) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, are to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the currency exchange rate in respect of a conversion of an amount determined in the third currency into an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year on the last day of the last Canadian currency year of the taxpayer;

(i) in determining the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of tax payable under Part I for a Canadian currency year for the purpose of determining the taxpayer's first instalment base or second instalment base for the taxpayer's initial functional currency year, the amount (determined in Canadian currency) of tax payable is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer; and

(j) any amount (expressed in Canadian currency), other than an amount referred to in paragraphs (a) to (i), determined under the provisions of this Act in or in respect of a taxation year preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer that is relevant in determining the Canadian tax results (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of the taxpayer for the particular functional currency year is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer.

(6) Deferred amounts relating to debt — In applying this Act to a taxpayer for a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer

(a) where, at any time in the particular functional currency year, the taxpayer has made a particular payment (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) on account of the principal amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of a debt obligation that was issued by the taxpayer in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer that ended before the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer

(i) the taxpayer is deemed to have a capital gain under paragraph 39(2)(a) or income, as the case may be, attributable to the fluctuation in the values of currencies in respect of the particular payment for the particular functional currency year equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount determined by the formula

$$D \times E$$

where

D is the amount (expressed in Canadian currency), if any, that would have been determined to be the taxpayer's capital gain under paragraph 39(2)(a) or income, as the case may be, if the principal amount of the debt obligation outstanding (determined in Canadian currency), immediately before the end of the last Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, had been settled by a payment by the taxpayer to the holder of the obligation of an amount equal to that outstanding principal amount at that time, and

E is the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer,

B is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year), and

C is the principal amount of the debt obligation outstanding (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) at the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer,

(ii) the taxpayer is deemed to have a capital loss under paragraph 39(2)(b) or a loss, as the case may be, attributable to the fluctuation in the values of currencies in respect of the particular payment for the particular functional currency year equal to the amount determined by the formula

$$F \times G/H$$

where

F is the amount determined by the formula

$$I \times J$$

where

I is the amount (expressed in Canadian currency), if any, that would have been determined to be the taxpayer's capital loss under paragraph 39(2)(b) or loss, as the case may be, if the principal amount of the debt obligation outstanding (determined in Canadian currency), immediately before the end of the last Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, had been settled by a payment by the taxpayer to the holder of the obligation of an amount equal to that outstanding principal amount at that time, and

J is the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer,

G is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year), and

H is the principal amount of the debt obligation outstanding (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) at the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, and

(iii) where a debt obligation is denominated in a currency other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year, any amount determined under element B in the formula in subparagraph (i) or element G in the formula in subparagraph (ii) is to be determined with reference to the relative value of that currency and the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year at the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, and

(b) notwithstanding paragraph 80(2)(k), where an obligation of the taxpayer was issued in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer in a currency other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year, a forgiven amount arising at any time in the particular functional currency year in respect of the obligation is to be determined by reference to the currency exchange rate on the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year in respect of a conversion of an amount determined in the other currency into an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year.

(7) Amounts payable or refundable in respect of a functional currency year — Notwithstanding subsection (4),

(a) if, at any particular time, an amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) first becomes payable under this Act by a taxpayer to the Receiver General in respect of a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer,

(i) that amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) is to be converted to Canadian currency using the currency exchange rate on the earlier of the day the amount is so paid and the day that includes the particular time in respect of a conversion of an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year into an amount determined in Canadian currency, and

(ii) the amount so determined in Canadian currency under subparagraph (i) is to be paid to the Receiver General in Canadian currency; and

(b) if, at any particular time, an amount (determined in a taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) first becomes payable under this Act to the taxpayer by the Minister, for a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer, or is deemed to be paid on account of an amount payable by the taxpayer under the Act for that particular functional currency year,

(i) that amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) is to be converted to Canadian currency using the currency exchange rate on the day that includes the particular time in respect of the conversion of an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year into an amount determined in Canadian currency, and

(ii) the amount so determined in Canadian currency under subparagraph (i) is to be paid to the taxpayer by the Minister or is deemed to have been paid to the taxpayer by the Minister, as the case may be, in Canadian currency.

(8) Application of subsec. (9) — Subsection (9) applies to a taxpayer for a particular Canadian currency year that begins after the last functional currency year of the taxpayer.

(9) Converting functional currency amounts — Where, because of subsection (8), this subsection applies to a taxpayer for a particular Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, in applying this Act to the taxpayer for that particular Canadian currency year, the following rules apply:

(a) subject to subparagraph (10)(a)(iii), in determining the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) that may be deducted, or relevant in determining the amount that may be deducted, under subsection 37(1) or 66(4), section 110.1 or 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 129(1), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3) in the particular Canadian currency year,

(i) each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year of the taxpayer) that is relevant to the determination and that was first required to be determined in a functional currency year of the taxpayer that preceded the particular Canadian currency year, is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that is relevant to the determination and that was first required to be determined in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is the amount that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(b) in determining, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, the cost (expressed in Canadian currency) to the taxpayer of a property,

(i) where the property was acquired by the taxpayer in a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year, the cost (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) to the taxpayer of the property is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) where the property was acquired by the taxpayer in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year, the cost (determined in Canadian currency) to the taxpayer of the property is the cost so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(c) in determining, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, the adjusted cost base (expressed in Canadian currency) to the taxpayer of a capital property

(i) each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) that is required by section 53 to be added or deducted in computing the adjusted cost base of the property to the taxpayer and was first required by that section to be added or deducted at any time in a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that is required by section 53 to be added or deducted in computing the adjusted cost base of the property to the taxpayer and was first required by that section to be added or deducted at any time in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is the amount that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(d) in determining, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) of the taxpayer's undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property of a prescribed class, cumulative eligible capital in respect of a business, cumulative Canadian exploration expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.1(6)), cumulative Canadian development expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.2(5)), cumulative foreign resource expense in respect of a country other than Canada (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.21(1)) and cumulative

Canadian oil and gas property expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.4(5)), (each of which is referred to in this paragraph as a "pool amount"),

(i) each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) that is required to be added to or deducted from a particular pool amount of the taxpayer and was first required to be added or deducted in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that is required to be added to or deducted from a particular pool amount of the taxpayer and was first required to be added or deducted in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is the amount that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(e) in determining any amount (expressed in Canadian currency) that has been deducted or claimed as a reserve in computing the income of the taxpayer for its last functional currency year preceding the particular Canadian currency year, that amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the last functional currency year) deducted or claimed as a reserve for that last functional currency year is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that last functional currency year;

(f) in determining the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) of any outlay or expense referred to in subsection 18(9) that was made or incurred by the taxpayer and the amount that was deducted by the taxpayer in respect of that outlay or expense in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year,

(i) such of those amounts (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) that were first made or incurred or deducted by the taxpayer in or in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year are to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) such of those amounts (determined in Canadian currency) that were first made or incurred or deducted by the taxpayer in or in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year are the amounts that were so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(g) in determining, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) of the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of any class of shares of its capital stock,

(i) any amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) that was first added or deducted in computing the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of the class in a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) any amount (determined in Canadian currency) that was first added or deducted in computing the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of the class in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is the amount that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(h) where an obligation was issued in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer, in determining, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) for which an obligation was issued, the principal amount (expressed in Canadian currency) of the obligation, the amounts (expressed in Canadian currency) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation, and the amount (determined in Canadian currency), if any, of any gain or loss attributable to the fluctuation in the value of the Canadian currency relative to the value of the currency in which the obligation was issued,

(i) subject to paragraph (i), where the obligation was issued in a currency other than Canadian currency,

(A) the amount (determined in the currency in which the obligation was issued) for which the obligation was issued and the principal amount (determined in the currency in which the obligation was issued) of the obligation are

(I) where the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the obligation was issued was a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the amounts (determined in Canadian currency) that were so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year, or

(II) where the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the obligation was issued was a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the amounts determined by converting those amounts (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) to Canadian currency by using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(B) the amounts (determined in the currency in which the obligation was issued) paid at any time in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation are

(I) where the taxation year of the taxpayer in which an amount was paid was a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the amount (determined in Canadian currency) that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year, or

(II) where the taxation year of the taxpayer in which an amount was paid was a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the amount determined by converting that amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) to Canadian currency by using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) where the obligation was issued in Canadian currency, the amount (determined in Canadian currency) for which the obligation was issued, the principal amount (determined in Canadian currency) of the obligation and the amounts (determined in Canadian currency) paid, in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer, in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation, are the amounts so determined in Canadian currency in those preceding years;

(i) where an obligation was issued in a currency other than Canadian currency in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer, in determining, in respect of subsection 79(7) or paragraph 80(2)(k) or 142.7(8)(b), the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) for which the obligation was issued, the principal amount (determined in Canadian currency) of the obligation, and the amounts (determined in Canadian currency) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, those amounts are to be determined as if subsections (1) to (7) had not applied to the taxpayer for any preceding taxation year;

(j) where the particular Canadian currency year is the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer, for the purpose of determining the taxpayer's first instalment base or second instalment base in the particular Canadian currency year, the amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) of tax payable by the taxpayer under Part I for the last functional currency year of the taxpayer is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that last functional currency year; and

(k) in determining any amount (determined in Canadian currency and referred to in this paragraph as the "specified amount"), at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, other than an amount referred to in paragraphs (a) to (j), that is relevant in determining the Canadian tax results of the taxpayer for the particular Canadian currency year

(i) any amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) that is relevant in determining the specified amount and was first determined in or in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year, is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) any amount (determined in Canadian currency) that is relevant in determining the specified amount and was first determined in or in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is the amount that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year.

(10) Functional currency and Canadian currency amounts carried back — In determining an amount that a taxpayer may claim under section 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3), for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(a) if the particular taxation year is a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the amount that may be claimed (determined in Canadian currency) is to be determined,

(i) by converting each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of a loss incurred, tax credit arising and expenditure made in or in respect of a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer that ends after the particular taxation year to Canadian currency using the currency exchange rate in respect of the conversion of an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year into an amount determined in Canadian currency on the last day of that particular functional currency year,

(ii) as if each amount (determined in Canadian currency) of a loss incurred, tax credit arising, expenditure made and deduction claimed in or in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer were the amount of that loss incurred, tax credit arising, expenditure made and deduction claimed in Canadian currency in or in respect of that Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, and

(iii) by converting each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) claimed in or in respect of a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer (in respect of an amount of loss incurred, tax credit arising or expenditure made by a taxpayer in or in respect of a Canadian currency year) to Canadian currency using the currency exchange rate on the last day of the Canadian currency year of the taxpayer in or in respect of which the amount claimed arose in respect of the conversion of an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year to an amount determined in Canadian currency; and

(b) if the particular taxation year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the amount that may be claimed (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year) is to be determined,

(i) by converting each amount (determined in Canadian currency) of a loss incurred, tax credit arising and expenditure made in or in respect of a particular Canadian currency year of the taxpayer that ends after the particular taxation year to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year using the currency exchange rate in respect of the conversion of an amount determined in Canadian currency into an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year on the last day of that particular Canadian currency year,

(ii) as if each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year) of a loss incurred, tax credit arising, expenditure made and deduction claimed in or in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer were the amount of that loss incurred, tax credit arising, expenditure made and deduction claimed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year, and

(iii) by converting each amount (determined in Canadian currency) claimed in or in respect of a particular Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer (in respect of an amount of loss incurred, tax credit arising or expenditure made by a taxpayer in or in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer) to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year using the currency exchange rate on the last day of the functional currency year of the taxpayer in or in respect of which the amount claimed arose in respect of the conversion of an amount determined in Canadian currency to an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year.

(11) Subsec. 88(1) wind-ups — effect on subsidiary — Subsection (12) applies to a corporation (referred to in this subsection and subsection (12) as the "subsidiary") that has been wound up into another corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "parent") if

(a) subsection 88(1) applied to the subsidiary and the parent in respect of the winding-up of the subsidiary;

(b) the taxation year of the subsidiary (referred to in this subsection and subsection (12) as the "distribution year of the subsidiary") in which any portion of a property (such portion of the property referred to in this subsection as the "distributed property") of the subsidiary was distributed to the parent, or any portion of an obligation (such portion of the obligation referred to in this subsection as the "assumed obligation") of the subsidiary was assumed by the parent, on the winding-up of the subsidiary would, were this section read without reference to this subsection, be a functional currency year of the subsidiary; and

(c) either

(i) where the taxation year of the parent (referred to in this paragraph as the "acquisition year of the parent") in which the subsidiary distributed the distributed property to the parent, or the assumed obligation of the subsidiary was assumed by the parent, on the winding-up of the subsidiary was a functional currency year of the parent, the functional currency for the acquisition year of the parent was not the functional currency of the subsidiary for the distribution year of the subsidiary, or

(ii) the acquisition year of the parent was not a functional currency year of the parent.

(12) Taxation year of subsidiary — Where, because of subsection (11), this subsection applies to the subsidiary, for the purposes of this section

(a) the last taxation year of the subsidiary that ends before the beginning of the distribution year of the subsidiary is deemed to be the last functional currency year of the subsidiary; and

(b) subsection (4) is deemed not to apply to the subsidiary for each taxation year of the subsidiary commencing after the end of the last functional currency year of the subsidiary described in paragraph (a).

(13) Amalgamations — effect on predecessor corporations — Subsection (14) applies to a corporation (referred to in this subsection and subsection (14) as the "specified predecessor") that has merged with one or more other corporations to form one corporate entity (referred to in this subsection as the "new corporation") if

(a) the merger was an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1));

(b) the taxation year of the specified predecessor (referred to in this subsection and subsection (14) as the "last taxation year of the specified predecessor") that ended immediately before the amalgamation would, were this section read without reference to subsection (14), be a functional currency year of the specified predecessor; and

(c) either

(i) where the taxation year of the new corporation (referred to in this paragraph as the "first taxation year of the new corporation") that began at the time of the amalgamation was a functional currency year of the new corporation, the functional currency of the new corporation for the first taxation year of the new corporation was not the functional currency of the specified predecessor for the last taxation year of the specified predecessor, or

(ii) the first taxation year of the new corporation was not a functional currency year of the new corporation.

(14) Taxation year of specified predecessor — Where, because of subsection (13), this subsection applies to the specified predecessor, for the purposes of this section

(a) the taxation year of the specified predecessor that ends immediately before the beginning of the last taxation year of the specified predecessor is deemed to be the last functional currency year of the specified predecessor; and

(b) subsection (4) is deemed not to apply to the specified predecessor corporation for each taxation year of the specified predecessor commencing after the end of the last functional currency year of the specified predecessor described in paragraph (a).

(15) Deemed continuation on winding-up or amalgamation — For the purpose of this section,

(a) subject to subsection (16), where there has been a winding-up of a taxpayer (referred to in this subsection and subsection (16) as the "subsidiary") into another taxpayer (referred to in this subsection and subsection (16) as the "parent") to which subsection 88(1) has applied, the parent is deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of the subsidiary; and

(b) subject to subsection (17), where there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) of two or more corporations (each such taxpayer referred to in this subsection and subsection (17) as a "predecessor") to form one corporate entity (referred to in this subsection and subsection (17) as the "new corporation") the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of each such predecessor corporation.

(16) Exception to deemed continuation — winding-up — Where the parent would not, in a taxation year of the parent ending after the time the subsidiary was wound up, satisfy the requirements of paragraph (3)(e) because the last functional currency year of the subsidiary referred to in subsection (12) in respect of the winding-up is, because of paragraph (15)(a), the last functional currency year of the parent, paragraph (15)(a) shall not apply, for the purposes of paragraph (3)(e), to the parent in respect of the subsidiary if the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of the taxation year of the parent in which the property of the subsidiary was distributed to the parent in the course of winding-up, to the parent of a property that was distributed to the parent on the winding-up (or property substituted for such property) is less than 50% of the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of that taxation year, to the parent of a property of the parent.

(17) Exception to deemed continuation — amalgamation — Where the new corporation would not, in a taxation year of the new corporation commencing on or after the time of the amalgamation, satisfy the requirements of paragraph (3)(e) because the last functional currency year of the predecessor referred to in subsection (14) in respect of the amalgamation is, because of paragraph (15)(b) the last functional currency year of the new corporation, paragraph (15)(b) shall not apply, for the purposes of paragraph (3)(e), to the new corporation in respect of the predecessor if the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of the taxation year of the new corporation that began at the time of the amalgamation, to the new corporation of a property that, immediately before the amalgamation, was a property of the predecessor (or property substituted for such property) is less than 50% of the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of that taxation year of the new corporation, to the new corporation of a property of the new corporation.

(18) Anti-avoidance — Where, at any time, all or substantially all of the property (referred to in this subsection as the "transferred property") of a business (referred to in this subsection as the "transferred business") of a taxpayer has been disposed of by the taxpayer (referred to in this subsection as the "transferor") and acquired, either directly or indirectly by a corporation resident in Canada (referred to in this subsection as the "transferee") that, immediately after the acquisition, was related to the taxpayer, and a taxation year of the transferor beginning before that time was a functional currency year of the transferor, for the purposes of this section, the transferee is deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of the transferor if the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of the taxation year of the transferee in which the transferred business was transferred, to the transferee of a property that was a transferred property (or property substituted for such property) is greater than 50% of the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of that taxation year of the transferree, to the transferree of a property of the transferree.

I.T. Technical News: 41 (functional currency tax reporting rules); 44 (foreign currency reporting).

262. (1) Authority to designate stock exchange — The Minister of Finance may designate a stock exchange, or a part of a stock exchange, for the purposes of this Act.

Related Provisions: 55(6) — Reorganization share deemed listed on designated stock exchange; 87(10) — Share deemed listed on designated stock exchange following amalgamation; 248(1)"designated stock exchange" — Definition applicable to entire Act; Canada-U.S. Tax Treaty:Art. XXIX-A:5(f)(ii) — Designated stock exchange is "recognized stock exchange" for treaty purposes.

(2) Revocation of designation — The Minister of Finance may revoke the designation of a stock exchange, or a part of a stock exchange, designated under subsection (1).

(3) Timing — A designation under subsection (1) or a revocation under subsection (2) shall specify the time at and after which it is in effect, which time may, for greater certainty, precede the time at which the designation or revocation is made.

(4) Publication — The Minister of Finance shall cause to be published, by posting on the Internet website of the Department of Finance or by any other means that the Minister of Finance considers appropriate, the names of those stock exchanges, or parts of stock exchanges, as the case may be, that are or at any time were designated under subsection (1).

(5) Transition — The Minister of Finance is deemed to have designated under subsection (1) each stock exchange and each part of a stock exchange that was, immediately before the day on which this section came into force, a prescribed stock exchange, with effect on and after that day.

Regulations: 3200, 3201 (prescribed stock exchanges before Dec. 14, 2007).

History [s. 262]: S. 262 added by 2007, c. 35, s. 67, applicable after December 13, 2007.

Grandfathering of Various Amendments Announced on April 26, 1995: 1998, c. 19, s. 247 reads as follows:

247. (1) Exception to coming-into-force — Subsections 73(4), 74(5), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2) and subsections 89(1), (2) and (6), 94(1) and (2), 95(1), 116(3) to (5), 120(1) and 124(1) and (2) do not apply to the disposition of property by a person or partnership (in this subsection and subsection (2) referred to as the "transferor") that occurred before 1996

(a) to a person who was obliged on April 26, 1995 to acquire the property pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing made on or before that day; or

(b) in a transaction, or as part of a series of transactions, the arrangements for which, evidenced in writing, were substantially advanced before April 27, 1995, other than a transaction or series a main purpose of which can reasonably be considered to have been to enable an unrelated person to obtain the benefit of

(i) any deduction in computing income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or tax payable under the Act, or

(ii) any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts.

(2) Election — Notwithstanding subsection (1), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2), and the other subsections of this Act referred to in subsection (1) apply to a disposition in respect of which the transferor has filed with the Minister of National Revenue before the end of the third month after the month in which this Act is assented to [i.e., before October 1998 — ed.] an election in writing to have those subsections apply.

(3) Interpretation — For the purpose of subsection (1),

(a) a person shall be considered not to be obliged to acquire property where the person can be excused from the obligation if there is a change to the Act or if there is an adverse assessment under the Act;

(b) an "unrelated person" means any person who was not, or a partnership any member of which was not, related (otherwise than because of paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) to the transferor at the time of the disposition; and

(c) a person is deemed to be related to a partnership of which that person is a majority interest partner.

(d) CitiFinancial Mortgage East Corporation/CitiFinancière, corporation de prêts hypothocaires de l'Est, April 1, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): For information about this new schedule, see the commentary to subsection 181(1) [181(1)"financial institution"(g) — ed.].

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 11, 2000:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated October 3, 2000 on behalf of [xxx] requesting that it be prescribed as a financial institution for the purpose of the Large Corporations Tax ("LCT") in Part I.3 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

It is our understanding that the principal business of [xxx] will be to provide loans to [xxx] investors [xxx]. We also understand that [xxx] will be in direct competition with banks and other corporations that are financial institutions for LCT purpose [xxx].

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purposes of the LCT. We ask [xxx] to advise us, however, if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its status for LCT purposes can be re-examined.

You have advised that there are no current or anticipated arm's length holders of shares or debt in [xxx] that would potentially lose entitlement to an LCT investment allowance if [xxx] were prescribed. Based on this, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as of its date of incorporation, September 25, 2000. This recommendation will be made on the condition that no debt (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1) of the Act) issued by [xxx] is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to December 1, 2001.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, March 6, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letter dated December 18, 1998 on behalf of [xxx] requesting that it be prescribed as a financial institution for the purpose of the Large Corporations Tax ("LCT") in Part I.3 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). As you are aware, the need for additional information to develop a clearer understanding of [xxx] business necessitated several exchanges of information between your colleagues and [xxx] principal and my officials. Nonetheless, I apologize for the delay in concluding our decision in this case.

It is our understanding that the principal business of [xxx] is to provide loans to individuals and corporations for investment in SEC-approved U.S. mutual funds and other securities. We also understand that [xxx] competes with banks, trust companies, credit unions and other prescribed financial institutions for clients. We understand that [xxx] income is primarily comprised of the spread between its interest revenue on these loans and the interest cost of its own financing.

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purposes of the LCT. We ask [xxx] to advise us, however, if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its status for LCT purposes can be re-examined.

You have advised that some of [xxx] funding is received from third party corporations that would potentially lose entitlement to an LCT investment allowance if [xxx] were prescribed. The Department's policy is to recommend prescribing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with an additional delay where necessary to protect third party investors. Based on the information you have provided, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as of January 1, 2002.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 9, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated November 13, 2000 requesting that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purpose of the Large Corporations Tax ("LCT") in Part I.3 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

It is our understanding that the principal business of [xxx] is to provide loans to individuals and closely-held private entities to finance automobiles, real estate and general consumer and commercial needs. We understand that [xxx] income is primarily comprised of the spread between its interest revenue on these loans and the interest cost of its own financing. You advised that [xxx] competes with banks and other prescribed financial institutions such as automotive credit corporations and other retail and small business lenders. You have indicated that [xxx] does not carry on any leasing business.

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purposes of the LCT. We ask that [xxx] advise us, however, if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its status for LCT purposes can be re-examined.

The Department's policy is to recommend prescribing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third party investors. According to the documentation you provided [xxx] does not have any third party investors that would lose an investment allowance as a result of [xxx] being prescribed as a financial institution. Based on this, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed with effect from the beginning of its taxation year beginning January 1, 2002. This recommendation will be made on the condition that no debt (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1) of the Act) issued by [xxx] is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to January 1, 2002. For greater certainty, the existence of banker's acceptances drawn by [xxx] would not be considered to violate this condition since they are effectively considered for LCT purposes to be held by the accepting bank rather than the third party investors who buy them.

Since prescription must be formally effected through a regulation approved by Cabinet, I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 29, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

This is further to your letter of September 25, 2001, in which you advise of your client's change in name from [xxx]. As you note, our letter of December 10, 1998 confirmed our intention to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act, and you now request that this recommendation reflect this name change.

We understand from your letter that [xxx] continues to conduct the same business activities as were carried on prior to this name change, and upon which our earlier decision was made to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed. We also understand from the Certificate of Name Change, enclosed with your letter, that this change was effective [xxx]. Given these understandings, we confirm that our recommendation to treat [xxx] as a financial institution will reflect this name change as of the date it took effect.

As you know, I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Jan. 14, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letters dated October 2, 2001 and October 31, 2002, in which you request that two companies — one of which is not yet incorporated, and to which you refer as "[xxx] Newco" — be prescribed under paragraph (g) of the definition of "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act (the Act).

As you may know, the proposals announced on December 20, 2002 to amend the Act provide for, among other things, a fundamental change in the manner in which corporations are identified under paragraph (g) as being financial institutions. Rather than listing these corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. It is proposed that this change be made effective after December 22, 1997. As a result, requests to be prescribed under this paragraph with effective dates after December 22, 1997 — as is the case with your request — will be treated as requests to be listed in the schedule to the Act.

It is our understanding that the principal business of Newco will be to carry out the functions of a credit card issuer pursuant to an agreement with a sister corporation, [xxx] will continue to be liable to the credit card company and its members as the named issuer, and cardmember agreements will remain between [xxx] and the cardholders. Newco will, however, own the indebtedness under such credit card accounts, and borrow funds from related corporations to finance its loans to cardholders.

In respect of the other corporation [xxx] of [xxx] we understand that it currently operates as a "private label" credit card issuer and acquirer for Canadian retailers. It raises funds from related corporations.

We also understand that [xxx] Newco and [xxx] will, in carrying on their credit card businesses, be in direct competition with banks and other corporations that are financial institutions for Part I.3 purposes.

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] Newco and [xxx] be listed in the schedule to the Act for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1). However, we ask that each of [xxx] and [xxx] Newco (once incorporated) provide us with a note explaining that it will advise us if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its treatment as a financial institution under paragraph (g) can be re-examined.

I understand from your letter and conversations you have had with Ryan Hall of this Division that you have asked that [xxx] be listed with effect for taxation years ending after December 30, 2002, and that [xxx] Newco be listed effective as of its date of incorporation. As you know, the Department's policy is to recommend listing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third party investors. You have advised that, upon its incorporation, there will be no arm's length holders of debt in Newco that would potentially lose entitlement to a Part I.3 investment allowance if it were listed. Based on this and that [xxx] Newco has not yet been incorporated, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] Newco be listed as of its date of incorporation. With respect to [xxx] we are prepared to recommend that it be listed as a financial institution effective for taxation years beginning after 2002, given your assurance that it has not raised any public debt. Both recommendations will be made on the condition that no debt (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1) of the Act) issued by either corporation is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to December 31, 2003.

Further, this recommendation will only be made in respect of [xxx] Newco if it is incorporated before December 31, 2003, following which time any request to list this company will be assessed anew.

To facilitate this request, we ask that the incorporation date and the name of the [xxx] Newco be provided to us shortly after its incorporation.

I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Emerson, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 16, 2003

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of March 25, 2003, concerning the proposed treatment of [xxx] as a financial institution for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act. As you note in your letter, the proposed amendments to the Act released on December 20, 2002 provide that [xxx] change in status will be effective after December 30, 2000. You now ask that we recommend changing the proposed measures so that [xxx] change in status will not be effective until after December 31, 2002.

Our letter of June 30, 2000, which responded to your letter of June 30, 1999, indicated our intention to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution, effective for its taxation year ending December 31, 2000 and subsequent years. However, we made our recommendation conditional upon no debt (other than long term debt as defined in subsection 181(1)) having been issued by [xxx] and held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution as defined in that subsection) prior to June 30, 2001.

You explain that [xxx] has not issued debt in the public market, given its understanding that doing so before actually becoming a prescribed (now listed) financial institution would jeopardize its prescription request. As we understand it, it would seem as though [xxx] operated as if it would not be treated as a financial institution as of either December 31, 2000 or June 30, 2001. Rather, it would appear as though [xxx] and other members of its corporate group have operated since December 31, 2000 as if [xxx] would not be treated as a financial institution until measures were adopted to that effect. As we understand it, certain investments made from within the group to [xxx] during this time would not qualify as investment allowance exclusions if the effective date of [xxx] change in status as currently proposed were to be adopted. As a result, you explain that the corporate group would incur greater tax liability under Part I.3 for the 2000, 2001, and 2002 taxation years than would be the case if [xxx] were are treated as a financial institution for those years.

Given that these extraordinary circumstances were in part created by the delay in finalizing the process by which to list [xxx] as a financial institution, we consider that it would be appropriate to recommend the change you have requested. To that end, we intend to recommend that the proposed amendment to the Act be changed so that [xxx] will be listed effective after 2002.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Emerson, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Oct, 22, 2003

Dear [xxx]

I am writing further to your letter of August 15, 2002, as well as [xxx] facsimile to Ryan Hall, of the Tax Legislation Division, dated November 6, 2002, concerning [xxx] (the corporation). As you know, we provided the corporation with two letters dated April 9, and May 15, 2001 indicating our intention to recommend that the corporation be treated as a financial institution for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act effective January 1, 2002, and the proposed technical amendments to the Act released December 20, 2002 incorporate this recommendation. You now advise that the corporation has changed its name to [xxx], effective May 1, 2002, and request that the proposed amendments be updated to reflect this change.

Given our understanding that this name change does not materially affect the activities of the corporation as a financial institution, we are prepared to recommend that the proposed amendments be modified as requested.

I trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Emerson, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

[Similar letters dated Oct. 15, 2003 and Oct. 22, 2003 to two other corporations — ed.]

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 23, 2003

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated August 30, 2002, in which you request that [xxx] (the Company) be treated as a financial institution for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

As you know, the proposed amendments to the Act announced in December 2002 provide for, among other things, a fundamental change in the manner in which corporations are identified under paragraph (g) as being financial institutions. Rather than listing these corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. It is proposed that this change be made effective after December 22, 1997. As a result, requests to be prescribed under this paragraph with effective dates after December 22, 1997 — as is the case with your request — will be treated as requests to be listed in the schedule.

We understand that the Company carries on a nation-wide business of originating and acquiring residential mortgages, securitizing and selling mortgage loans in the capital market, investing in and servicing a portfolio of mortgage loans and mortgage-backed securities, and originating construction loans and lines of credit for medium and large homebuilders. You describe the income earned from these activities as falling within three categories: gains on the sale of mortgage-backed securities or pools of mortgage loans; portfolio income derived from the spread between the yields on its mortgage loans, lines of credit, and securities held on its balance sheet and the costs of liabilities used to fund these income sources; and fee income from originating mortgages and lines of credit, as well as for servicing the mortgage loans or securitizations.

You advise that the Company is in direct competition with banks and other corporations treated as financial institutions for the purposes of Part I.3 of the Act, particularly those corporations carrying on residential mortgage businesses.

Based on the foregoing, we are prepared to recommend that the Company be listed in the schedule. However, we ask that the Company provide us with written assurances that it will advise the Department if the nature of the Company's business changes, so that its treatment as a financial institution for these purposes may be re-examined.

I understand from conversations your colleague, [xxx] has had with Ryan Hall of this Division that the Company requests that it be listed with effect for the 2003 and subsequent taxation years. The Department's policy is to recommend listing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third party investors. [xxx] has advised that there are no current or anticipated arm's length holders of debt in the Company that would potentially lose entitlement to a Part I.3 investment allowance if it were listed. Based on this, and the date of your request, we are prepared to recommend that the Company be listed with effect as requested. However, this recommendation will be made provided no debt issued by the Company (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1)) is held by any unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to July 2004.

I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 27, 2004:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of June 25, 2003, in which you request that two companies — both of which are not yet incorporated, and to which you refer as [xxx] and [xxx] — be listed as financial institutions under paragraph (g) of the "financial institution" definition in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act.

As you know, the proposed amendments to the Act announced in December 2002 and reiterated in February 2004 provide for, among other things, a fundamental change in the manner in which corporations are identified under paragraph (g) as being financial institutions. Rather than listing these corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. It is proposed that this change be made effective after December 22, 1997. As a result, requests to be treated as financial institutions under this paragraph with effective dates after December 22, 1997 — as is the case with your request — will be treated as requests to be listed in the schedule.

We understand from your letter and discussions with Ryan Hall, of this Division, that this request is made in the context of a proposed tax structure, in which two corporations [xxx] would borrow funds (which would not qualify as "long-term debt" for the purposes of Part I.3 of the Act) from third-party lenders through a partnership ("Partnership A"). [xxx] which the above-noted legislative proposals add to the schedule to the Act effective after December 30, 2001, would also be a partner of Partnership A until at least July 2004. Partnership A would in turn incorporate another corporation ([xxx]), with which Partnership A would form another partnership ("Partnership B"). Partnership A would contribute the borrowed funds to Partnership B, which in turn would loan the funds to various related financial institutions resident in Canada ("the related financial institutions").

Although you advise that the structure is not intended to produce income tax benefits under Part I of the Act, adopting the proposed structure would increase the Part I.3 tax liability of the corporate group, which presently borrows third-party funds through a related financial institution. By virtue of being a financial institution, this related financial institution does not include in its taxable capital indebtedness that is not long-term debt, as defined for Part I.3 purposes. [xxx] on the other hand, would include such borrowings in their taxable capital, since they would not be financial institutions under any of the paragraphs in the "financial institution" definition, including under subparagraph (g)(ii) of the definition.

Although ostensibly outside the technical scope of the definition, you suggest that [xxx] fall within the policy intent of subparagraph (g)(ii), given that all of their assets are interests in a tiered partnership structure of which the underlying assets are indebtedness of financial institutions with which [xxx] are related. While you suggest in your letter that there may be a basis in law to argue that Partnerships A and B can be disregarded in determining whether [xxx] are financial institutions under the subparagraph, it would appear (judging from the position taken by the Canada Revenue Agency in its technical interpretation numbered 9712385, to which you refer) that CRA considers the better view to be that the assets of a partnership of which a corporation is a member are not considered in applying subparagraph (g)(ii) to the corporation. Listing [xxx] would therefore seem to be the only way in which, under the proposed structure, the corporations could attain financial institution status for Part I.3 purposes.

Looking only at the policy underlying Part I.3, we agree that it would be appropriate in the present case to disregard Partnerships A and B in determining whether [xxx] are financial institutions under subparagraph (g)(ii), and are prepared to recommend that the corporations be listed strictly on that basis. We therefore ask that each corporation, once incorporated, provide us with a note undertaking to advise the Department if its assets or those of Partnerships A and B change such that it may no longer be reasonably said that all or substantially all of its assets, whether held directly or through the partnerships, are shares or debt of a related financial institution, so that its status under paragraph (g) can be re-examined.

You request that both corporations be listed with effect from the date of their incorporation. As you know, the Department's policy is to recommend listing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third-party investors. You have advised that, upon their incorporation, no arm's length party will hold debt in either of [xxx] that would potentially lose entitlement to a Part I.3 investment allowance if either of the corporations were listed. Based on this and the fact that they have not yet been incorporated, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be listed as of their date of incorporation. These recommendations will be made provided no debt (other than long-term debt, as defined for Part I.3 purposes) issued by either corporation is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution, as defined for Part I.3 purposes) prior to July 2004.

Further, this recommendation will only be made in respect of either corporation if it is incorporated before December 31, 2004, following which time any request for financial institution status will be assessed anew.

To facilitate this request, we ask that the incorporation dates and names of the corporations be provided to us shortly after their incorporation.

I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 18, 2004:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of September 26, 2003, in which you request that [xxx] be listed as a financial institution for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the "financial institution" definition in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act.

As you know, the proposed amendments to the Act announced in December 2002 and reiterated in February 2004 provide for, among other things, a fundamental change in the manner in which corporations are identified under paragraph (g) as being financial institutions. Rather than listing these corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. It is proposed that this change be made effective after December 22, 1997. As a result, requests to be treated as financial institutions under this paragraph with effective dates after December 22, 1997 — as is the case with your request — will be treated as requests to be listed in the schedule.

We understand from your letter and discussions with Ryan Hall, of this Division, that [xxx] business consists of providing loans to [xxx], and that these operations are financed solely by borrowings from a resident corporation that is a financial institution for Part I.3 purposes. We also understand that [xxx] in carrying on its business competes directly with other financial institutions.

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be listed in the schedule to the Act for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1). However, we ask that [xxx] provide us with written assurances that it will advise the Department if the nature of its business changes, so that its treatment as a financial institution for these purposes may be re-examined.

You request in your letter that [xxx] be listed effective April 8, 2002. As you know, however, the Department's policy is to recommend listing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third-party investors. You have advised that no arm's length party will hold debt in [xxx] that would potentially lose entitlement to a Part I.3 investment allowance upon [xxx] being listed. Based on this, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be listed effective for the 2004 and subsequent taxation years. This recommendation will be made provided no debt (other than long-term debt, as defined for Part I.3 purposes) issued by [xxx] is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution, as defined for Part I.3 purposes) prior to 2005.

I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislative Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 23, 2007:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of April 24, 2007 regarding the amalgamation of Ford Credit Canada Limited (FCCL) and its subsidiaries, Ford Credit Canada Leasing (Leasing) and PRIMUS Automotive Financial Services Canada Company (PRIMUS), which took place on January 1, 2007. We understand that, prior to amalgamation, FCCL was in the financing business and it was a prescribed financial institution for the purposes of paragraph 181(1)(g) of the Income Tax Act. You request that the successor corporation, also named FCCL (or for the purpose of this letter, FCCL II), remain on the list of prescribed financial institutions for the purposes of paragraph 8604(s) of the Income Tax Regulations.

You indicate that FCCL II has continued the business carried on by FCCL before 2007 and that FCCL II did not, as a result of the amalgamation, acquire any assets not originally owned by FCCL that are not used in a financing business. However, FCCL II did, as a result of the amalgamation, acquire shares and debts of a wholly-owned subsidiary and some nominal assets, such as office furniture.

This being the case, I am prepared to recommend that the successor corporation, FCCL II, remain on the list of prescribed financial institutions. We ask FCCL II to advise us, however, should the nature of its business change, so that its status pursuant to subsection 181(1)(g) can be re-examined at that time.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Gerard Lalonde, A/Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

REVISED STATUTES OF CANADA 1985, CHAPTER 2 (5TH SUPPLEMENT), AS AMENDED BY 1994, cc. 7, 21; 1995, cc. 3, 21; 1997, c. 25; 1998, c. 19; 2001, c. 17; 2005, c. 30; 2007, c. 35.

7. Short title — This Act may be cited as the Income Tax Application Rules.

PART I — INCOME TAX APPLICATION RULES, 1971

Interpretation

8. Definitions — In this Act,

"amended Act" means, according to the context in which that expression appears,

(a) the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as amended by section 1 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, and by any subsequent Act, and

(b) the Income Tax Act, as amended from time to time;

"former Act" means the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it was before being amended by section 1 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72.

Definitions [ITAR 8]: "Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952" — ITAR 69.

Application of 1970-71-72, c. 63, s. 1

9. Application of 1970-71-72, c. 63, s. 1 — Subject to the amended Act and this Act, section 1 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, applies to the 1972 and subsequent taxation years.

Related Provisions: ITAR 65.1 — Part XV of amended Act.

Definitions [ITAR 9]: "amended Act" — ITAR 8; "taxation year" — ITA 249.

9.1 [Repealed under former Act]

Application of Part XIII of Amended Act

10. (1)–(3) [Repealed under former Act]

(4) Application of Part XIII of amended Act — Where an amount is paid or credited by a person resident in Canada to a non-resident person

(a) who is resident in a prescribed country, and

(b) with whom the person resident in Canada was dealing at arm's length, as, on account or in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, interest payable on any bond, debenture, mortgage, note or similar obligation issued before 1976 by the person resident in Canada to the non-resident person, for the purposes of computing the tax under Part XIII of the amended Act payable by the non-resident person on the amount, the reference in subsection 212(1) of that Act to "25%" shall be read as a reference to "15%".

Regulations: 1600 (prescribed country).

(5) [Repealed]

History: Subsec. 10(5) repealed by 2007, c. 35, s. 69, applicable after 2007. It formerly read:

(5) Certificates of exemption — Any certificate of exemption issued by the Minister under subsection 106(9) of the former Act that was in force on December 31, 1971 shall, for the purposes of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(iv) of the amended Act,

(a) be deemed to have been issued under subsection 212(14) of the amended Act; and

(b) be deemed

(i) in respect of interest payable on any bond, debenture or similar obligation acquired on or before December 31, 1971 by the person to whom the certificate was issued, to have been in force on January 1, 1972 and thereafter without interruption, except that if the person to whom the certificate was issued has ceased at any time after 1971 to be exempt, under the laws of the country of which the person is a resident, from the payment of income tax to the government of that country, the certificate ceases to be in force

(iii) in respect of interest described in subparagraph (i), on the day on which the person first so ceased to be exempt.

(6) Limitation on non-resident's tax rate — Notwithstanding any provision of the amended Act, where an agreement or convention between the Government of Canada and the government of any other country that has the force of law in Canada provides that where an amount is paid or credited, or deemed to be paid or credited, to a resident of that other country the rate of tax imposed thereon shall not exceed a specified rate,

(a) any reference in Part XIII of the amended Act to a rate in excess of the specified rate shall, in respect of such an amount, be read as a reference to the specified rate; and

(b) except where the amount can reasonably be attributed to a business carried on by that person in Canada, that person shall, for the purpose of the agreement or convention in respect of the amount, be deemed not to have a permanent establishment in Canada.

Definitions [ITAR 10]: "amended Act" — ITAR 8; "amount", "business" — ITA 248(1); "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "former Act" — ITAR 8; "Minister", "non-resident", "person", "prescribed" — ITA 248(1); "resident", "resident in Canada" — ITA 250.

11. [Repealed under former Act]

References and Continuation of Provisions

12. Definitions — In this section and sections 13 to 18,

"enactment" has the meaning assigned by section 2 of the Interpretation Act;

"new law" — [Not included in R.S.C. 1985]

"old law" means the Income War Tax Act, The 1948 Income Tax Act, and the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as amended from time to time otherwise than by section 1 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, or any subsequent Act;

"The 1948 Income Tax Act"; means The Income Tax Act, chapter 52 of the Statutes of Canada, 1948, together with all Acts passed in amendment thereof.

Definitions [ITAR 12]: "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952" — ITAR 69.

13. (1) References relating to same subject-matter — Subject to this Act and unless the context otherwise requires, a reference in any enactment to a particular Part or provision of the amended Act shall be construed, as regards any transaction, matter or thing to which the old law applied, to include a reference to the Part or provision, if any, of the old law relating to, or that may reasonably be regarded as relating to, the same subject-matter.

Definitions [ITAR 13]: "amended Act" — ITAR 8; "enactment", "old law" — ITAR 12.

14. Part IV of former Act — Part IV of the former Act is continued in force but does not apply in respect of gifts made after 1971.

Definitions [ITAR 14]: "former Act" — ITAR 8.

15. Part VIII of former Act — Part VIII of the former Act is continued in force but as though the references in that Part that, according to the context in which they appear, are references to or to provisions of the Income Tax Act were read as references to or to provisions of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as amended from time to time otherwise than by section 1 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, or any subsequent Act.

I.T. Application Rules: 69 (meaning of "chapter 148 of ...").

Definitions [ITAR 15]: "former Act" — ITAR 8; "Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952" — ITAR 69.

16. Construction of certain references — In any enactment, a reference by number to any provision of the Income Tax Act that, according to the context in which the reference appears, is a reference to

(a) a provision of Part IV of the former Act,

(b) a provision of Part VIII of the former Act, or

(c) a provision of the amended Act having the same number as a provision described in paragraph (a) or (b), shall, for greater certainty, be read as a reference to the provision described in paragraph (a), (b) or (c), as the case may be, and not to any other provision of the Income Tax Act or the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, having the same number.

Definitions [ITAR 16]: "amended Act" — ITAR 8; "enactment" — ITAR 12; "former Act" — ITAR 8; "Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952" — ITAR 69.

I.T. Application Rules: 69 (meaning of "chapter 148 of ...").

17. (1) Income War Tax Act, s. 8 — A taxpayer may deduct from the tax otherwise payable under Part I of the amended Act for a taxation year such amount as would, if the Income War Tax Act applied to the taxation year, be deductible from tax because of subsections 8(6), (7) and (7A) of the Income War Tax Act.

(2) S.C. 1947, c. 63, s. 16 — There may be deducted in computing income for a taxation year under Part I of the amended Act an amount that would be deductible under section 16 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1947, from income as defined by the Income War Tax Act if that Act applied to the taxation year.

(3) Idem — There may be deducted from the tax for a taxation year otherwise payable under Part I of the amended Act an amount that would be deductible under section 16 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1947, from the total of taxes payable under the Income War Tax Act and The Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940, if those Acts applied to the taxation year.

(4) Retrospection — Where there is a reference in the amended Act to any act, matter or thing done or existing before a taxation year, it shall be deemed to include a reference to the act, matter or thing, even though it was done or existing before the commencement of that Act.

(5) Amount not previously included as income — Where, on the application of a method adopted by a taxpayer for computing income from a business, other than a business that is a profession, or farm or property for a taxation year to which the amended Act applies, an amount received in the year would not be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year because on the application of that method it would have been included in computing the taxpayer's income for the purposes of the Income Tax Act or the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, for a preceding taxation year in respect of which it was receivable, if the amount was not included in computing the income for the preceding year, it shall be included in computing the income for the year in which it was received.

I.T. Application Rules: 69 (meaning of "chapter 148 of ...").

(6) S.C. 1949 (2nd S.), c. 25, s. 53 — There may be deducted in computing income for a taxation year under Part I of the amended Act an amount that would be deductible under section 53 of chapter 25 of the Statutes of Canada, 1949 (Second Session), in computing income under The 1948 Income Tax Act if that Act applied to the taxation year.

(7) Idem — There may be deducted from the tax for a taxation year otherwise payable under Part I of the amended Act an amount that would be deductible under section 53 of chapter 25 of the Statutes of Canada, 1949 (Second Session) from the tax payable under Part I of The 1948 Income Tax Act if that Act applied to the taxation year.

(8) Registered pension plan — A reference in the amended Act to a registered pension plan shall, in respect of a period while the plan was an approved superannuation or pension fund or plan, be construed as a reference to that approved superannuation or pension fund or plan.

Definitions [ITAR 17]: "amended Act" — ITAR 8; "amount", "business" — ITA 248(1); "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "commencement" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952" — ITAR 69; "property", "registered pension plan" — ITA 248(1); "taxation year" — ITA 249; "taxpayer" — ITA 248(1); "The 1948 Income Tax Act" — ITAR 12.

18. (1) General depreciation provisions — Where the capital cost to a taxpayer of any depreciable property that was acquired by him before 1972 was required by any provision of the old law to be determined for the purpose of computing the amount of any deduction under any such provision in respect of that property, or would have been required by any provision of the old law to be determined for that purpose if any deduction under any such provision had been claimed by the taxpayer in respect of that property, the amount of the capital cost so required to be determined or that would have been so required to be determined, as the case may be, shall be deemed, for all purposes of the amended Act, to be the capital cost to the taxpayer of that property.

(2) Idem — Where a taxpayer has acquired depreciable property before the beginning of the 1949 taxation year, for the purposes of section 13 of the amended Act and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act an amount equal to the total of

(a) all deductions allowed in computing the taxpayer's income for the purpose of the Income War Tax Act as "special depreciation", "extra depreciation" or allowances in lieu of depreciation for property the taxpayer had at the beginning of the 1949 taxation year (except deductions allowed under subparagraph 6(1)(n)(ii) of that Act), and

(b) ½ of all amounts allowed to the taxpayer under subparagraph 6(1)(n)(ii) of that Act for property that the taxpayer had at the beginning of the 1949 taxation year, shall be deemed to have been allowed to the taxpayer under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the amended Act in computing income for a taxation year before the 1949 taxation year.

(3) Provisoes not applicable — The second and third provisoes to paragraph 6(1)(n) of the Income War Tax Act do not apply to sales made after the beginning of the 1949 taxation year.

(4) Reference to depreciation — Reference in this section to depreciation shall be deemed to include a reference to allowances in respect of depreciable property of a taxpayer made under paragraph 5(1)(a) of the Income War Tax Act.

(5) Deduction deemed depreciation — An amount deducted under paragraph 5(1)(u) of the Income War Tax Act in respect of amounts of a capital nature shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed to be depreciation taken into account in ascertaining the taxpayer's income for the purpose of that Act or in ascertaining the taxpayer's loss for the taxation year for which it was deducted.

Definitions [ITAR 18]: "amended Act" — ITAR 8; "amount" — ITA 248(1); "depreciable property" — ITA 13(21), 248(1); "depreciation" — ITAR 18(4), (5); "old law" — ITAR 12; "property" — ITA 248(1); "taxation year" — ITA 249; "taxpayer" — ITA 248(1).

Special Transitional Rules

19. (1) Income maintenance payments — Notwithstanding section 9, paragraph 6(1)(f) of the amended Act does not apply in respect of amounts received by a taxpayer in a taxation year that were payable to the taxpayer in respect of the loss, in consequence of an event occurring before 1974, of all or any part of the taxpayer's income from an office or employment, under a plan, described in that paragraph, that was established before June 19, 1971.

(2) Effect of certain changes made in plan established before June 19, 1971 — For the purposes of this section, a plan described in paragraph 6(1)(f) of the amended Act that was in existence before June 19, 1971 does not cease to be a plan established before that date solely because of changes made therein on or after that date for the purpose of ensuring that the plan qualifies as one entitling the employer of persons covered under the plan to a reduction, as provided for by subsection 50(2) of the Unemployment Insurance Act, in the amount of the employer's premium payable under that Act in respect of insured persons covered under the plan.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-54: Wage loss replacement plans (archived); IT-85R2: Health and welfare trusts for employees; IT-428: Wage loss replacement plans.

Definitions [ITAR 19]: "amended Act" — ITAR 8; "amount", "employer", "employment", "office", "person" — ITA 248(1); "plan" — ITA 6(1)(f), ITAR 19(2); "taxation year" — ITA 249; "taxpayer" — ITA 248(1).

20. (1) Depreciable property — Where the capital cost to a taxpayer of any depreciable property acquired by the taxpayer before 1972 and owned by the taxpayer without interruption from December 31, 1971 until such time after 1971 as the taxpayer disposed of it is less than the fair market value of the property on valuation day and less than the proceeds of disposition thereof otherwise determined,

(a) for the purposes of section 13 of the amended Act, subdivision c of Division B of Part I of that Act and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act, the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the total of its capital cost to the taxpayer and the amount, if any, by which the proceeds of disposition thereof otherwise determined exceed the fair market value of the property on valuation day;

(b) where the property has, by one or more transactions or events (other than the death of a taxpayer to which subsection 70(5) of the amended Act applies) between persons not dealing at arm's length, become vested in another taxpayer

(i) for the purposes of the amended Act (other than, where paragraph 13(7)(e) of that Act applies in determining the capital cost to that other taxpayer of the property, for the purposes of paragraphs 8(1)(j) and (p) and sections 13 and 20 of that Act), that other taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired the property at a capital cost equal to the proceeds deemed to have been received for the property by the person from whom that other taxpayer acquired the property, and

(ii) for the purposes of this subsection, that other taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired the property before 1972 at a capital cost equal to the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer who actually owned the property at the end of 1971, and to have owned it without interruption from December 31, 1971 until such time after 1971 as that other taxpayer disposed of it; and

(c) where the disposition occurred because of an election under subsection 110.6(19) of the amended Act,

(i) for the purposes of that Act (other than paragraphs 8(1)(j) and (p) and sections 13 and 20 of that Act), the taxpayer is deemed to have reacquired the property at a capital cost equal to

(A) where the amount designated in respect of the property in the election did not exceed 110% of the fair market value of the property at the end of February 22, 1994, the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the disposition of the property that immediately preceded the reacquisition minus the amount, if any, by which the amount designated in respect of the property in the election exceeded that fair market value, and

(B) in any other case, the amount otherwise determined under subsection 110.6(19) of that Act to be the cost to the taxpayer of the property immediately after the reacquisition referred to in that subsection minus the amount by which the fair market value of the property on valuation day exceeded the capital cost of the property at the time it was last acquired before 1972, and

(ii) for the purposes of this subsection, the taxpayer's capital cost of the property after the reacquisition shall be deemed to be equal to the taxpayer's capital cost of the property before the reacquisition and the taxpayer shall be considered to have owned the property without interruption from December 31, 1971 until such time after February 22, 1994 as the taxpayer disposes of it.

Related Provisions: ITAR 20(1.1) — Rollover to spouse, spouse trust or child; ITAR 20(1.2) — Other rollovers; ITA 257 — Formulas cannot calculate to less than zero [rule does not apply explicitly to the ITARs].

History: The portion of para. 20(1)(c) before subpara. (ii) amended by 1998, c. 19, s. 248, applicable to 1994 et seq. The portion formerly read:

(c) where the taxpayer is deemed by subsection 110.6(19) of the amended Act to have reacquired the property,

(i) for the purposes of that Act (other than, where paragraph 13(7)(e) of that Act applies in determining the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property, for the purposes of paragraphs 8(1)(j) and (p) and sections 13 and 20 of that Act), the taxpayer shall be deemed to have reacquired the property at a capital cost equal to the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the disposition that immediately preceded the reacquisition, and

Subpara. 20(1)(b)(i) amended by 1995, c. 3, subsec. 56(1), applicable to acquisitions of property that occur after May 22, 1985. Subpara. (i) formerly read:

(i) for the purposes of section 13 of the amended Act, subdivision c of Division B of Part I of that Act and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act, that other taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired the property at a capital cost equal to the proceeds deemed to have been received for the property by the person from whom that other taxpayer acquired the property, and Para. 20(1)(c) added by 1995, c. 3, subsec. 56(2), applicable to 1994 et seq.

Selected Cases [subsec. 20(1)]: Fletcher Challenge Canada Ltd. v. R., [2000] 3 C.T.C. 281 (FCA); leave to appeal to SCC refused (March 29, 2001), File 28172 (SCC) (No "disposition" where license agreements expired).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-209R: Inter vivos gifts of capital property to individuals directly or through trusts; IT-217R: Depreciable property owned on December 31, 1971 (archived); IT-220R2: CCA — proceeds of disposition of depreciable property; IT-268R4: Inter vivos transfer of farm property to child; IT-432R2: Benefits conferred on shareholders; IT-488R2: Winding-up of 90%-owned taxable Canadian corporations (archived).

(1.1) Where depreciable property disposed of to spouse, common-law partner, trust or child — Subsection (1) does not apply in any case where

(a) subsection 70(6) or 73(1) of the amended Act applies in respect of the disposition by a taxpayer of any depreciable property of a prescribed class to the spouse, common-law partner, trust or transferee, as the case may be, referred to therein, and

(b) subsection 70(9) of the amended Act applies in respect of the disposition by a taxpayer of any depreciable property of a prescribed class to a child referred to therein, except that where the spouse, common-law partner, trust, transferee or child, as the case may be, subsequently disposes of the property at any time, subsection (1) applies as if the spouse, common-law partner, trust, transferee or child, as the case may be, had acquired the property before 1972 and owned it without interruption from December 31, 1971 until that time.

History: Subsec. 20(1.1) amended by 2000, c. 12, s. 147, to replace "spouse" with "spouse, common-law partner", applicable to 2001 et seq., in force July 31, 2000, subject to subsec. 147(3) of 2000, c. 12, which provides:

> (3) Where a taxpayer and a person have jointly elected pursuant to section 144 of this Act [reproduced in the History note to 248(1)"common-law partner" — ed.] in respect of the 1998, 1999 or 2000 taxation years, [this amendment] applies to the taxpayer and the person in respect of the applicable taxation year and subsequent taxation years.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-209R: Inter vivos gifts of capital property to individuals directly or through trusts; IT-217R: Depreciable property owned on December 31, 1971 (archived).

(1.11) Extended meaning of "child" — For the purposes of subsection (1.1), "child" of a taxpayer includes

(a) a child of the taxpayer's child;

(b) a child of the taxpayer's child's child; and

(c) a person who, at any time before attaining the age of 21 years, was wholly dependent on the taxpayer for support and of whom the taxpayer had, at that time, in law or in fact, the custody and control.

Related Provisions: ITA 70(10) — Extended meaning of "child".

(1.2) Other transfers of depreciable property — Where, because of a transaction or an event in respect of which any of subsections 70(5), 85(1), (2) and (3), 87(2), section 88, subsections 97(2), 98(3) and (5) and 107(2) of the amended Act applies, a taxpayer has at any particular time after 1971 acquired any depreciable property of a prescribed class from a person who acquired the property before 1972 and owned it without interruption from December 31, 1971 until the particular time, for the purposes of subsection (1) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired the property before 1972 and to have owned it without interruption from December 31, 1971 until such time after 1971 as the taxpayer disposed of it.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-209R: Inter vivos gifts of capital property to individuals directly or through trusts; IT-217R: Depreciable property owned on December 31, 1971 (archived); IT-488R2: Winding-up of 90%-owned taxable Canadian corporation (archived).

(1.3) Transfers before 1972 not at arm's length — Without restricting the generality of section 18, where any depreciable property has been transferred before 1972 in circumstances such that subsection 20(4) of the former Act would, if that provision applied to transfers of property made in the 1972 taxation year, apply, paragraph 69(1)(b) of the amended Act does not apply to the transfer and subsection 20(4) of the former Act applies thereto.

(1.4) Depreciable property received as dividend in kind — The capital cost to a taxpayer, as of any particular time after 1971, of any depreciable property (other than depreciable property referred to in subsection (1.3) or deemed by subparagraph (1)(b)(ii) to have been acquired by the taxpayer before 1972) acquired by the taxpayer before 1972 as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a dividend payable in kind (other than a stock dividend) in respect of a share owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a corporation, shall be deemed to be the fair market value of that property at the time the property was so received.

(2) Recapture of capital cost allowances — In determining a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from farming or fishing, subsection 13(1) of the amended Act does not apply in respect of the disposition by the taxpayer of property acquired by the taxpayer before 1972 unless the taxpayer has elected to make a deduction for that or a preceding taxation year, in respect of the capital cost of property acquired by the taxpayer before 1972, under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act other than a regulation providing solely for an allowance for computing income from farming or fishing.

(3) Depreciable property of partnership of prescribed class — For the purposes of the amended Act, where a partnership had, on December 31, 1971, partnership property that was depreciable property of a prescribed class,

(a) the capital cost to the partnership of each property of that class shall be deemed to be an amount determined as follows:

(i) determine, for each person who, by reason of having been a member of the partnership on the later of June 18, 1971 and the day the partnership was created, and thereafter without interruption until December 31, 1971, can reasonably be regarded as having had an interest in the property of that class on December 31, 1971, the person's acquisition cost in respect of property of that class,

(ii) determine, for each such person, the amount that is that proportion of the person's acquisition cost in respect of property of that class that 100% is of the person's percentage in respect of property of that class,

(iii) select the amount determined under subparagraph (ii) for a person described therein that is not greater than any amount so determined for any other such person,

(iv) determine that proportion of the amount selected under subparagraph (iii) (in this subsection referred to as the "capital cost of that class") that the fair market value on December 31, 1971 of that property is of the fair market value on that day of all property of that class, and the amount determined under subparagraph (iv) is the capital cost to the partnership of that property;

(b) for the purposes of sections 13 and 20 of the amended Act and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act, the undepreciated capital cost to the partnership of property of that class as of any time after 1971 shall be computed as though the amount, if any, by which the capital cost of that class to the partnership exceeds the undepreciated cost to the partnership of that class had been allowed to the partnership in respect of property of that class under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the amended Act in computing income for taxation years before that time;

(c) in computing the income for the 1972 and subsequent taxation years of each person who was a member of the partnership on June 18, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until December 31, 1971, there may be deducted such amount as the person claims for the year, not exceeding the amount, if any, by which the total of

(i) the lesser of

(A) the amount, if any, by which the amount that was the capital cost to the person of all property of that class exceeds the percentage, equal to the person's percentage in respect of property of that class, of the capital cost of that class to the partnership, and

(B) the amount that was the undepreciated capital cost to the person of property of that class as of December 31, 1971, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the undepreciated capital cost to the person of property of that class as of December 31, 1971, less the amount, if any, determined under subparagraph (i) in respect of property of that class,

exceeds

(B) the percentage, equal to the person's percentage in respect of property of that class, of the undepreciated cost to the partnership of that class, exceeds the total of all amounts deducted under this paragraph in computing the person's income for preceding taxation years; and, for the purposes of section 3 of the amended Act, the amount so claimed shall be deemed to be a deduction permitted by subdivision e of Division B of Part I of that Act; and

(d) notwithstanding paragraph (c), a person who became a member of the partnership after June 18, 1971 and who was a member of the partnership thereafter without interruption until December 31, 1971 shall be deemed to be a person described in paragraph (c) and the amount that may be claimed thereunder as a deduction in computing the person's income for any taxation year shall not exceed 10% of the total of the amounts determined under subparagraphs (c)(i) and (ii).

(4) Definitions — In subsection (3),

"acquisition cost" of a person who was a member of a partnership on December 31, 1971 in respect of depreciable property of a prescribed class that was partnership property of the partnership on December 31, 1971 means the total of the undepreciated capital cost to that person of property of that class as of December 31, 1971 and the total depreciation allowed to the person before 1972 in respect of property of that class;

"percentage" of a member of a partnership in respect of any depreciable property of a prescribed class that was partnership property of the partnership on December 31, 1971 means the interest of the member of the partnership in property of that class, expressed as a percentage of the total of the interests of all members of the partnership in property of that class on that day;

"undepreciated cost to the partnership" of any class of depreciable property means an amount determined as follows:

(a) determine, for each person who, because of having been a member of the partnership on the later of June 18, 1971 and the day the partnership was created, and thereafter without interruption until December 31, 1971, can reasonably be regarded as having had an interest in property of that class on December 31, 1971, the amount, if any, by which the undepreciated capital cost to the person of property of that class as of December 31, 1971 exceeds the amount, if any, determined under subparagraph (3)(c)(i) for the person in respect of property of that class,

(b) determine, for each such person, the amount that is that proportion of the amount determined under paragraph (a) that 100% is of the person's percentage in respect of property of that class, and

(c) select the amount determined under paragraph (b) for a person described therein that is not greater than any amount so determined for any other such person, and the amount selected under paragraph (c) is the undepreciated cost to the partnership of that class.

(5) Other depreciable property of partnership — For the purposes of the amended Act, where a partnership had, on December 31, 1971, any particular partnership property that was depreciable property other than depreciable property of a prescribed class,

(a) the cost to the partnership of the particular property shall be deemed to be the amount that would be determined under paragraph (3)(a) to be the capital cost thereof if

(i) the particular property constituted a prescribed class of property, and

(ii) the acquisition cost of each person described therein in respect of the particular property were its actual cost to the person or the amount at which the person was deemed by subsection 20(6) of the former Act to have acquired it, as the case may be;

(b) for the purposes of sections 13 and 20 of the amended Act and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act, the undepreciated capital cost of property of any class as of any particular time after 1971 shall be computed as if the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount determined under paragraph (a) to have been the cost to the partnership of the particular property,

exceeds

(ii) the amount that would be determined under the definition "undepreciated cost to the partnership" in subsection (4) to be the undepreciated cost to the partnership of any class of depreciable property comprising the particular property if

(A) paragraph (a) of that definition were read without reference to the words "the later of June 18, 1971 and the day the partnership was created, and thereafter without interruption until",

(B) the amount determined under subparagraph (3)(c)(i) for any person in respect of that class were nil, and

(C) the undepreciated capital cost to each person described in the definition "acquisition cost" in subsection (4) of the particular property as of December 31, 1971 were the amount, if any, by which the amount assumed by subparagraph (a)(ii) to have been the acquisition cost of the person in respect of the property exceeds the total of all amounts allowed to the person in respect of the property under regulations made under paragraph 11(1)(a) of the former Act in computing income for taxation years ending before 1972, had been allowed to the partnership in respect of the particular property under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the amended Act in computing income for taxation years ending before the particular time; and

(c) in computing the income for the 1972 and subsequent taxation years of each person who was, on December 31, 1971, a member of the partnership, there may be deducted such amount as the person claims for the year, not exceeding the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount by which

(A) the amount assumed by clause (b)(ii)(C) to have been the undepreciated capital cost to the person of the particular property as of December 31, 1971

exceeds

(B) a percentage of the amount determined under subparagraph (b)(ii) in respect of the particular property, equal to the percentage that would be the person's percentage (within the meaning assigned by subsection (4)) in respect of the particular property if that property constituted a prescribed class,

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts deducted under this paragraph in computing the person's income for preceding taxation years;

and for the purposes of section 3 of the amended Act the amount so claimed shall be deemed to be a deduction permitted by subdivision e of Division B of Part I of that Act.

21. (1) Goodwill and other nothings — Where as a result of a disposition occurring after 1971 a taxpayer has or may become entitled to receive an amount (in this section referred to as the "actual amount") in respect of a business carried on by the taxpayer throughout the period beginning January 1, 1972 and ending immediately after the disposition occurred, for the purposes of section 14 of the amended Act the amount that the taxpayer has or may become entitled to receive shall be deemed to be the total of

(a) an amount equal to a percentage, equal to 40% plus the percentage (not exceeding 60%) obtained when 5% is multiplied by the number of full calendar years ending in the period and before the transaction occurred, of the amount, if any, by which the actual amount exceeds the portion thereof referred to in subparagraph (b)(i), and

(b) an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the percentage, described in paragraph (a), of such portion, if any, of the actual amount as may reasonably be considered as being the consideration received by him for the disposition of, or for allowing the expiration of, a government right, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which the portion described in subparagraph (i) exceeds the greater of

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an outlay or expenditure made or incurred by the taxpayer as a result of a transaction that occurred before 1972 for the purpose of acquiring the government right, or the taxpayer's original right in respect of the government right, to the extent that the outlay or expenditure was not otherwise deducted in computing the income of the taxpayer for any taxation year and would, if made or incurred by the taxpayer as a result of a transaction that occurred after 1971, be an eligible capital expenditure of the taxpayer, and

(B) the fair market value to the taxpayer as at December 31, 1971 of the taxpayer's specified right in respect of the government right, if no outlay or expenditure was made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of acquiring the right or, if an outlay or expenditure was made or incurred, if that outlay or expenditure would have been an eligible capital expenditure of the taxpayer if it had been made or incurred as a result of a transaction that occurred after 1971.

(2) Idem — Where the taxpayer and the person by whom the actual amount has become payable to the taxpayer were not dealing with each other at arm's length, for the purposes of computing the income of that person the portion of the actual amount in excess of the amount deemed by subsection (1) to be the amount that has become payable to the taxpayer shall be deemed not to have been an outlay, expense or cost, as the case may be, of that person.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-268R4: Inter vivos transfer of farm property to child. See also list at end of ITAR 21.

(2.1) Idem — Where after 1971 a taxpayer has acquired a particular government right referred to in subsection (1)

(a) from a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, or

(b) under an agreement with a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, if under the terms of the agreement that person allowed the right to expire so that the taxpayer could acquire a substantially similar right from the authority that had issued the right to that person, and an actual amount subsequently becomes payable to the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition by the taxpayer of, or for the taxpayer allowing the expiration of, the particular government right or any other government right acquired by the taxpayer for the purpose of effecting the continuation, without interruption, of rights that are substantially similar to the rights that the taxpayer had under the particular government right, for the purpose of section 14 of the amended Act, the amount that has so become payable to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the amount that would, if that person and the taxpayer had at all times been the same person, be determined under subsection (1) to be the amount that would have become so payable to the taxpayer.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of ITAR 21.

(2.2) Amalgamations — For the purposes of this section, an amalgamation (within the meaning of section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more Canadian corporations shall be deemed to be a transaction between persons not dealing at arm's length.

(3) Definitions — In this section,

"government right" of a taxpayer means a right or licence

(a) that enables the taxpayer to carry on a business activity in accordance with a law of Canada or of a province or Canadian municipality, to an extent to which the taxpayer would otherwise be unable to carry it on in accordance therewith,

(b) that was granted or issued by Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province or a Canadian municipality, or by a department, board, agency or any other body authorized by or under a law of Canada, a province or a Canadian municipality to grant or issue such a right or licence, and

(c) that was acquired by the taxpayer

(i) as a result of a transaction that occurred before 1972, or

(ii) at a particular time for the purpose of effecting the continuation, without interruption, of rights that are substantially similar to the rights that the taxpayer had under a government right held by the taxpayer before the particular time;

"original right" of a taxpayer in respect of a government right means a right or licence

(a) described in the definition "government right" in this subsection, and

(b) acquired by the taxpayer as a result of a transaction that occurred before 1972 for a purpose other than the purpose described in subparagraph (c)(ii) of that definition, if the government right was acquired by the taxpayer for the purpose of effecting the continuation, without interruption, of rights that are substantially similar to the rights that the taxpayer had under the right or licence;

"specified right" of a taxpayer in respect of a government right means a right owned by a taxpayer on December 31, 1971 that was

(a) an original right, or

(b) a government right that was acquired by the taxpayer in substitution for the original right or that was one of a series of government rights acquired by the taxpayer for the purpose of effecting the continuation, without interruption, of rights that are substantially similar to the rights that the taxpayer had under the original right.

23. (1), (2) [Repealed under former Act]

(3) Rules applicable [to professional business] — For the purposes of computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year ending after 1971 from a business that is a profession,

(a) there may be deducted such amount as the taxpayer claims, not exceeding the lesser of

(i) the amount deducted under this paragraph in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the preceding taxation year, and

(ii) the taxpayer's investment interest in the business at the end of the year;

(b) where the taxation year is the taxpayer's 1972 taxation year, the amount deducted under paragraph (a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the preceding taxation year from the business shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the taxpayer's 1971 receivables in respect of the business;

(c) there shall be included the amount deducted under paragraph (a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the preceding taxation year from the business; and

(d) there shall be included amounts received by the taxpayer in the year on account of debts in respect of the business that were established by the taxpayer to have become bad debts before the end of the 1971 fiscal period of the business.

(4) Application of para. (3)(a) — Paragraph (3)(a) does not apply to allow a deduction in computing the income of a taxpayer from a business that is a profession

(a) for the taxation year in which the taxpayer died; or

(b) for any taxation year, if,

(i) in the case of a taxpayer who at no time in that year was resident in Canada, the taxpayer ceased to carry on the business, or

(ii) in the case of any other taxpayer, the taxpayer ceased to be resident in Canada and ceased to carry on the business at any time in that year or the following year.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-242R: Retired partners; IT-278R2: Death of a partner or of a retired partner. See also list at end of ITAR 23.

(4.1) Certain persons deemed to be carrying on business by means of partnership — For the purposes of paragraph (a) of the definition "investment interest" in subsection (5),

(a) where subsection 98(1) of the amended Act applies, the persons who are deemed not to have ceased to be members of a partnership because of that subsection shall be deemed to be carrying on business in Canada by means of that partnership; and

(b) a taxpayer who has a residual interest in a partnership (within the meaning assigned by section 98.1 of the amended Act) shall be deemed to be carrying on business in Canada by means of that partnership.

(5) Definitions — In this section,

"investment interest" in a business at the end of a taxation year means

(a) in the case of a taxpayer other than a corporation, the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a proprietorship or partnership by means of which the taxpayer carried on that business in Canada in the year, equal to,

(i) in respect of each such proprietorship, the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of such of the amounts that were included in computing the taxpayer's income for that or a preceding taxation year as were receivable by the taxpayer at the end of the fiscal period of the proprietorship ending in the taxation year,

exceeds

(B) the amount claimed under paragraph 20(1)(l) of the amended Act as a reserve for doubtful debts in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the fiscal period of the proprietorship ending in the year, and

(ii) in respect of each such partnership, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the taxpayer's interest in the partnership immediately after the end of the fiscal period of the partnership ending in the year,

(b) in the case of a taxpayer that is a corporation, the lesser of

(i) the amount thereof that would be determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the corporation if that paragraph applied to a taxpayer that is a corporation, and

(ii) that proportion of its 1971 receivables in respect of the business that

(A) the amount, if any, by which 10 exceeds the number of its taxation years ending after 1971 and either before or coincidentally with the taxation year,

is of

(B) 10;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of ITAR 23.

"1971 receivables" in respect of a business of a taxpayer means the total of

(a) all amounts that became receivable by the taxpayer in respect of property sold or services rendered in the course of the business (within the meaning given that expression in section 34 of the amended Act) in taxation years ending before 1972 and that were not included in computing the taxpayer's income for any such taxation year, other than debts that were established by the taxpayer to have become bad debts before the end of the 1971 fiscal period of the business, and

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount, in respect of each partnership by means of which the taxpayer carried on that business before 1972, equal to such portion of the total that would be determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the partnership, if the references in that paragraph to "the taxpayer" were read as references to "the partnership", as is designated by the taxpayer in the taxpayer's return of income under Part I of the amended Act for the year to be attributable to the taxpayer, except that where the total of the portions so designated by all members of the partnership is less than the total that would be so determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the partnership, the Minister may designate the portion of that total that is attributable to the taxpayer, in which case the portion so designated by the Minister in respect of the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the portion so designated by the taxpayer.

26. (1) Capital gains subject to tax — The provisions of subdivision c of Division B of Part I of the amended Act apply to dispositions of property made after 1971 and to transactions or events occurring after 1971 because of which any disposition of property was made or deemed to have been made in accordance with the provisions of that subdivision.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-330R: Dispositions of capital property subject to warranty, covenant, etc. (archived).

(1.1) Principal amount of certain obligations — For the purposes of subsection 39(3) and section 80 of the amended Act, the principal amount of any debt or other obligation of a taxpayer to pay an amount that was outstanding on January 1, 1972 (in this subsection referred to as an "obligation") shall be deemed to be the lesser of

(a) the principal amount, otherwise determined for the purposes of the amended Act, of the obligation, and

(b) the fair market value, on valuation day, of the obligation, and in applying paragraph 39(3)(a) of the amended Act to an obligation, the reference in that paragraph to "the amount for which the obligation was issued" shall be read as a reference to "the lesser of the principal amount of the obligation and the amount for which the obligation was issued".

(3) Cost of acquisition of capital property owned on Dec. 31, 1971 — For the purpose of computing the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of any capital property (other than depreciable property or an interest in a partnership) that was owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until such time as the taxpayer disposed of it, its cost to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the amount that is neither the greatest nor the least of the following three amounts, namely:

(a) its actual cost to the taxpayer or, if the property was an obligation, its amortized cost to the taxpayer on January 1, 1972,

(b) its fair market value on valuation day, and

(c) the amount, if any, by which the total of

(i) the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property, determined without reference to subsection 13(21.1) of the amended Act,

(ii) all amounts required by subsection 53(2) of the amended Act to be deducted in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition, and

(iii) all amounts described in clause (5)(c)(ii)(B) that are relevant in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition, exceeds the total of

(iv) all amounts required by subsection 53(1) of the amended Act (other than paragraphs 53(1)(f.1) to (f.2)) to be added in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition, and

(v) all amounts described in clause (5)(c)(i)(B) that are relevant in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition, except that where two or more of the amounts determined under paragraphs (a) to (c) in respect of any property are the same amount, that amount shall be deemed to be its cost to the taxpayer.

Related Provisions: ITAR 26(7) — Election for cost to be V-day value; ITAR 26(29) — No tax-free zone following election to trigger capital gains exemption; ITAR 26(30) — Disposition by non-resident of taxable Canadian property; ITAR 35(1) — No application to disposition by foreign affiliate for purposes of FAPI.

(4) Determination of cost where property not disposed of — For the purpose of computing the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of any capital property (other than depreciable property or an interest in a partnership) at any particular time before the taxpayer disposed of it, where the property was owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, its cost to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the amount that would be determined under subsection (3) to be its cost to the taxpayer if the taxpayer had disposed of it at the particular time and the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition had been its fair market value at that time.

Related Provisions: ITAR 26(7) — Election for cost to be V-day value.

Forms: T1105: Supplementary schedule for dispositions of capital property acquired before 1972.

(5) Where property disposed of in transaction not at arm's length — Where any capital property (other than depreciable property or an interest in a partnership) that was owned by a taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "original owner") on June 18, 1971 has, by one or more transactions or events between persons not dealing at arm's length, become vested in another taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "subsequent owner") and the original owner has not elected under subsection (7) in respect of the property, notwithstanding the provisions of the amended Act, for the purposes of computing, at any particular time after 1971, the adjusted cost base of the property to the subsequent owner,

(a) the subsequent owner shall be deemed to have owned the property on June 18, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time;

(b) for the purposes of this section, the actual cost of the property to the subsequent owner or, if the property was an obligation, its amortized cost to him on January 1, 1972 shall be deemed to be the amount that was its actual cost or its amortized cost on January 1, 1972, as the case may be, to the original owner; and

(c) where the property became vested in the subsequent owner after 1971, there shall be added to the cost to the subsequent owner of the property (as determined under subsection (3)) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is

(A) a capital gain (other than any amount deemed by subsection 40(3) of the amended Act to be a capital gain) from the disposition after 1971 of the property by a person who owned the property before it so became vested in the subsequent owner,

(B) an amount required by subsection 53(1) of the amended Act to be added in computing the adjusted cost base of the property to a person (other than the subsequent owner) described in clause (A),

(C) an amount determined under paragraph 88(1)(d) of the amended Act in computing the cost of the property to the subsequent owner or a person who owned the property before it became vested in the subsequent owner, or

(D) an amount by which a gain otherwise determined of a person who owned the property before it became so vested in the subsequent owner was reduced because of paragraph 40(2)(b) or (c) of the amended Act,

exceeds

(ii) the total of amounts each of which is

(A) a capital loss or an amount that would, but for paragraph 40(2)(e) and subsection 85(4) of the amended Act (as that Act read in its application to property disposed of on or before April 26, 1995) and paragraphs 40(2)(e.1) and (e.2) and subsection 40(3.3) of the amended Act, be a capital loss from the disposition to a corporation after 1971 of the property by a person who owned the property before it became vested in the subsequent owner, or

(B) an amount required by subsection 53(2) of the amended Act to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base of the property to a person (other than the subsequent owner) described in clause (A), and there shall be deducted from the cost to the subsequent owner of the property the amount, if any, by which the total determined under subparagraph (ii) exceeds the total determined under subparagraph (i).

(5.1) Idem — For the purposes of subsection (5), an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more Canadian corporations shall be deemed to be a transaction between persons not dealing at arm's length.

(5.2) Transfer of capital property to a corporation — For the purposes of subsection (5), where a taxpayer has disposed of capital property after May 6, 1974 to a corporation in respect of which an election under section 85 of the amended Act was made, the disposition shall be deemed to be a transaction between persons not dealing at arm's length.

(6) Reacquired property — Where a taxpayer has, at any time after June 18, 1971 and before 1972, disposed of any property owned by the taxpayer on that day and has, within 30 days after that time, reacquired the same property or acquired a substantially identical property, for the purposes of this section

(a) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have owned the property so reacquired or the substantially identical property so acquired, as the case may be, on June 18, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the time when the taxpayer so reacquired or acquired it, as the case may be;

(b) where the property was property so reacquired, its actual cost or its amortized cost on January 1, 1972, as the case may be, to the taxpayer shall be determined as if the taxpayer had not so disposed of and so reacquired it; and

(c) where the property was substantially identical property so acquired, its actual cost or its amortized cost on January 1, 1972, as the case may be, to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the amount that was the actual cost or the amortized cost on January 1, 1972, as the case may be, to the taxpayer of the property so disposed of by the taxpayer.

(7) Election re cost — Where, but for this subsection, the cost to an individual of any property actually owned by the individual on December 31, 1971 would be determined under subsection (3) or (4) otherwise than because of subsection (5) and the individual has so elected, in prescribed manner and not later than the day on or before which the individual is required by Part I of the amended Act to file a return of income for the first taxation year in which the individual disposes of all or any part of the property, other than

(a) personal-use property of the individual that was not listed personal property or real property,

(b) listed personal property, if the individual's gain or loss, as the case may be, from the disposition thereof was, because of subsection 46(1) or (2) of the amended Act, nil,

(c) the individual's principal residence, if the individual's gain from the disposition thereof was, because of paragraph 40(2)(b) of the amended Act, nil,

(d) personal-use property of the individual that was real property (other than the individual's principal residence), if the individual's gain from the disposition thereof was, because of subsection 46(1) or (2) of the amended Act, nil, or

(e) any other property, the proceeds of disposition of which are equal to its fair market value on valuation day, the cost to the individual of each capital property (other than depreciable property, an interest in a partnership or any property described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) that was disposed of by the individual before that taxation year) actually owned by the individual on December 31, 1971 shall be deemed to be its fair market value on valuation day.

(8) Identical properties — For the purposes of computing, at any particular time after 1971, the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of any capital property (other than depreciable property or an interest in a partnership) that was owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, if the property was one of a group of identical properties owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971,

(a) section 47 of the amended Act does not apply;

(b) where the property was an obligation,

(i) for the purpose of paragraph (3)(a), its amortized cost to the taxpayer on January 1, 1972 shall be deemed to be that proportion of the total of the amortized costs to the taxpayer on January 1, 1972 of all obligations of that group that the principal amount of the obligation is of the total of the principal amounts of all obligations of that group, and

(ii) for the purpose of paragraph (3)(b), its fair market value on valuation day shall be deemed to be that proportion of the fair market value on that day of all obligations of that group that the principal amount of the obligation is of the total of the principal amounts of all obligations of that group;

(c) where the property was not an obligation,

(i) for the purpose of paragraph (3)(a), its actual cost to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the quotient obtained when the total of the actual costs to the taxpayer of all properties of that group is divided by the number of properties of that group, and

(ii) for the purpose of paragraph (3)(b), its fair market value on valuation day shall be deemed to be the quotient obtained when the fair market value on that day of all properties of that group is divided by the number of properties of that group;

(d) for the purpose of distinguishing any such property from an otherwise identical property acquired and disposed of by the taxpayer before 1972, properties acquired by the taxpayer at any time shall be deemed to have been disposed of by the taxpayer before properties acquired by the taxpayer after that time; and

(e) for the purposes of distinguishing any such property from an otherwise identical property acquired by the taxpayer after 1971, properties owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 shall be deemed to have been disposed of by the taxpayer before properties acquired by the taxpayer at a later time.

(8.1) Idem — For the purposes of subsection (8), any property of a life insurance corporation that would, but for this subsection, be identical to any other property of the corporation shall be deemed not to be identical to that other property unless both properties are

(a) included in the same segregated fund of the corporation;

(b) non-segregated property used in the year in, or held in the course of, carrying on a life insurance business in Canada; or

(c) non-segregated property used in the year in, or held in the course of, carrying on an insurance business in Canada, other than a life insurance business.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-387R2: Meaning of "identical properties".

(8.2) Idem — For the purposes of subsection (8), any bond, debenture, bill, note or other similar obligation issued by a debtor is identical to any other such obligation issued by that debtor if both are identical in respect of all rights (in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently) attaching thereto, except as regards the principal amount thereof.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-387R2: Meaning of "identical properties".

(8.3) Idem — Where a corporation resident in Canada has, after 1971, received a stock dividend in respect of a share owned on June 18, 1971 and December 31, 1971 by it or by a corporation with which it did not deal at arm's length of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of that corporation and the share or shares received as the stock dividend are identical to the share in respect of which the stock dividend was received, the share or shares received as the stock dividend may, at the option of the corporation, be deemed for the purposes of subsection (5) to be capital property owned by it on June 18, 1971 and for the purposes of this subsection, paragraph (3)(c) and subsection (8) to be capital property owned by it on June 18, 1971 and December 31, 1971 and not to be property acquired by the corporation after 1971 for the purposes of paragraph (8)(e).

(8.4) Idem — Where a corporation resident in Canada has, after 1971, received a stock dividend in respect of a share acquired by it after June 18, 1971 from a person with whom it was dealing at arm's length and owned by it on December 31, 1971 of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of that corporation and the share or shares received as the stock dividend are identical to the share in respect of which the stock dividend was received, the share or shares received as the stock dividend may, at the option of the corporation, be deemed for the purposes of this subsection, paragraph (3)(c) and subsection (8) to be capital property owned by it on December 31, 1971 and not to be property acquired by the corporation after 1971 for the purposes of paragraph (8)(e).

(8.5) Amalgamation — For the purposes of subsections (8.3) and (8.4), where there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning of section 87 of the amended Act), the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation.

(9) Cost of interest in partnership — For the purpose of computing, at any particular time after 1971, the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of an interest in a partnership of which he was a member on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, the cost to the taxpayer of the interest shall be deemed to be the amount that is neither the greatest nor the least of the following three amounts, namely:

(a) its actual cost to the taxpayer as of the particular time,

(b) the amount determined under subsection (9.1) in respect of the interest as of the particular time, and

(c) the amount, if any, by which the total of the fair market value of the interest at the particular time and all amounts required by subsection 53(2) of the amended Act to be deducted in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the particular time exceeds the total of all amounts required by subsection 53(1) of the amended Act to be added in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the particular time, except that where two or more of the amounts determined under paragraphs (a) to (c) in respect of the interest are the same amount, that amount shall be deemed to be its cost to the taxpayer.

Forms: ; T2065: Determination of adjusted cost base of a partnership interest.

(9.1) Determination of amount for purposes of subsec. (9) — For the purposes of subsection (9), the amount determined under this subsection in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a partnership as of a particular time is the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) the taxpayer's share, determined at the beginning of the first fiscal period of the partnership ending after 1971, of the tax equity of the partnership at the particular time,

(b) such part of any contribution of capital made by the taxpayer to the partnership (otherwise than by way of loan) before 1972 and after the beginning of the partnership's first fiscal period ending after 1971, as cannot reasonably be regarded as a gift made to, or for the benefit of, any other member of the partnership who was related to the taxpayer, and

(c) the amount of any consideration that became payable by the taxpayer after 1971 to any other person to acquire, after 1971, any right in respect of the partnership, the sole purpose of the acquisition of which was to increase the taxpayer's interest in the partnership,

exceeds the total of

(d) all amounts received by the taxpayer before 1972 and after the beginning of the partnership's first fiscal period ending after 1971 as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a distribution of the taxpayer's share of the partnership profits or partnership capital, and

(e) all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of the disposition by the taxpayer after 1971 and before the particular time of a part of the taxpayer's interest in the partnership, equal to such portion of the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the interest immediately before the disposition as may reasonably be regarded as attributable to the part so disposed of.

(9.2) Where interest acquired before 1972 and after beginning of 1st fiscal period ending after 1971 — Where a taxpayer has, before 1972 and after the beginning of the first fiscal period of a partnership ending after 1971, acquired an interest in the partnership from another person, subsection (9.1) applies as if, for the purposes of paragraphs (a), (b) and (d) thereof, the taxpayer had had in respect of the interest, throughout the period beginning at the beginning of that fiscal period and ending at the time the taxpayer acquired the interest, the same position in relation to the partnership as the taxpayer would have had in relation thereto if, throughout that period, the taxpayer had been the owner of the interest.

(9.3) Amounts deemed to be required to be deducted in respect of interest in partnership — For the purpose of computing, at any particular time after 1971, the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of an interest in a partnership of which the taxpayer was a member on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts in respect of the interest determined under paragraph (9.1)(d)

exceeds

(ii) the total of

(A) the taxpayer's share, determined at the beginning of the first fiscal period of the partnership ending after 1971, of the tax equity of the partnership at the particular time, and

(B) the amount in respect of the interest determined under paragraph (9.1)(b), and

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts in respect of the interest determined as of the particular time under paragraphs (14)(e) to (g)

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts in respect of the interest determined as of the particular time under paragraphs (14)(a) to (d), shall be deemed to be required by subsection 53(2) of the amended Act to be deducted.

(9.4) Application of section 53 of amended Act in respect of interest in partnership — For the purpose of computing, at any particular time after 1971, the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of an interest in a partnership of which the taxpayer was a member on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time,

(a) the reference in clause 53(1)(e)(i)(B) of the amended Act to "relating to" shall be read as a reference to "relating to section 14 or to"; and

(b) clause 53(2)(c)(i)(B) of the amended Act shall be read as follows:

"(B) paragraphs 12(1)(o) and (z.5), 18(1)(m) and 20(1)(v.1), section 31, subsection 40(2), section 55 and subsections 69(6) and (7) of this Act, paragraphs 20(1)(gg) and 81(1)(r) and (s) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, and the provisions of the Income Tax Application Rules relating to section 14, and"

(b) clause 53(2)(c)(i)(B) of the amended Act shall be read as follows:

"(B) paragraphs 12(1)(o), 18(1)(m) and 20(1)(v.1), section 31, subsection 40(2), section 55 and subsections 69(6) and (7) of this Act, paragraphs 20(1)(gg) and 81(1)(r) and (s) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, and the provisions of the Income Tax Application Rules relating to section 14, and"

(10) Where paragraph 128.1(1)(b) applies — Where subsection 48(3) of the amended Act, as it read in its application before 1993, or paragraph 128.1(1)(b) of the amended Act applies for the purpose of determining the cost to a taxpayer of any property, this section does not apply for that purpose.

History: ITAR 26(10) amended by 1994, c. 21, s. 118, applicable after 1992 except that, where a corporation elects in accordance with para. 111(4)(a) of 1994, c. 21 (see subsec. 250(5.1)), the amended subsec. applies to the corporation from the time the corporation was first granted articles of continuation (or similar constitutional documents) in any jurisdiction. That subsec. formerly read:

(10) Where subsec. 48(3) applies — Where subsection 48(3) of the amended Act applies for the purpose of determining the cost to a taxpayer of any property, this section does not apply for that purpose.

(11) Fair market value of publicly-traded securities — For the purposes of this section, the fair market value on valuation day of any property prescribed to be a publicly-traded share or security shall be deemed to be the greater of the amount, if any, prescribed in respect of that property and the fair market value of that property, otherwise determined, on valuation day.

(11.1) Fair market value of share of foreign affiliate — For the purposes of computing the fair market value

(a) on December 31, 1971, or

(b) at any subsequent time for the purposes of subsection (4), of any shares owned by a taxpayer resident in Canada of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, the fair market value at that time of any asset owned by the foreign affiliate at that time

(c) that was subsequently acquired by the taxpayer from the foreign affiliate

(i) as a dividend payable in kind,

(ii) as a benefit the amount of which was deemed by paragraph 80.1(4)(b) of the amended Act to have been received by the taxpayer as a dividend from the foreign affiliate, or

(iii) as consideration for the settlement or extinguishment of an obligation described in subsection 80.1(5) of the amended Act, and

(d) in respect of which subsection 80.1(4) or (5), as the case may be, of the amended Act applies because of an election described in that subsection made by the taxpayer, shall be deemed to be the principal amount of that asset.

(11.2) Idem — For the purposes of computing the fair market value on December 31, 1971 of any shares owned by a taxpayer resident in Canada of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, the fair market value on that day of any asset owned by the foreign affiliate on that day

(a) that was subsequently acquired by the taxpayer from the foreign affiliate as described in paragraph 80.1(6)(a) or (b) of the amended Act, and

(b) in respect of which subsection 80.1(1) of the amended Act applies because of an election described in subsection 80.1(6) of that Act made by the taxpayer, shall be deemed to be the principal amount of that asset.

(12) Definitions — In this section,

"amortized cost" to a taxpayer of any obligation on January 1, 1972 means

(a) the principal amount of the obligation, if its actual cost to the taxpayer was less than 100% but not less than 95% of that principal amount and the obligation was issued before November 8, 1969,

(b) the actual cost to the taxpayer of the obligation, if the actual cost to the taxpayer thereof was less than 105% but not less than 100% of the principal amount thereof, and

(c) in any other case, the actual cost to the taxpayer of the obligation, plus that proportion of the discount or minus that proportion of the premium, as the case may be, in respect thereof that

(i) the number of full months in the period commencing with the day the taxpayer last acquired the obligation and ending with valuation day,

is of

(ii) the number of full months in the period commencing with the day the taxpayer last acquired the obligation and ending with the date of its maturity;

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-319: Cost of obligations owned on December 31, 1971 (archived).

"capital property" of a taxpayer means any depreciable property of the taxpayer, and any property (other than depreciable property) any gain or loss from the disposition of which would, if the property were disposed of after 1971, be a capital gain or a capital loss, as the case may be, of the taxpayer;

"discount" in respect of any obligation owned by a taxpayer means the amount, if any, by which the principal amount thereof exceeds its actual cost to the taxpayer determined without reference to subsection (3);

"eligible capital property" of a taxpayer means any property, ½ of any amount payable to the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition of which would, if the property were disposed of after 1971, be an eligible capital amount in respect of a business within the meaning assigned by subsection 14(1) of the amended Act;

"obligation" means a bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage, hypothecary claim or agreement of sale;

History: The definition "obligation" in subsec. 26(12) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 232(1), in force June 14, 2001. It formerly read:

"obligation" means a bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage or agreement of sale;

"premium" in respect of any obligation owned by a taxpayer means the amount, if any, by which its actual cost to the taxpayer determined without reference to subsection (3) exceeds the principal amount thereof;

"tax equity" of a partnership at any particular time means the amount, if any, by which the total of amounts each of which is

(a) the amount of any money of the partnership on hand at the beginning of its first fiscal period ending after 1971,

(b) the cost amount to the partnership, at the beginning of that fiscal period, of any partnership property other than capital property or eligible capital property,

(c) an amount in respect of any property (other than depreciable property) that was, at the beginning of that fiscal period, capital property of the partnership, equal to,

(i) where the property was disposed of before 1972, the proceeds of disposition thereof,

(ii) where the property was disposed of after 1971 and before the particular time, the amount determined under this section to be its cost to the partnership for the purposes of computing its adjusted cost base to the partnership immediately before it was disposed of, and

(iii) in any other case, the amount determined under this section to be its cost to the partnership for the purposes of computing its adjusted cost base to the partnership immediately before the particular time,

(d) an amount in respect of any prescribed class of depreciable property of the partnership, equal to the amount, if any, by which the total of the undepreciated capital cost to the partnership of property of that class as of January 1, 1972 exceeds the capital cost to the partnership of property of that class acquired by it after the beginning of that fiscal period and before 1972,

(e) an amount in respect of any other depreciable property of the partnership at the beginning of that fiscal period, equal to the amount by which

(i) the actual cost of the property to the partnership, or the amount at which the partnership was deemed to have acquired the property under subsection 20(6) of the Act as it read in its application to the 1971 taxation year, as the case may be,

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts in respect of the cost of the property that were allowed under paragraph 11(1)(a) of the Act as it read in computing the income from the partnership of the members thereof for taxation years ending before 1972,

(f) an amount in respect of any property that was, at the beginning of that fiscal period, partnership property that was depreciable property, equal to

(i) where the property was disposed of before 1972, the proceeds of disposition thereof minus the amount, if any, by which the lesser of

(A) the proceeds of disposition thereof, and

(B) the capital cost of the property,

exceeds

(C) in respect of depreciable property of a prescribed class, the undepreciated capital cost of all of the property of that class at the time of the disposition, or

(D) in respect of any other depreciable property, the amount that would be determined under paragraph (e) if the words "at the beginning of that fiscal period" were read as "at the time of the disposition",

(ii) where the property was disposed of after 1971 and before the particular time, the amount, if any, by which the lesser of

(A) the proceeds of disposition thereof, and

(B) the fair market value of the property on valuation day, exceeds the capital cost to the partnership of the property, and

(iii) in any other case, the amount, if any, by which

(A) the lesser of the fair market value of the property on valuation day and its fair market value at the particular time

exceeds

(B) the capital cost to the partnership of the property, or

(g) an amount in respect of any business carried on by the partnership in its 1971 fiscal period and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, equal to the amount, if any, by which

(i) 2 times the eligible capital amounts (within the meaning assigned by section 14 of the amended Act) in respect of the business (computed without reference to section 21 of this Act) that would have become payable to the partnership would exceed

(ii) the amount that would be deemed by subsection 21(1) to be the amount that had become payable to the partnership

if the partnership had disposed of the business at the particular time for an amount equal to its fair market value at that time, exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any debt owing by the partnership, or any other obligation of the partnership to pay an amount, that was outstanding at the beginning of the partnership's first fiscal period ending after 1971, minus such part, if any, thereof as would, if the amount had been paid by the partnership in that fiscal period, have been deductible in computing its income for that fiscal period.

(13) Meaning of "actual cost" — For the purposes of this section, the "actual cost" to a person of any property means, except as expressly otherwise provided in this section, the amount, if any, by which

(a) its cost to the person computed without regard to the provisions of this section

exceeds

(b) such part of that cost as was deductible in computing the person's income for any taxation year ending before 1972.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-93: Capital property owned on December 31, 1971 — meaning of actual cost and amortized cost (archived).

(14) Idem — For the purposes of this section, the "actual cost" to a taxpayer, as of any particular time after 1971, of an interest in a partnership of which the taxpayer was a member on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time means the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) the cost to the taxpayer of the interest, computed as of the particular time without regard to the provisions of this section,

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a fiscal period of the partnership that ended before 1972, equal to the total of

(i) the amount that the taxpayer's income from the partnership for the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the period ended would have been, if the former Act had been read without reference to subsection 83(5) of that Act, and

(ii) the taxpayer's share, determined at the end of the period, of all profits made from dispositions in the period of capital assets that were partnership property of the partnership, to the extent that those profits were not included in computing the income or loss, as the case may be, from the partnership, of any member thereof,

(c) where the taxpayer had, before 1972, made a contribution of capital to the partnership otherwise than by way of loan, such part of the contribution as cannot reasonably be regarded as a gift made to, or for the benefit of, any other member of the partnership who was related to the taxpayer, and

(d) where, by means of the partnership, the taxpayer carried on before 1972 a business that was a profession, the amount that the taxpayer's 1971 receivables (within the meaning assigned by subsection 23(5)) in respect of the business would have been if, before 1972, the taxpayer had carried on no businesses except by means of the partnership,

exceeds the total of

(e) all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of the disposition by the taxpayer before the particular time of a part of the taxpayer's interest in the partnership, equal to such portion of,

(i) where the disposition was made before 1972, the actual cost to the taxpayer of the interest, and

(ii) in any other case, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the interest immediately before the disposition, as can reasonably be regarded as attributable to the part so disposed of,

(f) all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a fiscal period of the partnership that ended before 1972, equal to the total of

(i) the amount that would have been the taxpayer's loss from the partnership for the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the period ended if the former Act had been read without reference to subsection 83(5) of that Act,

(ii) the taxpayers' share, determined at the end of the period, of all losses sustained from dispositions in the period of capital assets that were partnership property of the partnership, to the extent that those losses were not included in computing the loss or income, as the case may be, from the partnership, of any member thereof, and

(iii) the taxpayer's share, determined at the end of the period, of such of the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses incurred by the partnership while the taxpayer was a member thereof, on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada as were incurred in the period and after 1948, to the extent that those expenses were not deducted in computing the taxpayer's income from the partnership for the taxpayer's 1971 or any preceding taxation year, and

(g) all amounts received by the taxpayer before 1972 as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a distribution of the taxpayer's share of the partnership profits or partnership capital.

(15) Idem — For the purposes of this section and subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act, the "actual cost" to a taxpayer, as of any particular time after 1971, of any shares (in this subsection referred to as "new shares") of any class of the capital stock of a new corporation formed as a result of an amalgamation of two or more corporations (within the meaning of section 85I of the former Act as it read in its application to the 1971 taxation year) that were

(a) owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971, and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, and

(b) acquired by the taxpayer by the conversion, because of the amalgamation, of shares of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation into shares of the capital stock of the new corporation, means that proportion of the actual cost to the taxpayer of any shares owned by the taxpayer that were so converted because of the amalgamation that the fair market value, immediately after the amalgamation, of the new shares of that class so acquired by the taxpayer is of the fair market value, immediately after the amalgamation, of all of the shares of the capital stock of the new corporation so acquired by the taxpayer.

(16) Idem — For the purposes of this section, the "actual cost" to an individual, as of any particular time after 1971, of any share of the capital stock of a corporation that was

(a) owned by the individual on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, and

(b) acquired by the individual in a taxation year before 1972 under an agreement referred to in subsection 85A(1) of the former Act as it read in its application to that taxation year, means an amount equal to the greater of

(c) the actual cost to the individual of the share computed without regard to this subsection, and

(d) the fair market value of the share at the time the individual so acquired it.

(17) Idem — For the purposes of this section and subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act, the "actual cost" to a taxpayer, as of any particular time after 1971, of any capital property received by the taxpayer before 1972 and owned by the taxpayer thereafter without interruption until the particular time means,

(a) where the property was so received as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a dividend payable in kind (other than a stock dividend) in respect of a share owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a corporation, the fair market value of that property at the time the property was so received;

(b) where the property so received was a share of the capital stock of a corporation received by the taxpayer as a stock dividend, the amount that, because of the receipt of the share, was deemed by subsection 81(3) of the former Act to have been received by the taxpayer as a dividend; and

(c) where the property was so received from a pension fund or plan, an employees profit sharing plan, a retirement savings plan, a deferred profit sharing plan or a supplementary unemployment benefit plan, the fair market value of that property at the time the property was so received.

(17.1) Application — Where a taxpayer is deemed to have acquired a property because of subsection 138(11.3) of the amended Act, this section does not apply in respect of any subsequent disposition or deemed disposition of the property.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-88R2: Stock dividends.

(18) Transfer of farm land by a farmer to [the farmer's] child at death — Where

(a) a taxpayer owned, on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the taxpayer's death, any land referred to in subsection 70(9) of the amended Act,

(b) the land has, on or after the death of the taxpayer and as a consequence thereof, been transferred or distributed to a child of the taxpayer who was resident in Canada immediately before the death of the taxpayer, and

(c) it can be shown, within the period ending 36 months after the death of the taxpayer or, where written application therefor has been made to the Minister by the legal representative of the taxpayer within that period, within such longer period as the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances, that the land has become vested indefeasibly in the child,

the following rules apply:

(d) paragraph 70(9)(b) of the amended Act does not apply for the purpose of determining the cost to the child of the land or part thereof, as the case may be, and

(e) subsection (5) applies in respect of the transfer or distribution of the land to the child as if the references in that subsection to "June 18, 1971" were references to "December 31, 1971".

Related Provisions: ITAR 26(20) — Extended meaning of "child".

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-349R3: Intergenerational transfers of farm property on death; IT-449R: Meaning of "vested indefeasibly" (archived).

(19) Inter vivos transfer of farm land by a farmer to child — Where a taxpayer owned, on December 31, 1971, and thereafter without interruption until a transfer thereof by the taxpayer to the taxpayer's child, in circumstances to which subsection 73(3) of the amended Act applies, land referred to in that subsection,

(a) paragraph 73(3)(d) of the amended Act does not apply for the purpose of determining the cost to the child of the land; and

(b) subsection (5) shall apply in respect of the transfer of the land to the child as if the references in that subsection to "June 18, 1971" were references to "December 31, 1971".

Related Provisions: ITAR 26(20) — Extended meaning of "child".

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-268R4: Inter vivos transfer of farm property to child.

(20) Extended meaning of "child" — For the purposes of subsections (18) and (19), "child" of a taxpayer includes

(a) a child of the taxpayer's child;

(b) a child of the taxpayer's child's child; and

(c) a person who, at any time before attaining the age of 21 years, was wholly dependent on the taxpayer for support and of whom the taxpayer had, at that time, in law or in fact, the custody and control.

Related Provisions: ITA 70(10) — Extended meaning of "child".

(21) Shares received on amalgamation — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more corporations (each of which is in this subsection referred to as a "predecessor corporation") to form one corporate entity (in this subsection referred to as the "new corporation"), and

(a) any shareholder (except any predecessor corporation) owned shares of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the amalgamation,

(b) any shares referred to in paragraph (a) were shares of one class of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old shares"),

(c) no consideration was received by the shareholder for the disposition of the old shares on the amalgamation other than shares of one class of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares"), and

(c.1) the cost of the new shares received by the shareholder because of the amalgamation was determined otherwise than because of paragraph 87(4)(e) of the amended Act, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new shares,

(d) the property that was the old shares shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the shareholder because of the amalgamation but to have been altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation and to have continued in existence in the form of the new shares, and

(e) the property that is the new shares shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the shareholder because of the amalgamation but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old shares that were altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation.

Related Provisions: ITAR 26(30) — Disposition by non-resident of taxable Canadian property.

(22) Options received on amalgamations — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more corporations (each of which is in this subsection referred to as a "predecessor corporation") to form one corporate entity (in this subsection referred to as the "new corporation") and a taxpayer has acquired an option to acquire capital property that was shares of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new option") as sole consideration for the disposition on the amalgamation of an option to acquire shares of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old option") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the amalgamation, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new option,

(a) the property that was the old option shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the amalgamation but to have been altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation and to have continued in existence in the form of the new option; and

(b) the property that is the new option shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer because of the amalgamation but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old option that was altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation.

(23) Obligations received on amalgamations — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more corporations (each of which is in this subsection referred to as a "predecessor corporation") to form one corporate entity (in this subsection referred to as the "new corporation") and a taxpayer has acquired a capital property that was a bond, debenture, note, mortgage, hypothecary claim or other similar obligation of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new obligation") as sole consideration for the disposition on the amalgamation of a bond, debenture, note, mortgage, hypothecary claim or other similar obligation respectively of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old obligation") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the amalgamation, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new obligation,

(a) the property that was the old obligation shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the amalgamation but to have been altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation and to have continued in existence in the form of the new obligation; and

(b) the property that is the new obligation shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer because of the amalgamation but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old obligation that was altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation.

History: The opening words of subsec. 26(23) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 232(2), to add "hypothecary claim" (in two places), in force June 14, 2001. The opening words formerly read:

(24) Convertible properties — Where there has been an exchange to which subsection 51(1) of the amended Act applies on which a taxpayer has acquired shares of one class of the capital stock of a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares") in exchange for a share, bond, debenture or note of the corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old property") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the time of the exchange, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and, where the exchange occurred after May 6, 1974, for the purposes of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new shares,

(a) the property that was the old property shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been altered, in form only, because of the exchange and to have continued in existence in the form of the new shares; and

(b) the property that is the new shares shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old property that was altered, in form only, because of the exchange.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-146R3: Shares entitling shareholders to choose taxable or other kinds of dividends.

(25) Bond conversion — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been an exchange to which section 51.1 of the amended Act applies on which a taxpayer has acquired a bond of a debtor (in this subsection referred to as the "new bond") in exchange for another bond of the same debtor (in this subsection referred to as the "old bond") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the exchange, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new bond,

(a) the property that was the old bond shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been altered, in form only, because of the exchange and to have continued in existence in the form of the new bond; and

(b) the property that is the new bond shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old bond that was altered, in form only, because of the exchange.

(26) Share for share exchange — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been an exchange to which subsection 85.1(1) of the amended Act applies on which a taxpayer has acquired shares of any particular class of the capital stock of a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares") in exchange for shares of any particular class of the capital stock of another corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old shares") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the exchange, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new shares,

(a) the property that was the old shares shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been altered, in form only, because of the exchange and to have continued in existence in the form of the new shares; and

(b) the property that is the new shares shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old shares that were altered, in form only, because of the exchange.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-450R: Share for share exchange.

(27) Reorganization of capital — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been a reorganization of the capital of a corporation to which section 86 of the amended Act applies on which a taxpayer has acquired shares of a particular class of the capital stock of the corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares") as the sole consideration for the disposition on the reorganization of shares of another class of the capital stock of the corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old shares") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the reorganization and the cost to the taxpayer of the new shares was determined otherwise than because of subsection 86(2) of the amended Act, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new shares,

(a) the property that was the old shares shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the reorganization but to have been altered, in form only, because of the reorganization and to have continued in existence in the form of the new shares; and

(b) the property that is the new shares shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer by virtue of the reorganization but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old shares that were altered, in form only, because of the reorganization.

Advance Tax Rulings: ATR-22R: Estate freeze using share exchange.

(28) Idem — Where a taxpayer acquired a property (in this subsection referred to as the "first property") in circumstances to which any of subsections (5) and (21) to (27) applied and subsequently acquires, in exchange for or in consideration for the disposition of the first property, another property in circumstances to which any of subsections (21) to (27) would apply if the taxpayer had owned the first property on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the time of the subsequent acquisition, for the purposes of applying subsections (21) to (27) in respect of that subsequent acquisition, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have owned the first property on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the time of the subsequent acquisition.

History: Subsec. 26(28) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 200, applicable to acquisitions of property occurring after July 13, 1990, except that, where the taxpayer so elected by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing either before 1993 or in the taxpayer's return of income under Part I of the Act for the taxation year in which the taxpayer disposed of the property, the subsec. applies to acquisitions occurring after May 6, 1974 and before July 14, 1990 with respect to property that was owned by the taxpayer on July 13, 1990.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-450R: Share for share exchange.

(29) Effect of election under subsection 110.6(19) — Where subsection 110.6(19) of the amended Act applies to a particular property, for the purposes of determining the cost and the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of any property at any time after February 22, 1994, the particular property shall be deemed not to have been owned by any taxpayer on December 31, 1971.

Related Provisions: ITAR 26(30) — Disposition by non-resident of taxable Canadian property.

History: Subsec. 26(29) added by 1995, c. 3, s. 57, in force March 26, 1995.

(30) Additions to taxable Canadian property — Subsections (1.1) to (29) do not apply to a disposition by a non-resident person of a property

(a) that the person last acquired before April 27, 1995;

(b) that would not be a taxable Canadian property immediately before the disposition if section 115 of the amended Act were read as it applied to dispositions that occurred on April 26, 1995; and

(c) that would be a taxable Canadian property immediately before the disposition if section 115 of the amended Act were read as it applied to dispositions that occurred on January 1, 1996.

Related Provisions: ITA 40(9) — Gains limited to those accruing after April 1995.

History: Subsec. 26(30) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 249, applicable to dispositions that occur after October 1, 1996. Subsec. 26(30) formerly read:

(30) Subsections (1.1) to (29) do not apply to a disposition by a non-resident person of a taxable Canadian property that would not be a taxable Canadian property immediately before the disposition if section 115 of the amended Act were read as it applied to dispositions that occurred on April 26, 1995.

Subsec. 26(30) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 249(3), applicable to dispositions that occur after April 26, 1995.

27, 28. [Repealed under former Act]

29. (1) Deduction from income of petroleum or natural gas corporation — A corporation whose principal business is production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(a) the total of such of the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by it on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada as were incurred during the calendar years 1949 to 1952, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a previous taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9), (10) and (25) of this section and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act.

Related Provisions: ITA 87(1.2) — New corporation deemed continuation of predecessor; ITAR 29(31) — Multiple deductions.

History: Para. 29(1)(b) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(1), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That para. formerly read:

(b) of that total, an amount that would be equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9), (10) and (25) of this section, sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952.

(2) Deduction from income of mining corporation — A corporation whose principal business is mining or exploring for minerals may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(a) the total of such of the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by it in searching for minerals in Canada as were incurred during 1952, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a preceding taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9), (10) and (25) of this section and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act, if the corporation has filed certified statements of those expenses and has satisfied the Minister that it has been actively engaged in prospecting and exploring for minerals in Canada by means of qualified persons and has incurred the expenses for those purposes.

History: Para. 29(2)(b) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(2), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That para. formerly read:

(b) of that total, an amount that would be equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9), (10) and (25) of this section, sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952,

(3) Deduction from income of petroleum or natural gas corporation or mining corporation — A corporation whose principal business is

(a) production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas, or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas, or

(b) mining or exploring for minerals,

may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(c) the total of such of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by it on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by it in searching for minerals in Canada, as were incurred after 1952 and before April 11, 1962, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a previous taxation year, and

(d) of that total, an amount equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (1), (2), (9), (10) and (25) of this section and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act.

Related Provisions: ITAR 29(31) — Multiple deductions.

History: Para. 29(3)(d) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(3), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That para. formerly read:

(d) of that total, an amount that would be equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (1), (2), (9), (10) and (25) of this section, sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952.

(4) Deduction from income of petroleum corporation, etc. — A corporation whose principal business is

(a) production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas, or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas,

(b) mining or exploring for minerals,

(c) processing mineral ores for the purpose of recovering metals therefrom,

(d) a combination of

(i) processing mineral ores for the purpose of recovering metals therefrom, and

(ii) processing metals recovered from the ores so processed,

(e) fabricating metals, or

(f) operating a pipeline for the transmission of oil or natural gas, may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(g) the total of such of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by it on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by it on searching for minerals in Canada,

as were incurred after April 10, 1962 and before 1972, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a previous taxation year, and

(h) of that total, an amount equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this subsection or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsection 66(2) and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act.

Related Provisions: ITAR 29(31) — Multiple deductions.

History: Para. 29(4)(h) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(4), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That para. formerly read:

(h) of that total, an amount that would be equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this subsection or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsection 66(2) and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income Tax Act, Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952.

(5) Application of para. (4)(g) — In applying paragraph 4(g) to a corporation described in paragraph (4)(f), the reference in paragraph (4)(g) to "April 10, 1962" shall be read as a reference to "June 13, 1963".

(6), (7), (8) [Repealed]

History: Subsecs. 29(6) to (8) repealed by 1997, c. 25, s. 73, applicable to renunciations made

(a) after 2006, in respect of a payment or loan received by a joint exploration corporation before March 6, 1996;

(b) after 2006, in respect of a payment or loan received by a joint exploration corporation after March 5, 1996 under an agreement in writing made

(i) by the corporation before March 6, 1996, or

(ii) by another corporation before March 6, 1996, where

(A) the other corporation controlled the corporation at the time the agreement was made, or

(B) the other corporation undertook, at the time the agreement was made, to form the corporation; and

(c) after March 5, 1996, in any other case.

Subsecs. (6) to (8) formerly read:

(6) Joint exploration corporation may renounce expenses — A joint exploration corporation may, in any particular taxation year or within 6 months after the end of that year, elect in prescribed form to renounce in favour of another corporation described in subsection (4) an agreed portion of the total of such of

(a) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by the joint exploration corporation on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(b) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by the joint exploration corporation in searching for minerals in Canada, as were incurred by the joint exploration corporation during a period after 1956 and before April 11, 1962 throughout which the other corporation was a shareholder corporation, to the extent that the total of those expenses exceeds any amount deductible under subsection (3) in respect thereof by the joint exploration corporation in computing its income for any taxation year preceding the particular year, and on the election the agreed portion

(c) shall be deemed, for the purposes of subsection (4) of this section and sections 66, 66.1 and 66.2 of the amended Act, to be expenses described in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this subsection incurred by the other corporation during its taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends, and

(d) shall be subtracted from the total described in paragraph (3)(c) in determining the amount deductible by the joint exploration corporation under subsection (3) in computing its income.

(7) Idem — A joint exploration corporation may, in any particular taxation year or within 6 months from the end of that year, elect in prescribed form to renounce in favour of another corporation described in subsection (4) an agreed portion of the total of such of

(a) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by the joint exploration corporation on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(b) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by the joint exploration corporation in searching for minerals in Canada,

as were incurred by the joint exploration corporation during a period after April 10, 1962 and before 1972 throughout which the other corporation was a shareholder corporation, to the extent that the total of those expenses exceeds any amount deductible under subsection (4) in respect thereof by the joint exploration corporation in computing its income for any taxation year preceding the particular year, and on the election the agreed portion

(c) shall be deemed, for the purposes of subsection (4) of this section and sections 66, 66.1 and 66.2 of the amended Act, to be expenses described in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this subsection incurred by the other corporation during its taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends, and

(d) shall be subtracted from the total described in paragraph (4)(g) in determining the amount deductible by the joint exploration corporation under subsection (4) in computing its income.

(8) Definitions — For the purposes of subsections (6) and (7),

"agreed portion" in respect of a corporation that was a shareholder corporation of a joint exploration corporation means such amount as is agreed on between the joint exploration corporation and the other corporation not exceeding

(a) the payments referred to in paragraph (c) of the definition "shareholder corporation" in this subsection made by the other corporation to the joint exploration corporation during the period it was a shareholder corporation in respect of the expenses incurred by the joint exploration corporation referred to in paragraphs (6)(a) and (b) or (7)(a) and (b), as the case may be,

minus

(b) the total of the amounts, if any, previously renounced by the joint exploration corporation under subsection (6) or (7), as the case may be, in favour of the other corporation;

"joint exploration corporation" means a corporation

(a) whose principal business is of a class described in paragraph (3)(a) or (b), and

(b) that has not at any time since its incorporation had more than 10 shareholders (not including any individual holding a share for the sole purpose of qualifying as a director);

a "shareholder corporation" of a joint exploration corporation means a corporation that for the period in respect of which the expression is being applied

(a) was a shareholder of the joint exploration corporation,

(b) was a corporation whose principal business was of a class described in subsection (4), and

(c) made payments to the joint exploration corporation in respect of the expenses incurred by the joint exploration corporation referred to in paragraphs (6)(a) and (b) or (7)(a) and (b), as the case may be.

(9) Deduction from income from businesses of associations, etc. — There may be deducted in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year from the businesses of all associations, partnerships or syndicates formed for the purpose of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas and of which the taxpayer was a member or partner, the lesser of

(a) the total of the taxpayer's share of such of the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by all those associations, partnerships or syndicates while the taxpayer was a member or partner thereof, on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada as were incurred after 1948 and before April 11, 1962, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount equal to the taxpayer's income from the businesses of all those associations, partnerships or syndicates for the taxation year, computed before making any deduction under this section or section 65, 66, or 66.1 of the amended Act.

(10) Idem — There may be deducted in computing the income of a taxpayer for the taxation year from the businesses of all associations, partnerships or syndicates formed for the purpose of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas and of which the taxpayer was a member or partner, the lesser of

(a) the total of the taxpayer's share of such of the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses incurred by all those associations, partnerships or syndicates while the taxpayer was a member or partner thereof, on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada as were incurred after April 10, 1962 and before 1972, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for a previous taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount equal to the taxpayer's income from the businesses of all those associations, partnerships or syndicates for the taxation year computed before making any deduction under this section or section 65, 66, or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deduction allowed for the year under subsection (9) of this section.

Related Provisions: 127.52(1)(e) — Limitation on deduction for AMT purposes.

(11) Deduction from income of corporation — A corporation, other than a corporation described in subsection (4), may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(a) the total of such of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by it on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by it in searching for minerals in Canada,

as were incurred after April 10, 1962 and before 1972, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a preceding taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount that would be equal to the total of

(i) its income for the taxation year from operating an oil or gas well in Canada in which the corporation has an interest,

(ii) its income for the taxation year from royalties in respect of an oil or gas well in Canada,

(iii) any amount included in computing its income for the taxation year because of subsection (17), and

(iv) the amount, if any, included under paragraph 59(3.2)(b) or (c) of the amended Act in computing its income for the year,

if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9) and (10) of this section and subsection 66(2) of the amended Act.

History: Subpara. 29(11)(b)(iv) substituted applicable to 1985 et seq., and that portion of 29(11)(b) following subpara. (iv) substituted applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987, by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsecs. 201(5), (6). Those portions formerly read:

(iv) the total described in clause 66(3)(b)(ii)(C) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read in its application to the 1984 and preceding taxation years in respect of the corporation for the year, if no deduction were allowed under this section, section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9) and (10) of this section, subsection 66(2) of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952.

(12) Deduction by individual of exploration expenses — There may be deducted, in computing an individual's income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(a) the total of such of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by the individual on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the individual's share of the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses incurred by all associations, partnerships or syndicates described in subsection (9), while the individual was a member or partner thereof, on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada,

as were incurred after April 10, 1962 and before 1972, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing the individual's income for a preceding taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount that would be equal to the total of

(i) the individual's income for the taxation year from a business that consisted of the operation of an oil or gas well in Canada in which the individual had an interest,

(ii) the individual's income for the taxation year from royalties in respect of an oil or gas well in Canada,

(iii) any amount included in computing the individual's income for the taxation year because of subsection (17), and

(iv) the amount, if any, included under paragraph 59(3.2)(b) or (c) of the amended Act in computing the individual's income for the year,

if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9) and (10) of this section.

Related Provisions: 127.52(1)(e) — Limitation on deduction for AMT purposes.

History: Subpara. 29(12)(b)(iv) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(7), applicable to 1985 et seq. That subpara. formerly read:

(iv) the total described in clause 66(3)(b)(ii)(C) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read in its application to the 1984 and preceding taxation years in respect of an individual for the year,

(13) Limitation re payments for exploration and drilling rights — In computing a deduction under subsection (1), (3) or (9), no amount shall be included in respect of a payment for or in respect of a right, licence or privilege to explore for, drill for or take petroleum or natural gas, acquired before April 11, 1962, other than an annual payment not exceeding $1 per acre.

(14) Exploration and drilling rights; payments deductible — Where an association, partnership or syndicate described in subsection (9) or a corporation or individual has, after April 10, 1962 and before 1972, acquired under an agreement or other contract or arrangement a right, licence or privilege to explore for, drill for or take in Canada petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons (except coal) under which agreement, contract or arrangement there was not acquired any other right to, over or in respect of the land in respect of which such right, licence or privilege was so acquired except the right

(a) to explore for, drill for or take materials and substances (whether liquid or solid and whether hydrocarbons or not) produced in association with the petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons (except coal) or found in any water contained in an oil or gas reservoir, or

(b) to enter on, use and occupy as much of the land as is necessary for the purpose of exploiting the right, licence or privilege, an amount paid in respect of the acquisition thereof that was paid

(c) before 1972, shall, for the purposes of subsections (4), (7), (10), (11) and (12), be deemed to be a drilling or exploration expense on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada incurred at the time of its payment,

(d) after 1971 and before May 7, 1974, shall, for the purposes of the amended Act, be deemed to be Canadian exploration and development expenses (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66(15) of the amended Act) incurred at the time of its payment, and

(e) after May 6, 1974, shall, for the purposes of the amended Act, be deemed to be a Canadian development expense (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66.2(5)(a) of the amended Act) incurred at the time of its payment.

(15) Idem — In applying subsection (14) for the purposes of subsection (7), the expression "after April 10, 1962 and before 1972" in subsection (14) shall be read as "after April 10, 1962 and before April 27, 1965".

(16) Receipts for exploration or drilling rights included in income — Where a right, licence or privilege to explore for, drill for or take in Canada petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons (except coal) was disposed of after April 10, 1962 and before October 23, 1968

(a) by a corporation described in subsection (4),

(b) by a corporation, other than a corporation described in subsection (4), that was at the time of acquisition of the right, licence or privilege a corporation described in subsection (4), or

(c) by an association, partnership or syndicate described in subsection (9), any amount received by the corporation, association, partnership or syndicate as consideration for the disposition thereof shall be included in computing its income for its fiscal period in which the amount was received, unless the corporation, association, partnership or syndicate

(d) acquired the right, licence or privilege by inheritance or bequest, or

(e) acquired the right, licence or privilege before April 11, 1962 and disposed of it before November 9, 1962.

(17) Idem — Where a right, licence or privilege to explore for, drill for or take in Canada petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons (except coal) that was acquired after April 10, 1962 and before 1972 by an individual or a corporation other than a corporation described in subsection (4), was subsequently disposed of before October 23, 1968, any amount received by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition thereof shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year in which the amount was received, unless the right, licence or privilege was acquired by the taxpayer by inheritance or bequest.

(18) Idem — Subsections (16) and (17) do not apply to any disposition by an association, partnership or syndicate described in subsection (9) or a corporation or an individual of any right, licence or privilege described in subsection (14) or (16) unless the right, licence or privilege was acquired by the association, partnership, syndicate or corporation or individual, as the case may be, under an agreement, contract or arrangement described in subsection (14).

(19) Idem — For the purposes of subsections (16) and (17),

(a) where an association, partnership or syndicate described in subsection (9) or a corporation or an individual has disposed of any interest in land that includes a right, licence or privilege described in subsection (14) that was acquired under an agreement, contract or arrangement described in that subsection, the proceeds of disposition of the interest shall be deemed to be proceeds of disposition of the right, licence or privilege; and

(b) where an association, partnership or syndicate described in subsection (9) or a corporation or an individual has acquired a right, licence or privilege described in subsection (14) under an agreement, contract or arrangement described in that subsection and subsequently disposes of any interest

(i) in such right, licence or privilege, or

(ii) in the production of wells situated on the land to which the right, licence or privilege relates, the proceeds of disposition of the interest shall be deemed to be proceeds of disposition of the right, licence or privilege.

(20) Idem — Subsections (11), (12) and (17) do not apply in computing the income for a taxation year of a taxpayer whose business includes trading or dealing in rights, licences or privileges to explore for, drill for or take in Canada petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons (except coal).

(21) Bonus payments — Notwithstanding subsection (13), where a corporation whose principal business is of the class described in paragraph (3)(a) or (b) or an association, partnership or syndicate formed for the purpose of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas has after 1952 paid an amount (other than a rental or royalty) to the government of Canada or a province for

(a) the right to explore for petroleum or natural gas on a specified parcel of land in Canada (which right is, for greater certainty, declared to include a right of the type commonly referred to as a "licence", "permit" or "reservation"), or

(b) a legal lease of the right to take or remove petroleum or natural gas from a specified parcel of land in Canada, and before April 11, 1962 acquired the rights in respect of which the amount was so paid and, before any well came into production on the land in reasonable commercial quantities, the corporation, association, partnership or syndicate surrendered all the rights so acquired (including, in respect of a right of the kind described in paragraph (a), all rights thereunder to any lease and all rights under any lease made thereunder) without receiving any consideration therefor or repayment of any part of the amount so paid, the amount so paid shall, for the purposes of subsections (3), (4), (7), (9) and (10) of this section, and for the purposes of subsections 66(1),(10) and (10.1) and the definitions "Canadian exploration and development expenses" in subsection 66(15) and "Canadian exploration expense" in subsection 66.1(6) of the amended Act, be deemed to have been a drilling or exploration expense on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada or a Canadian exploration expense described in paragraph (a) of the definition "Canadian exploration expense" in subsection 66.1(6) of the amended Act, as the case may be, incurred by the corporation, association, partnership or syndicate during the taxation year in which the rights were so surrendered.

(22) Idem — In applying the provisions of subsection (25) to determine the amount that may be deducted by a successor corporation in computing its income for a taxation year, where the predecessor corporation has paid an amount (other than a rental or royalty) to the government of Canada or a province for

(a) the right to explore for petroleum or natural gas on a specified parcel of land in Canada (which is, for greater certainty, declared to include a right of the type commonly referred to as a "licence", "permit" or "reservation"), or

(b) a legal lease of the right to take or remove petroleum or natural gas from a specified parcel of land in Canada,

if, before the predecessor corporation was entitled, by virtue of subsection (21), to any deduction in computing its income for a taxation year in respect of the amount so paid, the property of the predecessor corporation was acquired by the successor corporation before April 11, 1962 in the manner set out in subsection (25), and the successor corporation did, before any well came into production in reasonable commercial quantities on the land referred to in paragraph (a) or (b), surrender all the rights so acquired by the predecessor corporation (including in respect of a right of the kind described in paragraph (a), all rights thereunder to any lease and all rights under any lease made thereunder) without receiving any consideration therefor or payment of any part of the amount so paid by the predecessor corporation, the amount so paid by the predecessor corporation shall be added to the amount determined under paragraph 25(c).

(23) Expenses incurred for specified considerations not deductible — For the purposes of this section and section 53 of chapter 25 of the Statutes of Canada, 1949 (Second Session), it is declared that expenses incurred before 1972 by a corporation, association, partnership or syndicate on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada or in searching for minerals in Canada do not and never did include expenses so incurred by that corporation, association, partnership or syndicate under an agreement under which it undertook to incur those expenses in consideration for

(a) shares of the capital stock of a corporation that owned or controlled the mineral rights;

(b) an option to purchase shares of the capital stock of a corporation that owned or controlled the mineral rights; or

(c) a right to purchase shares of the capital stock of a corporation that was to be formed for the purpose of acquiring or controlling the mineral rights.

(24) Exception — Notwithstanding subsection (23), a corporation whose principal business is

(a) production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas, or

(b) mining or exploring for minerals,

may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(c) the total of such of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by it on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by it in searching for minerals in Canada,

as were incurred after 1953 and before 1972,

(iii) under an agreement under which it undertook to incur those expenses for a consideration mentioned in paragraph (23)(a), (b) or (c), and

(iv) to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a preceding taxation year, and

(d) of that total, an amount equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this subsection or subsection (4) or under section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsection 66(2) and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act, but where a corporation has incurred expenses in respect of which this subsection authorizes a deduction from income for a taxation year, no deduction in respect of those expenses may be made in computing the income of any other corporation or from the business of an association, partnership or syndicate for any taxation year.

Related Provisions: ITAR 29(25) — Successor rule.

History: Para. 29(24)(d) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(8), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That para. formerly read:

(d) of that total, an amount that would be equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this subsection or subsection (4) or section 65, 66, or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsection 66(2) and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952,

(25) Successor rule — Notwithstanding subsection (24) and subject to subsections 66.7(6) and (7) of the amended Act, where a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "successor") whose principal business is

(a) production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas, or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas, or

(b) mining or exploring for minerals,

has, at any time after 1954, acquired a particular Canadian resource property (whether by way of a purchase, amalgamation, merger, winding-up or otherwise) from another person whose principal business was a business described in paragraph (a) or (b), there may be deducted by the successor in computing its income for a taxation year an amount not exceeding the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined in respect of an original owner of the particular property that is the lesser of

(c) the total of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred before 1972 by the original owner on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred before 1972 by the original owner in searching for minerals in Canada, to the extent that those expenses

(iii) were not otherwise deducted in computing the income of the successor for the year, were not deducted in computing the income of the successor for any preceding taxation year and were not deductible by the original owner or deducted by any predecessor owner of the particular property in computing income for any taxation year, and

(iv) would, but for the provisions of any of this subsection and paragraphs (1)(b), (2)(b), (3)(d), (4)(h) and (24)(d), have been deductible in computing the income of the original owner or any predecessor owner of the particular property for the taxation year preceding the taxation year in which the particular property was acquired by the successor, and

(d) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the part of its income for the year that may reasonably be regarded as being attributable to

(A) the amount included in computing its income for the year under paragraph 59(3.2)(c) of the amended Act that can reasonably be regarded as being attributable to the disposition by it in the year or a preceding taxation year of any Canadian resource properties owned by the original owner and each predecessor owner of the particular property before the acquisition of the particular property by the successor to the extent that the proceeds of the disposition have not been included in determining an amount under this clause or clause 66.7(1)(b)(i)(A) or (3)(b)(i)(A)

or paragraph 66.7(10)(g) of the amended Act for a preceding taxation year, or

(B) production from the particular property, computed as if no deduction were allowed under this section or subdivision e of Division B of Part I of the amended Act,

exceeds

(ii) the total of all other amounts deducted under this subsection and subdivision e of Division B of Part I of the amended Act for the year that can reasonably be regarded as attributable to the part of its income for the year described in subparagraph (i) in respect of the particular property.

Related Provisions: ITA 66(15) — "predecessor owner"; ITA 66.6 — No application on acquisition from tax-exempt person; ITA 66.7 — Successor rules; ITA 66.7(2.3) — Successor of foreign resource expense — income deemed not attributable to production from Canadian resource property.

History: Subpara. 29(25)(c)(iii) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(9), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That subpara. formerly read:

(iii) were not deducted by the successor in computing its income for a preceding taxation year, and were not deductible by the original owner or deducted by any predecessor owner of the particular property in computing income for any taxation year, and

Forms: T2010: Election to deduct resource expenses upon acquisition of resource property by a corporation.

(25.1) Definitions — For the purposes of subsection (25), the terms "Canadian resource property", "original owner", "predecessor owner" and "production" have the same meanings assigned by subsection 66(15) of the amended Act.

(26) Processing or fabricating corporation — A reference in subsection (3), (21), (24) or (25) to a corporation whose principal business is mining or exploring for minerals shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to include a reference to a corporation whose principal business is

(a) processing mineral ores for the purpose of recovering metals therefrom,

(b) a combination of

(i) processing mineral ores for the purpose of recovering metals therefrom, and

(ii) processing metals recovered from the ores so processed, or

(c) fabricating metals,

but in applying the provisions of this section to any such corporation the references, respectively, in subsections (3), (21), (24) and (25) to the years 1952, 1953 and 1954 shall be read as a reference in each case to the year 1956.

(27) Meaning of "drilling and exploration expenses" — For the purposes of this section, "drilling and exploration expenses" incurred on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada include expenses incurred on or in respect of

(a) drilling or converting a well for the disposal of waste liquids from a petroleum or natural gas well in Canada;

(b) drilling for water or gas for injection into a petroleum or natural gas formation in Canada; and

(c) drilling or converting a well for the injection of water or gas to assist in the recovery of petroleum or natural gas from another well in Canada.

(28) Deduction from expenses — For the purposes of this section, there shall be deducted in computing

(a) drilling and exploration expenses incurred by a taxpayer on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(b) prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by a taxpayer in searching for minerals in Canada, any amount paid to the taxpayer before 1972 under the Northern Mineral Exploration Assistance Regulations made under an appropriation Act that provides for payments in respect of the Northern Mineral Grants Program, and there shall be included in computing such expenses any amount, except an amount in respect of interest, paid by the taxpayer before 1972 under those Regulations to Her Majesty in right of Canada.

(29) [Repealed under former Act]

(30) Inclusion in "drilling and exploration expenses" — For the purposes of this section, "drilling and exploration expenses" incurred on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada include an annual payment made for the preservation of a right, licence or privilege described in subsection (14).

(31) General limitation — Where a corporation, association, partnership or syndicate has incurred expenses the deduction of which from income is authorized under more than one provision of this section, it is not entitled to make the deduction under more than one provision but is entitled to select the provision under which to make the deduction.

(32) Deduction for provincial tax — Where a corporation whose principal business is production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas could have deducted an amount in respect of expenditures of the corporation in connection with exploration or drilling for petroleum or natural gas incurred in a preceding taxation year from the tax payable under a provincial statute for the 1952 or a subsequent taxation year if the provincial statute were applicable to that year, the corporation may deduct from the tax otherwise payable by it under Part I of the amended Act for the year an amount not exceeding the amount that would have been so deductible.

(33) Definition of "provincial statute" — For the purposes of subsection (32), "provincial statute" means a statute imposing a tax on the incomes of corporations enacted by the legislature of a province in 1949 and, for the purpose of that subsection, an amount deductible thereunder for one year shall, for the purpose of computing the deduction for a subsequent year, be deemed to have been deductible under the provincial statute.

(34) Expenses deductible under certain enactments deemed not otherwise deductible — Where expenses are or have been, under this section, section 8 of the Income War Tax Act, section 16 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1947, section 16 of chapter 53 of the Statutes of Canada, 1948, section 53 of chapter 25 of the Statutes of Canada, 1949 (Second Session) or section 83A of the former Act, deductible from or in computing a taxpayer's income, or where any amount is or has been deductible in respect of expenses under any of those provisions from taxes otherwise payable, it is declared that no amount in respect of the same expenses is or has been deductible under any other authority in computing the income or from the income of that taxpayer or any other taxpayer for any taxation year.

(2), (3) [Repealed under former Act]

(4) Idem — In applying the provisions of subsection 29(25) to determine the amount that may be deducted by the successor or second successor corporation, as the case may be, in computing its income under Part I of the amended Act for a taxation year, where a predecessor corporation has paid an amount (other than a rental or royalty) to the government of Canada or a province for

(a) the right to explore for petroleum or natural gas on a specified parcel of land in Canada (which right is, for greater certainty, declared to include a right of the type commonly referred to as a "licence", "permit" or "reservation"), or

(b) a legal lease of the right to take or remove petroleum or natural gas from a specified parcel of land in Canada, and before April 11, 1962 acquired the rights in respect of which the amount was so paid, if, before the predecessor corporation was entitled because of subsection 29(21) to any deduction in computing its income for a taxation year in respect of the amount so paid, the property of the predecessor corporation was acquired by the successor or second successor corporation, as the case may be, and at any time, before any well came into production in reasonable commercial quantities on the land referred to in paragraph (a) or (b), the successor or second successor corporation, as the case may be, surrendered all the rights so acquired by the predecessor corporation (including, in respect of a right of the kind described in paragraph (a), all rights thereunder to any lease and all rights under any lease made thereunder) without receiving any consideration therefor or payment of any part of the amount so paid by the predecessor corporation, the amount so paid by the predecessor corporation shall be added at that time to the amount determined under subparagraph 29(25)(c)(i).

(5), (6) [Repealed under former Act]

35. (1) Foreign affiliates — Section 26 does not apply in determining for the purposes of section 91 of the amended Act the amount of any taxable capital gain or allowable capital loss of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer.

(2) Idem — Any corporation that was a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer on January 1, 1972 shall be deemed, for the purposes of subdivision i of Division B of Part I of the amended Act, to have become a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer on that day.

(3) [Repealed under former Act]

(4) Idem — Any corporation that was deemed to be a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer at any time prior to May 7, 1974 because of an election made by the taxpayer in accordance with subparagraph 95(1)(b)(iv) of the amended Act, as it read before being amended by chapter 26 of the Statutes of Canada, 1974-75-76, shall be deemed to have been a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer at that time.

37–39. [Repealed under former Act]

40. (1) Payments out of pension funds, etc. — In the case of

(a) a single payment

(i) out of or under a superannuation or pension fund or plan

(A) on the death, withdrawal or retirement from employment of an employee or former employee,

(B) on the winding-up of the fund or plan in full satisfaction of all rights of the payee in or under the fund or plan, or

(C) to which the payee is entitled because of an amendment to the plan although the payee continues to be an employee to whom the plan applies,

(ii) upon retirement of an employee in recognition of long service and not made out of or under a superannuation fund or plan,

(iii) under an employees profit sharing plan in full satisfaction of all rights of the payee in or under the plan, to the extent that the amount thereof would otherwise be included in computing the payee's income for the year in which the payment was received, or

(iv) under a deferred profit sharing plan on the death, withdrawal or retirement from employment of an employee or former employee, to the extent that the amount thereof would otherwise be included in computing the payee's income for the year in which the payment was received,

(b) a payment or payments made by an employer to an employee or former employee on or after retirement in respect of loss of office or employment, if made in the year of retirement or within one year after that year, or

(c) a payment or payments made as a death benefit, if made in the year of death or within one year after that year, the payment or payments made in a taxation year ending after 1971 and before 1974 may, at the option of the taxpayer by whom it is or they are received, be deemed not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of Part I of the amended Act, in which case the taxpayer shall pay, in addition to any other tax payable for the year, a tax on the payment or total of the payments equal to the proportion thereof that

(d) the total of the taxes otherwise payable by the employee under that Part for the 3 years immediately preceding the taxation year (before making any deduction under section 120, 121 or 126 or subsection 127(3) of the amended Act),

is of

(e) the total of the employee's incomes for those 3 years.

(2) Employee not resident in Canada — Where a taxpayer has elected that a payment or payments of one of the classes described in paragraphs (1)(a) to (c) in respect of an employee or former employee who was not resident in Canada throughout the whole of the 3 years referred to in paragraph (1)(e) shall be deemed not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of Part I of the amended Act, the tax payable under this section is that proportion of the amount on which the tax is payable that

(a) the total of the taxes that would have been payable by the employee under that Part for the 3 years referred to in paragraph (1)(e) (before making any deduction under section 120, 121 or 126 or subsection 127(3) of the amended Act) if the employee had been resident in Canada throughout those years and the employee's incomes for those years had been from sources in Canada,

(b) the total of the employee's incomes for those 3 years, and, in such a case, the election is not valid unless the taxpayer has filed with the election, a return of the employee's incomes for each of the 3 years in the same form and containing the same information as the return that the employee, or the employee's legal representative, would have been required to file under that Part if the employee had been resident in Canada in those years.

(3) Determination of amount of payment — In determining the amount of any payment or payments made in a taxation year out of or under a superannuation or pension fund or plan, under a deferred profit sharing plan or as a retiring allowance that is deemed, for the purposes of this section, not to be income of the taxpayer by whom it is or they are received, there shall be subtracted from the amount of the payment or payments so made

(a) the total of all amounts deductible under paragraph 60(j) of the amended Act in computing the taxpayer's income for that year; and

(b) any amount deductible under paragraph 60(m) of the amended Act because of that payment or those payments in computing the taxpayer's income for that year.

(4) Idem — In determining the amount of any payment or payments made in a taxation year as a death benefit that is deemed, for the purpose of this section, not to be income of the taxpayer by whom it is or they are received, there shall be subtracted from the amount of the payment or payments so made any amount deductible under paragraph 60(m) of the amended Act because of that payment or those payments in computing the taxpayer's income for that year.

(5) Maximum amount for election — For the purpose of determining the amount of any payment or payments of one or more of the classes described in subsection (1) made in a taxation year that may be deemed, for the purposes of this section, not to be income of the taxpayer by whom it is or they are received, the maximum amount in respect of which an election may be made by the taxpayer under subsection (1) for the taxation year in respect of such payment or payments is,

(a) in the case of a payment or payments of a class described in subsection (1) made to the taxpayer on the death of an employee or former employee in respect of whom the payment or payments are made, the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, minus any amount subtracted therefrom under subsection (3) or (4);

(b) in the case of one or more single payments of a class described in subparagraph (1)(a)(i), (iii) or (iv), other than a payment described in paragraph (a) of this subsection, the lesser of

(i) the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, minus any amount subtracted therefrom under subsection (3), and

(ii) the amount by which

(A) the product obtained by multiplying $1,500 by the number of consecutive 12 month periods included in the period throughout which the taxpayer was a member of any plan or plans described in subparagraph (1)(a)(i), (iii) or (iv) (in this subsection referred to as a "retirement plan"),

(I) out of or under which a payment was made to the taxpayer in the taxation year or a preceding taxation year ending after April 26, 1965, and

(II) to which an employer of the taxpayer has made a contribution on behalf of the taxpayer,

exceeds

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that, because of a payment to the taxpayer after April 26, 1965,

(I) out of or under a retirement plan to which the employer referred to in subclause (A)(II) made a contribution on behalf of the taxpayer, or

(II) by the employer referred to in subclause (A)(II), was deemed not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of Part I of the amended Act for a preceding taxation year because of an election made by the taxpayer under subsection (1); and

(c) in the case of a payment or payments of the class described in subparagraph (1)(a)(ii) or paragraph (1)(b), other than a payment described in paragraph (a) or (b) of this subsection, the lesser of

(i) the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, minus any amount subtracted therefrom pursuant to subsection (3), and

(ii) the amount by which

(A) the product obtained by multiplying $1,000 by the number of years during which the taxpayer was an employee of the employer who made the payment

exceeds

(B) the total of

(I) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that, because of a payment to the taxpayer after April 26, 1965 by an employer referred to in clause (A) or a payment to the taxpayer after that date out of or under a retirement plan to which such an employer made a contribution on behalf of the taxpayer, was deemed not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of Part I of the amended Act for a preceding taxation year by reason of an election made by the taxpayer under subsection (1), and

(II) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that, because of a payment to the taxpayer after April 26, 1965 out of or under a retirement plan to which an employer referred to in clause (A) made a contribution on behalf of the taxpayer, may be deemed, by subsection (1), not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of that Part for the taxation year.

(6) Idem — For the purpose of subsection (5),

(a) where all or substantially all of the property used in carrying on the business of a person who was an employer of an employee (in this subsection referred to as the "former employer")

(i) has been purchased by a person who, because of the purchase, or

(ii) has been acquired by bequest or inheritance, or because of an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 85I of the former Act), by a person who, by reason of the acquisition, became an employer of the employee, and who subsequently made a payment of a class described in paragraph (5)(c) in respect of the employee or former employee, the employee or former employee shall be deemed to have been an employee of that employer throughout the period he or she was an employee of the former employer; and

(b) a taxpayer may, in computing the number of years during which the taxpayer was a member of a superannuation or pension fund or plan (in this subsection referred to as the "subsequent plan"), include the number of years during which the taxpayer was a member of another plan (in this subsection referred to as the "former plan") if the taxpayer had received an amount out of or under the former plan all or part of which amount was deductible under paragraph 60(j) of the amended Act in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year in which the amount was received, because of the fact that all or part of the amount, as the case may be, was paid by the taxpayer to or under the subsequent plan as described in clause 60(j)(i)(A) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read in its application to the 1978 and preceding taxation years.

(7) Limitation — This section applies in respect of any payment or payments described in subparagraph (1)(a)(i) or (iv) made in a taxation year ending after 1973, except that the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, shall be deemed to be the lesser of the amount thereof otherwise determined and the total of the amounts that the taxpayer would have received out of or under the plan described in subparagraph (1)(a)(i) or (iv), as the case may be, if

(a) the taxpayer had withdrawn from the plan on January 1, 1972;

(b) there had been no change in the terms and conditions of the plan after June 18, 1971 and before January 2, 1972; and

(c) any term or condition of the plan that would, in the event that the taxpayer had withdrawn from the plan on January 1, 1972, have reduced the amount of any payment or payments that would, if the taxpayer remained a member of the plan for a specified period of time after December 31, 1971, have been made to the taxpayer in respect of years ending before 1972 were not a term or condition of the plan.

(8) Application rule — For the purposes of paragraphs (1)(d) and (2)(a), there may be deducted from the total referred to in those paragraphs 9% of the portion of that total that is attributable to the 1974, 1975 or 1976 taxation year.

50. (1) Status of certain corporations — For the purposes of the amended Act, a corporation that was, throughout that portion of its 1972 taxation year that is in 1972, a private corporation, a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a public corporation shall be deemed to have been throughout that taxation year a private corporation, a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a public corporation, as the case may be.

(2) Election to be public corporation — For the purposes of the definition "public corporation" in subsection 89(1) of the amended Act, where at any particular time before 1973 a corporation elected in the manner referred to in subparagraph (b)(i) of that definition to be a public corporation and at any time after 1971 and before the time of the election the corporation complied with the conditions referred to in that subparagraph, the corporation shall,

(a) at such time after 1971 and before the particular time as is specified in the election to be the effective date thereof, or

(b) where no time described in paragraph (a) is specified in the election to be the effective date thereof, at the particular time, be deemed to have elected in the manner referred to in that subparagraph to be a public corporation and to have complied with the conditions referred to therein.

(3) Designation by Minister — For the purposes of the definition "public corporation" in subsection 89(1) of the amended Act, where at any particular time before March 22, 1972 the Minister, by notice in writing to a corporation, designated the corporation to be a public corporation or not to be a public corporation, as the case may be, and at the time of the designation the corporation complied with the conditions referred to in subparagraph (b)(i) or (c)(i) of that definition, as the case may be, the corporation shall, at such time as is specified by the Minister in the notice, be deemed

(a) to have been designated by the Minister, by notice in writing to the corporation, to be a public corporation or not to be a public corporation, as the case may be; and

(b) to have complied with the conditions referred to in subparagraph (b)(i) or (c)(i) of that definition, as the case may be.

51–56.1 [Repealed under former Act]

57. (1)–(8) [Repealed under former Act]

(9) Capital dividend account — In computing a specified personal corporation's capital dividend account at any time after the end of its 1972 taxation year, there shall be added to the total of the amounts described in paragraphs (a) and (b) of the definition "capital dividend account" in subsection 89(1) of the amended Act the total of its net capital gains (within the meaning assigned by subsection 51(3) of the Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of Chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, as it read before October 29, 1985) for its 1972 taxation year and that proportion of the total of its incomes for that year, other than

(a) any taxable capital gains of the corporation for the year from dispositions of property, and

(b) any amounts that were, because of subsection 57(3) of the Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, as it read before October 29, 1985 or under the provisions of subsection 67(1) of the former Act that applied because of subsection 57(12) of those Rules as it read before that date, required to be included in computing the income of the specified personal corporation for its 1972 taxation year, that the number of days in that portion of the 1972 taxation year that is in 1972 is of the number of days in the whole year.

Related Provisions: ITAR 69 (meaning of "Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72").

(10) [Repealed under former Act]

(11) Meaning of "specified personal corporation" — For the purposes of this section, a corporation is a specified personal corporation if

(a) part of its 1972 taxation year was before and part thereof after the beginning of 1972; and

(b) during the whole of the period beginning on the earlier of June 18, 1971 and the beginning of its 1972 taxation year and ending at the end of its 1972 taxation year, it was a personal corporation within the meaning assigned by section 68 of the former Act.

57.1 [Repealed under former Act]

58. (1) Credit unions — For the purpose of computing the income of a credit union for the 1972 and subsequent taxation years,

(a) property of the credit union that is a bond, debenture, mortgage or agreement of sale owned by it at the beginning of its 1972 taxation year shall be valued at its actual cost to the credit union,

(i) plus a reasonable amount in respect of the amortization of the amount by which the principal amount of the property at the time it was acquired by the credit union exceeds its actual cost to the credit union, or

(ii) minus a reasonable amount in respect of the amortization of the amount by which its actual cost to the credit union exceeds the principal amount of the property at the time it was acquired by the credit union;

(b) property of the credit union that is a debt owing to the credit union (other than property described in paragraph (a) or a debt that became a bad debt before its 1972 taxation year) acquired by it before the beginning of its 1972 taxation year shall be valued at any time at the amount thereof outstanding at that time;

(c) any depreciable property acquired by the credit union in a taxation year ending before 1972 shall be deemed to have been acquired by it on the last day of its 1971 taxation year at a capital cost equal to

(i) in the case of any building or automotive equipment owned by it on the last day of its 1971 taxation year, the amount, if any, by which the depreciable cost to the credit union of the building or equipment, as the case may be, exceeds the product obtained when the number of full taxation years in the period beginning on the first day of the taxation year following the taxation year in which the building or equipment, as the case may be, was acquired by it and ending with the last day of its 1971 taxation year is multiplied by, in the case of a building, 2½%, and in the case of equipment, 15%, of its depreciable cost (and for the purposes of this subparagraph, a capital improvement or capital addition to a building owned by a credit union shall be deemed not to be part of the building but to be a separate and distinct building acquired by it, if the cost to the credit union of the improvement or addition, as the case may be, exceeded $10,000),

(ii) in the case of any leasehold interest, the proportion of the capital cost thereof to the credit union (determined without regard to this subparagraph) that

(A) the number of months in the period commencing with the first day of the credit union's 1972 taxation year and ending with the day on which the leasehold interest expires

is of

(B) the number of months in the period beginning with the day on which the credit union acquired the leasehold interest and ending with the day on which the leasehold interest expires, and

(iii) in the case of any property (other than a building, automotive equipment or leasehold interest) acquired by the credit union after 1961, the amount, if any, by which the depreciable cost to the credit union of such property exceeds the product obtained when the number of full taxation years beginning with the first day of the taxation year following the taxation year in which the property was acquired by it and ending with the last day of its 1971 taxation year is multiplied by ½ the relevant percentage of the depreciable cost to the credit union of the property; and

(d) the undepreciated capital cost to the credit union as of the first day of its 1972 taxation year of depreciable property of a prescribed class acquired by it before that taxation year is the total of the amounts determined under paragraph (c) to be the capital costs to it as of that day of all property of that class.

(1.1) Exception — For the purpose of computing a capital gain from the disposition of depreciable property acquired by a credit union in a taxation year ending before 1972, the capital cost of the property shall be its capital cost determined without reference to paragraph (1)(c).

(2)–(3.1) [Repealed under former Act]

(3.2) Determination of maximum cumulative reserve at end of taxation year — Notwithstanding the definition "maximum cumulative reserve" in subsection 137(6) of the amended Act, for the purposes of section 137 of the amended Act a credit union's maximum cumulative reserve at the end of any particular year is the amount, if any, by which its maximum cumulative reserve at that time, determined under that definition without regard to this subsection, exceeds the lesser of

(a) its maximum cumulative reserve, determined under that definition without regard to this subsection, at the end of its 1971 taxation year, and

(b) the amount, if any, by which its 1971 reserve exceeds the total of the amounts deemed by subsection 58(2) of the Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, to have been deducted by it in computing its income for its 1971 taxation year.

Related Provisions: ITAR 69 (meaning of "Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72").

(3.3) Idem — Notwithstanding subsection (3.2), where at any time after May 6, 1974 there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more credit unions to form a new credit union, the maximum cumulative reserve of the new credit union shall be deemed to be the amount by which its maximum cumulative reserve, determined under the definition of that term in subsection 137(6) of the amended Act, exceeds the total of all amounts, if any, each of which is the lesser of the amounts referred to in paragraphs (3.2)(a) and (b) in respect of each of the predecessor corporations.

(3.4) Idem — Notwithstanding subsection (3.2), where a credit union (in this subsection referred to as the acquirer) has, at any time after May 6, 1974, acquired otherwise than by way of amalgamation all or substantially all of the assets of another credit union, the maximum cumulative reserve of the acquirer shall be the amount by which the acquirer's maximum cumulative reserve, determined under the definition of that term in subsection 137(6) of the amended Act, exceeds the total of

(a) the lesser of the amounts determined under paragraphs (3.2)(a) and (b) in respect of the acquirer, and

(b) the lesser of the amounts determined under paragraphs (3.2)(a) and (b) in respect of the other credit union.

(4), (4.1) [Repealed under former Act]

(5) Definitions — In this section,

"depreciable cost" to a credit union of any property means the actual cost to it of the property or the amount at which it is deemed by subsection 13(7) of the amended Act to have acquired the property, as the case may be;

"relevant percentage" in relation to a prescribed class of property is the percentage prescribed in respect of that class by any regulations made under paragraph 11(1)(a) of the former Act;

"1971 reserve" of a credit union means the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is

(a) the amount of any money of the credit union on hand at the beginning of its 1972 taxation year,

(b) an amount in respect of any property described in paragraph (1)(a) or (b), equal to the amount at which it is required by those paragraphs to be valued at the beginning of its 1972 taxation year,

(c) an amount in respect of depreciable property of a prescribed class owned by the credit union on the first day of its 1972 taxation year, equal to the amount determined under paragraph (1)(d) to be the undepreciated capital cost thereof to the credit union as of that day, or

(d) an amount in respect of any capital property (other than depreciable property) owned by the credit union at the beginning of its 1972 taxation year, equal to its cost to the credit union computed without reference to the provisions of section 26, exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is

(e) the amount of any debt owing by the credit union or of any other obligation of the credit union to pay an amount, that was outstanding at the beginning of its 1972 taxation year, excluding, for greater certainty, any share in the credit union of any member thereof, or

(f) the amount, as of the beginning of the credit union's 1972 taxation year, of any share in the credit union of any member thereof.

63–64.3 [Repealed under former Act]

65. [Repealed]

History: S. 65 repealed by 2005, c. 30, s. 19, applicable to months that end after 2004. The section formerly read:

65. (1) Part XI of amended Act — Where, at any particular time after June 18, 1971 and before July 1, 1972, a taxpayer described in section 205 of the amended Act has acquired a foreign property that was

(a) a share of the capital stock of a corporation that would be a mutual fund corporation if paragraph 131(8)(a) of the amended Act were read without reference to the words "that was a public corporation",

(b) a unit of a trust that would be a mutual fund trust if subsection 132(6) of the amended Act were read without reference to paragraph 132(6)(c), or

(c) an interest, as a beneficiary under a trust, in property held subject to the trust by a trust company incorporated under the laws of Canada or a province, if

(i) throughout the 1971 taxation year of the trust,

(A) all the property of the trust was held in trust for the benefit of not less than 20 beneficiaries, and

(I) not less than 20 of the beneficiaries were taxpayers described in paragraph 205(a) or (c) of the amended Act, or

(II) not less than 100 of the beneficiaries were taxpayers described in paragraph 205(b) of the amended Act,

(B) not less than 80% of all the property of the trust consisted of shares, bonds, mortgages, marketable securities or cash, and

(C) not more than 10% of all the property of the trust consisted of shares, bonds, mortgages or other securities of any one corporation or debtor other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province or a Canadian municipality,

(ii) not less than 95% of the income of the trust for its 1971 taxation year was derived from investments described in clause (i)(B),

(iii) the total value of all such interests owned by all beneficiaries mentioned in clause (i)(A) to which any one employer has made or may make contributions did not exceed, at any time in the 1971 taxation year of the trust, 25% of the value of all the property of the trust at that time, and

(iv) the total value of all such interests owned by all beneficiaries mentioned in subclause (i)(A)(II) to which any one taxpayer has paid or may pay premiums does not exceed, at any time in the 1971 taxation year of the trust, 25% of the value of all the property of the trust at that time, the property shall, to the extent that the cost to the taxpayer thereof does not exceed the amount, if any, by which the taxpayer's foreign investment limit exceeds the total of the costs to it of all foreign properties described in paragraphs (a) to (c) acquired by the taxpayer after June 18, 1971 and before the particular time, be deemed

(d) for the purposes of Part XI of the amended Act, to have been acquired before June 19, 1971 and not to have been acquired after June 18, 1971, and

(e) where the taxpayer was a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan, notwithstanding the definition "qualified investment" in subsection 146(1) of the amended Act, to have been a qualified investment for the purposes of section 146 of that Act.

(1.1) Idem — Where, at any particular time after October 13, 1971 and before July 1, 1972, a taxpayer to whom Part XI of the amended Act applies has acquired a foreign property that was a share of the capital stock of a corporation that would be an investment corporation if subparagraph 130(3)(a)(i) of the amended Act were read without reference to the words "that was a public corporation", for the purposes of subsection (1) the share so acquired shall be deemed to be a share described in paragraph (1)(a).

(2) Definition of "foreign investment limit" — In subsection (1), "foreign investment limit" of a taxpayer means the total of

(a) the taxpayer's income from property for its 1971 taxation year,

(b) where the taxpayer was, throughout its 1971 taxation year, a taxpayer described in paragraph 205(a) of the amended Act, all amounts each of which is such portion of any amount paid or contributed by any person to or under the plan in 1971 as was deductible in computing that person's income for the 1971 taxation year under paragraph 11(1)(g) or (h) of the former Act, or as would have been deductible in computing that income under paragraph 11(1)(i) of the former Act if that paragraph were read (except for the purposes of subparagraph 11(1)(i)(iii) of that Act) without reference to subparagraph 11(1)(i)(ii) of that Act,

(c) where the taxpayer was, throughout its 1971 taxation year, a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan, all amounts each of which is such portion of any premium paid in 1971 by the annuitant under the plan as was deductible under subsection 79B(5) of the former Act in computing the annuitant's income for the 1971 taxation year, and

(d) where the taxpayer was, throughout its 1971 taxation year, a trust governed by a deferred profit sharing plan, all amounts each of which is such portion of any amount paid by an employer to a trustee under the plan as was deductible under subsection 79C(7) of the former Act in computing the employer's income for the 1971 taxation year.

(3) Foreign property acquired by registered retirement savings plan — Where, at any particular time after 1971 and before July 1, 1974, a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan acquired a foreign property described in paragraph (1)(a) or (b) or a foreign property that would be described in paragraph (1)(c) if the references in that paragraph to the "1971 taxation year" of the trust were read as references to the "1972 and 1973 taxation years" of the trust, the property shall, to the extent that the cost to the trust thereof did not exceed the amount, if any, by which the trust's foreign reinvestment limit exceeded the total of the cost to it of all such foreign properties so acquired by it after 1971 and before the particular time, be deemed

(a) for the purposes of Part XI of the amended Act, to have been acquired before June 19, 1971 and not to have been acquired after June 18, 1971; and

(b) notwithstanding the definition "qualified investment" in subsection 146(1) of the amended Act, to have been a qualified investment for the purposes of section 146 of that Act.

(4) Definition of "foreign reinvestment limit" — In subsection (3), "foreign reinvestment limit" of a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan means such portion of the total of

(a) the trust's income from property for its 1972 and 1973 taxation years,

(b) all amounts each of which is such portion of any premium paid by the annuitant under the plan as was deductible under subsection 146(5) of the amended Act in computing the annuitant's income for the 1972 or 1973 taxation year,

(c) all amounts each of which is a capital gains dividend (within the meaning assigned by subsection 131(1) of the amended Act) received by the trust in its 1972 or 1973 taxation year, and

(d) 2 times the total of all amounts each of which is, because of subsection 104(21) of the amended Act, deemed to be a taxable capital gain of the trust for its 1972 or 1973 taxation year, as was, under the terms and conditions of the plan as fixed on or before June 18, 1971, required to be invested by the trust in foreign property described in paragraph (1)(a) or (b) or foreign property that would be described in paragraph (1)(c) if the references in that paragraph to the "1971 taxation year" of the trust were read as references to the "1971 and 1972 taxation years" of the trust.

(5) Shares of a mutual fund corporation received on amalgamation — Where, after May 25, 1976, there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more mutual fund corporations (each of which corporations is in this subsection referred to as a "predecessor corporation") to form one corporate entity (in this subsection referred to as the "new corporation"), and

(a) any shareholder that is a taxpayer described in any of paragraphs 205(a), (b) or (c) of the amended Act owned shares of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old shares") on June 18, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the amalgamation,

(b) any shares referred to in paragraph (a) were foreign property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 206(1) of the amended Act) immediately before the amalgamation, and

(c) no consideration was received by the shareholder for the disposition of the old shares on the amalgamation, other than shares of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares"),

notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purpose of subsection 206(2) of the amended Act, the taxpayer shall be deemed not to have acquired the new shares after June 18, 1971.

All that portion of subsec. 65(5) following para. (a) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 202, applicable to periods occurring after October 1985. That portion formerly read:

(b) any shares referred to in paragraph (a) were foreign property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 206(2) of the amended Act) immediately before the amalgamation, and

(c) no consideration was received by the shareholder for the disposition of the old shares on the amalgamation other than shares of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares"), notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 206(1) of the amended Act, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the new shares prior to June 18, 1971.

65.1 Part XV of amended Act — For greater certainty,

(a) section 9 does not apply in respect of the repeal, by section 1 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, of Part V of the former Act and the substitution therefor, by that section, of Part XV of the amended Act, and

77. Continued effect of repealed provisions — For greater certainty, where a provision of the Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, or the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, was repealed at any time after 1971 but, immediately before the coming into force of the fifth supplement to the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, continues to be applied to any extent or otherwise to have any effect on, or in connection with, the application of either or both of those Acts, the repealed provision, on the coming into force of that supplement, continues to be so applied or to have that effect on, or in connection with, the application of either this Act or the Income Tax Act or both.

Definitions [ITAR 77]: "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952", "Income Tax Application Rules, 1971" — ITAR 69; "provision" — ITAR 74.

78. Application of section 77 — Section 77 is applicable whether or not this Act or the Income Tax Act, as the case may be, contains any reference to the repealed provision referred to in that section or to the subject-matter of that provision.

Definitions [ITAR 78]: "provision" — ITAR 74.

79. (1) Effect of amendments on former ITA — Where a provision of an enactment amends the Income Tax Act or affects the application of the Income Tax Act and the provision applies to or with respect to a period, transaction or event to which the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, applies, the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, shall be read as if it had been amended or its application had been affected by the provision, with such modifications as the circumstances require, to the extent of the provision's application to or with respect to that period, transaction or event.

(2) Effect of amendments on former ITAR — Where a provision of an enactment amends this Act or affects the application of this Act and the provision applies to or with respect to a period, transaction or event to which the Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, apply, the Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, shall be read as if they had been amended or their application had been affected by the provision, with such modifications as the circumstances require, to the extent of the provision's application to or with respect to that period, transaction or event.

History: ITAR 79 added by 1994, c. 21, s. 121, deemed to have come into force on March 2, 1994.

Definitions [ITAR 79]: "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952", "Income Tax Application Rules, 1971" — ITAR 69.

INCOME TAX REGULATIONS

CONSOLIDATED REGULATIONS OF CANADA, CHAPTER 945

(CONSOLIDATED AS OF DECEMBER 31, 1977)

PROCLAIMED IN FORCE AUGUST 15, 1979, AS AMENDED TO JULY 3, 2012

Notes: Editorial annotations have been added in square brackets to update references to the ITA where the numbering of the provision has changed as a result of the R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Supp.) consolidation implemented in 1994. (See Reg. 700(1) as an example.) Editorial annotations have also been added in square brackets to indicate revised text per S.C. 2005, c. 38, s. 28, which states that the expressions are "to be read" that way. (See Reg. 501 as an example.)

1. Short title — These Regulations may be cited as the Income Tax Regulations.

2. Interpretation — In these Regulations, "Act" means the Income Tax Act.

PART I — TAX DEDUCTIONS

History: Part I was consolidated by the Consolidated Regulations of Canada, chapter 945, proclaimed in force August 15, 1979, by P.C. 1979-1934, July 19, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 8, 1979.

100. Interpretation — (1) [Definitions] — In this Part and in Schedule I,

"employee" means any person receiving remuneration;

"employer" means any person paying remuneration;

"estimated deductions" means, in respect of a taxation year, the total of the amounts estimated to be deductible by an employee for the year under any of paragraphs 8(1)(f), (h), (h.1), (i) and (j) of the Act and determined by the employee for the purpose of completing the form referred to in subsection 107(2);

History: "Estimated deductions" amended by P.C. 1994-372, subsec. 1(1), March 10, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, March 23, 1994, effective January 1, 1993.

"Estimated deductions" amended by P.C. 1989-2105, subsec. 1(2), October 19, 1989, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 8, 1989, effective July 1, 1988.

"Estimated deductions" substituted by P.C. 1983-1137, subsec. 1(1), April 14, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, April 27, 1983, effective from January 1, 1982.

"Estimated deductions" added by P.C. 1980-3375, s. 1, December 11, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1980, in force January 1, 1981.

"exemptions" — [Revoked]

History: "Exemptions" revoked by P.C. 1989-2105, subsec. 1(1), October 19, 1989, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 8, 1989, effective July 1, 1988.

Cl. (a)(ii)(E) of "exemptions" in subsec. 100(1) added by P.C. 1988-1105, s. 1, June 6, 1988, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 22, 1988, applicable to 1987 et seq.

Cl. (a)(ii)(B) of "exemptions" in subsec. 100(1) substituted by P.C. 1987-1478, s. 1, July 30, 1987, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 19, 1987, effective from January 1, 1986.

Para. (b) of "exemptions" in subsec. 100(1) substituted by P.C. 1983-2717, subsec. 1(1), September 1, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, September 14, 1983, effective from January 1, 1983.

Cls. 100(1)(a)(ii)(B), (C) of "exemptions" substituted by P.C. 1977-3520, December 15, 1977, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 11, 1978, effective January 1, 1978.

"pay period" includes

(a) a day,

(b) a week,

(c) a two week period,

(d) a semi-monthly period,

(e) a month,

(f) a four week period,

(g) one tenth of a calendar year, or

(h) one twenty-second of a calendar year;

History: "Pay period" added by P.C. 1981-1557, subsec. 1(1), June 11, 1981, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 24, 1981 effective commencing January 1, 1981.

"personal credits" means, in respect of a particular taxation year, the greater of

(a) the amount referred to in paragraph 118(1)(c) of the Act, and

(b) the aggregate of the credits which the employee would be entitled to claim for the year under

(i) subsections 118(1), (2) and (3) of the Act if the description of A in those subsections were read as "is equal to one",

(ii) subsections 118.3(1) and (2) of the Act if the description of A in subsection 118.3(1) of the Act were read as "is equal to one" and if subsection 118.3(1) of the Act were read without reference to paragraph (c) thereof,

(iii) subsections 118.5(1) and 118.6(2) of the Act if subsection 118.5(1) of the Act were read without reference to "the product obtained when the appropriate percentage for the year is multiplied by" and the description of A in subsection 118.6(2) of the Act were read as "is equal to one", and after deducting from the aggregate of the amounts determined under those subsections the excess over $3,000 of the aggregate of amounts that the employee claims to expect to receive in the year on account of a scholarship, fellowship or bursary,

(iv) section 118.8 of the Act if the formula A + B - C in that section were read as

$$(A + B) / C$$

where

A is the value of A in that section,

B is the value of B in that section, and

C is the appropriate percentage for the year.

(v) section 118.9 of the Act if the formula A - B in section 118.81 of the Act were read as

$$A / B$$

where

A is the value of A set out in that section, and

B is the appropriate percentage for the year.

History: The definition "personal credits" in subsec. 100(1) amended by P.C. 2001-1115, subsec. 1(1), June 14, 2001, Canada Gazette, Part II, July 4, 2001, applicable to 2001 et seq.

"Personal credits" substituted by P.C. 1994-372, subsec. 1(2), March 10, 1994, Canada Gazette, March 23, 1994, effective January 1, 1993.

"Personal credits" added by P.C. 1989-2105, subsec. 1(3), October 19, 1989, Canada Gazette, November 8, 1989, effective July 1, 1988.

"remuneration" includes any payment that is

(a) in respect of

(i) salary or wages, or

(ii) commissions or other similar amounts fixed by reference to the volume of the sales made or the contracts negotiated (referred to as "commissions" in this Part), paid to an officer or employee or former officer or employee,

(a.1) in respect of an employee's gratuities required under provincial legislation to be declared to the employee's employer,

(b) a superannuation or pension benefit (including an annuity payment made pursuant to or under a superannuation or pension fund or plan),

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 100(1)"remuneration"(b)

(b) a superannuation or pension benefit (including an annuity payment made pursuant to or under a superannuation or pension fund or plan) other than a distribution

(i) that is made from a pooled registered pension plan and is not required to be included in computing a taxpayer's income under paragraph 56(1)(z.3) of the Act, or

(ii) that is deemed to have been made under subsection 147.5(14) of the Act,

Application: The December 14, 2011 draft legislation, s. 23, will amend para. (b) of the definition "remuneration" in subsec. 100(1) to read as above, in force or deemed in force on the day of the coming into force of S.C. 2012, c. 16 (Bill C-25, Royal Assent June 18, 2012), Pooled Registered Pension Plans Act.

Technical Notes: Part I of the Regulations provides rules concerning deductions at source that must be withheld on specified amounts of "remuneration" paid to a taxpayer. Paragraph (b) of the definition "remuneration" in subsection 100(1) includes a payment to a taxpayer of a superannuation or pension benefit.

Paragraph (b) of the definition "remuneration" in subsection 100(1) is amended to provide an exemption from withholding tax for any amount distributed from a pooled registered pension plan (PRPP) that is not required to be included in the taxpayer's income under new paragraph 56(1)(z.3) of the Act or that is deemed to have been distributed to a deceased PRPP member by reason of new subsection 147.5(14) of the Act.

For further information regarding PRPPs, please see the commentary on new section 147.5.

(b.1) an amount of a distribution out of or under a retirement compensation arrangement,

(c) a retiring allowance,

(d) a death benefit,

(e) a benefit under a supplementary unemployment benefit plan,

(f) a payment under a deferred profit sharing plan or a plan referred to in section 147 of the Act as a "revoked plan", reduced, if applicable, by amounts determined under subsections 147(10.1), (11) and (12) of the Act,

(g) a benefit under the Employment Insurance Act,

Possible Future Amendment — Reg. 100(1)"remuneration"(g)

Application: It is expected that a paragraph similar to para. (g) will be added for benefits from the Quebec Parental Insurance Plan, which are subject to withholding parallel to that for Employment Insurance benefits. See ITA 56(1)(a)(vii) and 153(1)(d.1).

(h) an amount that is required by paragraph 56(1)(r) of the Act to be included in computing a taxpayer's income, except the portion of the amount that relates to child care expenses and tuition costs,

(i) a payment made during the lifetime of an annuitant referred to in the definition "annuitant" in subsection 146(1) of the Act out of or under a registered retirement savings plan of that annuitant, other than

(i) a periodic annuity payment, or

(ii) a payment made by a person who has reasonable grounds to believe that the payment may be deducted under subsection 146(8.2) of the Act in computing the income of any taxpayer,

(j) a payment out of or under a plan referred to in subsection 146(12) of the Act as an "amended plan" other than

(i) a periodic annuity payment, or

(ii) where paragraph 146(12)(a) of the Act applied to the plan after May 25, 1976, a payment made in a year subsequent to the year in which that paragraph applied to the plan, or

(j.1) a payment made during the lifetime of an annuitant referred to in the definition "annuitant" in subsection 146.3(1) of the Act under a registered retirement income fund of that annuitant, other than a particular payment to the extent that

(i) the particular payment is in respect of the minimum amount (in this paragraph having the meaning assigned by subsection 146.3(1) of the Act) under the fund for a year, or

(ii) where the fund governs a trust, the particular payment would be in respect of the minimum amount under the fund for a year if each amount that, at the beginning of the year, is scheduled to be paid after the time of the particular payment and in the year to the trust under an annuity contract that is held by the trust both at the beginning of the year and at the time of the particular payment, is paid to the trust in the year,

(k) a benefit described in section 5502,

(l) an amount as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of, proceeds of the surrender, cancellation or redemption of an income-averaging annuity contract,

(m) in respect of an amount that can reasonably be regarded as having been received, in whole or in part, as consideration or partial consideration for entering into a contract of service, where the service is to be performed in Canada, or for an undertaking not to enter into such a contract with another party, or

(n) a payment out of a registered education savings plan other than

(i) a refund of payments,

(ii) an educational assistance payment, or

(iii) an amount, up to $50,000, of an accumulated income payment that is made to a subscriber, as defined in subsection 204.94(1) of the Act, or if there is no subscriber at that time, that is made to a person that has been a spouse or common-law partner of an individual who was a subscriber, if

(A) that amount is transferred to an RRSP in which the annuitant is either the recipient of the payment or the recipient's spouse, and

(B) it is reasonable for the person making the payment to believe that that amount is deductible for the year by the recipient of the payment within the limits provided for in subsection 146(5) or (5.1) of the Act;

History: The opening words of para. (i) of the definition "remuneration" in subsec. 100(1) amended to replace "subparagraph 146(1)(a)(i)" with "the definition "annuitant" in subsection 146(1)" by P.C. 2001-1115, subsec. 1(2), June 14, 2001, Canada Gazette, Part II, July 4, 2001, applicable to 2001 et seq.

The word "spouse" replaced with "spouse or common-law partner" in subpara. 102. Periodic payments — (1) [Amount to be withheld] — Except as otherwise provided in this Part, the amount to be deducted or withheld by an employer

(a) from any payment of remuneration (in this subsection referred to as the "payment") made to an employee in his taxation year where he reports for work at an establishment of the employer in a province, in Canada beyond the limits of any province or outside Canada, and

(b) for any pay period in which the payment is made by the employer shall be determined for each payment in accordance with the following rules:

(c) an amount that is a notional remuneration for the year in respect of

(i) a payment to the employee, and

(ii) the amount, if any, of gratuities referred to in paragraph (a.1) of the definition "remuneration" in subsection 100(1)

is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B$$

where

A is the amount that is deemed for the purpose of this paragraph to be the mid-point of the applicable range of remuneration for the pay period, as provided in Schedule I, in which falls the total of

(A) the payment referred to in subparagraph (i) made in the pay period, and

(B) the amount of gratuities referred to in subparagraph (ii) declared by the employee for the pay period, and

B is the maximum number of such pay periods in that year;

(d) if the employee is not resident in Canada at the time of the payment, no personal credits will be allowed for the purposes of this subsection and, if the employee is resident in Canada at the time of the payment, the employee's personal credits for the year are deemed to be the mid-point of the range of amounts of personal credits for a taxation year as provided for in section 2 of Schedule I;

(e) an amount (in this subsection referred to as the "notional tax for the year") shall be computed in respect of that employee by

(i) calculating the amount of tax payable for the year, as if that amount were calculated under subsection 117(2) of the Act and adjusted annually pursuant to section 117.1 of the Act, on the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (c) as if that amount represented the employee's amount taxable for that year, and deducting the aggregate of

(ii) the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (d) multiplied by the appropriate percentage for the year,

(iii) an amount equal to

(A) the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (c) multiplied by the employee's premium rate for the year under the Employment Insurance Act, not exceeding the maximum amount of the premiums payable by the employee for the year under that Act, multiplied by

(B) the appropriate percentage for the year, and

(iv) an amount equal to

(A) the product obtained when the difference between the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (c) and the amount determined under section 20 of the Canada Pension Plan for the year is multiplied by the employee's contribution rate for the year under the Canada Pension Plan or under a provincial pension plan as defined in subsection 3(1) of that Act, not exceeding the maximum amount of such contributions payable by the employee for the year under the plan,

multiplied by

(B) the appropriate percentage for the year;

(f) the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (e) shall be increased by, where applicable, the tax as determined under subsection 120(1) of the Act;

(g) where the amount of notional remuneration for the year is income earned in the Province of Quebec, the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (e) shall be reduced by an amount that is the aggregate of

(i) the amount that is deemed to be paid under subsection 120(2) of the Act as if there were no other source of income or loss for the year, and

(ii) the amount by which the amount referred to in subparagraph (i) is increased by virtue of section 27 of the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act; and

(h) [Revoked]

(i) the amount to be deducted or withheld shall be computed by

(i) dividing the amount of the notional tax for the year by the maximum number of pay periods for the year in respect of the appropriate pay period, and

(ii) rounding the amount determined under subparagraph (i) to the nearest multiple of five cents or, if such amount is equidistant from two such multiples, to the higher multiple.

(2) [Commission employees] — Where an employee has elected pursuant to subsection 107(2) and has not revoked such election, the amount to be deducted or withheld by the employer from any payment of remuneration (in this subsection referred to as the "payment") that is

(a) a payment in respect of commissions or is a combined payment of commissions and salary or wages, or

(b) a payment in respect of salary or wages where that employee receives a combined payment of commissions and salary or wages, made to that employee in his taxation year where he reports for work at an establishment of the employer in a province, in Canada beyond the limits of any province or outside Canada, shall be determined for each payment in accordance with the following rules:

(c) an employee's "estimated annual taxable income" shall be determined by using the formula

where

A is the amount of that employee's total remuneration in respect of the year as recorded by the employee on the form referred to in subsection 107(2), and

B is the amount of that employee's expenses in respect of the year as recorded by that employee on that form;

(d) if the employee is not resident in Canada at the time of the payment, no personal credits will be allowed for the purposes of this subsection and if the employee is resident in Canada at the time of the payment, the employee's personal credits for the year shall be the total claim amount as recorded by that employee on the return for the year referred to in subsection 107(1);

(e) an amount (in this subsection referred to as the "notional tax for the year") shall be calculated in respect of that employee by using the formula

$$C - [(D + E + F) \times G] + H - I$$

where

C is the amount of tax payable for the year, calculated as if that amount of tax were computed under subsection 117(2) of the Act and adjusted annually pursuant to section 117.1 of the Act, on the amount determined under paragraph (c) as if that amount represented the employee's amount taxable for that year,

D is the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (d),

E is the amount determined in the description of A in paragraph (c) multiplied by the employee's premium rate for the year under the Employment Insurance Act, not exceeding the maximum amount of the premiums payable by the employee for the year under that Act,

F is the amount determined in the description of A in paragraph (c) less the amount for the year determined under section 20 of the Canada Pension Plan multiplied by the employee's contribution rate for the year under that Act or under a provincial pension plan as defined in section 3 of that Act, not exceeding the maximum amount of such contributions payable by the employee for the year under the plan,

G is the appropriate percentage for the year,

H is, where applicable, the tax as determined under subsection 120(1) of the Act,

I is, where the amount of total remuneration for the year is income earned in the Province of Quebec, an amount equal to the aggregate of

(i) the amount that would be deemed to have been paid under subsection 120(2) of the Act with respect to the employee if the notional tax for the year for the employee were determined without reference to the elements H, I and J in this formula and if that tax were that employee's tax payable under Part I of the Act for that year, as if there were no other source of income or loss for the year, and

(ii) the amount by which the amount referred to in subparagraph (i) is increased by virtue of section 27 of the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act;

(f) the employee's notional rate of tax for a year is calculated by dividing the amount determined under paragraph (e) by the amount referred to in the description of A in paragraph (c) in respect of that employee and expressed as a decimal fraction rounded to the nearest hundredth, or where the third digit is equidistant from two consecutive one-thousandths, to the higher thereof;

(g) the amount to be deducted or withheld in respect of any payment made to that employee shall be determined by multiplying the payment by the appropriate decimal fraction determined pursuant to paragraph (f).

(2) [Bonus] — Where a payment in respect of a bonus is made by an employer to an employee whose total remuneration from the employer (including the bonus) may reasonably be expected to exceed $5,000 in the taxation year of the employee in which the payment is made, the amount to be deducted or withheld therefrom by the employer is

(a) the amount determined under section 102 in respect of an assumed remuneration equal to the aggregate of

(i) the amount of regular remuneration paid by the employer to the employee in the pay period in which the remuneration is paid, and

(ii) an amount equal to the bonus payment divided by the number of pay periods in the taxation year of the employee in which the payment is made

minus

(b) the amount determined under section 102 in respect of the amount of regular remuneration paid by the employer to the employee in the pay period

multiplied by

(c) the number of pay periods in the taxation year of the employee in which the payment is made.

(3) [Retroactive pay increase] — Where a payment in respect of a retroactive increase in remuneration is made by an employer to an employee whose total remuneration from the employer (including the retroactive increase) may reasonably be expected to exceed $5,000 in the taxation year of the employee in which the payment is made, the amount to be deducted or withheld therefrom by the employer is

(a) the amount determined under section 102 in respect of the new rate of remuneration

minus

(b) the amount determined under section 102 in respect of the previous rate of remuneration

multiplied by

(c) the number of pay periods in respect of which the increase in remuneration is retroactive.

(4) [Lump sum payment] — Subject to subsection (5), where a lump sum payment is made by an employer to an employee who is a resident of Canada,

(a) if the payment does not exceed $5,000, the employer shall deduct or withhold therefrom, in the case of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the employer

(i) in Quebec, 5 per cent,

(ii) in any other province, 7 per cent, or

(iii) in Canada beyond the limits of any province or outside Canada, 10 per cent,

(iv)–(xiv) [Repealed]

(3) [Home Buyers' Plan] — No amount shall be deducted or withheld from a payment made by a person during the lifetime of an annuitant referred to in paragraph (a) of the definition "annuitant" in subsection 146(1) of the Act out of or under a registered retirement savings plan of the annuitant where, at the time of the payment, the annuitant has certified in prescribed form to the person that

(a) a written agreement has been entered into to acquire a home by either

(i) the annuitant, or

(ii) a disabled person who is related to the annuitant and who is entitled to the credit for mental or physical impairment under subsection 118.3 (1) of the Act;

(b) the annuitant intends that the home be used as a principal place of residence in Canada for the annuitant or the disabled person, as the case may be, within one year after its acquisition;

(c) the home has not been previously owned by the annuitant, the annuitant's spouse or common-law partner, the disabled person or the spouse or common-law partner of that person;

(d) the annuitant was resident in Canada;

(e) the total amount of the payment and all other such payments received by the annuitant in respect of the home at or before the time of payment does not exceed $20,000;

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 104(3)(e)

(e) the total amount of the payment and all other such payments received by the annuitant in respect of the home at or before the time of the payment does not exceed the dollar amount specified in paragraph (h) of the definition "regular eligible amount" in subsection 146.01(1) of the Act;

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, s. 59, will amend para. 104(3)(e) to read as above, deemed to have come into force on January 28, 2009.

Technical Notes: Part I of the Regulations provides the rules concerning taxes withheld at source from payments described under subsection 153(1) of the Act, including lump sum payments out of a registered retirement savings plan (RRSP). Subsection 104(3) of the Regulations provides an exemption (from tax withheld) for payments out of an RRSP that are used to acquire a home in accordance with the Home Buyers' Plan (HBP) provisions under section 146.01 of the Act.

Subsection 104(3) is amended to increase the exemption on HBP withdrawals from $20,000 to $25,000. Specifically, the reference in paragraph (a) to "$20,000" is replaced by a reference to the dollar amount ($25,000) specified under paragraph (h) of the definition "regular eligible amount" in subsection 146.01(1) of the Act. This amendment is consequential on amendments made in 2009 to paragraph (h) of the definition "regular eligible amount" and paragraph (g) of the definition "supplemental pension amount" under subsection 146.01(1) of the Act, which increased the HBP withdrawal limit from $20,000 to $25,000.

(f) except where the annuitant certifies that he or she is a disabled person entitled to the credit for mental or physical impairment under subsection 118.3(1) of the Act or certifies that the payment is being withdrawn for the benefit of such a disabled person, the annuitant is a qualifying homebuyer at the time of the certification; and

(g) where the annuitant has withdrawn an eligible amount, within the meaning assigned by subsection 146.01(1) of the Act, before the calendar year of the certification, the total of all eligible amounts received by the annuitant before that calendar year does not exceed the total of all amounts previously designated under subsection 146.01(3) of the Act or included in computing the annuitant's income under subsection 146.01(4) or (5) of the Act.

Related Provisions: Reg. 104(3.01), (3.1), (4) — Interpretation.

History: The word "spouse" replaced with "spouse or common-law partner" in para. 104(3)(c), by P.C. 2001-957, para. 14(b), May 31, 2001, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 20, 2001, applicable to 2001 et seq., except that if a taxpayer and a person have jointly elected pursuant to s. 144 of the Modernization of Benefits and Obligations Act (S.C. 2000, c. 12), in respect of the 1998, 1999 or 2000 taxation year, the amendment applies to the taxpayer and the person in respect of the applicable taxation year et seq.

Subsec. 104(3) amended by P.C. 1998-2272, subsec. 1(1), December 16, 1998, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 6, 1999, applicable to payments made after 1998.

Also see history at end of s. 104.

(3.01) ["Qualifying homebuyer"] — For the purpose of subsection (3), the annuitant is a qualifying homebuyer at a particular time unless

(a) the annuitant had an owner-occupied home in the period beginning on January 1 of the fourth calendar year preceding the particular time, and ending on the thirty-first day before the particular time; or

(b) the annuitant's spouse or common-law partner, in the period referred to in paragraph (a), had an owner-occupied home that was inhabited by the annuitant at any time during the annuitant's marriage to the spouse or the annuitant's common-law partnership with the common-law partner.

History: Para. 104(3.01)(b) amended by P.C. 2001-957, s. 1, May 31, 2001, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 20, 2001, applicable to 2001 et seq., except that if a taxpayer and a person have jointly elected pursuant to s. 144 of the Modernization of Benefits and Obligations Act (S.C. 2000, c. 12), in respect of the 1998, 1999 or 2000 taxation year, the amendment applies to the taxpayer and the person in respect of the applicable taxation year et seq.

Subsec. 104(3.01) added by P.C. 1998-2272, subsec. 1(1), December 16, 1998, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 6, 1999, applicable to payments made after 1998.

(3.1) ["Owner-occupied home"] — For the purpose of subsection (3.01), an individual shall be considered to have had an owner-occupied home at any time where the home was owned, whether jointly with another person or otherwise, by the individual at that time and inhabited by the individual as the individual's principal place of residence at that time.

History: Subsec. 104(3.1) amended by P.C. 1998-2272, subsec. 1(1), December 16, 1998, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 6, 1999, applicable to payments made after 1998.

Also see history at end of s. 104.

(4) ["Home"] — For the purposes of subsections (3), (3.01) and (3.1), "home" means

(a) a housing unit;

(b) a share of the capital stock of a cooperative housing corporation, where the holder of the share is entitled to possession of a housing unit; and

(c) where the context so requires, the housing unit to which a share described in paragraph (b) relates.

104.1 Lifelong Learning Plan — (1) No amount shall be deducted or withheld from a payment made by a person during the lifetime of an annuitant referred to in paragraph (a) of the definition "annuitant" in subsection 146(1) of the Act out of or under a registered retirement savings plan of the annuitant where, at the time of the payment, the annuitant has certified in prescribed form to the person that

(a) at the time of certification, the annuitant or the annuitant's spouse or common-law partner

(i) is a full-time student in a qualifying educational program,

(ii) is a part-time student in a qualifying educational program and is entitled to the credit for mental or physical impairment under subsection 118.3(1) of the Act, or

(iii) has received notification in writing of his or her entitlement, either absolutely or conditionally, to enrol before March of the year that follows the year of certification as

(A) a full-time student in a qualifying educational program, or

(B) a part-time student in a qualifying educational program where the annuitant or the annuitant's spouse or common-law partner is entitled to the credit for mental or physical impairment under subsection 118.3(1) of the Act;

(b) the annuitant is resident in Canada;

(c) the total amount of the payment and all other such payments received by the annuitant for a year at or before that time does not exceed $10,000; and

(d) the total payments received by the annuitant do not exceed $20,000 throughout the period in which the annuitant participates in the Lifelong Learning Plan.

Related Provisions: Reg. 104.1(2) — Interpretation.

Forms: RC96: LLP — request to withdraw funds from an RRSP.

(2) ["Qualifying educational program"] — For the purpose of subsection (1), a "qualifying educational program" means a qualifying educational program at a designated educational institution (as those expressions are defined in subsection 118.6(1) of the Act), except that a reference to a "qualifying educational program" shall be read

(a) without reference to paragraphs (a) and (b) of that definition; and

(b) as if the reference to "3 consecutive weeks" in that definition were a reference to "3 consecutive months".

105.1 Fishermen's election — (1) Notwithstanding section 100, in this section,

"amount of remuneration" paid to a fisherman means

(a) where a boat crewed by one or more fishermen engaged in making a catch is owned, together with the gear, by a person, other than a member of the crew, to whom the catch is to be delivered for subsequent sale or other disposition, such portion of the proceeds from the disposition of the catch that is payable to the fisherman in accordance with an arrangement under which the proceeds of disposition of the catch are to be distributed (in this section referred to as a "share arrangement");

(b) where the boat or gear used in making a catch is owned or leased by a fisherman who alone or with another individual engaged under a contract of service makes the catch, such portion of the proceeds from the disposition of the catch that remains after deducting therefrom

(i) the amount in respect of any portion of the catch not caught by the fisherman or the other individual,

(ii) the amount payable to the other individual under the contract of service, and

(iii) the amount of such proportionate share of the catch as is attributable to the expenses of the operation of the boat or its gear pursuant to their share arrangement;

(c) where a crew includes the owner of the boat or gear (in this paragraph referred to as the "owner") and any other fisherman engaged in making a catch, such portion of the proceeds from the disposition of the catch that remains after deducting therefrom

(i) in the case of an owner,

(A) the amount in respect of that portion of the catch not caught by the crew or an owner,

(B) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount payable to a crew member (other than the owner) pursuant to their share arrangement or to an individual engaged under a contract of service, and

(C) the amount of such proportionate share of the catch as is attributable to the expenses of the owner's operation of the boat or its gear pursuant to their share arrangement, or

(ii) in the case of any other crew member, such proceeds from the disposition of the catch as is payable to him in accordance with their share arrangement; or

(d) in any other case, the proceeds of disposition of the catch payable to the fisherman;

"catch" means a catch of shell fish, crustaceans, aquatic animals or marine plants caught or taken from any body of water;

"crew" means one or more fishermen engaged in making a catch;

"fisherman" means an individual engaged in making a catch other than under a contract of service.

(2) Every person paying at any time in a taxation year an amount of remuneration to a fisherman who, pursuant to paragraph 153(1)(n) of the Act, has elected for the year in prescribed form in respect of all such amounts shall deduct or withhold 20% of each such amount paid to the fisherman while the election is in force.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 205.1 — Mandatory electronic filing where 50 slips or more

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Jan. 27, 2009: Mandatory filing of return by electronic transmission

(21) That, for information returns that are prescribed for the purposes of this paragraph and required to be filed after 2009, the Act be amended to provide that every person (other than a registered charity) or partnership who fails to file such an information return when required by the Act or the Income Tax Regulations is liable to a penalty of the greater of

(a) $100; and

(b) where the taxpayer is required to file on a day one or more such information returns and the number of those information returns of a particular type so required to be filed is

(i) less than 51, $10 for each day during which the failure continues, not exceeding 100 days,

(ii) more than 50 but less than 501, $15 for each day during which the failure continues, not exceeding 100 days,

(iii) more than 500 but less than 2,501, $25 for each day during which the failure continues, not exceeding 100 days,

(iv) more than 2,500 but less than 10,001, $50 for each day during which the failure continues, not exceeding 100 days, and

(v) more than 10,000, $75 for each day during which the failure continues, not exceeding 100 days.

(22) That for information returns that are prescribed for the purposes of this paragraph and required to be filed electronically after 2009, the Act be amended to provide that every person (other than a registered charity) or partnership who fails to file such an information return by way of electronic filing is liable to a penalty of, where the number of those information returns of a particular type so required to be filed is

(a) more than 50 but less than 251, $250;

(b) more than 250 but less than 501, $500;

(c) more than 500 but less than 2,501, $1500; and

(d) more than 2500, $2,500.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Jan. 27, 2009: Mandatory Electronic Filing

Taxpayers are currently allowed to file their income tax information with the CRA in electronic format if they meet certain criteria acceptable to the CRA. The CRA will increase efficiencies in the implementation of its programs by requiring such electronic filing in certain circumstances. . . .

[Mandatory electronic filing of certain corporate tax returns — enacted in ITA 150.1(2.1) — ed.]

Second, the number of any particular type of income tax information return that can be filed by a taxpayer before the taxpayer is, under an existing income tax provision [Reg. 205.1(1) — ed.], required to file those information returns electronically, will be reduced to 50 from 500. This measure will most often apply in practice in respect of T4 information returns for employment income. [This change does not appear in the Notice of Ways and Means Motion above because it will amend the Regulations; the NWMM describes only changes to the Act — ed.]

This measure will apply in respect of information returns required to be filed after 2009.

Penalties

In addition to the new electronic filing requirements described above, Budget 2009 proposes to introduce a penalty for filing a corporate income tax return in an incorrect format, and to reduce the penalties applicable for late filed or incorrectly filed information returns....

[Penalty for corporations that do not file electronically — enacted in ITA 162(7.2) — ed.]

Penalty for Filing Information Returns Late or in an Incorrect Format

There is an existing penalty [ITA 162(7) — ed.] that has general application to taxpayers who fail to comply with any duties and obligations imposed under the Income Tax Act, including those who fail to file information returns as and when required. This penalty is calculated as the greater of $100 per failure and $25 times the number of days, not exceeding 100, during which the failure continues. This penalty can be excessive in cases where a large number of similar returns are required to be filed, but are filed late. Under the current rules, for example, an employer who filed 500 T4 information returns one day late would be liable to a penalty of $50,000.

This penalty will be reduced, so that taxpayers who fail to file electronically under the electronic information return requirements, or who file information returns late, are not unduly penalized. The penalties will be calculated based on the number of any particular type of information return that is filed in the incorrect format or that is filed late.

For information returns that are filed in the incorrect format, the penalty is proposed to be set at the following amounts:

- $250 — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 50 but less than 251 returns;
- $500 — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 250 but less than 501 returns;
- $1,500 — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 500 but less than 2,501 returns; and
- $2,500 — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 2,500 returns.

For information returns that are filed late, the penalty is proposed to be set at the greater of $100 and the following amounts:

- $10 per day — where the taxpayer is required to file less than 51 returns;
- $15 per day — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 50 but less than 501 returns;
- $25 per day — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 500 but less than 2,501 returns;
- $50 per day — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 2,500 but less than 10,001 returns; and
- $75 per day — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 10,000 returns.

The penalty for late-filed information returns will be limited to 100 days, meaning that it will be capped at between $1,000 and $7,500 (depending on the number of returns that are required to be filed).

These penalties [enacted in ITA 162(7.01), (7.02) — ed.] will apply to information returns required to be filed after 2009.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 205.1 [will need to be renumbered]

205.1 Electronic filing [required] — (1) A person who is required to make an information return under this Part, or who files an information return on behalf of a person who is required to make an information return under this Part, shall transmit the information return to the Minister in the prescribed electronic form if more than 500 [to be changed to 50 — ed.] information returns are to be filed by that person for the calendar year.

(2) Every transmission referred to in subsection (1) shall include, in the prescribed electronic form, a summary of the information returns contained in the transmission.

Related Provisions: ITA 162(7.2) — Penalty for not filing electronically where required.

(3) For the purposes of subsections 162(7) to (8) of the Act, failure to make a transmission as required by subsections (1) and (2) is deemed to be failure to file an information return as and when required by the Act or these Regulations.

Application: The May 2, 2005 draft regulations (pre-published in Canada Gazette, Part I, May 7, 2005), s. 1, will amend s. 205.1 to read as above, applicable to 2001 et seq. [this will need to be amended and renumbered to incorporate new 205.1(2) above, passed in 2011 — ed.]

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Section 205.1 was added to the Income Tax Regulations (the Regulations) in 1999. Until 2001, as a transitional measure, the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) did not issue penalties for the failure to comply with this new requirement. In 2001, taxpayers were notified that the penalties provided for in subsection 162(7) of the Income Tax Act (the Act) would be applied for the failure to file these large returns electronically.

At that time, and for the first time, CRA officials realized that a strict interpretation of the provisions of section 205.1, taken with the penalty provisions of subsection 162(7) of the Act, would result in the imposition of minimum penalties of $5,000 per day, to a maximum of $1.25 million, for the failure by a taxpayer to file returns electronically.

Owing to the obvious excess of this penalty, the CRA limited the penalty to $100 per day, to a maximum of $2,500, by characterizing the transmission itself as one information return and applying the provisions of subsection 162(7) against that return. This penalty reduction was made using the authority of the Minister to waive all or part of a penalty, as set out in subsection 220(3.1) of the Act.

This amendment to section 205.1 will make it clear in law that the "failure" that will attract a penalty is the failure to file the "package" of returns electronically; it is not the failure to file each of the individual information returns included in the package.

Alternatives

No alternative was considered to these amendments.

This is the only manner in which the Regulations can be amended to address the unintended consequence of the failure to comply with section 205.1.

Benefits and costs

There are no costs of these amendments to taxpayers, tax practitioners or the CCRA.

Taxpayers will benefit, as this amendment clarifies the original intent of the CRA with respect to a failure to comply with section 205.1. Taxpayers will also benefit since the "reduced penalty" will no longer be subject to the discretionary application of a Ministerial waiver.
